The six first named were stationed in the torpedo room when the submarine was sunk Dec. 17, in collision with the coast guard destroyer Paulding. The bodies of Dempsey and Sterman were taken from the engine and motor compartments. The watertight door between the two chambers was found to be open when the divers entered through the engine room hatch.

Soon after dark tonight the eight bodies were taken from the submarine. Each body had been placed in a basket draped with a United States flag. Guards and naval officers at the drydock stood at attention and saluted as each body was brought ashore. The bodies were not removed until after nightfall to prevent the possibility of photographers making pictures of the scene.

Ambulances were waiting to take the bodies to the Chelsea Naval hospital as soon as they were brought ashore.

DESTROYER PUNCTURED HULL OF SUBMARINE S-4

BOSTON, March 19—(AP)—The coast guard destroyer Paulding left a "sting" when it punctured the hull of the submarine S-4 and brought death to 40 men off Provincetown three months ago.

The naval board of investigation found three feet of the Paulding's keel bottom projecting through the inner hull of the S-4's battery room when it entered the submarine today. This piece of the Paulding, ripped off when it struck the S-4, was pointed aft at an angle of 30 degrees on the starboard side, near the submarine's number one ballast vent.

The most amazing feature of the drydocking was the revelation of the comparatively small hole which sent the submarine to the bottom. The opening on the outside hull is about eight feet long and only three feet high. The inside hole is but two and a half feet long and a foot high.

BIG DISTILLING PLANT SEIZED ON FARM IN GOSHEN

GOSHEN, March 19—(AP)—State police called at the farm of Frank Coloneos, on the Torrington-Goshen road today, and seized a distilling plant, the value of which was placed at $50,000. The outfit, which was in a large cow barn, was complete, even the electricity needed for lighting purposes being generated in the plant.

There were ten vats for holding mash and liquids, each having capacities from 500 to 1,000 gallons. The still was a huge affair and built in substantial manner. The steam boiler was fed by an oil burner.

It is understood that the plant had begun to put out its product and this fact had brought the farm under suspicion. The state police squad of eight men came from the Canaan barracks under Lieutenant Brandt.

John Peterson, who claimed to be a farm hand, was arrested. He was the only man on the place and claimed not to know much about the outfit.

NEW COUNSEL ENTERED IN BANK ROBBERY CASE

HARTFORD, March 19—(AP)—New counsel has entered the Plantsville bank robbery case. Replacing Noble E. Pierce, of Southington, William S. Hyde, of Manchester, has been retained by Stuart R. Florian, of Southington, to defend him on the charge of participating in the hold-up of the country bank last June with three Cicero, Ill., men, who got away with $4,000 of the bank's money in broad daylight.

Mr. Hyde said it has been tentatively agreed that the state's attorney's office that his client be tried before a jury and Judge Marvin in the superior court on March 27.

When Florian was tried before the jury last December, with Mr. Pierce representing him, the jury disagreed, standing nine to three for acquittal of the Southington youth.

STEAMER CRAWLING TO PORT WITH PATCHED-UP ENGINE

NEW YORK, March 19—(AP)—The Grace liner Santa Theresa, out of Valparaiso on its 100th voyage to New York, was crawling toward port tonight with a patched-up engine.

On Saturday afternoon, the main condenser blew out 500 miles from New York and for 30 hours the ship wallowed in a heavy sea while temporary repairs were made. No one was hurt in the explosion.

Captain W. C. Renaut wirelessed the Grace line this afternoon: "Proceeding six to seven knots. Everything looking well and everybody happy. Expect to arrive Thursday."

The ship was scheduled to reach New York today. It has 59 passengers and a crew of 70 on board.

MEAT PACKERS MUST RESTRICT THEIR ACTIVITIES

WASHINGTON, March 19—(AP)—Swift & Co., Armour & Co., Wilson & Co., Inc., Morris & Co., and the Cudahy Packing Co., composing the Big Five packers, must hereafter confine their activities strictly to the meat packing industry, as they agreed to do in a consent decree entered Feb. 27, 1920, when the government began anti-trust lawsuits against them. That decree was sustained today by the supreme court.

The decision restores an injunction restraining them from monopolizing the meat packing industry and from engaging in other lines of business which was suspended in May, 1925, pending the outcome of proceedings started by Swift & Co. and Armour & Co., to vacate the consent decree.

BAN PLACED ON SIDEWALK DISPLAY OF MERCHANDISE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 19—Relinquishing to the constant pressure of complaints Alderman William E. Jackson, chairman of the police committee, announced today that the committee had decided to take action against the displaying of fruits and other produce on the sidewalks along the business section of the city. The city charter was consulted on the matter and subsequently Traffic Officer Arthur Hurley, through Police Chief Grady, was handed written orders to serve notice on merchants that the sidewalks must be kept clear. During the conference held by Chief of Police Grady, Alderman Jackson and City Engineer Robert E. Mitchell, it was found that the city charter specifically provides against the use of any street or sidewalk as a stand from which to sell or expose for sale goods or other things without the authority of the mayor or the common council. The charter provides for a fine of not more than $50 or imprisonment of not more than 30 days or both for violation of the act.

A program under the auspices of The King's Daughters will note the tenth anniversary of the opening of the Card Home for the Aged, Inc., on Pleasant street, Wednesday of this week. The King's Daughters were largely responsible for the founding of the home. The late Hannah T. Card had become interested in such a project through her affiliation with the society and upon her death she left a bequest for the purchase of land and maintenance of a proposed home to be built under the management of five trustees who form a corporation consisting of a board of officers and nine trustees. The King's Daughters raised funds and worked intensively for years to make the home a reality. A tract of land on Windham Road was purchased and the erection of a building was contemplated but war prices were forbidding and the directors of the fund had to abandon this plan. The opportunity came later to purchase the large house at 154 Pleasant street. The house, to which an addition was built, and the spacious grounds made an ideal home but the demand has always been greater than the capacity and for years there has been a waiting list. The 14 present occupants of the home are under the care of Miss Harriet Walker, matron and three assistants. The public opening of the home was ten years ago today while the formal opening was two days later. Five women entered at that time, two of whom, Mrs. Sarah Risley and Mrs. Phoebe Edson, former city missionary are still members. Owing to the limited entrance fee and endowment, the institution is not self supporting, deriving necessary income from the generosity of many friends and the untiring work of the King's Daughter's. Considerable produce is received from the garden on the property which is under the care of A. J. Peterson. As a general source of revenue and in the hope of raising money to construct concrete sidewalks about the property, a food sale will be conducted at the home on the anniversary. The present board of officers are: President, Herbert R. Chappell; first vice-president, George A. Hatch; second vice-president, James B. Fullerton; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Frank M. Smith; directors, Herbert R. Chappell, William A. Arnold, Samuel Chesbro, H. Clinton Lathrop, Mrs. Arthur W. Gates, Arthur I. Bill, Ernest P. Chesbro, Sr., and Attorney E. Frank Durbee. The home is under the management of a house committee comprising Mrs. Frank M. Smith, Mrs. Arthur W. Gates, Mrs. H. C. Lathrop, Mrs. William A. Arnold and Mrs. Carrie Porter.

Mrs. Mabel Estelle Pearl, wife of William A. Pearl of Hampton, died in St. Joseph's hospital Sunday night. She was born in Hartford, December 15, 1882, a daughter of Henry S. and Nellie Haigh Waite. Surviving her besides her husband are three daughters, Beatrice M., Dorothy E. and Elena M. Pearl and one son, William W. Pearl, all of Hampton; also her mother, Mrs. Charles Benzizer of Auburn, R. I.

Arriving at the blunt conclusion that "You can't go far with a woman. If she's wrong, she's right anyway," Cleophis D'Amour, 42, of 233 Main street, who fell into the clutches of the law through a complaint of his wife, pleaded guilty to driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor in police court this morning and was fined $100 and costs. Judge Foss announced that the total was $109.35. Another charge of assault upon his wife, Mrs. Antoinette D'Amour was presented by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Frank P. Fenton. In apparent hopelessness, the accused pleaded guilty to this charge also but it was not pressed by the court. Mrs. D'Amour who had her two daughters, the Misses Edith and Augusta D'Amour in court ready to substantiate her testimony, had complained to the police that her husband had knocked her down and abused her generally. D'Amour was arrested while driving his car, by Traffic Officer Arthur Hurley.

Announcements of the observance of the Golden Jubilee on April 9, of the arrival of the Sisters of Charity of the order of Our Lady of Mercy at St. Joseph's parish, has brought to mind that 1928 marks the silver, or 25th anniversary of the founding of St. Mary's Roman Catholic parish. Following the death of Rev. Florimond DeBruycker in 1902, the French speaking members of the parish then numbered well into the hundreds and a separate parish was formed. The original St. Joseph's parish divided on February 20, 1903, and the corner stone of the present St. Mary's church was laid on August 23, 1903. While awaiting the completion of the splendid edifice in 1904, services were held in the old St. Mary's hall on Valley street. The first pastor of the new church was Rev. Arthur DeBruycker, a cousin of Rev. Florimond DeBruycker, and a former curate of St. Joseph's parish. Rev. F. X. Muiville was the first curate of St. Mary's church. Rev. J. J. Papillon is the present pastor and his assistants are Reverends Edward M Mathieu and Hormisdas C. Belec. The Sisters connected with St. Mary's parish are of the same order as those of St. Joseph's parish. These two parishes, the Academy of the Holy Family Convent at Baltic and the Sacred Heart convent in Taftville are the only convents in the United States representing the order of the Sister of Charity of Our Lady of Mercy. The Academy of the Holy Family at Baltic is the oldest and largest of the four, having a total of 50 sisters. The Taftville convent has 16 sisters, St. Mary's 12 and St. Joseph's convent 28. In St. Mary's parish 15 of the sisters are engaged in teaching at the parochial school which has the largest registration of any school in the town, numbering nearly 700 this year. Including the four convents mentioned it is estimated that the 116 Sisters engaged in educational work teach to about 2,300 pupils in the respective parochial schools.

DANIELSON

KILLINGLY CAUCUS IS ATTENDED BY 15 PERSONS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 19—Mrs. Ida Irmington, vice chairman of the republican town committee in the absence of the chairman, E. L. Darble, called to order at 7.30 tonight in the town the republican caucus to nominate delegates to the republican state convention to be held in Hartford April 17-18 to elect delegates to the republican national convention. C. W. Young of Goodyear was named as chairman and Frank T. Preston was clerk. The delegates named were Representatives Arthur W. Williams of Danielson and William S. Hunter and Alma Fortier both of Goodyear and James N. Tucker of East Killingly. The caucus named again the republican town committee that has served for several years past. Only about 15 people out of the many hundreds of enrolled republicans in the town of Killingly attended the meeting.

Numbers of Danielson radio fans that happened to be tuned in on Schenectady for the nightly dinner concert early this evening might have been lulled to sleep by the booming across thousands of miles of ocean of the chimes of the famous Big Ben in London, England. Schenectady cut out its concert to rebroadcast the overseas program at 6.58 p. m. because it happened to be coming in as strong as a New York station does ordinarily. While the incident gave radio fans a thrill the music was much the same, as one gets locally. When Big Ben chimed midnight in England it was just 7 p. m. here.

NO CLUE TO BURGLARS AT BITGOOD STORE

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 19—All efforts made in that direction today failed to give any clue as to who is responsible for breaking into F. E. Bitgood's store over the week end. It appears that the intruder or intruders took nothing from the stock of the store, but rather engaged in a search for money, without obtaining any. The break was discovered shortly before midnight Sunday, when Special Officer Hosea Greene was making his rounds latching.

He discovered that a storm window had been removed from one of the windows at the rear of the store, and a checkup showed that the place had been entered. Boxes about the store had been peered into and the stock more or less upset as the prowling about for money went on.

It is regarded as rather strange that the screws in the storm window that was removed showed no screw driver marks such as one might expect them to carry after being subjected to turning out of the wood into which they were set.

Chief John McFarland, who investigated the case, was puzzled by this circumstance. There are circumstances attending the break that indicate that it was the work of amateur operators.

A letter came today to Judge Sabin S. Russell of the town's special committee to deal with the matter from Highway Commissioner Macdonald setting forth that the work of building the new stretch of highway from Main at Hutchins street to the top of Stearns Hill will be undertaken this spring, the contract to be let in April.

It also develops that the highway department intends not only to build the new route it has surveyed, but also to rebuild that section of the state highway from the top of Stearns hill to near the Mazerolli place, a mile farther to the east. This will bring the new section of highway straight from Main street to the point where construction of the highway from the Mazerolli place to the state line at Little Rest was undertaken about four years ago.

The road to be built is to be of bituminous macadam.

A crew of employes of the Connecticut company engaged this morning in taking down some of the overhead equipment of the old trolley line that ran through Main and Furnace street. The trolley wire—a double overhead system was in use here—was cut into sections, coiled, loaded on a truck and carted away. Removal of the wire is but another step in eliminating evidence that a trolley road once operated through this section. Last summer the rails and ties were taken out incident to the repaving of the center of Main street by the state.

This afternoon the funeral of Mrs. Alice ray was held from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Kies, School street, with funeral services at the Nazarene church at 2 o'clock, Rev. A. S. Gallup officiating. During the service Mrs. Esther Brown sang, with harp accompaniment, No Burdens Yonder and Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Kent A. Darble sang The Blessed Lights of Home. Burial was in the High street cemetery at Dayville. The bearers were Chauncey Chase, a son-in-law of Mrs. Pray's, of Jewett City, Chauncey Chase, Jr., a grandson, George Baker and Harry Ware. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Senator Urgele LaFrance of Central Village, Attorney Louis A. Wolsard of Danielson, Frank M. Bedard of Brooklyn and Alma Fortier of Goodyear were at Hartford Sunday attending a meeting of the executive committee of the French Republican clubs of Connecticut. This meeting was called to approve bookkeeping systems that are to be used by the organization, forms for membership cards and other such material. With all of this taken care of, county meetings are to be called in the near future and then the real drive for memberships will be undertaken. In this particular section of the state, with its heavy percentage of French population, a particularly large membership will be built up, it is forecasted.

President M. H. Berthiaume and Secretary William S. Hunter of the chamber of commerce have arranged for a meeting of the directors of the organization to be held Wednesday morning to discuss the matter of making the April meeting of the chamber an open one, in order that as many citizens as possible may have an opportunity to hear the talk that is to be given by Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett. This talk is particularly important at this time, for Killingly is considering, and must eventually undertake, a general revaluation of all of the property of the town.

Down at Wauregan Jeremiah Doyle is taking time by the forelock and making ready for another baseball season in which his Pee Wee team will figure. These youngsters have had "Jerry" for a mentor for several years and have had an interesting time, playing both at home and abroad. They are no strangers to Danielson fans. During the winter Mr. Doyle has been putting on entertainments and garnering funds to keep the team going during the 1928 season. His latest venture along that line was to get W. J. Brennan of Danielson and his Mr. Jiggs in New York company for a St. Patrick's night appearance, and the affair was such a hit as to crown all the efforts of the season down there, and so many came out for the entertainment that some of them had to be turned away. All of which would indicate that the Pee Wee team is going to be sitting very pretty the coming baseball season.

Gaylord is giving a course at the Westfield Congregational church on Christianity and Church Membership, this to lead up to a special reception of members and communion on Easter evening. PUTNAM

HEADQUARTERS CO. SUMMONED TO ARMORY BY FIRE ALARM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 19—Monday evening at 7:30, the Putnam fire alarm system gave out a series of strokes totalling ten in all and caused many to wonder where the new fire alarm box was located. The strokes had nothing to do with a fire, they were to call the national guardsmen together at the armory. This was the first time that an emergency call for the military company has ever been sounded on the fire alarm system. Captain McGarry and Fire Chief Thruston arranged to have the alarm sounded at the central fire station. Captain McGarry had explained to the men that ten strokes on the fire alarm system was a mobilization call and that in the near future he would test the company on the new call.

When the tenth stroke had finished ringing, the members of the company were seen flocking to the new armory on Harris street to report for what was thought to be an emergency call. Colonel Foreman, Colonel Gohn, Colonel Bissell and Major Darble, all ranking army officers, who were to inspect the company, complimented the men and Captain McGarry for their efficiency in answering the test call.

In the city court Monday morning three youths pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness. The boys were arrested by the Putnam police on Saturday evening after they had been causing a disturbance. They were arraigned before Judge Geissler Monday. The judge asked the three boys where they had purchased their liquor and their only answer to the question was that they could not remember. The boys admitted the charge and they told the judge that they did not mean to get intoxicated and they would see that it would not happen again if they were given a chance. Judge Geissler told the boys that he would let them off this time with costs of $2 each. They all paid.

According to the United States weather bureau, Monday was the last full day of winter, and spring officially arrives Tuesday afternoon at 3:45 o'clock. Many residents of Putnam and vicinity will be only too glad to greet the new season but many more will be a little cautious, because they do not believe that the cold weather has given way to the real spring days yet. During the past week the days have been very springlike and the temperature hovered around the 65 and 68 marks each day. Saturday, the mercury rose to 71 degrees at noon, this being the warmest that has been reported. During the early hours of Sunday, the mercury took a drop and the continued rain kept the temperature down during the day. Monday, the strong March winds that had made little appearance since the first of the month, prevailed during the day. The observant citizen only hopes that the new season will bring its weather with it.

Oney Lanciault, of Auburn, Mass., and Mrs. Gladys (Farrar) Stooke, of Oxford, Mass., were united in marriage on March 15, by Attorney H. Miron, of Putnam. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Lanciault, of Auburn, and the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Farrar, of Oxford, Mass.

The case of Rose O'Clair vs. Louis O'Clair, assigned for trial in the Windham county superior court for Wednesday, March 28, will go off the list until Friday, March 23, when it will be heard, following the short calendar session. This was the only case assigned for trial Wednesday, and it was agreed by the parties that it might go off the list and be heard on Friday instead of Wednesday as originally assigned. There will be no session of superior court until Thursday, March 22.

Many gathered at the Second Congregational church on Sunday evening to attend the "Friendly Evening" services. The services this week were confined to the showing of the motion picture, "White Flannels." Many enjoyed the movie, which was an excellent laugh-producer. Next week the church will show one of the Jewish-Irish comedies entitled "Private Izzy Murphy."

The members of the democratic city committee met at the city clerk's office Saturday to select a name of a man who might be considered a successor to Willis B. Carroll, as alderman from Ward Four. As the session was strictly confined to the members of the committee, it is not, as yet, known who was chosen from the voting list. Chairman of the Committee Frederick Dumas stated Friday that the city committee will have to interview the man before they can confirm his appointment to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Carroll.

An investigation of the suitable bathing place question at Harrisville has revealed that the swimming hole has been fixed and made better for bathing purposes than it was before the state highway department constructed the new concrete bridge over the old site. Before the state started construction on the new piece of road from Miller's corner to the Putnam waterworks, there was some talk as to what would be done about a swimming hole for Putnam, as this was the only adequate place near the city within reach of everyone.

When the road was opened to traffic this fall and the new concrete bridge stands in place of the old swimming hole, the question was brought before the old city council. The council came to a conclusion that if the state did not want to replace the bathing place the city could not force it to it. A Bulletin reporter has found that the old swimming hole has been replaced and is in an ideal location. The new site is a few feet up the stream that comes from the overflow of the Putnam Water company and is in a much better condition. Tree roots that were in the bottom of the stream have been removed and the bottom has been filled in with sand. A diving board has been erected and the water is deep enough to allow safe diving. With the swimming facility taken care of, the city officials can erase one civic problem from the list.

The State Y. M. C. A. championship honors remain for another year in the hands of the Black and White Collegians of Woodstock, who defeated the New Britain Y. M. C. A. team Saturday at the state meet in Waterbury, by a score of 37 to 27. The New Britain team was the nearest contestant for the state honors, but it went down under the fast team work of the Woodstock boys. The B. & W. Collegians are members of the Quinebaug Valley league of Putnam and during the season that has just closed, the boys furnished the fans with some good games, and their victory is deserving of them. The silver basketball trophy which the Woodstock boys are to retain another year and retain it permanently if they win again next year, is on display in one of the local jewelry stores.

Many members of St. Mary's parish have been making the mission that is being conducted throughout the month of March by the Redemptrist Fathers from Montreal, Canada. Sunday at all the masses, Father De L'Atiole, one of the mission fathers, gave a brief sermon, taking as his subject, "How and Why to Make a Mission." Father De L'Atiole has had much experience in ecclesiastical work and his sermons are well prepared and well delivered. He is assisted by Rev. Father Cherntrand, who is also an accomplished eulogist. Rev. Father Bellerose, pastor of the church, announced Sunday that a mission for the English-speaking members of the parish will open April 29, and will be conducted by the Franciscan Fathers from New York city.

Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently eases the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor Charles H. Richer lawns, finer flowers leafier shrubs, assured this way

George W. Cahill, Head Gardener of the Grover Cleveland Estate, recommends this practical method

HUNDREDS of visitors each year admire Westland, the Grover Cleveland Estate at Princeton, New Jersey. Beautiful flowers, shrubs and trees, wonderful lawns of velvety green—all reveal the touch of an expert.

George W. Cahill, head gardener of the estate, is continually being asked how he secures such uniformly fine results. In his own words—by an economical method any home owner can use!

"I have used your plant food Vigoro on the Grover Cleveland Estate, and I find it wonderful," says Mr. Cahill.

"I used it on the grass and the grass is particularly green and thick, although I used it only in the spring.

"There was one large tree on the estate, which was apparently dying. I bored holes in the soil around it, putting Vigoro in the holes, and this tree has taken new life and today is beautiful.

"The flowers, of which there is a great variety, including shrubs, are blooming profusely and doing well. Vigoro certainly has my endorsement."

Clean, odorless, Vigoro can be sown by hand. It offers a practical, economical way to secure finest results—proved by scores of expert gardeners and thousands of home owners.

The cost is only 10c to 20c for every 100 square feet—for this scientific complete plant food perfected by Swift & Company experts.

"Who is She?"

You simply can't keep people from wanting to know who you are when you're so sparklingly fresh and crisply beautiful as dainty Georgette Vorel, lovely New York City girl who lives at 732 Carroll Street, Brooklyn. Everyone admires her lovely figure, and her marvelously clear, rose-tinted complexion; but women marvel most at the softness and lustre of her hair.

"I am so busy that I have almost no time to give to my hair," says Miss Vorel, "and I really don't know what I should do about it, if I hadn't learned how so many of my girl friends here in New York are taking care of theirs.

"It's so simple. All you do is put a few dashes of Danderine on your brush each time you use it. This wonderful preparation keeps my hair so soft and lustrous that many friends have commented on it. It makes my scalp feel just grand and all dandruff disappeared with the first few applications. It keeps my hair so clean that I don't have to shampoo nearly so often as I used to."

Danderine isn't oily and doesn't show. It makes hair easy to dress and holds it in place. All drug stores have the 35c bottles. Lovely hair and a healthy scalp for a few cents.

TOLL BRIDGES AND ROADS

It cannot be said that anyone is in favor of toll bridges, or toll roads except it be those who are financially interested in such, and yet there are great numbers who are cognizant of the fact that through such facilities they are extensively accommodated and therefore appreciate the benefits thus furnished.

General Manager Reeves of the National Automobile chamber of commerce charges that toll roads are an indefensible burden on the public and that all highways must be kept free. He points out that there are 283 toll bridges in operation in the United States of which only 42 are owned by states, while there are 29 others now under construction only nine of which are publicly owned.

It becomes evident from this number of privately owned toll bridges and the small proportion of them owned by the states that the service which the traveling public demands is for the greater part being furnished by private enterprise. The toll bridges are not being patronized because automobile owners like to pay toll but because they provide the accommodation. Hills by means of the toll bridge that distances are reduced, delays which were previously encountered in using ferries are obviated and better time is made possible. All these things are taken into consideration by the auto drivers and they appreciate it even though they have to pay the toll. When the only way to get across a river is by a ferry, which may be inadequate or broken down, the auto driver will readily part with the fee on a toll bridge rather than drive 20 or 30 miles out of his way or wait for an hour or more for ferry transportation, which also exacts its fee.

The toll bridge spells service. If proper precautions are taken such tolls need not be permanent. States which permit their construction can reserve the right to take them over at a fair figure and sooner or later omit the tolls. In the meantime the public has gotten the benefit of the service and those served are the only ones who have paid.

There are not many toll roads, although they are being talked of. Then again it is for the purpose of meeting the requirements of the public. If there is a sufficient public demand for such roads they can be expected unless, or until, a state is ready to meet the situation. No one is inclined to rejoice as he approaches a toll bridge and yet there is reason for it if previous conditions were known or consideration were given to advantages provided thereby. Mr. Reeves thinks the toll bridges are a burden but there are plenty of instances where they lift a burden.

JEWETT CITY DECISION

The action of the borough of Jewett City in voting to add an auto pumper to its fire apparatus must be noted upon with approval by those who give heed to adequate fire protection and who give recognition to the highly valuable service that is rendered by such equipment.

The borough has come to see the need of keeping pace with its growth. As the hazards increase there are added responsibilities. If those are going to be met there must be anticipation of those things which are not welcomed but which come unexpectedly. Because there have not been many serious fires does not mean that they can be escaped always. Real vigilance in this respect is of the utmost importance for prevention purposes, but it amounts to little after a bad fire gets started. Then real fire fighting is required and in order that that may be efficiently rendered it is desirable that there be modern apparatus.

This is what Jewett City has voted to provide. It will mean greater security at all times and a very valuable factor if fire fighting becomes necessary. Jewett City like many other small places banks on the importance of having such equipment and not being required to uses rather than basking in the shade of a false security and being unable to meet a serious situation.

The motor apparatus of the present day makes it possible for quick and effective fire fighting service to be rendered over a broad area, and this is quite as valuable to a borough as it is to a larger community. As long as the possibilities of fire exist the means of dealing with them must be provided. Thus Jewett City's decision is a wise one.

HOUSE APPROVES CRUISERS

The lower house of congress has adopted the modified naval construction bill with negligible opposition. In the original measure a plan three times as large was contemplated. This took into consideration the building of submarines and other auxiliaries and the replacement of capital ships at that period beyond the expiration of the Washington agreement. The approval of congress for such a building programme, even though such work was not undertaken for some years, was desired.

Such a bill aroused much opposition. It looked too much as if this country was starting a competition with other countries, or just the thing which it had been hoped to avoid. The Geneva conference had however done nothing to discourage such a plan. Nevertheless the small navy advocates raised such an objection that the plan was changed and while there was a desire to spend even less than is now called for the attitude of the house as expressed indicates that all that is sought under the bill should be "provided." This will mean 16 cruisers and an airplane carrier. Cruisers are much needed in order to round out our navy and even after the completion of the programme as approved by the house we will not have as many cruisers as we are entitled to under the naval ratio.

This country has not been carrying on an extensive building programme for some years. It had hoped that it would not be necessary. There is even now hope that means of making further additions unnecessary will be found. That of course rests with the future and the willingness of other nations to cooperate in making it possible. This will mean something different than the attitude manifested in the recent conference when it was hoped limitations would be accomplished.

Now that the house has disposed of the naval building bill it remains to be seen what the verdict of the senate will be. Because there was little opposition in the lower body doesn't necessarily mean that the same kind of treatment will be experienced in the upper.

BLAME AND SAFEGUARD

When the investigators make their report it will be shown what the trouble was and where the responsibility lies for the piling up on the rocks of the steamer Robert E. Lee. Indications are that there were miscalculations, that enough allowance was not made for the strong easterly wind that night which blew the steamer shoreward. Captain Robinson has however assumed full responsibility for the navigation after declaring that there was nothing to the statement which was attributed to him that the trouble was due to a faulty compass.

In connection with his testimony before the board of inquiry for the steamboat inspectors, Captain Robinson called attention to the need of establishing a lightship at the entrance to the Cape Cod canal or about four miles east of Mary Ann rocks. This, of course, has nothing to do with the wreck of the steamer, but it is undoubtedly a matter which may properly be considered as the result of this accident.

On that night it was impossible for the officers on the steamer to see the shore light, or the warning signals that were sent up by the coast guard. That would indicate that if it would have been equally difficult for the steamer to have picked up a lightship four miles to the east during the heavy snow, and yet if a lightship had been stationed there it would have indicated to the pilot that something was wrong when he failed to locate it after having covered the distance equivalent to the run to that particular locality. It would likewise be a much better designation for a turning point than a buoy under any and all conditions. It is not the first instance where better navigating safeguards have been sought as the result of a bad accident.

THOSE WHO THREATEN

Many a threat is uttered, not exactly in jest, but without any serious idea of actually carrying it out. There are those who like to display a spirit of bravado only to be meek as a lamb when the obstacles to their threatened act are removed. Thus there is a disposition to treat lightly many of the threats which are made, and yet there are instances when human life hangs in the balance and when certain threats deserve to be taken seriously.

This is well illustrated by the act committed by a young man in Scranton. As the result of an accident three years ago a young man was so badly injured that the doctor attending him decided that an amputation of the leg was necessary. It was performed and the young man recovered. He harbored the impression however that the amputation was not necessary to save his life and as the result of the grievance he threatened to take the life of the doctor. Apparently this was an open boast, and one that it was not thought he would carry out. Consequently little or no attention was paid to it. He was able to arm himself with two revolvers, went to the doctor's office and waited until he could be seen and then shot down the doctor in cold blood and made his escape. When he was arrested he even tried to pull a revolver on the policeman.

There was an instance where there was a self professed dangerous character to be at large without restraint. He did what many a criminal has done after getting out of prison, and what some patients have done after escaping from insane institutions. Had his threats been taken seriously when uttered one murder would probably have been prevented.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, March 19—To stand within an arms length of Col. Lindbergh, judge for onself the genuineness of that rare boyish grin, and see his modest manner of greeting officials of the highest rank, is something well worth while. And that's what happened to a few correspondents who had the good fortune to "stand by" when Lindbergh came to the capitol last week to pay visits of courtesy to Vice President Dawes, Speaker of the House Longworth and Floor Leader Tilson. It was Tilson who introduced the bill by which the bronze medal of honor for commerative event was awarded Col. Lindbergh by congress a few weeks ago. The Lindbergh visit was the outstanding feature except routine legislative work.

What the colonel said to the vice president and to the speaker could not have shown the boyishness and warm heartedness of the great aviator as did his call on Col. Tilson. For Col. Lindbergh had expressed his cordial appreciation of what Col. Tilson had done in the matter of the medal of honor, and learning there were three Tilson children at the family home in Connecticut, he sat down and wrote his name on three separate sheets of paper, so each of the Tilson children should have his autograph to add to their collection. And he grinned like a pleased school boy when Col. Tilson gave him a little bulletin showing the history of all previous medals of that class issued by congress. No wonder Lindbergh was pleased, for Washington received the first medal and Lindbergh the last to be issued by a congress of the United States.

It was also something worth while to see the train of senate pages follow their hero as he left the senate wing of the capitol to go over to the house. Those little chaps in knickerbockers marched with head erect and at a respectful distance, but showed in their faces determination to become "heroes" when they grow up, if it is in their power to do so. The following grew larger as Lindbergh crossed the great rotunda. His visit was unannounced, so sight-seers all along the way gasped and exclaimed "Why there's Lindbergh" and marked it as a red letter day, that they too happened to be there.

Senator Bingham is much gratified that the joint resolution introduced in senate and house by himself and Col. Tilson, concerning airplane responsibility, as between army and navy, has been favorably reported by the senate military committee and is now before the senate naval committee from which a favorable report is expected. Senator Bingham was anxious to have the resolution pass as he believes it is absolutely essential that the question of responsibility for movements of airplanes on sea coast is settled authoritatively without delay, instead of leaving the question to be met when emergencies arise. Up to the present there has been no congressional ruling as to such authority to direct movements, and the commission of five senators and five members of the house, under the Bingham-Tilson resolutions, will be authorized to study and recommend some course of action to be taken to place responsibility as to which branch of the service shall command the situation.

When the constitutional amendment was before the house, Congressman Tilson led the fight against it, and made several of the best short arguments against it, that were heard in the debates covering several days. Just before the final vote was taken, he made such a strong plea against it that it won the admission from the framer of the bill and its stoutest advocate, Representative White of Kansas, who said I fully agree with the colonel of your good friend and beloved leader (John Q. Tilson) and I want to say that I believe he can be wrong with better grace than any man I have ever known in my life." That was followed by great applause and much laughter, for Tilson is beloved by men of all factions and all parties.

The Tilson speech that brought out that eulogistic comment from Mr. White was along the line that it was not good judgment to pass in such haste constitutional amendments for which the country is not suffering. "I regard the resolution," said Tilson, "as fraught with danger to the future. Some of the provisions have been offered today without any opportunity for consideration, yet if adopted would not be possible to prevent, whether good or bad resulted. We are taking a serious step when we submit a constitutional amendment, and I believe it far better to let many good things stay out of the constitution than to put one bad or one dangerous thing in it, because once in, it is difficult to ever take it out again."

Col. Tilson is listed as principal speaker at the Monday evening session of the Woman's Republican School of Politics, being held here this week.

Here are two new "Coolidge stories" that occurred in the writer's presence within the past week, so can be vouched for as true. Misinterpretation of the word "draft" took on a new phase in connection with the possible nomination of President Coolidge at Kansas City for another term. It happened this way.

A woman admirer of the president, but entirely accustomed to associate the word "draft" with the World war, said a few days ago, "Oh, it would be such a pity to draft Mr. Coolidge for another term if he doesn't want to serve. In fact, I do not think the government ought to have a draft to put him in office. I have never forgotten the World war draft and I do not think the government ought to resort to one to compel Mr. Coolidge to serve another term against his will."

Here is the other incident: I chanced to walk just behind a woman who was holding her little son by the hand as they came from the white house office, after having seen President Coolidge throughout the courtesy of their congressman. The little fellow prattled happily over the president's cordial greeting to him, then said "Mother, I think President Coolidge's pictures look more like him than he does."

Stories That Recall Others

Other End Bites

A neighbor's cat came into the house and mother told Gloria to catch it and put it out. After a chase around the house, the five-year-old daughter was carrying the cat to the door by the tail.

"I would not carry the cat that way," admonished the kind-hearted mother.

"But, mother, the other end bites," replied Gloria.

Dinner Call

The A. family recently dined with a friend. The capable maid in the household announced dinner by stepping to the living room door and saying: "Your victuals are cooked."

The voluble three-year-old A. a few days later was asked by her mother to tell the family that dinner was ready. The child rushed to the living room and said: "Your skillets are done cooking."

Twenty days of sick leave each year are allowed teachers in Saskatoon, a city of Saskatchewan Province, Canada. The sick leave amounts in 10 years to a school year; and if unused for that purpose, the teacher may take a year's leave of absence and receive 60 per cent. of the salary, provided at least half the year is spent in study and self-improvement.

A PRICELESS INSTITUTION

"What's the matter, Twinkles? You look as though you'd bagged a ton of gloom."

Dot replied: "There's nothing wrong with me, but there certainly is with matrimony."

Bob, askance: "What have I done now?"

"Oh, we're so out of date," sighed Dot. "For one thing, you bring home my allowance, and I kiss you and thank you. Isn't that the height of aboriginal silliness?"

"You mean you want me to cut out the check?"

"Of course not, but can't you see it gives a woman an inferiority complex always to be thanking a man? I earn that allowance, Bob. If I were working in an office instead of in a home I shouldn't be expected to kiss my boss on Saturday when he handed me my pay envelope, should I?"

"Well, hardly," Bob replied disgustedly.

"Then why should I kiss you for it? I'm going to teach you how to be modern," Dot continued. "From now on I am going to keep a little journal and figure up each day just what I've done for you and you're going to look at that journal each night when you come home."

"And what of your husband's humble efforts?" Bob inquired meekly.

"I'll count them up accordingly and credit you with service," Dot replied in a businesslike manner.

Next morning Dot called, "Bob come to breakfast."

No answer.

Again: "Bob." She ran up the stairs. "Bob, turn off that faucet in the bathroom." The door of the bath room opened suddenly and a lathered face confronted her. "Be sure and put it on the book," reminded Bob. "Charge me up with three calls."

Dot picked her way down the stairs with dignity. She hunted a new magazine and leafed it over in the breakfast room. In due time the head of the house descended. His eyes were mockingly serious. "Twinkles, my love, I bought that periodical you are reading. Perhaps you will turn a pancake for me in return for its perusal."

Dot slammed down the magazine, shot a starched look at Bob, and proceeded to pour the coffee.

That evening Bob burst into the house with his usual breezy whistle, and "Hello, Twinkles, how's every little thing with you?" But he was convinced upon beholding his wife's countenance that every little thing surely must be wrong.

"What's the matter?" he demanded.

"Oh," wailed Dot, "I've spent the entire afternoon trying to figure up the morning. Really, Bob, it would take an expert accountant to figure up what I did. I must have been mad to have suggested such a wild idea."

"Show me the figures."

Dot spread a notebook on the table before him.

"Dishes—thirty minutes. Half mine. Making bed—five minutes. Half mine. Straightening house—one-half hour. (Who made dust) Marketing, $3—thirty minutes. (How much will Bob eat? How much will I eat?) Ice—fifty pounds. Six phone calls: No. 1—Bob. (Conversation to no point. Whose advantage?)—ten minutes. No. 2—Lena Wilson (bridge invitation for two)—twenty minutes. (Whose advantage?) No. 3—Roofing man to repair shingles—five minutes. (Whose advantage?) No. 4—Aunt Prude. Lecture on what an excellent husband I have—fifteen minutes. No. 5—Beth Wilson (invitation to bridge)—five minutes."

"What worries me," said Dot, "is that there are four hours between 8 o'clock and noon, but there are only two hours and a half consumed on the book, and I was busy all morning. Now where is the other hour and a half? And besides this, everything I did is so contingent on something else. Nothing stands alone. I'm about crazy. Let's go for a ride and forget this junk."

Bob laughing, "Aren't you afraid you will run up a taxi fare?"

"Kiss me and stop teasing," blubbered Dot.

Bob put his arms about his wife. "This is very tempting," he declared, "but it may break me up. What's the charge on a kiss?"

Dot burst into tears. "It's impossible to figure up in cold dollars what we are worth to one another."

"Sometimes," soothed Bob, "matrimony is a priceless institution."—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

THE LESSON OF GOITER

By D. Homer Junkin, M. D., Idaho Falls, Idaho, Member of Gorgas Memorial.

Many classifications of goiter, a disease of the thyroid gland, have been made but division into two great heads, toxic and non-toxic, is ample. By the toxic type we refer to the kind which produces symptoms as a result of poison going into the blood stream while the non-toxic produces symptoms from direct pressure.

In the toxic goiter we find a great variety of symptoms. Many times the young schoolgirl shows an unusual amount of activity with a seemingly untiring energy. Again the patient may seek medical advice because of extreme nervousness. In other patients the heart beats too fast and there is shortness of breath. Some patients feel a peculiar sensation of warmth over the body and excessive perspiration on certain areas of the skin surfaces. Some complain of the knees going out from under them. Practically a loss of weight and experience a general weakness. The protruding of the eyes is one of the typical objective symptoms of one of the toxic types. There are also certain digestive disturbances, such as diarrhoea, nausea, and vomiting.

The non-toxic goiter usually is manifest early in life by a noticeable enlargement of the gland. It frequently produces an unsightly mass disfiguring the individual to the extent that the removal of the goiter is desirable.

As in most diseases, there are many causes of goiter. The enlargement at the time of puberty and during pregnancy is a normal condition and no occasion for alarm. The goiter occurring in certain localities is different. Here there is a lack of iodine in the water and soil, and the gland is overworked in its attempt to supply it, resulting in the production of goiter. Focal infections in the teeth, tonsils, and accessory sinuses of the nose may be a cause. New growths, such as simple and malignant tumors, may effect this gland and cause enlargement.

In the case of goiter produced by the deficiency or absence of iodine in a locality, one would naturally deduce that this type could be cured by taking it in food or water. It has been found, however, that the use of iodine in some cases may light up serious over-activity in glands ordinarily harmless. Perhaps the routine use of iodine should be limited to taking it as a preventive measure in localities where goiter is prevalent.

In the preparation of the toxic type of patient for operation, iodine is valuable. Here it exerts an almost dynamic action. The profound nervous state, together with the extreme toxic condition, is rapidly changed, making surgery practicable and safe.

Perhaps the first step to be taken in the treatment of this common disease is an early examination, when an enlargement of the gland is noticed or when symptoms, as described, occur. Certain of the endemic goiters will yield to careful medical treatment. X-ray treatment of the toxic forms has given pleasing results. Surgery has no doubt opened a quick, safe, and satisfactory way for the relief and cure of this common and troublesome disease.

Now you ask: "Suppose you don't treat the disease at all, what then?" The patient with a deeply bronzed skin tightly drawn over the emaciated body, the veins prominent in neck and forehead, propped up in bed gasping for breath, is the altogether too frequent picture resulting from the rapidly degenerating heart. Then too many cases of kidney diseases causing death are traceable to the diseased thyroid. A goiter too long neglected leaves the individual permanently cripped with heart, kidney and other lesions. It should receive early attention and thus avoid serious consequences which follow in its wake.

"Self-Control"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "In your knowledge, add self-control" (II Peter 1:6).

Read: James 3:1-12.

MEDITATION: James' interest in religion was a practical one. By one's deeds should one's faith be judged "Be ye doers of the word." One of the distinguishing marks of a Christian is self-control. James had much to say about the control of the tongue. Kind speech is the over-flow of a kind heart. The Frankish chiefs consented to be baptized on their own terms. It is related that as they sank in the immersing water they held their right hand aloft. Their sword hand never was made Christian. It remained pagan. Often it is the tongue that seems not to have been baptized into the name of Christ. To paraphrase the words of Paul: "If we live by the spirit, by the spirit let us also speak."

PRAYER: Enthrone in our hearts, O Lord, the law of kindly speech. Free our tongues from bitterness and severity. We thank Thee for every kind word that has blest our way. We would be to others what the best have been to us. Amen.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

"Mad As a March Hare."

Mr. Editor: The Man Who Talks must be given credit for writing some very good articles in his column, which at times open up a new field of investigation, or present a new or a different angle from which to view questions or actions. This writer extends to him congratulations and wishes for success in his new adventure into the "What do you know column." To the question "What is the origin of the saying mad as a March hare?" remember it is the fact that March is the mating season of the lower animals and birds, a time when the law of continuity asserts itself emphatically. Darwin, in his origin of species, describes the actions of birds in attracting and winning their mates, by singing, flying and parading their well arranged and colored feathers, as well as the physical ability to drive off, and keep away at a safe distance all other rivals. Any one who is observant will notice at the present time, robins fighting each other for the companionship of the female, and looking overhead, one can watch the crows in their erratic movements endeavoring to find their mates. None of them are mad, they are only acting under the law of continuity. Quoting Professor Drummond in his introduction to "Natural Law in the Spiritual World," page 23, he writes, "For it was reserved for the Law of Continuity to put the finishing touch to the harmony of the Universe." The origin of the phrase is "coursing" a very popular sport in Great Britain and Ireland, in which greyhounds are pitted against runners and hunt only by sight, the competing dogs being held in leash on an enclosed track irregular in form and equipped with escapes for the hare when two closely pcessed after being released from the cage. A fuller description of the sport would be unnecessary, but this writer will leave it to your readers to imagine how mad a robust hare must be when caught in a net in the midst of his wooing and upon his release, to be set upon by dogs. The fourth question, "If hares and other animals pass away while they are tearing mad is that the last of the hares? Any one who raises live stock or animals of any kind, knows that while the weak and the physically unfit die, the strongest and most vigorous, barring accident, remain and function and this fact chimes harmoniously with Herbert Spencer's theory of the survival of the fittest.

Pointers For Parents

Fresh air is as necessary to nutrition as food.

As children grow older and recreation takes the form of parties and dances, it becomes a problem to keep them from snatching too eagerly at the new delight and turning honest fun into dissipation. It is a wise rule to allow this sort of recreation only on Friday and Saturday evenings. A proper amount, however, should be encouraged.

Let your child splash with vividly colored paints and model his unbelievable fancies in clay. Out of his first-hand experience with the raw material of art is apt to grow a genuine appreciation of that which is great and enduring.

Every child has the same right to have all his talents exercised as to have all his limbs developed. A talent will often lie latent for years because the possessor is never brought into contact with the environment which would bring it out.

Children ought to be put into possession of all the possible means of expressing talent; musical instruments, color, tools and materials suitable to their age.

They should also have access to the society of people of all ages, and those differently situated from themselves to bring out any talents they may have for social living, for leadership or politics. And they should be brought into contact with every possible kind of work.

"Merely seeing things done will often call forth the latent aptitude which the parent or teacher has never suspected.

Every baby should enjoy daily a brief period of crying.

"Enjoy" is the right word, for the crying will be as great a pleasure to him as a ten-minute walk is for the adult who has spent all day at his desk. Crying is about the only significant gymnastics in which the infant indulges. He takes in great gulps of oxygen, churns the blood rapidly through his whole body, purifies it, and at last brings himself to a ruddy glow. Perhaps two or three minutes is sufficient, four or five at most, for this valuable athletic performance.—Children.

Mothers:

Next to the natural laxative from a mother's breast, a plain, old-fashioned preparation is always best for keeping baby's little digestive tract clean and sweet. When your little one doesn't eat, or can't sleep, give him a few drops of plain Castoria. It is purely vegetable, you know. Any doctor will tell you that it is utterly harmless to the youngest infant. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. Yet its gentle influence is soon felt all through the tiny system. Not even castor oil can compete with Castoria and how much better it is to use this milder means of regulating a baby! Never give baby paregoric or similar opiates, because, a few drops of Castoria are just as soothing, and no harm is done. That's the beauty of using pure Castoria; you can give it just as often as you discover any sign of colic, constipation, or diarrhea—or those times when you don't know just what it is that has caused an upset. Only get the genuine Castoria—bearing Fletcher's signature. It isn't expensive, and with every bottle comes the book, "Care and Feeding of Babies"—worth its weight in gold to every mother or prospective mother.

SAYS NORWICH MEN SHOULD ENDEAVOR TO REALIZE SURVEY RECOMMENDATIONS

The chamber of commerce held its March meeting Monday evening at the Wauregan hotel as an industrial conference dinner at 6:15, with an attendance of about 100, and R. W. Bowdoin, of Boston, as the speaker. Mr. Bowdoin is the research executive of the New England council and was to speak upon "The Value of Research in Industry," but changed his subject when he learned that the chamber of commerce has been having an economic and industrial survey made of Norwich, the results of which are about to be learned. Mr. Bowdoin was introduced by William G. Park, chairman of the March dinner committee, and spoke upon making use of the survey. He declared that since the survey had been made the people ought to be willing to put forth every effort to carry its recommendations into effect and asserted that the chamber of commerce is the proper agency to do this.

Before turning the further conduct of the meeting over to Mr. Park, President H. D. Larrabee referred to the results of the town meeting last Wednesday night when the proposition for re-valuation of property was carried and so something was started which will undoubtedly be of benefit to the town.

In speaking of the survey, Mr. Bowdoin said that it will doubtless give a pretty thorough picture of present-day conditions. It will show things that are changing and show our assets, as well. The objective of such a survey is to obtain the facts and then use them intelligently. It is easier to do the former than the latter. We are living in a time of flux Merchants cannot follow the methods of five or ten years ago and communities mus also change their mental attitudes. Industry is the creator of wealth and unless you have the community where industry can thrive you will be under a handicap.

Co-operation, he said, is necessary to put through reforms, and the chamber of commerce will be just as strong and virile as the citizens wish it to be. The only way for a community to solve its problems and forge ahead is by co-operative action.

He advised that a test sale campaign be made to learn what sort of community the possible incoming manufacturer would consider desirable, and he suggested that the community try to get into it such industries as will not be competitive, but possibly supplementary to those already in it. The community is a product, said Mr. Bowdoin, and before you sell a product you have got to have a product that will sell.

Secretary Walter H. Pilcher spoke briefly but earnestly of the ideal way of a community growing from within rather than from without, although he said there would be louder public acclaim over bringing in one new industry that would possibly employ six men, than in announcing that a local industry had expanded to employ 50 more men.

William J. Fitzgerald asked what was to be done with a community that did not first show faith in itself and its products by buying at home rather than going to New London and Hartford to trade. He said he could point out 15 or 20 examples where home industry had not been given the benefit when compared with outside competition.

During the dinner hour there were enjoyable baritone solos by Frank R. Murdy and Earl Styers and Swahn's orchestra played. Entertainment was furnished for the latter part of the meeting by Dexter Wicks, introduced as secretary of the chamber of commerce of Niantic, who gave a clever rube act in which he used some rather unusual musical instruments.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STONINGTON, March 19.—Nearly 200 republican electors assembled this evening in borough hall when the republican caucus was called to order by Dr. James H. Weeks, who was elected chairman. Jerome S. Anderson was named clerk and read the call.

Four delegates to attend the convention of the shoe string district at Norwich on Thursday of this week were presented by James Cooper of Mystic were, Hon. Henry A. Stebbins of Pawcatuck; Hon Mason Manning of Mystic, Carl G. Stillman of Pawcatuck and Deputy Judge Billings B. Fairbrother of Stonington. The nominations were seconded by Judge William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck. William Scott of Pawcatuck named Walter Thorp. Moderator Weeks declared Elliott Allen who to present the name and presented each one of the first four in turn and they were duly elected without opposition. Alexander Marr of Pawcatuck did not think it fair to take a rising vote on the first four and so they were voted on separately.

Judge Frank H. Hinckley of Mystic named the following as members of the town committee: District No. 1—James H. Weeks, Louise Trumbull; district No. 2—Albert G. Martin, Sarah A. Foster; district No. 3—Seth M. Williams, Grace D. Wheeler; district No. 4—William L. Maine, Josephine Dickerson; district No. 5—Geo. R. Ward, Corrine Davis. William Scott named Walter Thorp as a nominee for the second Pawcatuck district. Henry A. Stebbins moved that all of them, except Pawcatuck, be voted upon and they were put through by acclamation. In the contest between Albert G. Martin and Walter Thorpe, a paper ballot was used with Judge Snader and Alfred Wells as tellers. At the conclusion of the ballot Chairman Weeks announced the total vote cast 152, Martin 96, Thorpe 53, and Martin's nomination was voted unanimous. Judge Wilcox moved that the town committee be given power to fill all vacancies and the caucus adjourned. Adjournment was followed by a meeting of the town committee called by Chairman Weeks, when Dr. Weeks was chosen chairman, Mrs. Corine Davis vice chairman and Albert G. Martin, secretary.

MASSEY MILLER, LOCAL PRO, STANDS NINTH IN $15,000 LAGORCE OPEN

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 19.—(AP)—Counting four birdies and an eagle, on the last nine for a day's 36 hole total of 139, Gene Sarazen, New York, winner of most of Florida's golf tournaments this year, gained a lead on a fast field in the $15,000 La Gorce open tournament today.

Spectacular shooting was not unusual all along the course, especially in late play. Harry Cooper of Buffalo, woh was in a tie for qualifying medal on Sunday, knocked down five birdies himself, on the last nine.

Behind Sarazen came Bobby Cruickshank of New York, tied with Johnny Farrell, last year's most consistent winner in the Metropolitan area, at 140; Henry Cuici, New York, joint holder with Cooper of the qualifying medal honor, at par, 143; and Cooper, Joe Kirkwood of Albany, Ga., and Harry Hampton of Chicago, with 143.

George Voight, Washington, D. C., was leading amateur at 146.

Cooper's five birdies brought him home in the afternoon with 31, best nine hole score of the day. The score netted him a $200 special prize.

Sarazen drew the gallery through both of today's rounds. He will shoot tomorrow's 36 holes with Al Watrous and Joe Kirkwood. Farrell, another gallery favorite, will play with Eddie Held, St. Louis, and Billy Burke, New York. Cruickshank drew Al Espinosa and Jim Foulis.

Armour With 148

Tommy Armour, National open champion, continued in the putting slump that has marred his play all winter, and finished well down in the field with 78-70—148. Macdonald Smith of Great Neck, L. I., was only a stroke better, running into difficulty often on the closely trapped approaches. Bill Mehlhorn, Pittsburgh, another of the eight doped to include the winner, was in the same class with 148.

Sarazen was barely on speaking terms with his putter in the early play, and they did not reach final agreement until the turn in the afternoon. He missed four easy putts in the morning 18 that would have given him an unparalleled score of 135.

Henry Cuici was in the threesome with Sarazen, giving his fans about as much excitement as was provided by the leader. Cuici shot the last round in 32-37—69, two under par. The gallery had plenty to watch throughout the round, for Cuici did his birdie shooting gong out, to wind up three under par for the nine, and by the time he got back to normal golf Sarazen had started the winning drive. Sarazen started in the afternoon with a serious handicap. His drive on the 420 yard second landed almost out of sight in a heel print in mud. It took three badly needed strokes to dig it out.

Jack Hutchison, Chicago, and Larry Nabholtz, Cleveland, finished well down in the list with 158 and 157 respectively.

DAVIS CUP CANDIDATES BEGIN WEEK OF TRAINING

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 19—(AP)—Led by "Big Bill" Tilden, No. 1 racquet wielder, America's candidates for the Davis Cup team today began a week of training that is expected to produce a powerful thrust this summer in attempting to bring back to this country tennis' premier international prize.

Ten players, the full squad, were on hand for practice during the day, some arriving in time only for afternoon workouts, while others managed to slip in an hour or two during the morning.

Those here are: George Lott, Chicago; John Doeg, California collegian; John Hennessey, of Indianapolis; Wray Brown, St. Louis; Bud Chandler, Harvard intercollegiate champion; Frank X. Shields, New York; W. F. Coen, Jr., of Kansas City, and Tilden. Francis Hunter, ranking No. 2 player, was unable to come to the training grounds, Tilden announced, because of business interests.

DUNDEE'S REINSTATEMENT NOW MAKES FOR HUDKINS BOUT

NEW YORK, March 19—(AP)—After five months of suspension for "double dealing," the first blot on a lengthy fistic career, Joe Dundee, champion of the welterweights, today was given the permission of the New York State Athletic commission to return to his trade of fisticuffing.

With the word that Dundee again was eligible to fight here, Jess McMahon, matchmaker at Madison Square Garden, made a determined effort to reach in California, Ace Hudkins, the Nebraska Wildcat and outstanding contender for the champion's crown, to arrange for a title match here May 17. The only difficulty appeared to be Hudkins' ability to prepare for the bout in that time. Terms already have been agreed upon.

Action of the New York board followed closely the reinstatement of the titleholder and his manager, Max Waxman, in California, where both recently were freed of court charges growing out of Dundee's failure to fight Hudkins in Los Angeles last November. The Baltimore champion refused to enter the ring on the night of the fight when his guarantee fell $37,000 short of the $60,000 offered him, Dundee was suspended here for entering into a double set of agreements, one calling for a guarantee, the other for a percentage of the gate receipts.

The California authorities informed the local commission that Dundee and Waxman had agreed in the future "to conduct their boxing affairs in accordance with the regulations of commissions in different states." They said California had no desire "to deprive fans of New York of this match nor deprive Ace Hudkins, who is a credit to the game, of his chance at the welterweight championship."

NINE TEAMS ALREADY ENTERED IN Y TOURNEY

In connection with the physical work of the local Y. M. C. A. an intermediate Invitation Basketball tournament is to take place March 24th at the Y gym. The object of this tournament is to give the Employed Boys and Hi "Y" clubs of eastern Connecticut a chance to affiliate themselves with and mingle together in a central place headed by a Y. M. C. A. association. This tournament will decide the rightful claim to the title of eastern Conn. Intermediate champions. All the organized teams of the intermediate age limit were sent invitations. Therefore the holders of the tourney feel that those who received invitations and did not respond can not rightfully claim the title. The following nine teams have sent in their entry blank with fee: Mystic Shamrocks, Stonington All Stars, Willimantic Y Emps, Noank Intermediates, Norwich Y. Emps, Fitchville Rovers, Lebanon 4H, Baltic Independents and Woodstock Hi Y.

More anouncements will be made later in the week.

BRISTOL HIGH TO LEAVE FOR CHICAGO APRIL 1

BRISTOL, March 19.—(AP)—The Bristol high school basketball team which was granted a leave of absence by the board of education this afternoon will leave for Chicago to participate in the national basketball tournament Sunday night, April 1.

The directors of the local chamber of commerce voted today to underwrite the expenses of the team to the extent of $2,000 and named a committee of eight to collect funds.

Coach Thomas Monahan received a telegram of invitation this afternoon from the University of Chicago sponsors of the meet and immediately wired acceptance of the invitation.

It is hoped that enough rooters can make the trip to charter a special car to give the boys support. Several Bristol men who have organized a Bristol club in Chicago, were the only rooters for the team when they competed last year.

Giants Beat Athletics.

FT. MYERS, Fla., March 19—(AP)—Fifteen hundred baseball fans today saw Tris Speaker come dashing home from first base on a triple by Ty Cobb. That was a sight to please Connie Mack's eyes but he got no thrill out of the fact that despite this run-scoring collaboration by the former rival outfielders the Philadelphia Athletics again bowed to John McGraw's New York Giants, 9 to 8.

Cobb lashed out his three-bagger in the third inning with Speaker and Hale on base. But the "Georgia Peach" subsided thereafter and the Giants kept collecting runs in pairs until they had rolled up a margin too great for the Athletics to overcome.

NEWTON FORCED OUT OF RACE WITH SPRAINED ANKLE

WINSLOW, Ariz., March 19.—(AP)—Arthur Newton, leader of the parade in the 3400-mile footrace from Los Angeles to New York, was forced to drop out today when he suffered a sprained ankle.

The pace-setting British runner, who had a lead of more than nine hours over his closest competitor on the basis of elapsed time, was six miles along on today's 24.1 mile jaunt when his luck failed him. Newton has won seven of the 16 laps since the large field of runners left Los Angeles. He will remain with the runners to act in an advisory capacity.

His withdrawal enabled Andrew Payne, Claremore, Okla., to move up to first place in the competition. Nector Erickson, Port Chester, N. Y., won today's heat from two gun camp to Winslow in three hours flat. He averaged a shade better than eight miles an hour. The distance from Los Angeles, the starting point, to Winslow is 575.72 miles. Erickson's elapsed time is 107:19:37, placing him in fourth.

Payne finished twelfth in today's short lap, coming in with a time of 3:58. His total elapsed time was 99:17.

Arne Soulmen of Detroit, finished second today in 3:06 to make an elapsed time of 123:55. Giacomo Clarizio of Chicago, placed third in 3:11, making an elapsed time of 112:-57:20. Other runners finished in order as follows: William Busch, John Cronick, Saskatoon, Canada, John Salo, Passaic, N. J., Earle Dilks, Newcastle, Pa., William Kerr, Minneapolis and Phillip Granville, Hamilton, Ont.

SCOTT ON FLOOR BUT WINS OVER CHARLES

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP)—Despite a short knock-down in the third round from a wild left hook to the chin, Phil Scott, British champion, tonight decisively whipped Pierre Charles, Belgian title-holder in a ten round match at the St. Nicholas arena. Scott scaled 201; Charles 211.

After that single flash, a rather lucky punch, Charles ran continually into Scott's straight left shamshes to the head and short clubbing right. The steady hammering closed the Belgian's right and drew a stream of blood from his mouth. Charles Wild and ineffective most of the way, failed to damage the elusive Englishman with his clumsy body attack.

The victory duplicated Scott's 15-round win over the Belgian i Europe last July and impressively inaugurated his second American invasion.

Scott was knocked out by Knute Hansen in one round last fall but later scored a knockout over Monte Munn and stayed ten rounds with Johnny Risko.

BOSTON BRUINS OFFERED GARDEN FOR PLAY-OFFS

NEW YORK, March 19—(AP)—The Madison Square Garden Hockey club, through Colonel John S. Hammond, who controls the Rangers, today wired an offer to the Boston Bruins to use the Garden ice for National league play-offs. The offer was prompted by reports that the Bruins, present American group leaders, may not be able to use their home rink.

Colonel Hammond said the Garden offered the Boston club use of the local rink on terms similar to those accepted by the Chicago Black Hawks last season.

The play-off schedule now calls for the Rangers to meet either Detroit or Pittsburgh, March 27 and 29, in the first play-off series. The club winning that series plays Boston, March 31 and April 1, to determine the survivor for the inter-group finals for the Stanley cup.

Prominent among the victories were those over Norwich Academy (twice) and Derby and Tourtellotte, once each. The O'Brien men had the jinx on N. F. A., beating them badly at Stonington and then playing well enough to get the decision again up here.

FORMER WILLIMANTIC PITCHER DIES SUDDENLY

PROVIDENCE, March 19.—(AP)—Thomas J. Lovett, reputed to have pitched one of the first no-hit, no-run games in the major leagues, died suddenly here late this afternoon after dropping unconscious to the sidewalk. He was 44 years old. Lovett began his big league career with the Philadelphia Athletics in 1883, later pitching with the Brooklyn Robins, the Boston Nationals, the Providence Grays, ending his pitching career with the Rochester team.

He formerly pitched with the Willimantic and Waterbury teams of the Connecticut league and with the Oshkosh and Omaha teams. He pitched the no-hit, no-run game against the Giants in 1889, while with Brooklyn.

Interscholastic Sports

Chapman Tech closed its basketball season by losing to LaSalle Academy at Providence last Friday night

Yesterday the first indoor workout for Tech's baseball candidates was held.

Bristol's victory in the Yale tournament was a surprise to some people.

It is now planned to send the team to the Chicago tourney by fans in the Bell City. The chamber of commerce is behind the idea.

Naugatuck, regardless of being kept from the tourney at New Haven, is going to the tourney out in the Windy City.

It ought to be some battle when and if, these two schools meet.

Practically all of the high schools in the state have now closed up their basketball shops for the year, although a few post season games are strongly desired by some fives.

It's too bad the Academy don't get a game with one of these stong scholastic quintets. The result, with the rejuvenated Academy team in action, might be a surprise.

The Academy baseball team expects to get outdoors within a week or so.

Glimpses of Sports of Other Days

KID WILSON

With the advent of amateur boxing in this city, there soon followed the bringing of teams of boxers from outside to appear on local cards.

One of the first to bring a team was Arthur Kumpf, whose boys appeared a couple of times at the Pastime last fall and in the early winter. Today is presented his record as a wrestler.

The following is from The Bulletin of July 29, 1908:

Kid Wilson, the wrestler, whose name in ordinary life is Arthur Kumpf, of New York, announces that he is to retire from the wrestling game, and will appear on the mat no more. The Kid's wind has gone wrong, and in the last two matches here he found that his hitherto reliable bellows that nature had provided refused to do the work required by a hard match. The Kid came here from New York city, and when in his prime it took a good boy to beat him.

"In the time he has been at it he established a record as a wrestler back in the early part of the century. Artie now lives in Willimantic, whence his team of punchers came.

AROUND THE RING

(By Edward J. Neil, Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, (AP)—There's a persistent rumor rumbling through fistiana that Jimmy McLarnin, the Irish terror of the lightweights, has no particular "yen" for his Hebrew brethren in the racket.

Just a few days ago, "baby face" tumbled Sid Ferris into the resin of the Madison Square Garden ring with two right hand punches to the chin. As the echo of those two shots still rang through the arena and Sid's limp body nestled snugly into the canvas, a prominent cloak and suit merchant along Broadway rose from his seat in the front row and delivered this pithy oration:

"My seat goes to an Irisher from now on. First he knocks out my "lansman," Jackie Fields, then Joey Sanor and Kid Kaplan. Now he's finished with Sidney, the best fighter we've had since Benny Leonard. I'm through with the Irish."

In a roundabout way, Dan Cupid injected himself into Ace Hudkins' ferocious brawl with Sammy Baker, the Mitchel Field soldier flier, and very nearly precipitated an argument as strenuous as the Nebraskan's victory itself. And like a Chicago pedestrian Sammy was just one of the innocent bystanders.

Hudkins, extremely high strung in temperament, always has difficulty soothing his nerves during the last few days of a strenuous training period. Ace had to boil off considerable weight to make the welterweight poundage for Baker. As a result he was quite irritable.

In Hudkins' hotel room, bought especially to soothe ragged nerves, was a radio outfit valued at about $300. It was the particular pride of the blond battler and his constant companion.

Then one night in the hotel lobby Ace discovered a dog—not so much of a dog, but a big shaggy fellow. It was a case of love at first sight. Hudkins tore right to his room, dismantled his radio set, and traded it, lock, stock and barrel, for the canine.

The young chap who had owned the pup thought the trade a dandy until he arrived home sans mongrel, but all burdened down with radio. Then his sweetheart wailed for the missing towser, refused to be placated by any loud speaker that couldn't growl, and the plot began to thicken.

Hudkins, by this time, had struck up such a friendship with the animal that there was no separating them. He was wrestling with the puppy and telling him just what was to happen to Baker two nights later when the former owner burst in demanding retribution.

The resulting scene was so painful that Hudkins' entire retinue was needed to quell the disturbance, for love lent power to the attack of the hitherto non-combatant. Ace kept the dog.

Hudkins is sorry if his rival, David Harum, lost his sweetheart. But Ace won the fight two nights later, and perhaps the dog had something to do with that. At any rate, figures the Nebraska wildcat, a trade's a trade, especially if you get the best of the bargain.

The fight fan is a queer species at best. And he hates to have anything "shoved down his throat."

A few days ago the New York State Athletic association became vehement in its resolve that the "no smoking" rule at Madison Square Garden must be obeyed. There were volumes of announcements on the matter, pleas for co-operation from the Garden authorities—and bright brass receptacles in the lobbies to catch cigars, cigarettes and chewing gum on entering.

Not a curl of smoke showed in the Garden up to the main bout. Then Joe Humphries, veteran announcer, bellowed forth the thanks of the authorities.

It seemed as though everyone realized at once that they were not allowed to smoke. In another moment lights flared in every corner of the arena, some even started pipes to simmering, and in five minutes the aroma of tobacco flooded the hall.

Halford E. Luccock, D. D., editorial secretary of the Methodist board of foreign missions, has been appointed professor of homiletics at Yale university.

TUNNEY AGREES FOR ONE FIGHT IN JULY

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 19—(AP)—Gene Tunney will defend his heavyweight championship next July in a bout against an opponent not yet selected. It will be the only title fight in that class for 1928.

That much came out of a conference here today between the champion and Tex Rickard, New York promoter, together with a sharp warning from Rickard that other promoters dickering for Tunney's services haven't a chance and an expression from the latter of his willingness to "fight any man in the world."

To Rickard has been left the task of picking a suitable antagonist for the champion, Tunney announced in a formal statement with the comment that "every contender so far has had his chance and it seems to me that any further talk of elimination is idle." Rickard contributed the statement that he would name the opponent at an early date.

A place for the bout also is yet to be selected.

The definite retirement of Jack Dempsey from the ring caused a hitch in their previous tentative plans for a fight in June and another later in the year in which the former champion and the survivor of Rickard's elimination tournament were to have figured as opponents for Tunney, they declared.

Both agreed in separate statements that with Dempsey having left the picture only one match this year was possible, and that one would be all that would be essayed, because of the lack of a second opponent.

WESTERLY

TOO MUCH MOTHER-IN-LAW ACCUSED HUSBAND ALLEGES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 19—The contested divorce case, Clara L. Morris vs. Henry B. Morris, of Weekapaug, will be concluded Tuesday the fifth day of its hearing before Judge Arthur P. Sumner in the Washington county superior court. Brothers of Henry B. Morris will testify for the defendant.

The defendant was on the stand all day today and at adjournment of court Monday night his cross-examination had been completed by Attorney Roche for the plaintiff. In the afternoon session the courtroom was filled to hear some rather sensational testimony. Mr. Morris entered general denials to acts of cruel treatment as alleged by his wife, whom he married in 1910. The couple lived the first year of their married life in Providence, where he was employed in the tool department of Brown and Sharpe. The next year was passed at the lighthouse on Little Gull Island, near Fishers Island, where, it is stated, occurred the first hitch in their marital relations, and the following year was passed at the lighthouse at Stratfie's Point. They then went to the Mitchell farm in District No. 6, Westerly, where they lived on the farm of his wife's father, before moving to Weekapaug. One element of the many discords in the family alleged by Mr. Morris was caused by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary E. Mitchell taking over the mortgage on the place, from the Washington Trust company.

With the conclusion of the Morris case it is expected that the Westerly adjournment of the February term of Washington county superior court will be ended.

The following lease has been recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk: March 17. A. Leibovitz and son to Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Stores, Inc., five-year lease of store, 69 High street, from March 1, 1928 to March 1, 1933 with privilege of one renewal for three years.

State Master J. Curtis Hopkins and other officers of Rhode Island State Grange, will make their first official visitation of the 1928 season this (Tuesday) evening to Westerly grange.

Workmen of Westerly sewer department under direction of Engineer Arthur H. Coy were engaged Monday in extending the new trench from Main street along the newly lowered grade of Union street. A sewer main will be laid from Main street to the superior court house end of Westerly town hall building before the work of sub-grading and resurfacing Union street on the lowered level is begun.

Ray Noyes of Charlestown, a patient at Westerly hospital being treated for a fracture of the skull as the result of his automobile capsizing near the King Tom farm on the Boston Post road in the early hours of Sunday morning, was reported as comfortable as could be expected Monday. No trace had been found up to a late hour of his companion, Helga Nordin, employed at the place of T. L. Arnold, in Charlestown, who left the location of the accident shortly after in his Essex car R. I. 31-562.

Johanna Roche Murphy, 70, widow of Cornelius J. Murphy, died Sunday afternoon at her home, 51 Summer street. Mrs. Murphy had been ill for the past 28 years, having been a helpless invalid over 20 years. She was born in Westerly, the daughter of Patrick and Catherine Morissey Roche. June 2, 1880, she was united in marriage with Cornelius J. Murphy, who died several years ago. Surviving her are six children, John F. Murphy of Providence, Mrs. Daniel Gleason Bridgeport, Conn., Mrs. E. Charles St. Onge and Mrs. William J. Alexander, Westerly, James C. Murphy, New York and Miss Annie Murphy of Westerly. There are eleven grandchildren.

Monday evening "Aunt Jerushy on the Warpath," a three-act comedy, was well presented by players from Harriet Beecher Stowe Tent, No. 2, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, in the vestry of Broad Street Christian church. The play was given for the benefit of the C. E. society of that church. Reesne de Beno, Perle Brown; Elsa Barker, Eloise Freeman; chorus girls, Reba Main, Madelyn Murray and Bessie Taylor.

STOCK PRICES WERE REACTIONARY; TRADING ABOVE 3,000,000 SHARE MARK

NEW YORK, March 19—(AP)—Stock prices turned reactionary today on selling inspired by rumors, later confirmed, that the E. I. duPont Nemours company had sold the block of 114,000 shares of U. S. Steel common stock acquired for temporary investment last June. Earlier in the day the market had moved irregularly higher under the leadership of the public utilities and rubbers, but there was rather persistent liquidation throughout the session of Radio, American Linseed and some of the other recent pool favorites.

Trading crossed the 3,000,000 share mark for the seventh consecutive full session, but was well below the Friday figures. Total sales of 1928 to date are above 150,000,000 shares, as against 105,000,000 in the corresponding period of last year, and 110,000,000 in 1926.

Failure of U. S. Steel common to make more of a response to the recent sensational advances in General Motors and Radio and the increased offerings of the stock on rallies, had aroused fears in some quarters that steel was under liquidation by a large interest. Today, Wall street heard stories that stock certificates previously held in the names of nominees of J. P. Morgan & Co., who are believed to have purchased the duPont holdings, had reappeared in "street names" indicating the stock had been sold. Sufficient doubt was cast on the rumors, however, to prevent a general rush to sell as might be expected. Less than 70,000 shares changed hands during the day, the price ranging between 145 7-8 and 148 3-8 with the final quotations of 146 representing a net loss of 1 7-8.

Revival of strength and activity in the rubber shares was based on the announcement that a $60,000,000 credit had been granted to the American "rubber pool" by New York bankers, and it coincided with an advance of nearly three cents a pound in crude rubber prices. Extreme gains of three to six points were recorded by Goodrich, Goodyear and U. S. Rubber common, with corresponding advances in the lower priced issues, but these were partially cancelled by realizing.

Public utilities, responding to reports of expanding earnings and a revival of merger rumors, gave one of the best demonstrations of group strength. Mackay Companies soared 1,31-2 points to 131 and was accompanied into new high ground by about a dozen others including American Power & Light, Commonwealth Power, Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, North American Co., International Telephone and the New York Subway issues.

U. S. Cast Iron Pipe soared 28 1-4 points to a new high record at 235. Electric Refrigeration touched a new top on reports that new interests were buying into the company and that when the directors meet on Friday and receive the February earnings, a small profit will be shown for the first time in 8 months. Corn Products, Park & Tilford, Graham-Paige, and Pullman also reached new high ground.

American Linseed broke from Saturday's closing price of 99 7-8 to 91, or more than 20 points below last week's high, and then rallied to 94. Radio, which touched a record high at 149 last week, sold down to 135 and then rallied to 139, off four points net. Greene Cananea Copper broke 5 1-8 points to 123. Rails yielded with the industrial, Wabash and Canadian Pacific losing more than two points each.

Call money ruled unchanged at 4 1-2 per cent although that figure was again shaded in the "outside market." Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Sugar prices held steady but wheat and cotton futures drifted lower.

Foreign exchange rates were irregular, with sterling cables advancing above the $4.88 level.

POETRY

Where the Wake-Robins Grow

On the wonderful hills where the Wake-robins grow
And the purple stars peep from the mould,
Where the emerald stream wanders dreaming below,
And the saffron-hued spice-buds unfold,
Where yesteryear's leaves lie adrift in the swales,
Like a meitless and brown-tinted snow—
Oh, the birds and the blossoms tell wonderful tales,
To the hill where the Wake-robins grow.

On the wonderful hills where the Wake-robins grow
There are forest-trees springing to leaf;
There are millions of grass-swords beginning to show,
Each a-gleam with a tear not of grief;
There are sights, scents and sounds that are balm to the soul
Of the town-weary one who may go
(In search of a surcease from care) for a stroll
To the hill where the Wake-robins grow.

From the beautiful hill where the Wake-robins grow
Are delectable sights to be seen;
There are mansions perched high where the hill-breezes blow,
There are wonderful valleys between.
Sometimes—who can tell whence such dreamings arise
Or whither the fancy-tides flow?—
One feels himself endlessly nearer the skies,
On the hill where the Wake-robins grow.

—By S. W. Gillian.

Sweet Peas

The frolic on the trellis,
Their prankings are absurd,
And yet—they are so pretty
Pray who would say a word?
With every breeze they gossip
That ever comes anigh;
And every garden scandal
I know they magnify.

Of all the lovely flowers
That in the garden grow,
By odds they are the gayest
That in the garden blow;
The Tuberose and the Lily
To sad occasions lean,
But never at interments
Are the Sweet Peas ever seen.

As I pass on the sidewalk
At me they nod and laugh
And think, oh, dear, how funny
That old man with a staff!
I never mind the laughter,
For I partake the glees:
They bring to mind a circus
And the girls on a trapeze.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"I see you got 73 in history," remarked the golfer-parent, absently. "What's par for the course?"—Detroit News.

Bertrand—Did you get a berth on the boxing squad?

Clarence — Berth is right? They put me to sleep the first thing!—Exchange.

First Turkey—"How will you save yourself?"

Second Turkey—"I shall try to get a job as cuckoo in a clock."—Capper's Weekly.

Sportsman—There were hundreds of white ducks.

His Friend—All white ones?

Sportsman — All white—the ground was black with them.—Pages Gales, Tiverdon.

Paula—"There go two of the most disagreeable men I've met this season."

Olive—"Are they? Why?"

Paula—"Well, one stares me out and the other won't look at me at all!"—Life.

Beatrice—"Neither of them are adepts at deception, you know."

Millicent—"Goodness gracious! Why, their married life is going to be something awful my dear."—New Bedford Standard.

Mrs. A. (at resort)—Doesn't it worry you to write to your husband for more money?

Mrs. B.—Not at all. If he's having a good time he owes it to me and if he isn't having a good time he has saved it.—Facts and Fancies.

A strange minister was about to preach as a candidate for a vacancy in a Scottish church, and the beadle asked him, "Are you a 'paper' minister?"

The candidate replied that he usually read his discourse.

"Oh, that's a' richt, then! When a man has a paper we ken that he'll end where the paper ends, but when he has no paper, heaven only knows when he'll stop."—Tit-Bits, London.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Chicago had an automobile court as early as 1912.

Beavers prefer aspen, poplar and cottonwood trees for food and building material.

De luxe railroad travel in France costs 6 cents a mile and the government takes four of those cents in taxes. This complaining assertion is made by those who think France is killing travel, but the volume of business goes on increasing. Ordinary travel, in day coaches, costs more than 3 cents a mile and one-fourth of the cost is for taxes. It is Pullman service that is expensive for it costs as much as a first-class railroad ticket.

An archaelogical expedition to search for relics of ancient Babylonian and Assyrian civilization is being organized by the Toledo Museum of Art, and will set out for Bagdad this month. The expedition will be directed by Dr. LeRoy Waterman, professor of Semitics at the University of Michigan. Relics brought to this country will be divided between the university and the Toledo Museum. Dr. Waterman will attempt to locate a lost city of antiquity, which flourished in this region for a considerable period, and which is referred to many times in literature and ancient documents. The position of the lost city is known approximately.

The animals on the Canadian musk ox sanctuary, one of the loneliest lands of the earth, are to be visited by an explorer of the Canadian department of the interior, W. H. B. Hoare. He leaves Ottawa this month, taking with him a team of six Eskimo dogs imported specially from Baffin island. Proceeding as fast as possible by rail, he will then strike into the interior for the 15,000 square-mile reserve in the northwest territories, east of the Great Slave lake. This area is almost never visited by white men, and it is believed that even Eskimos and Indians rarely go there. The musk-ox, which the Canadian government is endeavoring to save from extinction, is a peculiar long-haired animal, apparently intermediate between bison and goats.

Piles Go Quick

Piles are caused by congestion of blood in the lower bowel. Only an internal remedy can remove the cause. That's why salves and cutting fail. Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid, a harmless tablet, succeeds, because it relieves this congestion and strengthens the affected parts. Hem-Roid has given quick, safe and lasting relief to thousands of Pile Sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. Lee & Osgood Co. and druggists everywhere sell Hem-Roid with this guarantee.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Peter Rabbit Visits Scrapper.

Use your tongue where'er you go
When there are things you want to know.

—Peter Rabbit.

Peter says that people who fear to ask questions never get anywhere. But, then, Peter doesn't realize that other people may be as curious as he is. Peter had never been particularly curious in regard to Scrapper the Kingbird until Winsome Bluebird told him that Scrapper was one of the feathered folk who spend the winter farther down in the Sunny South than most of the others do. Peter got to thinking it over. "I wonder," thought Peter, "if it is so very different down there. My, it must be wonderful to travel. I must get Scrapper to tell me about the people down where he spends the winter. I don't suppose they're much different from the people up here, the furred and feathered folk. I wonder if I've got any relatives down there. Scrapper ought to know. I must go call on him."

So at the very first chance Peter went over to see Scrapper the Kingbird. It happened at the time that Scrapper was sitting on a fence post and there was no one else about. "Hello, old Long-ears!" exclaimed Scrapper as Peter came hopping along up. "Hello, Long-ears. How is everything with you?"

"Fine!" replied Peter. "Just fine! Couldn't be better. How is everything with you?"

"Just the same," replied Scrapper. "I don't see but that the old Orchard looks just as it did when I was here last summer. Things don't change much up here."

"Do they change much down where you spend the winter?" inquired Peter.

"Yes," replied Scrapper, "things never look quite the same when I get back there. You see, things grow very, very fast down there."

"Do they grow any faster than they do up here?" inquired Peter, looking a little surprised.

"Yes, oh, yes," replied Scrapper. "You wouldn't believe me if I should tell you how fast things grow down there, and trees and vines of all kinds. There are a lot of things I could tell you about that country down there that you wouldn't believe."

"Yes, I would, Scrapper! Yes, I would!" cried Peter. "Just try me and see."

Scrapper shook his head. "No," said he. "I've seen things down there that you wouldn't believe if I should tell you. You would say they couldn't be and would just refuse to believe. So I'm not going to waste my breath, Peter Rabbit."

"Hello, Old Long Ears!" exclaimed Scrapper.

"Is it so very different from around here?" inquired Peter. "Don't they have Green Meadows and Laughing Brooks and Green Forests and Old Orchards and Smiling Pools?"

Scrapper hesitated a bit. "Not like these up here," he replied. "The Green Forests down there they don't call forests at all."

"What do they call them?" asked Peter.

"Jungles," replied Scrapper promptly. "And the jungle down there is just as different from the Green Forest up here as the names are."

Peter looked puzzled. "Do you mean the trees are different?" inquired Peter.

Scrapper nodded. "The trees are different, the vines are different, the small plants are different, the flowers are different and even the grass is different. And the bugs I have to eat are different."

"And I suppose you'll say next that the birds and the animals are different," said Peter.

"Certainly," replied Scrapper. "They are different. You have never seen any one like some of them. By the way, I saw your cousin down there. I saw him down in a place called Panamia."

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

Nothing of real importance happened during this week 75 years ago. Several incidents above the general trend of affairs, however, gave the natives something to talk about. A train on the New London, Palmer and Willimantic railroad went off the track one and a half miles south of this city and carried a house 10 feet, to provide the most startling news of the day.

Interesting extracts from the files of The Norwich Evening Courier are in part as follows:

Tuesday, March 18, 1853—The lines between Boston and New York have agreed to fix the price of fare at $4 for passengers. The price of freight is to be four cents a foot.

The old silver and lead mine at Middletown, Conn., is to be worked vigorously.

A new dry goods and clothing establishment is to be opened in the Colt block on Union street. An establishment which proposes, in the outset, to give profitable employment to one thousand females cannot be an object of indifference to the citizens of Norwich, or of its vicinity; and we are all too well acquainted with the gentleman who has embarked in this enterprise not to feel warranted in speaking of him as one whose gentlemanly character and personal integrity give the highest pledge of fair and honorable dealings in the business upon which he is about to enter.

At last, nearly four months after the election, we have the full official vote of that slowest of states, Virginia. It foots up for Pierce and King 73,872, for Scott and Graham 57,526—Pierce and King majority 16,346.

Thursday, March 17, 1853—As the first train on the New London, Willimantic and Palmer railroad was coming up from New London this morning, the axle of one of the trucks broke, throwing a portion of the train off the tracks and doing considerable damage. The accident occurred about a mile and a half below this city, just as the train was approaching, at ordinary speed, a small house, which stands within ten feet of the track of the road. The locomotive, leaving its accustomed road, made a rush for the house, and in less than a twinkling carried away the entire front portion of the dwelling to the depth of about ten feet. The mistress of the mansion was at the moment standing at the window, eyeing the big black monster as he came thundering along, never dreaming, however, that he had any notion of making a pass at, instead of by, her premises! All passengers escaped uninjured and, on the whole, it may be considered a very fortunate escape.

We invite the attention of readers—especially of housekeepers—to the advertisement in another column of an article of household furniture which is rapidly coming into use, and which is claimed to possess many and durable advantages over the old fashioned style and material of such kind of furniture—we mean iron bedsteads.

A Baltimore mechanic has applied for space in the Crystal Palace to erect a steam engine which, he says, will carry a steamship across the Atlantic in 36 hours.

We see it stated that General Scott is about to make New York city the headquarters of the army of the United States.

There was but one territory created at the last session of congress, to wit, the territory of Washington, in Oregon, north of the Columbia. "Nebraska" and all other territorial projects failed.

Jeremiah Hickey, a machinist, of Roxbury, Mass., was run over and killed by the Newton train on Monday evening near the Milldam crossing.

Saturday, March 19, 1853—The boat due here this morning from New York did not arrive until between 2 and 3 p. m. The delay, it is understood, was caused by the severe blow on the sound.

Caution to Compositors: H. H. Braden, a printer, of Zanesville, Odio, died on the 22d ult. from a fever contracted by a habit of putting type in his mouth while "spacing out" lines.

The steamer Ohio, from Aspinwall, crossed the bar in New York harbor at 6 o'clock last evening but will remain below tonight on account of the fog. She has the California mails and a large amount of gold on board.

The toll bridge at Colvers and the Rensselaer and Saratoga bridge at Waterford, both in New York state, have been destroyed by fire recently. They were both, undoubtedly, the work of an incendiary.

Purchase of standard school supplies through a central county agency is directed by law recently enacted in California. The law makes centralized purchasing through the county superintendent obligatory for all elementary school districts not within incorporated cities, and premissive for other elementary and high-school districts.

If Mothers Only Knew

Thousands of Children Suffer from Worms, and Their Mothers Do Not Know What the Trouble Is.

Signs of Worms are: Constipation, deranged stomach, swollen upper lip, offensive breath, hard and full stomach with pains, pale face, eyes heavy, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, little red pointe on the tongue, scaring during sleep with troublesome dreams, slow fever.

Mrs. H. N. Roberts, 582 Asylum St., Flint, Mich., wrote: "My little girl is relieved of her worms." And in a later letter wrote: "Baby is fine and it was your Dr. True's Elixir that helped her."

Dr. True's Elixir

The True Family Laxative and Worm Expeller

A pure Herb Laxative and not a harsh stimulator; quick, natural relief from constipation.

Family size $1.20; other sizes 60c & 35c.

Just ONE spoonful Adlerika relieves gas and that bloated feeling so that you can eat and sleep well. Acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removes old waste matter you never thought was there. No matter what you have tried for your stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you. Engler's Broadway Pharmacy.

NEW LONDON MAYOR WON'T STAND FOR EXTRA TAX COLLECTOR AT $18,000

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 19—At the meeting of the city council tonight Mayor May strenuously opposed the employment of an additional collector in the tax office. He said the proposition inflicts another assessment on the taxpayer and leads to the inquiry whether additional assessments will ever cease. He said "We paid dearly for an attempt to equalize taxation and have involved the city to a considerable extent for what has been termed a zoning ordinance. Now comes the recommendation that we again open the treasury and expend the sum of $18,000 in addition to our present cost of conducting our tax-collecting department. Where will it end, it is conceded that the duties and requirements in the tax-collecting department have increased to the extent that an additional employe would facilitate its functioning. The present tax collector is recognized as competent to fulfil the duties required but is handicapped, a condition that can be remedied by giving him another assistant. The costly method now recommended by the city manager, involving the expense of $18,000 does not seem necessary. Whoever may be appointed under the proposed plan will not be vested with any more legal authority than at present. The same method of pressure in forcing collections is now available.

"Under the charter new provisions are made whereby drastic methods may be resorted to. I trust this course will not be adopted or pursued, especially while present business conditions exist if they are adopted we must bear the stigma of crowding some of our taxpayers to the ruinous point; whereas, time and diplomacy would solve the problem and produce the desired results. The city of New London, is to a large extent, guaranteed against law. Liens are filed and in the interval the city is credited with interest on the first tax payment, at a higher rate than is required by our institutions for secured loan. I approve reasonable consideration when forcing collections at a time when the debtor, for good and sufficient reasons may be temporarily unable to meet the demand. I think it unwise, as well as unfair, for the city to arbitrarily adopt methods that may tend toward embarrassing and harassing certain of its taxpayers because of the fact that at the time being they may be unable to pay their tax.

"Taxes precede all other claims and must be satisfied in full, in the event of sale or foreclosure. This puts a different phase on the city's claim, as compared with the claim of a common creditor. The claim for taxes is a preferred claim and the city is credited with interest for the time the payment was deferred.

"The statement or inference that the proposed $18,000 additional expense is to be borne by the delinquent taxpayer is camouflaged. Eighteen thousand dollars assessment intended to cover a period of 18 months means a cost of $1 000 a month, whether it is apportioned at so much for this year and so much for next year, or whether a straight proportion of the tota. is entered as under the health department and the balance under the charity or other departments; the fact remains that the sum to pay is $18,000. If it is determined to proceed on a commission basis I make a prediction that the cost will exceed $18,000 and, mark you, I say 'cost!'

"The solution in my opinion is to add to the present tax office force one assistant and an adequate system."

There were 30 applications for building permits of various sorts. Opposition to the application of A. Leverone for platform and parking station at Ocean beach came from John E. Foran and was referred to committee Malloof and Sharaf deeded land to the city for the improvement of Beckwith and Gordon streets.

The matter of improving Williams stree, the city to get $7,000 from the state road aid department was passed on, and a contract authorized There were applications from airport builders to build here, anticipating the establishment of the four-day line to Europe. Applications were received for filing.

MOTHER ADMITS STRANGLING HER BABE BORN SUNDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 19—Mrs. Emma Muscarella, 42 Central avenue, wife of Samuel Muscarella, is technically under arrest at Lawrence-Memorial hospital tonight, pending further investigation by Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman into the death of a son born to Mr and Mrs. Muscarella yesterday. Mrs. Muscarella was taken to the hospital this afternoon, following the death of the infant. When the report of the death was made to Medical Examiner Kaufman by the physician attending Mrs. Muscarella there were suspicious circumstances attending the death. It was apparent that the baby did not die from natural causes, but from strangulation. After viewing the body of the babe, Dr. Kaufman went to the hospital where he questioned the mother. It is understood that after a long delay Mrs. Muscarella finally admitted that she seized the infant by the throat and choked it until it was lifeless.

Herbert B. Stokes, of Main street, Saybrook, was in Waterford tow court this afternoon charged with reckless driving, having been arrested Sunday night by State Police Officer Kenerson and Johnson. After listening to testimony, Judge Frederick Dimmock ordered a nolle entered. Stokes was driving his automobile at Station 14 about 8 o'clock when he was charged with having attempted to pass another car at a fast rate of speed. In doing so, it was claimed, Stokes' auto was forced off the highway and Stokes lost control of the steering wheel, with the result that it crashed through one of the state's highway fences. The car was badly damaged, but Stokes escaped injury, excepting for bruises. The accident was reported at the state police barracks, Groton and Officers Kenerson and Johnson arrested Stokes.

NEW LONDON, March 19—The three-story fire proof building of the Connecticut Power company, which it was planned to be erected on Water street, will be located in the town of Waterford, according to an announcement issued today by officials of the company. Plans for the structure have been in the making for some time, under the direction of Engineer Cecil W. Brown. Land was purchased on Water street sometime ago in anticipation of putting the building there. However, company officials have decided that Waterford will be a better place for the site as more acreage can be secured there. Work on the structure is to start immediately and today men were engaged in staking out the boundary lines for the building. The tract purchased in Waterford is a little over ten acres Later on it is planned to develop a portion of this as a recreation center for company employes.

ATTORNEY GEARY'S BODY ARRIVES FROM FLORIDA

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 19—The body of Attorney John C. Geary, who died March 16 at Daytona Beach, Fla., where he was spending the winter with Mrs. Geary, arrived in New London at 5:15 o'clock this morning. It was accompanied by Mrs. Geary and Mr. and Mrs. John L. Larkin, Jeremiah Dillon and Mrs. Thomas Haney who had gone to Washington Saturday night to join Mrs. Geary. Arrangements have been made for the funeral which will be held from the residence of Mr. Geary's brother-in-law, Frederick H. Davis, 12 Jay street. Wednesday morning with services at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. The active bearers will be members of Niagara Engine company, of which company, Mr. Geary had been a member many years. The honorary bearers have not been chosen. The flag on the city hall is at half-mast as a tribute of respect to Mr Geary. Many of the stores will close during the time of the funeral services.

The funeral of William J. Caldwell, former post office clerk, was held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at his residence at Graniteville, Waterford and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners, including employes at the New London post office and members of Union lodge of Masons. The services were conducted by Rev. Chester H. Howe pastor of the First Baptist church. The bearers were Orlo E. Fenwick, Philip K. Dewire, Herman Staab, Roy C. Barker, Harold Bosworth and William Dolbeare. Burial was in Jordan cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by members of Union lodge.

Charles Benson, 83 Blinman street, New Haven railroad freight brakeman, was in Groton town court today charged with breach of the peace in beating his wife. He pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs the latter amounting to $11.55. Benson and his wife went yesterday afternoon to Groton, where they had rented a cottage, ostensibly for the comfort of their children during the summer month. During the early evening, Benson and his wife became involved in an argument and the husband attacked and beat the wife. Mrs. Benson ran from the cottage and continued to Fairview road and her husband, following, overtook his wife and administered another beating, during which the woman's clothing was partially torn from her body. Benson left his wife in the highway where she was found by a passing autoist, who brought the woman to New London police headquarters. After she had related her story the state police were notified of the assault and Officer Peter Busch was assigned to the case. Benson was found at his home here by Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin and Patrolman Harry Watterson and was arrested Officer Busch came to New London and escorted the prison to Groton where he was locked up for the night. Benson has a charge of beating his wife pending against him in the New London court, the case having been continued from last December to June 7.

Robert Dean and Harirs Solowsky, farmers residing in Niantic, R. F. D. No. 1, were in the police court today charged with selling adulterated milk. Each was fined $15 but execution of the sentence was suspended Dean and Solowitz both denied placing water in the milk, but the report of an analysis made at the state laboratory, Hartford at the request of State Dairy and Food Commissioner C. H. Briggs showed unquestionably that the milk had been watered. The milk was purchased of the farmers in this city Feb. 24 by an agent of the state.

John W. Robbins, 29 Tilley street where he resides with his wife, was charged with breach of the peace, but the case was continued to the 26th inst. Robbins, who has been drinking freely of late is a member of the United States Coast Guard and Saturday night went to his home in an unruly mood. Mrs Robbins went to Probation Officer Mansfield and related her story of abuse. He obtained a rom for her at a Golden street lodging house Sunday evening Robbins ascertained the whereabouts of his wife and went to the house where he again abused his wife. When he left the house he took her money, coat and hat and then wanted his wife locked up, but as Mrs. Robbins had again made complaint to the police because of her husband's acts, he and not she, was arrested.

George Jobborn and Joseph Potter, both claiming Norwich as their home and Mary Clark, Nezress, of this city, were charged in the city court with breach of the peace Each was fined $5, but execution of the sentence was suspended The two men and woman came to New London last evening on the trolley car from Norwich that reached State street at 7:45 and the singing of hymns by the Salvation Army holding service near the terminus evidently caused the liquor that the trio had been drinking to imbue the two men and woman with religious ideas for they went to the group of worshippers and started to assist in the conduct of the meeting. Potter passed his hat among the many spectators Then the men and woman were arrested.

Harry Shuman, 254 Huntington street, was charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law, in driving without license or registration The charge was nolled. Schuman was arrested last night by Patrolman John Sullivan after the former's auto had collided with a bus.

Curtis Chapman, of Waterford, was charged with violation of the city's traffic laws in blocking traffic on State street Sunday. He failed to present himself and his bond of $2 was forfeited.

The continued case of Leslie Hewitt 79 Phillips street, charged with reckless driving, was again continued, this time to 19th inst Hewitt was driving his automobile on Main street a week ago when it struck Thomas Dombrowski, 8, of 80 Potter street, the boy sustaining a fractured skull and has remained unconscious since at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital At the institution today it was stated that the boy was on the danger list. It is believed that by Monday next the injury will have had a fatal result or that the condition of the boy will be such that it can reasonably be determined whether he will recover.

A shed used by the New Haven railroad at Midway for storage purposes was entirely destroyed by fire of unknown origin last night. When the fire was discovered a telephone message was sent to the railroad offices in this city and two switch engines equipped with pumps were sent to Midway, but by the time that the locomotives arrived there the building had been razed. The damage will not result in loss of consequence to the railroad.

Care of Babies

Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good. And it is so pleasant to take. Taste it yourself, and you'll know why 'Children Cry for It."

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or when you even suspect the approach of constipation; or diarrhea. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria. See how quickly all fretfulness or wakefulness will cease!

Only one word of warning: the above advice is true of genuine Castoria.* The kind called Fletcher's, bearing Fletcher's signature is genuine—and does not contain opiates or any other drug that can harm your baby. Other preparations may be just as free from harm; the writer does not know as to that, but does know one family whose children will never make the experiment!

*SPECIAL NOTE: With every bottle of genuine Fletcher's Castoria is wrapped a book on "Care and Feeding of Babies" worth its weight in gold to every mother or prospective mother.

INGROWN NAIL

Turns Right Out Itself

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

A face too valuable to wear a beard! That's why you always see Charlie Murray "bare-faced" on the screen.

In "The Life of Riley," riotous comedy featuring George Sidney and Murray closing tonight at the Breed theatre, the latter was to have worn typical farmer chin whiskers, according to the story written especially for the comedy team by Mann Page.

The beard was left in the story by Howard J. Green, who adapted the picture, and Scenarist Curtis Benton The company constructor, Jack Mintz, wrote some "gags" around it. But at a conference between E. M. Asher, who produced "The Life of Riley" for First National Pictures, and William Beaudine, who directed it, it was decided to omit Charlie's chin adornment.

His unadorned face is Murray's fortune, and like his partner Sidney—and unlike many comedians—no "trick" beards or mustaches are needed to make his classic "map" funny.

Supporting the comedy pair are Sam Hardy, Myrtle Stedman, June Marlowe, Stephen Carr and Edwards Davis. The comedy has a small town setting, spiced with color from the invasion of a circus. Murray enacts the role of a fire chief and Sidney of a chief of police.

The beautiful Diane of "7th Heaven" has been awarded stardom by Fox Films for her remarkable performance in that production. She plays her first stellar role in "2 Girls Wanted," a screen version of John Golden's stage success of the same name.

The new star will be seen in this Fox feature at the Breed theatre for two days commencing tomorrow.

Strand Theatre

Al Wilson, the screen's greatest and trick aviator utilizes his full bag of sky tricks in "Sky High Saunders" showing for the last tonight at the Strand. A perfect love story, thrills galore and dramatic touches are found in their proper proportions. Running a bandit flyer to earth and staging a fistic duel on the wing of a plane two thousand feet in the air are just two of the many gripping scenes in store for thrill seekers. The star has the support of such talented players as Elsie Tarron, Frank Rice and Bud Osborne.

"Clothes Make the Woman" is a Tiffany color classic and is a gem of superb entertainment.

For the film fans who enjoy a clever comedy, we suggest seeing "Salute" the lively and interesting sketch which is presented by William Fox and acted by a capable group of clever comedians. There is much fun and laughter in store for those who will see this film, so if you enjoy a good snappy picture, be sure to see "Salute".

Palace Theatre

One of the bits of realism in Herbert Brenon's production of "Sorrell and Son," current film at the Palace theatre, is a "wedding" performed in an old English church by an ordained minister, an uncle of the director.

The Brenon company went to England for the exterior scenes. Sequences were made in London, along the Thames and in other parts of England described in the story of father and son devotion. Wishing to surround the nuptials with the true atmosphere, Brenon secured a special permit from the bishop for his uncle, Rev William Brenon to go through a ceremony at St Thomas' church in Chilworth, Surrey.

Rev Mr. Brenon, who is 76 years old demurred at first when told he had been drafted as a motion picture actor, but his nephew, who as a boy lived in England, finally persuaded the aged clergyman to officiate.

Nils Asther, who plays "Kit Sorrell," and Mary Nolan, who is "Molly Roland" in the screen version of "Sorrell and Son," were the principals. Parishioners of the Rev. Mr. Brenon's church were recruited as guests and according to Director Brenon, they played their roles like real screen veterans Authorities of the picturesque English town cooperated and helped control the throngs which gathered to see an American motion picture company utilize St. Thomas' church and its rector for scenes in a film drama

Sorrell and Son will be shown for the last time tomorrow afternoon. In the evening the St. Mary's players will present "Nothing But the Truth."

For Gardening Success

Spring used to mean the time when father would renew the painted glory of the iron stag and funneral urn for geraniums in the front yard, make a few gestures about the lawn, and put his hope in provident nature and the faithful service of an antique rubber hose.

Then only the very wealthy could afford the services of nurserymen and landscape gardeners. And their success, under difficulties that afflicted the average householder with despair, hinted of the supernatural.

Today, however, the home owner with but modest thirty-foot lot has access to the very same means that expert gardeners use For professional gardeners make no mystery of their success. They are glad to discuss the simple, economical method by which impoverished city soils are made rich and productive.

They recommend nitrogen, phosphorus and potash for feeding plants—not in their crude form of course, but as ready-mixed, properly balanced plant foods that can be quickly assimilated Commercial plant foods offer a practical and economical means of having thriving lawns, gardens, flowers, shrubs and trees. They provide vigor and steady growth to help withstand the chill days of early spring, dry spells and summer heat, weeds, and plant diseases.

There is the advantage, too, of not having to bother with messy, unpleasant fertilizers. For these new commercial plant foods are clean and odorless and may be sown by hand like grass seed. And by selecting a brand put out by a well-known manufacturer, one has reasonable assurance of getting real results that will last all season long. See adv. for Vigoro.

NORWICH REPUBLICANS NAME STATE CONVENTION DELEGATES; NO CONTEST

Four delegates to the republican state convention and the congressional district convention to be held at Hartford, April 17 and 18, were chosen Monday evening by the local republican party at the caucus at the town hall. There were no contests and the delegates were quickly named at the ten-minute caucus. At 8 o'clock sharp the caucus, which had an attendance of well over 100 men and women, was called to order by George M. Charbonneau, chairman of the republican town committee. On motion of Weston C. Pullen, Henry H. Pettis was chosen chairman.

On taking the chair, Mr. Pettis said it was gratifying to him to see so many present at the caucus. He remarked that the caucus was the opening gun of the campaign which he believes will result in a republican victory at the presidential election and the continuation for four more years of the policies of Calvin Coolidge, which Mr. Coolidge has so ably carried on.

Herbert J. Ferguson was the choice for caucus clerk and he read the caucus call. Mr. Pettis then called for nominations for delegates to the state and congressional district conventions.

The delegates were unanimously named by the caucus as follows:

State Senator Lee Roy Robbins, nominated by Judge Arthur F. Libby; Representative Charles W. Cassidy, nominated by Atty. Charles L. Stewart; Representative George G. Engler, nominated by Howard Spalding; Josiah Greenstein, nominated by Town Clerk Harold S. Burt.

Joseph C. Worth submitted the following nominations for the town committee for the next two years:

First district: H. H. Pettis, Charles W. Cassidy, George G. Engler, Kenneth Fox, Josiah Greenstein, Ebenezer Learned, Herbert J. Ferguson, John R. Bowman, Weston C. Pullen.

Second district: Walter Cowan, William Huntington, Mrs. Frank I. Royce and Mrs. John O. Peckham.

Third district: William S. Murray, Mrs. William Lund.

Fourth district: A. R. Manning, Edwin Ross, Mrs. Ruby Jordan, Mrs. James A. Bidwell.

Fifth district: Frank Belque, William Enos, Mrs. Anna Parent, Miss Rose Brodeur.

Sixth district: Howard Spalding and Mrs. Joseph Higgins.

In making the nominations, Mr. Worth moved that the committee be empowered to make any additions to the list if they see fit.

Mr. Stewart offered a motion that the caucus vote on the list collectively and the motion prevailed, after which Mr. Pettis called for action on the list of nominations and the vote was unanimously in favor of the entire list. The caucus then voted to authorize the town committee to add to its membership if it sees fit and also authorized the committee to fill any vacancies that might occur in the list of delegates to the state convention. There being no other business before the caucus, the meeting adjourned at 8:10 o'clock.

FINDS NO CRIMINAL BLAME ON DRIVER OF AUTOMOBILE

Carl Benker of Occum was exonerated of all criminal responsibility in connection with the death of Levi Paquette, 48, who was struck by a machine driven by Benker on the night of Nov. 1, 1927. The finding was made Monday by Coroner J. J. Desmond.

It was found that Benker was unable to see Paquette in time to avoid striking him because of the glaring headlights of a machine approaching from the opposite direction.

In his finding Coroner Desmond says:

On Oct. 29, 1927, Carl Benker was driving his father's Dodge touring car in a northerly direction on the public highway in the town of Norwich leading from Taftville to and through Occum; as he was passing through Occum at about 10 o'clock p. m. another automobile, traveling southerly on this highway, approached, and the glare of its headlights as it passed blinded Carl Benker so that he was unable, on this account, to see any object directly in front of him; he applied his foot brake and lessened the speed of his car as the other machine went by, but continued on his course, and just after the southbound car had passed he perceived Levi Paquette on foot almost in the middle of the road and directly in front of his car; he was then so near Mr. Paquette that it was impossible for him to stop his car before it reached Mr. Paquette and he turned sharply to his right in an effort to pass the decedent, but Mr. Paquette was struck by the left front fender of the Benker car and was fatally injured. Mr. Benker stopped his car immediately, placed the injured man therein and conveyed him directly to the office of Dr. George Thompson at Taftville, whence Mr. Paquette was taken in the ambulance to the Backus hospital in Norwich, where he died on the first day of November, 1927, from the injuries he received when struck by the Benker automobile as a foresaid. After bringing the injured man to Dr. Thompson's office, Mr. Benker went to the Norwich police headquarters and there reported the accident. At the time of the accident two young men were sitting on the front seat of the Benker car, with the operator. The driver of the southbound automobile was William Shapiro of Norwich, who witnessed the accident, immediately stopped his car, and went back to the injured man to render any aid in his power.

The evidence in this case fails to disclose any lack of care on the part of Carl Benker amounting to criminal negligence. He was not traveling at a reckless rate of speed, and was prevented from discovering Mr. Paquette in the road, before it was too late to avoid striking him, by the glare of the oncoming Shapiro car's headlights, and did all in his power to avoid the accident after he was able to see the pedestrian in his path.

Common experience and observation show that the headlights of motor vehicles moving in the opposite direction in the night season very often affect the vision of the operator of the car going the other way so that he cannot see anything in the road directly in front of him, and it seems to me that the operator whose sight is thus temporarily impaired should bring his car under control so as to be able to stop it immediately, and so keep it under control until he is again capable of perceiving objects directly in front of his car; and in this connection it appears to be advisable to call attention to the well known fact that the headlights of many motor vehicles are not properly focussed.

I am satisfied and find that the death of said Levi Paquette was not caused by the criminal act, omission, or negligence of any other person, or persons.

CONNECTICUT S. A. R. IS GAINING IN MEMBERSHIP

The Connecticut society, S. A. R., held a meeting of the board of managers New Haven last Saturday. A branch to be known as Mattatuck No. 10 at Waterbury, with 25 local members was chartered. Seventy-five new members were elected to membership, making a total of 205 during the fiscal year commenced April 1, 1927. Under the impetus given to the Connecticut society by the election of the president generalship of Ernest E. Rogers of New London, seconded by the earnest endeavors of Compatriot Belknap of Hartford and his associates of the new membership committee, an unusual interest in the membership of the society has arisen and a corresponding increase in member has taken place.

FORECLOSURE OF MORTGAGE ON BEACH PROPERTY

Foreclosure of a $2,000 mortgage on lot No. 322 at Point O' Woods beach, Old Lyme, is sought by Puritan Bank and Trust company of Meriden in a suit brought in the superior court against John F. Day of Meriden and others. The mortgage was given to secure a demand note dated May 3, 1924. Party defendants named are George R. Cummings of Meriden claiming a $3,000 mortgage prior to the plaintiff's mortgage, dated June 25, 1923, and George J. Lacourciere of Meriden claiming a $2,465 mortgage following the plaintiff's mortgage and dated Nov. 12, 1926. The suit is returnable before the superior court in April.

Fined For Reckless Driving.

Overruling a demurrer, Judge Arthur F. Libby fined Alfred Bennett of Versailles $25 and costs on a charge of reckless driving. Bennett was arrested in Occum Saturday night following an accident in which his machine crashed headon into a parked coupe owned by Edward Booth of Ashton, R. I. Both machines were considerably damaged.

No disappointment can be quite so intolerable as disappointment in one's self.

VANDERBILT YACHT ARA IS BACK AT MIAMI BASE

There was interest in New London several months ago when the yacht Ara, owned by William K. Vanderbilt, 2nd, after hauling out at the Thames shipyard cleared for Miami. The owner and his bride, who was the divorced wife of Barclay Warburton, of Philadelphia, had been married in Paris Sept. 5th last. They reached Miami in January and left for a fishing trip in the Caribbean sea.

The Ara arrived back at Miami at the week end and Mr. Vanderbilt visited his Fisher Island aquarium and tropical bird reservation after two months' cruise to the Galapagos Islands, in the equatorial belt of the Pacific.

Mr. Vanderbilt, who was accompanied by Mrs. Vanderbilt and Commander H. H. Lane of the navy, brought back with him on the Ara rare specimens of birds, turtles and fish, some of which he declared have never before been taken in captivity.

Mr. Vanderbilt disembarked at once, attired only in a bathing suit, tennis hat and slippers, and saw to the taking ashore of iguanas, penquins and other live trophies that had become tame during the days aboard ship.

The yachtsman maintains his own collection, and he said he will give all duplicates to the New York Museum and the Bronx Zoo.

The cruise took the party to a group of islands once known as the base of operations for buccaneers of the Pacific. Mr. Vanderbilt said that on their last trip there they found active volcanoes, but this time the craters were cold.

Although the party was within a few miles of the equator, they found the water temperature was only 70 degrees several degrees cooler than at Miami, and the party wore sweaters during the day, sleeping under blankets during the night, a fact attributed to the Humboldt or Antarctic current.

After three or four days at his Miami base, Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt will sail for New York aboard the Ara.

SUES FOR DAMAGE TO AUTO HIT BY TRUCK

Damages of $2,000 are claimed by Sebastian Santin of Stonington in a civil action brought in the superior court against Theodore N. Glenn of Boston and the Motor Tool Specialty Co., also of Boston.

Santin claims that he was agent for the Studebaker car in Mystic in December, 1927, while a new Studebaker car was being driven from New York to Mystic by an employe of the plaintiff and which machine was to have been delivered to a customer the next day. It was extensively damaged when struck by a truck owned by the defendant company and operated by Glenn.

The claim is made that the car is worth about $700 as compared with its original value of $1,485.

Fined In City Court.

At the city court session Monday morning Herman Adams of Taftville was presented on a charge of operating a motor vehicle not properly registered. He was found guilty and fined $25 for not having the machine registered and $5 for operating it. He was arrested by Constable Louis Paquette.

For Attorney Geary's Funeral.

According to notices sent to the members of the New London county bar by Secretary Hibberd R. Norman, they are to meet at the court house in New London at 9.30 Wednesday morning for the purpose of attending the funeral of Attorney John C. Geary, which is to be held at St. Mary's church.

Kilauea, in Hawaii, is the largest active volcano in the world. The crater is three miles across.

WATERFORD MAN WAS FINED IN CITY COURT

Robert Watrous of Waterford was before the city court Monday morning on charges of operating a motor vehicle with improper number plates and with operating without a driver's license. He was fined $25 on each count. Watrous was arrested Sunday morning by State Policeman Arthur Whitmarsh, in Thamesville. The officer was watching for possible motor vehicle law violators. When the officer stopped the car he discovered that it was not properly registered. At the time of his arrest Watrous produced an operator's license, which it was later found belongs to his brother.

TAFTVILLE

The mid-lenten concert and entertainment given for the benefit of Sacred Heart church under the auspices of the Ladies auxiliary, Ancient Order of Hibernians, Sunday evening at Parish hall, was attended by a large audience which thoroughly enjoyed the pleasing program. One part of the entertainment was given by the pupils of the Sacred Heart school, and included old Irish songs and melodies. The children had been trained by their teachers, the Sisters of Charity, and they carried their parts in a very creditable manner. When the curtain rose, the small children sang "St. Patrick's Day in the Morning" after which there was a playlet entitled "A Little Box of Shamrocks and Yesterday, or Grandma's Dream" in which the parts were well taken by Miss Pauline Brodeur and Miss Helen Swain. The pupils of the eighth grade at the school then gave a pantomime entitled "Kathleen Mavourneen."

"The Heirs" a farce in one act was next given by a number of young people. The caste was as follows: The Attorney, Harold Corcoran; the Old Maid, Miss Jeannette Dupont; the Deaf Man, Adelard Adams; the Actress, Miss Jeanette Dubois; the Jew, Nicholas Bontempo; two fashionable ladies, Miss Diana Heroux and Miss Clayis Fontaine; the Suffragette, Miss Irene Desmarais; the Poet, James Daley. Piano selections were played by Miss Vitaline Mathieu and Miss Doris Pepin.

Another two act comedy was presented later, the cast including, Miss Julia Chappell, Miss Helen Breault, Miss Grace Phalen, Miss Anne Daley and Miss Mary Murphy; Roderick Sullivan, tenor, of Norwich sang "Kathleen Mavourneen" and "Ireland Must Be Heaven," and other Irish songs.

During the evening music was furnished by Humphrey's Novelty orchestra. The stage furnishings were loaned by Amede Pion. A neat sum was realized and will be added to the church treasury.

Funeral services were held for Mrs. Philomene Paradis, from her late home on Hunters avenue, Monday morning at 8:30, followed by a solemn high mass of requiem at Sacred Heart church at 9 o'clock, with relatives from Norwich, Baltic, New Bedford and Springfield attending. There was also a delegation from the Ladies of St. Anne society, of which the deceased was a member. Rev. Henri F. Chagnon was celebrant at the mass; Rev. Frederick R. DesSureault was deacon and Rev. Omer T. Mandler, sub deacon. The bearers were Arthur Bibeau, Adolphus Benoit, Peter Burelle, Peter Brodeur, Xavier Breault and Joseph O. Dugas. Burial was in the family lot in Sacred Heart cemetery where Rev. Father DesSureault read the committal service. Undertaker George G. Grant was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church at Norwich Town, was the preacher at the Sunday morning service at the Taftville Congregational church. The anthem sung by the choir after the offertory was "Thy Way, Not Mine, O Lord." In the evening there was the regular meeting of the members of the Young People's society of Christian Endeavor in the church vestry, with Victor H. Davis as leader.

The members of the Taftville Skeet club conducted a shoot at their skeet course in Blissville Saturday afternoon, and there were a number of interested spectators to witness this fascinating sport. Although the course is laid out in regulation manner, a hit is more difficult to make on this course than on the average course, as the pigeon is thrown against a background of scrub-oaks and white birch making it more difficult to see than if it was thrown against the skyline as is the case on many courses.

SMITH DENIES SINCLAIR WAS HEAVY CONTRIBUTOR

Governor of New York Brands as "Demagogic Slander" Statements Made on the Floor of the Senate That Sinclair Had Contributed to His Campaign Fund—Statement Was Made in a Letter to Chairman Nye of the Senate Teapot Dome Committee.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 20—(AP)—Governor Smith tonight characterized as "demagogic slander" statements made on the floor of the United States senate yesterday that Harry F. Sinclair, prominent figure in the Teapot Dome oil scandal, had been a heavy contributor to the New York state democratic gubernatorial campaign in 1920.

In a letter to Chairman Gerald P. Nye of the Teapot Dome committee, Governor Smith declared that "a careful search of the official records made at my request today confirmed my recollection that Mr. Sinclair never contributed to my campaign fund either in 1920 or at any other time that I ever ran for office; in fact, I failed of election as governor in 1920 and Mr. Sinclair had been appointed to the racing commission months prior to that election, some four years before there was any thought of the oil scandal."

"I do not propose that either you or Senator Robinson of Indiana," the governor continued, "shall escape public humiliation for the infamous insinuations that you have made by your pretense of disclaiming desire to cast reflection on me or stating that your committee has no concern with the matter."

After the governor had written the letter, word was brought to him that Mr. Sinclair had contributed on one occasion to a democratic campaign fund in New York state. The contribution, made in 1918 to the New York county democratic committee, amounted to $1,000, records in the secretary of state's office disclosed.

The same records disclosed, however, that in 1922—the year that Nathan L. Miller opposed and was defeated by Governor Smith—Mr. Sinclair contributed $5,000 to the republican state committee. The payment was made, the records showed, to Anson C. Goodyear, treasurer of the state committee.

Careful examination by Secretary of State Robert Moses of contributions to the governor's personal campaign funds failed to disclose any mention of Mr. Sinclair's name. The examination continued up to a late hour tonight, and covered every available bit of data filed in the department of state and other offices.

The statements made before the senate, the governor asserted, were in the nature of "a republican counsel of desperation to escape in some measure the penalty for the disgraceful record of the republican party in connection with these scandals. No such red herring can be dragged across the trail."

Sinclair, in his resignation on February 5, 1925, told the governor that it would not be 'convenient" for him to continue in the office of racing commissioner, and gave no other reason, the governor disclosed today after a search through the files had brought his letter to light.

RIFT DEVELOPS BETWEEN SENATORS WALSH AND NYE

WASHINGTON, March 20—(AP)—A rift in the senate Teapot Dome committee between the youthful chairman, Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, and the silver-haired prosecutor, Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, appeared on the horizon today as the committee prepared to reopen its public hearings tomorow.

For some time there have been under surface indications of disagreements between the republican and the democratic senators and today the Montanan brought the matter into the open with a formal statement generally viewed as criticizing the course of the chairman in certain matters.

"It is singularly unfortunate," Senator Walsh said, "that publicity should have been given to some of the plans of the committee, or what individual members conceive to be its plans, and equally that there should be allowed to become public information affecting priceless reputations until it is confirmed upon inquiry to such an extent as to warrant the development of the facts through witnesses."

That sentence appeared at the end of a statement by the Montanan in which he stated that the committee would ignore demands made in the senate yesterday that Gov. Alfred E. Smith be called before the committee "for the plain and simple reason it has no ground to believe that he can shed any light upon the subject or its inquiry."

The precise reasons for Walsh's strictures on the chairman were not specified, but those closely following the investigation accepted them as referring especially to Nye's announcement yesterday that the committee would investigate the records of the Harding estate and the permitting of reports to leak out at Chicago which since have impelled both Associate Justice Frederick L. Siddons, of District of Columbia supreme court, and Chief Justice George E. Martin, of the District of Columbia court of appeals to issue statements.

While Walsh's statement was in preparation, the chairman amplified his previous statement about the Harding estate inquiry by saying that the investigation would be comprehensive enough to encompass the questions of whether the late president became the recipient of "any returns whatever from any of the interests involved in the Continental Trading company and these other oil deals."

The investigators had expected to interrogate Merritt Baldwin, of Meriden, Conn., tomorrow, but he will not appear until Friday. They have information that he was with Harry F. Sinclair in a confidential capacity from 1922 to 1924.

GOV. SMITH WILL NOT BE CALLED BEFORE COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, March 20—(AP)—A definite declaration that Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, a democratic presidential possibility, will not be called before the senate Teapot Dome committee was made late today by Senator Walsh, of Montana, a candidate for the democratic nomination.

BUT ONE MAN ON THE SUB S-4 LEFT A MESSAGE

BOSTON, March 20.—But one of the six men imprisoned in the torpedo room of the sunken submarine S-4 wrote a message during their last 74 red crayon on a small piece of cardthe vessel indicated today.

This message a brief one, was found in the clothing of Seaman George Pelnar, at the Chelsea Naval hospital, where the bodies of the last eight of the S-4's crew were taken following the removal last night. It was written in hours of life, a thorough inspection of board and read:

"My body to Pelnar, 5509 South 10th street, Omaha, Neb."

The address was that of Pelnar's mother, Mrs. Kate Meleziva, listed in official navy records as his next of kin.

The finding of the message was announced by Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, who came here today to inspect the S-4 in her drydock and to thank the officers and men of the salvage fleet for their successful efforts during their three months at Provincetown.

No record or note relating to the last hours which Lieut. Graham N. Fitch and his five comrades spent in the torpedo compartment has been found. The members of the naval board of investigation, however, have not yet given up all hope of finding one. They said that such a message might be on the deck of the compartment, which has not yet been cleaned of its coating of mud.

The remaining 160,000 shares of no par value would be issued thereafter as the board of directors determined.

NORTH DAKOTA DELEGATES FOR HOOVER AND SMITH

FARGO, N. D., March 20—(AP)—Thirteen votes for Frank O. Lowden in the republican national convention and ten for Governor Alfred E. Smith in the democratic were pledged by the North Dakota electorate in today's state wide presidential preference primary.

These two presidential possibilities were unopposed and their indorsement was a mere formality, incident to the selection of delegates to the two national conventions and naming of the presidential electors

HUSBAND HELD FOLLOWING THE DEATH OF HIS WIFE

MANCHESTER, Conn., March 20—(AP)—Joseph M. Jordan 49, of 422 Oakland street, Manchester, is held by the police, and his wife Susan Taylor Jordan, 38, is at a local undertaker's rooms awaiting the consent of her husband for an autopsy as the result of her death under mysterious circumstances today.

The Jordan home is located about 225 feet from the main highway on the outskirts of the town. About 4 o'clock this afternoon, Dr. George Lumburg received a telephone call that a woman was ill and to come at once. Arriving at the house he found Mrs. Jordan in the living room sprawled across two chairs and minus one shoe and stocking.

Medical Examiner Dr. Leverne Holmes, when called, declared the woman had been dead several hours.

After her removal her husband was arrested on the technical charge of drunkenness. He was unable, because of his condition to give a clear account of what had happened but claimed that although he and his wife had been drinking for the past few days she was sober when he left the house about 9 o'clock this morning. He also claimed that he had spent the day at the house of a neighbor.

YOUTHS STOLE MOTOR RAILROAD WORK CAR

MONTREAL, Que., March 20—(AP)—A regular movie thriller was enacted today by the Canadian Pacific railway police when they pursued, in a locomotive, and captured four youths who had stolen a motor-driven railroad work car.

Warned by a telegraph operator that four men on a motor car were speeding towards an oncoming train, disregarding all signals and semaphores, four officers requisitioned a locomotive and started in pursuit.

Twelve miles from Montreal, the youths abandoned the car and fled to the fields, where the officers followed with drawn pistols, imagining their quarry probably robbers. The car was removed from the track ten minutes before a freight train was due.

The young men said they took the car because they had no money to pay their fares to Ottawa, where they planned to seek work on farms. They ranged in age from 15 to 18 years. They were charged with theft and obstructing the right of way.

The fire, of undetermined origin, broke out at noon and the inmate fire department responded to the alarm. The convict firemen overcome by smoke were revived at the prison hospital.

After the Ossining fire department arrived the fire was quickly brought under control but continued to smoulder all afternoon in the large supplies of ticking, hair and felt.

The indictment was returned against Martin Luther Miller but a few hours after he confessed to the killing to police in Paterson, N. J., where he was arrested last night.

District Attorney Dodd of Brooklyn said copies of the indictment would be rushed to Governor Smith at Albany and Governor Moore at Trenton, N. J., to expedite extradition proceedings so that Miller may be returned to Brooklyn promptly and brought to trial. Dodd said he hoped to have the trial started within three weeks or a month.

HOUSE COMMITTEE HAS APPROVED EQUALIZATION FEE

WASHINGTON, March 20—(AP)—For the fourth time in five years the house agriculture committee today approved the equalization fee provision of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill. The vote was 13 to 1.

Preceding this action the committee adopted an amendment which, Chairman Haugen explained, the federal farm board had proposed to endeavor to stabilize the agricultural industry by means of loans to cooperatives. In the event that this should fail, it then would be empowered to place the equalization fee machinery in operation.

Heady.

Rockefeller, Schwab and Mellon to Appear

On Friday as Witnesses Before the Senate Coal Investigating Committee in Washington.

WASHINGTON, March 20—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Charles M. Schwab, R. B. Mellon and other outstanding investors in the bituminous industry will appear on Friday as witnesses before the senate coal investigating committee.

In executive session the committee decided to accede to the earlier request of Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, that industrial leaders be called. Chairman Watson explaining later that the call was issued for the purpose of "discussing the serious situation with them and getting their views of what might be done by the operators themselves to work it all out."

He added that Rockefeller and the others were being called principally in an effort to encourage operators to "put their house in order," in the belief that success in that direction might obviate any necessity for federal intervention.

While the committee was continuing its hearing, it developed that President Coolidge believes that the conference proposed by Governor Fisher of Pennsylvania to discuss the situation might prove to be too large to accomplish practical results. The conference would include operators, miners, interested states and the federal government, and while Mr. Coolidge feels that a smaller gathering might be less unwieldy, he has no thought of objecting to federal representation.

Should the Fisher proposal be carried out, Governor Fisher also has been asked to testify before the senate committee. But a date for his appearance has not been set.

In requesting that Rockefeller be called, Senator Wheeler referred to investments held by the oil magnate in the Consolidation Coal company of West Virginia. Schwab is chairman of the board for the Bethlehem Steel corporation, which mines coal in Pennsylvania. Mellon, a brother of Secretary Mellon, is a director of the Pittsburgh Coal company. Other directors of this company to be called are J. D. Lyons, A. K. Oliver and W. D. Reiss.

DR. GUILFOYLE TO BE TRIED BY THREE JUDGES

HARTFORD, March 20.—(AP)—The dapper, verse writing veterinarian, Dr. Harold N. Guilfoyle, pleaded not guilty to murdering Mrs. Clare Cavanaugh Gaudet, of New Haven in a Maple avenue apartment house last January, and elected to be tried by three judges, when arraigned before Judge Marvin in the superior court today.

Judge Marvin set the trial date for April 17, the date agreed on by the judge after a conference before court with State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn and the defense lawyers, John T. Robinson and Judge Samuel Rosenthan. Judge Marvin said he would communicate the selection to Chief Justice George W. Wheeler, to have the two other judges appointed to sit with him at the trial.

The law provides that the judgment of guilty or not guilty may be reached by a majority vote of the judges.

Soviet Delegate Was Rebuked by British

Lord Cushendun Said He Believed Soviet Delegates at Geneva Were Showing Scorn For the L. of N.

GENEVA, March 20—(AP)—The soviet disarmament plan which has been submitted by Maxim Litvinoff for consideration by the preparatory commission on disarmament came up today for a round rating by Lord Cushendun, who succeeded Viscount Cecil as Great Britain's representative at Geneva. The British delegate plainly declared that during all the efforts of the League of Nations for the past seven years, the Moscow government had reviled it, and in his opinion the soviet delegates were at Geneva to show their scorn for the league and do it all the damage they could.

Lord Cushendun at the outset, looking straight at M. Litvinoff, said he was going to be frank. He carried out his promise.

"The soviet delegation is not here to help the league solve the disarmament problem," said the British delegate, "and we have the right to ask what the real motive of the soviet is."

He then referred to M. Litvinoff's attack yesterday on the work of the league, when the soviet assistant commissar of foreign affairs asserted that the only material proposition the league had considered would allow some countries to keep 2,000,000 men under arms and had decried the league generally.

Before proceeding to dissect the soviet disarmament plan, Lord Cushendun declared: "The purpose of the league is to preserve peace. We must assume that that is the object of the soviet proposal. But what kind of peace? There are international wars and there are civil wars. We are justified in asking whether the soviet wants to put an end to the latter, as well as the former.

"We are justified in doubting it, because they solemnly announce their intention of fomenting rebellion in every country where they can exercise influence."

Cushendun quoted from the official soviet organ, which declared in a recent issue that the Russian delegation "was going to Geneva to snatch the mask from the face of capitalist countries." He remarked that that was not indicative of a spirit of co-operation. Nevertheless, every item of the soviet proposal, he added, ought to be carefully considered.

At this the soviet delegation became very attentive, only to discover that the consideration the speaker gave them was more than they expected. He proceeded to dissect with merciless precision the plan, paragraph by paragraph, to show that it was contrary in every way to the covenant of the League of Nations.

Replying to M. Litvinoff's reference to the futility of the league's efforts, he said: "M. Litvinoff seems never to have heard of Washington, where we agreed to reduce the tonnage of big warships; he has never heard of our offer to reduce tonnage further nor of our proposal to suppress submarines."

Other members of the league will speak on this subject tomorrow morning, after which M. Litvinoff will make his reply.

SPECULATION WORLD-WIDE IN THE N. Y. STOCK EXCHANGE

NE WYORK, March 20—(AP)—Leading Wall street commission houses report that speculation in stocks on the New York Stock exchange has reached world wide proportions. The wireless, cable and even the trans-Atlantic telephone have been used as mediums for transmitting orders while the air mail has been used extensively to make quick deliveries of securities from the Pacific coast and mid-western cities to New York.

In the case of a few stocks, particularly on the New York curb market, where transfer offices are maintained in Canada, special messengers have been sent to Montreal and Toronto to have securities transferred from one owner to another. Last week one house received a telephone call from Berlin to buy 3,000 shares of General Electric and the line was held open a couple of minutes until a confirmation of the sale could be given to the German customer.

MEN ON S-4 LIVED FOR CONSIDERABLE PERIOD

BOSTON, March 20—(AP)—Indications that 34 men imprisoned in the after compartments of the submarine S-4 lived for a considerable period after the vessel was rammed and sunk off Provincetown last December by the coast guard destroyer Paulding, and vainly attempted to communicate with the surface by rapping on the hull, were found today by a naval board of investigation.

At the same time the board satisfied itself as to the reason the crew of the undersea boat deserted the control room and were unable to raise their ship, despite the fact that only one compartment of the vessel was pierced in the collision. It was discovered that a ventilator pipe leading from the flooded battery room had burst above the switchboard in the control compartment, causing short circuits and making the place untenable.

RESOLUTION IN SENATE FOR MELLON RESIGNATION

Measure Introduced by Senator Couzens, Republican, Michigan, Declares It the Sense of the Senate That the Secretary of the Treasury Should Resign—At the Request of Its Author the Bill Went Over Under the Rules—Adoption of the Resolution Would Not Be Binding, as the President Alone May Call For the Resignation of Cabinet Members.

WASHINGTON, March 20—(AP)—Citing a long list of complaints against Secretary Mellon, a resolution under which the senate would go on record as favoring the resignation of the treasury head was introduced today by Senator Couzens, republican of Michigan.

Mr. Mellon's failure to reveal his knowledge of Harry F. Sinclair's contributions to the republican party's 1920 campaign deficit was given as the first of the reasons for the Michigan senator's opinion that he should not continue in office.

Couzens has opposed the treasury on tax matters during much of Mellon's seven years administration and the introduction of the resolution served not only to revive his personal feud but brought about a renewal of the spirit of 1924 when the senate asked the resignations of Secretary Denby of the navy and Attorney General Daugherty in connection with the inquiry into the naval oil reserve leases.

Without power to command the resignation of a cabinet officer, the senate at that time forwarded its appeals to President Coolidge who turned deaf ears although both Denby and Daugherty later resigned, the latter by request.

The resolution will be pressed for a vote within a day or two or as soon as the rules permit.

The reading of the long resolution which covered three typewritten pages was followed by a short exchange between Couzens and Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, intimate friend and associate of the secretary.

"I take it we may assume," the Pennsylvanian said, "that Mr. Mellon is otherwise all right."

"I won't admit that," Couzens retorted and the senate which had listened closely to the reading returned to business.

PARACHUTE JUMP FROM EIFFEL TOWER WAS FATAL

PARIS, March 20—(AP)—The Eiffel tower for the seventh time today proved the nemesis of parachut jumpers ed the nemesis of parachute jumpers from 400 feet altitude.

Gayet, a jeweler by trade and working in his spare time on inventions under the name "Botal" leaped from the second platform of the famous tower. Previous tests with sandbags had been successful but when he took the leap himself the parachute failed to open and he was killed.

Gayet was experimenting with a modified military parachute designed to open quickly for low flying planes. Although the test was unofficial a crowd of aviators, aviation engineers and army experts were present and it was before their horified gaze that he fell to death.

The experts who watched fatal test are seeking information as to whether the air currents shooting through the huge arches of the great tower were responsible for the tragedy as successful leaps from airplanes were made repeatedly from much lower altitudes.

"RED" MORAN FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER IN FIRST DEGREE

NEW YORK, March 20—(AP)—Thomas "Red" Moran tonight was found guilty by a jury for the second time of murder in the first degree for the shooting of two policemen because he feared arrest for a series of drug store robberies.

The jury returned its verdict in county court, Brooklyn, after deliberating a little more than two hours. County Judge Alonzo McLaughlin remanded Moran to the Raymond street jail for sentence March 26. The verdict automatically carries a death sentence.

A year ago last January Moran was sentenced to death after a jury had found him guilty of the murder of Patrolmen Edward Byrne and Frank Daskiewilz, who had stopped him for questioning in connection with a series of drug store robberies in Brooklyn. He was sent to the death house at Sing Sing prison, but the court of appeals reversed the conviction, ruling that the judge had failed to allow the jury to consider a verdict of second-degree murder.

ON MARCH 17 TREASURY HAD RECEIVED $215,550,008

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP)—Latest figures available concerning government revenue from the first quarter tax paymnets, which will have considerable bearing on prospects for tax reduction this year, show that on March 17 the treasury had received $215,550,008 that figure comparing with $197,690,398 for the same period of last year.

If the same proportion of gain should continue until the end of the month, the total income tax collections of the government for 1928 would be possibly $100,000,000 higher than estimates hitherto made. That this increase will continue, however, is hardly expected, because officials say that the increasing familiarity of income tax payers with the government's requirements and the increasing efficiency of collectors' offices in reporting receipts may account for the apparent advantage this March.

MAKING SOLO FLIGHT IN QUEST OF RECORDS

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 20—(AP)—On a solo flight in quest of several records—especially that for sustained flight—Gene Shank, 22 years old St. Paul aviator, was in the air tonight after taking off at 1.17 p. m., from the ice of White Bear lake.

Circling over the St. Paul airport, he set himself to the task in the hope of better the world mark of nearly 52 hours and incidentally breaking Colonel Lindbergh's solo flight record of more than 33 hours, made in his Atlantic hop.

Another mark aimed at by the pilot was the endurance flight for light planes of the type he is flying, now set at 12 hours and the refueling record of 37 hours. He will attempt refueling his plane while flying alone. In the other instances of refueling in the air two men have been aboard the refueled plane.

COL. LINDBERGH TOOK CONGRESSMEN ON FLIGHTS

WASHINGTON, March 20—(AP)—More than a score of members of congress went sight-seeing over Washington today in company with a disguished aerial taxi driver—Col. Chas. A. Lindbergh.

A portion of the ninety-odd senators and representatives who accepted Lindy's recent blanket invitation to fly with him went up with the trans-Atlantic ace in an army Fokker transport monoplane and a Douglas transport biplane. By groups they took off from Bolling field for twenty minute spins over the city.

In the passenger list were two of the four women members of the house, Representatives Rogers of Massachusetts and Langley of Kentucky.

The flights, Lindbergh's idea of the best way to give congress practical education in aviation, served also to create a setting for the presentation tomorrow of the congressional medal of honor to the flier at the hands of President Coolidge. Voted last December by congress as another tribute to the first man to fly from New York to Paris, the medal will be bestowed at the white house at noon. The ceremony will be simple, probably in the the president's office, and will follow the precedent set when a similar medal was given to Commander Richard E. Byrd for his aerial accomplishments.

The passengers, in addition to Mrs. Rogers and Mrs. Langley, included Senators Hale, republican, Maine and Bingham, republican, Connecticut; and Representatives Burdick, republican, Rhode Island; Stobbs, republican, Massachusetts; Connery, democrat, Massachusetts; and Hale, republican, New Hampshire.

DYNAMITE MAY HAVE CAUSED COLLAPSE OF DAM

LOS ANGELES, March 20—(AP)—Evidence that a dynamite explosion may have caused the collapse of the St. Francis dam and released the flood of liquid death on the Santa Clara river valley, today was in the hands of investigating authorities. While officials were not definitely convinced that the dam had been dynamited, so much credence was placed on the findings of deputy sheriffs assigned to the flood area that every reservoir and dam in entire Los Angeles water system tonight was under a heavy guard.

Among the discoveries which officials said tended to support the dynamiting theory was said to be the finding near the dam of a sheet of note paper with a roughly outlined chart of the structure and a short piece of newly frayed rope. The strand was asserted to be the same type as used by acquedact dynamiters who in the past have blasted sections of the water way. The chart was said to be written in the same handwriting that sketched charts found at the previous dynamittings.

WILL OPPOSE SEPARATE TRIAL OF SINCLAIR AND FALL

WASHINGTON, March 20—(AP)—A bitter legal battle over the government plans to hold separate trial for Harry F. Sinclair and Albert B. Fall, charged with defrauding the government in the Teapot Dome naval oil leases came into prospect tonight.

George P. Hoover, Sinclair's counsel, announced he would oppose severance of the cases and if separate trials were ordered because of Fall's illness, would demand postponement of the Sinclair case because Fall would be needed as a material witness for the oil man.

Fall's counsel, William E. Leavy, notifide Justice Jennings Bailey today that he would move on Thursday to delay the trial of Fall, set for April 2 on the grounds that his client was ill in El Paso, Tex., and unable to come to Washington. Special government counsel announced that physicians would be sent to examine Fall before Thursday and that if they reported he was able to come to Washington, would oppose the motion.

The prosecutors said that if Fall was unable to be here they would move to sever the cases and go ahead on April 2 with Sinclair's trial.

PROF. H. A. TIRRELL SPEAKER AT ROTARY CLUB MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, March 20—Principal Henry A. Tirrell of Norwich Free Academy delivered an interesting address on "Numbers" at the weekly meeting of the local Rotary club in the Nathan Hale hotel yesterday, being introduced to the assemblage by James B. Fullerton, chairman for the month. Professor Tirrell briefly demonstrated the development of the Arabic system of numerals over the Roman system and illustrated abbreviated steps of multiplication and division, as well as several time saving devices. The session was in charge of President Richard E. Dodge. Murphy, has been approved by the board of directors and will be submitted to the club in the near future for action. One important change proposed by the draft is in the sequence of the club year, the officers to assume their duties the first meeting in July. Drastic changes will be made also in committee appointments to conform with the changes made by Rotary International.

Yesterday's meeting formally marked the close of the Eastern Connecticut attendance contest which commenced the first of the year. There were three members absent. The new "white way" in Mansfield Center was lighted for the first time Monday evening. In the past the main street has been dark with the exception of a few lanterns in the vicinity of the Barrows & Clausen store. They entered into an agreement with the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company for the lights, sixteen in number, which have been placed at various locations from opposite the property of John Cole to the bridge on the Spring Hill road. The new lighting system is apparently giving general satisfaction.

An annual attraction in the musical line here for many years past has been the Old Folks' concert held at the Methodist Episcopal church and always held in the month of March. There having been no advance notices of the concert this month, an inquiry to Edwin F. Cross, who has directed the concerts in recent years, revealed the fact that there would be none this year and possibly not for some time unless one is staged during the centennial celebration of the church this September. For fifteen years Old Folks' concerts have been staged at the church but the attendance had fallen off so greatly in the past two years that it was decided not to hold one this year.

"PEEPING TOM" IS FINED BUT SENTENCE SUSPENDED

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 20—If Francis Burke, 22, of the West Side, lives up to an agreement he has entered into with officers of the Killingly town court, he is going to utterly refrain from further Peeping Tom activities for at least six months, and one can miss many an eyeful in that period of time.

This morning Burke was presented in the town court to answer to a breach of the peace charge. This accusation was filed against him following his arrest last night after he had been found peering into a window at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Halle on Cottage street. He was fined $5 and costs and given a sentence of 90 days in jail, execution of the sentence being suspended for a period of six months, during which time he will be on probation.

Late last night a member of the Halle household saw a young man more or less cautiously seeking a view of the interior of the room in which she was sitting while he crowded close to the outside of the window. Without undue hurry, and apparently without Burke becoming aware of the fact, a telephone call was sent out for Night Officer John Gebert. Getting into his car, Officer Gebert went down to the Halle house and there found Burke, who ran off at top speed, but not soon enough to prevent the officer recognizing him. Turning his car around Officer Gebert drove into Broad and down to Franklin street, figuring that Burke would head for his home by that roundabout route, and the idea proved a good one, for Burke came ambling along and was taken into custody by the officer.

Burke admitted his guilt and some other things pertaining to his previous activities along that line. He has been told that any further indulgence in peeping will be the means of landing him in jail.

Supt. W. E. Parker expressed his satisfaction this morning with the manner in which the health situation in Danielson's schools is clearing up. Daily examinations of the throats of the members of the high school and junior high school since Friday of last week have revealed nothing of special inportance. The one case of scarlet fever that developed at the school the past week appears to have been a sporadic one. Many weeks had elapsed since a case of this disease has been reported in Killingly, and there seems good reason now to be confident that no more will develop at the school in the immediate future. The decision to keep the school in session, that daily examinations of the throats of all attending might be undertaken, appears to have been well justified. Under this arrangement all can be kept under close observation and the development of any difficulty quickly detected.

A bit of good news today for borough property owners is the prospect of a reduced tax rate for 1928—the taxes that will be assessed this spring and collected next September. A preliminary forecast as the borough's financial year draws to a close indicates that the rate may be reduced from one to two mills from the rate of last year.

Warden Harry E. Back and the burgesses who are associated with him in administering the affairs of the borough have an especially pleasing annual report in prospect. In addition to meeting the ordinary obligations of the borough during the year they have managed to reduce the debt by $4,000, and have at this time a balance of about $2100 on hand, as against the ordinary debt reduction of $1500 a year and practically no cash balance remaining at the end of the previous financial year. This happy situation has been brought about through great prudence in expenditure of borough money and through a somewhat greater amount of revenue being received than had been anticipated.

The tax rate in 1927 was 9 mills. It was 10 mills in 1926 and 9 1-2 mills in 1925. It now appears possible that the rate for 1928 will be no higher than 8 mills, and it may be reduced to 7 or 7 1-2 mills.

One thing that is going to help the borough financially this year is the use of the town assessments on borough property instead of the borough assessments on such property, this new arrangement being brought about by a provision of the new borough charter, abolishing the borough assessors and using the town's assessments. It so happens that much borough property has been assessed at a higher figure by the town than the borough has placed on the same parcels of holdings. This is not true in every instance, but is in many. The higher assessments naturally mean an increase in revenue for the borough, and it will begin to realize on this arrangement this year.

Removal of trolley overhead work here this week again focuses attention on the gradual disappearance of the trolley road through territory hereabouts. One looks forward now to the removal of the ties and rails from Water street, at Cottage, southward to Fall Brook, where the road leaves the side of the state highway and runs on a private right of way, largely through the fields, into Wauregan. From time to time the Connecticut company, since suspending trolley service, has taken up a section of the track here and there—through Furnace and Cottage streets, for instance, as well as out of part of Main street. Another section was taken out when the concrete roadway was built northward from the borough line near Mocin avenue to Elmville. From Elmville to East Killingly the track also has been removed. It is regarded that this removal of track sections will gradually go on until no more trackage is left hereabouts, unless it be in the concrete roadway in main northward from Reynolds street, for getting these rails and ties out would be no easy task.

An interesting viewpoint is that of the selectmen of a town not a great distance from Killingly pertaining to the granting of what is known as "outside poor" aid, in a season of more or less unemployment and more or less wilful unemployment.

These selectmen have made a rule that they will authorize no aid from the particular town referred to for any family that has a radio. Why they should pick on the radio rather than on other luxuries is not explained. There have been numbers of cases of towns being asked for aid by families that have an automobile solely for pleasure purposes, but, of course, in these cases the applicants have been told to sell their cars. Making ownership of a radio a ban against receiving town aid is a new and novel idea.

On the subject of radios, there is the information today that WGY of Schenectady intends from time to time to rebroadcast programs from England, as was done Monday evening. These rebroadcasts, the information is, are to be put on the air for American listeners at such times as the reception from overseas is sufficiently good to warrant doing so. Today those who heard the broadcast from London last night were still thrilled by the experience, one almost uncanny, yet wonderfully enthralling.

POLICE RAID GAMBLING PLACE OF BEN KWARCIAH

PUTNAM, March 20—Captain Jarvis and Officer Sponcey of the Putnam police cleaned up one of the town's biggest gambling joints ever found to be in operation in Putnam Monday, when the officers went in and arrested Thomas Blake, William Auger, Publeden Cabana and Wallace Baker on a charge of gambling. They also arrested the owner of the place, who was Ben Kwarciah, proprietor of the Front street bowling alleys and pool room, and commonly known as "Lindy". Each of the defendants pleaded guilty to the charge. Judge Geissler fined the quartette of gamblers $5 and costs of $1 each. "Lindy" was forced to pay a fine of $40 and costs of $11.14.

Spring made her official debut yesterday at 3.45 p. m., but the effects of winter still gripped Putnam and snow flurries threatened to fall late in the afternoon. According to scientific men the sun was exactly over the equator Tuesday at 3.45, but that failed to take any effect in Putnam, but it sure did give many the feeling that spring is not far off and that they had better begin to practice for their annual spell of hay fever when the little lady starts to exercise the broom for the yearly spring crack, at house cleaning.

With the presidential conventions coming in a few months, and the local delegates already chosen to go to the state conventions to elect national delegates already chosen to go to the state convention to elect national delegates, French speaking people all over the country, that are members of the republican party are now banding together and organizing the French republican clubs to assist their nominee in his campaign. One of these clubs is to be organized in Killingly and although nothing has been mentioned about Putnam it is safe to say that such a club will see a place in Putnam soon.

It's hard to excuse Dishpan Hands

"Guests arriving—everything perfect except . . ."

"MY dinner table, set with all my best china for our dinner to Jim's new friends, had never looked prettier. But it made my poor hands look dreadfully coarse by comparison. They simply broadcasted 'Dishpan!'

"And because I know it's just such little things that others judge us by, I became self-conscious . . . ill at ease . . . at my own dinner table.

"Of course it was foolish of me. With Lux always in the house I was still using old-fashioned harsh soap for the dishes. Until that night I had not realized just how pitifully rough and red it made my hands look.

"Now I use Lux for all my dishes. And for cleaning, too! My hands no longer are reddened and coarse. I'm really PROUD now of my dinner-table hands."

Many household soaps—flakes, chips and cakes—are made in the old-fashioned way. They contain harmful alkali that makes the skin rough.

There is no injurious alkali in Lux. Made by a remarkable process, Lux actually SOOTHES the skin, leaves it a little whiter and softer than before.*

Instant, sparkling Lux suds, ready before you ever put your hands in, are so rich and CLEANSING that the dishes seem almost to wash themselves!

The big package of Lux washes six weeks' dishes! Lovely hands for so small a price!

*Many beauty parlors use Lux suds in manicuring the nails, to soften and whiten the fingers

Lux keeps lovely the hands that wash dishes

SAFETY FOR SUBMARINES

With the president recommending to congress that $200,000 be appropriated that the secretary of the navy be enabled to investigate and experiment with safety devices for submarines it can be regarded as a direct outcome of the loss of the S-4 off Provincetown.

Even though the regular naval bill had contemplated work of this character to a limited degree the loss of a second sub within two years emphasizes the need for obtaining and making available all practical safety devices. It will be remembered of course that submarines are warships and therefore limited in capacity for carrying all kinds of equipment, but it is also recognized that many of the underwater boats are never involved in actual warfare and it is desirable that they should be so equipped, if practical, that greater protection will be furnished for the officers and crews.

Following the sinking of the S-4 many ideas were advanced in this direction. The appropriation suggested would permit the trying out of such together with many others which are known by or have been submitted to the navy department. Naturally any such test for the purpose of demonstrating practicability and effectiveness will require outlays to obtain the equipment and time and money to give it thorough trials. This is the purpose of the president's request, the additional appropriation being in excess of what the regular bill calls for.

Now is of course the logical time for action of this character. We have witnessed the horror of the situation surrounding the loss of submarines where men are trapped like rats. Whatever can be done to overcome such conditions should not be delayed. Whether there is any real merit to the devices which have been suggested can be told by testing them. They are entitled to something more than snap judgment and there is no question but what the navy department and the administration are highly desirous of preventing any more losses like those on the S-4 if such a thing is possible. All the effort may not be devoted in one direction but a study of safety devices appears to be fully justified at this time.

INVESTIGATING COAL

What the congressional investigation of the bituminous coal situation is going to amount to rests with the future. The committee has gone into the coal regions of Pennsylvania and seen what the present day situation is without getting very far toward the facts as to the cause of it. It has seen evidences of hardship without apparently scratching the surface to see what it was all about and when it concludes its work it will probably have some recommendations to offer. What these will be no one knows, and whether congress will pay any more attention to them than it has to the recommendations of the coal commission is equally uncertain.

Without a doubt there are matters which the committee has looked into which belong to the states to correct. Whether it is giving as much thought to those problems which really belong to congress will be shown in time.

Governor Fisher of Pennsylvania doesn't think the investigation is going to amount to anything. He takes the view that the whole affair has too much of a political tinge and he hasn't much faith that whatever is done will be of any value in bringing about a settlement of the trouble.

The Pennsylvania governor thinks there should be a conference of the representatives of the operators and miners in all the states where bituminous coal is produced in which federal and state officials and members of congress would participate wherein there could be taken up the whole question, the problems which are federal in character as well as those that devolve upon the state to remedy. He thinks attention should be given to the freight rates as one of the bothersome matters affecting the different fields.

There may be others who feel the same as Governor Fisher does about the congressional committee's methods and the chances of accomplishing anything, but it is to be remembered that dealing with the coal problem has invariably been ducked by congress. Had it given the attention that was deserved and urged to the coal commission's report there would be a decidedly different situation today.

CABINET MEMBERS IN HOUSE

When a congressman wants to get attention or when he wants to cause delay there are ways in which it can be easily done. What must be regarded as chiefly a time wasting effort was that resorted to last week in the house of representatives when members of that body took exception to the presence of the secretary of the navy in the gallery during a discussion of the naval construction bill. It was said to be a display of bad taste on the part of the cabinet member, but it is believed that it will be generally regarded as a display of real interest by Secretary Wilbur in a matter in which he was directly concerned, and he was desirous of getting the view points of the house members first hand.

It is to be remembered, of course, that under the house rules cabinet members are permitted to be on the floor of that chamber. That being so there seems to be no ground whatever for the criticism over the presence of a cabinet member in the gallery. The criticism was quickly followed by a defense of the cabinet member's presence and attention was directed to the fact that it has been done on various occasions by cabinet members of both parties so that it represented no precedent.

At different times there has been an effort made for legislation that would permit cabinet members to be present and participate in discussions concerning matters relative to their particular departments, it being maintained that the legislative bodies should have the benefit of first hand information from them. The idea would be to have the department demands backed up by the facts presented by a responsible head who knows what he is talking about, and who could answer questions and straighten out misrepresentations.

The criticism appears to have been centered about the fact that the bill under discussion directly concerned his department, but if a cabinet member is interested in anything at all it is natural that he would be concerned about his own department and as long as his presence was restricted simply to listening there appears to have been little excuse for the criticism, and after it had been discussed that appears to have been the opinion of the house itself.

POORLY PROTECTED PEOPLE

Boston reports a fire in a four story apartment house where three persons lost their lives and seven were injured. While the investigations relative to the cause and the protection afforded for the residents have not been completed there is a controversy relative to the adequacy of fire exits. The claim is made that there were no outside fire escapes, but it is also stated that of the two interior stairways one was fireproof and in such a situation it is regarded as equivalent to an outside fire escape.

Such fires direct attention to the helplessness of humanity when it is shut off by the flames. Even though there was a fireproof stairway those on the top floor lost their lives because of the fire. Just why this was will be shown by the investigations but it is already evident that there cannot be too much care taken in safeguarding buildings against fire or in seeing that they are equipped for the escape of any who may be there when fire does develop.

If that was a case where an outside escape would have permitted those three to escape or would have facilitated those who were ready to rescue them, it is evident that the occupants of those apartments were not adequately protected.

By just such cases is there pointed out the great hazard from fire and the need of anticipating such dangers by fire prevention efforts and life saving measures. It is unfortunate that inspection of such buildings does not result in the application of the remedy before those who are endangered are forced to give up their lives. What has happened in Boston is evidently a repetition of the old story of negligence.

CURBING OPIUM

There is no escaping the fact that the unrestricted use of opium is a menace to humanity. Legislation has been provided looking to the curbing of its use and international conferences have been held from which it had been hoped that greater restrictive efforts would result. In each instance there has been recognition of the need of placing a check upon the illicit trade in narcotics. It is conceded that there is a serious menace but there is difficulty in getting concerted action. Countries which place much dependence upon the opium business are reluctant to combat it and until there can be a curb on production efforts to stop the traffic must be more or less handicapped.

C. K. Crane, author of International Drug Control, fully understands the difficulties which have been faced up to now and the ability to make much headway in international conferences, but he is not discouraged. He insists the conference ideas should be continued with representatives sent thereto who are determind to reach an agreement.

The advocacy of the plan of curtailing production so that only such as is required for medical and scientific purposes should be manufactured was urged at the last narcotic conference at Geneva. This would give recognition to opium for legitimate purposes but would deny it for the illegal trade and thus overcome that great demoralizer of humanity. There is none so certain of early success as to point to the date when it can be accomplished, but it is certainly a goal toward which every effort should be bent. The sooner it can be reached the better.

Welcome, spring!

Some drivers find out too late that it isn't possible to wait until reaching the first rail before thinking about the danger at a railroad crossing.

The man on the corner says: Winter may not have exhausted all its energy but no further demonstrations are demanded.

The approach of spring never was heralded without more or less thought being aroused concerning the clean-up campaigns.

Now that it is claimed that Washington has 3,000 bootleggers, do they list them as modern conveniences or menaces to humanity?

It is reported that 21,000 swine were imported into Connecticut in February. Is there a chance for the farmers of Connecticut to serve a larger part of their own market?

When the hydraulic engineer having charge of the building of the Muscle Shoals plant says that hydroelectric power can be generated cheaper by private capital rather than government operation most people will not be surprised.

THE WORLD AT FOURTEEN

"Yes, we're back!" agreed Ernestine from across the street with all the verve of her fourteen healthy years. "Oh, yes, we had a nice trip—only if anybody ever says scenery to me again I am just going to die on the spot! Older people are so funny! Of course, being shut up there in the car with mother and dad for three solid weeks I naturally noticed a lot of things about them that hadn't occurred to me before, and I must say I never thought a grownup man like my dad would be so foolish!

"About every five minutes up there in the Adirondacks he would interrupt whatever I was saying to cry out to mother, 'Oh, Emma, look! Isn't that great!' when it would only be another old canyon or mountain top just like sixteen others we'd seen in the course of the morning!

"I was perfectly willing to go with them on their old trip because I think we should agree with our parents whenever it is possible, but I was simply dying to get back home and find out if Rose-Marion really did get the pearl ring she had wanted for her birthday. When your mind is on something important like that you can't be expected to relish scenery much!

"And mother was an utter surprise to me. Not only did she act as though she enjoyed looking through the car windows as much as dad, but she even took the trouble to find views herself and call his attention to them, and I must say I think it is unnecessary to human a man that much!

"Oh, yes, there were parts of the trip I enjoyed, of course! There were two just perfect evenings. One was when we stopped at the Flossbilt hotel and the other was on the boat from Detroit to Buffalo, and both times the dining rooms were just marvelous with colored waiters and everything, and pineapple ice served with the roast.

"One reason why I enjoyed getting away from home and among people who didn't know me was that nobody knew how old I am. Really, I might be 16 or 17 if I keep my chin held up and don't chatter, girls all having short hair these days no matter how old or young they are! I am just positive I look as old as Cyrene in the junior class at school, because once coming through a hotel lobby out to the car a young man looked and looked at me—of course I pretended not to see him.

"It is amazing how utterly brutal a grownup person can be even if it is your own mother whom you naturally would expect to have some consideration for you. But I found grownups are usually quite lacking in tact, have you ever noticed it? When we were at a cousin's they introduced me to a young man next door, a regular grownup introduction, and I'm telling you he was absolutely marvelous! Sort of stern and dark and handsome—oh, he was nearly 18! Of course he took me to be a young lady because I sort of smiled carelessly as though I was not impressed and just looked sort of interesting and didn't talk much.

"And I got away with it because what do you think? He came over the next day and asked me to go to a sort of fair with community dancing that evening, and my heart stood still expecting mother to sit on him in the nice, dreadfully final way she has, but I declare she sort of laughed and said it would be very nice and that I might go.

"It was awfully exciting because it was the very first time, actually, I had ever been out with a young man! Can you imagine? And I was bound he'd never know it from anything I said or did. I stole some rouge and slid out on the other side of him so the family couldn't see me plainly—and he called me Miss Adams just as naturally—and then mother came to the door and what do you suppose she called after us? Everything all set for an utterly grand evening and then says she, 'Oh, Henry! Ernestine must be home by 10 o'clock without fail—you know she's just a little girl yet, only 14.'

"I thought I'd sink right through that old Pennsylvania slab of a stone doorstep, and to my dying day I won't forget the scorching waves of horror that wore actual groves in my brain! But, what can you do when your family is so absolutely hectic and impossible?—Chicago News.

Stories That Recall Others

"Oh, Henry!"

It was in Mary's first week as a stenographer that her most embarrassing moment came. Imitating the older girls in the office, she had arrived at the point where she called for the salesmen by their first names when their wives and sweethearts wanted them on the telephone.

Mary lifted the receiver one day to hear a sweet feminine voice ask for "Henry." Obligingly she turned and called loudly:

"Oh; Henry!"

And the "big boss" came to the phone to talk to his wife.

Colder and Stiffer

A man whose wife is a capable back seat driver accompanied her husband on a long trip. The weather turned severely cold and the husband was speeding for home and warmth. His wife implored him not to go so fast. "I'm cold and stiff. I want to get home," said the husband. "You'll probably get colder and stiffer if you don't slow down," was the reply.

Fellowship of Prayer

DAILY LENTEN DEVOTION

"The Patient Spirit"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "Let patience have her perfect work" (James 1:4).

Read James 5:7-12.

MEDITATION: In the passage for today James uses the word patience five times. He presses the virtue home. Shackleton named the most difficult point which he reached in the Antarctic "Cape Patience," because, he said, patience was always the hardest virtue for him to acquire. The haste, restlessness and nervousness of our time tend to make us lose poise. Often it is home and children who suffer most. Our religion should help in the cultivation of this sorely-needed quality of patience. The God we worship is a patient God. Patience is a sign of intelligent understanding and of faith in the working out of God's processes.

PRAYER: Lord, help us to be exacting with ourselves and patient and considerate with others, showing to them that attitude which we covet for ourselves. Give us the grace of a humble and teachable spirit and the faith that waits on Thee for the working of Thy laws and the coming of the harvest. In Jesus' name. Amen.

YOUR HEALTH

THE SAFETIES OF SURGERY

By Samuel D. Shull, M. D., Chambersburg, Pa., Member of Gorgas Memorial.

These are the days of specialization in medicine, so different from days gone by; when the family doctor was called he made the diagnosis and treated the ailment according to his own methods.

Now, when one is ill, the specialist is often called in consultation whether it be medical or surgical disease. I believe this is the proper procedure.

The surgical specialists of today have brought surgery to a place of safety. With all the laboratory tests and modern means of aiding in diagnosis the patient, when taken to the hospital for operation, is confident of being helped. He wants an X-ray of his gall bladder or kidney to determine whether stones may or may not be seen. He may suggest a blood count to learn whether his blood has enough red cells or white cells or perhaps too many cells. He knows that, to tolerate the operation he is anticipating, his blood must be in good condition.

The people of today know that all these tests and means of diagnosis and cure are in the hands of the surgeon and they want them. They go to the hospital now with much less persuasion than they did a few years ago, because the modern hospital has attained a high standard in almost all communities, and each year this standard arises higher and higher. The staff members want to give the best service, and to do this they must apply all the means of safety.

Those afflicted with surgical diseases should not hesitate to inform their physician early. If a rupture is taken in time we would have no strangulated hernia. It can be permanently cured by operation. If a small lump in the breast is reported to the physician early, we would not have women dying of cancer of the breast; not only a lump in the breast but a lump that seems to get larger and at times sore in other parts of the body should be reported at once. A pain in the abdomen often thought to be colic may be a beginning of appendicitis. If all the cases of appendicitis were operated upon the first or second day, our casualty list following operations for appendicitis would be almost nil.

Thus the safeties of surgery, after considering all that science has given us so far in aiding diagnosis and helping to bring about relief and cure, in a great measure rest with the individuals themselves.

Have your doctor give you a thorough examination occasionally. The much talked of periodic health examination these days is one way of checking up on your health. You will feel better for having done it.

CHILD TRAINING

OBEDIENCE

Eunice Winn Smith

In this age, when thoughtful people are alarmed over the lawlessness of youth, parents ought to face their responsibility, and lay a foundation for obedience to law. This should be done while the children are most responsive.

Little children love the voices of their parents, from whom they receive love and kindness and to whom they turn for the supply of their every need. They are naturally quick to come at their parents' call and to do their bidding. They love approving smiles and words. It is very important that parents retain this quickness of response and willingness to obey. Of course, commands should always be kindly, and there should not be so many that there is not time to see that they are obeyed. Fathers and mothers should require that their very little children obey without question. The child of six months to two years or even three is scarcely able to reason why he should or should not obey. No thinking parent would permit his child to go out-of-doors in zero weather without being properly dressed, no matter how much the child cried or begged to do so. The same wisdom should govern all commands and permissions given by parents. The young child is incapable of deciding the best things for himself, so he should be taught the habit of unquestioning obedience during these early years. This habit becomes the foundation for obedience to school laws, to community laws and to state and national law.

As children get old enough to understand, the reasons for commands and for requiring obedience to them should be pointed out. This will help the children to appreciate their parents' thought for them. Then, as soon as the child is able to rely somewhat upon himself, the wise parents will give him opportunities to make decisions, and accept the responsibility for his acts. This change from reliance on parents and their judgment to reliance upon himself must be made very gradually. However, the sooner control by parents can be changed to self-control by the child, the better it will be for the child. The child should be given more and wider opportunities for self-control as he grows in ability to think and reason. The wise parent, keeping in the background, will make the child feel his freedom to choose while at the same time giving him assurances that he has a friend who will help him if he makes a mistake.

As children grow older, unless parental control has gradually grown into self-control, there is certain to be trouble in the home. When they can think for themselves and sense their physical ability to do things, they can not be forced to obey without disastrous results. The child who is capable of thinking and acting for himself and is forced to obey against his will, is apt to become a rebel, disobedient, at every opportunity, to parents, to school authorities and to the law of the country. On the other hand, the child who has a yielding disposition and is forced to obey is harmed in another way: his will grows weaker and weaker, and he becomes a man dependent upon others for his decisions.

The happy solution then seems to be: to require unquestioning obedience from the very young child, establishing a habit and attitude of respect for and obedience to authority; to explain purposes for commands and for requiring obedience to them as fast as reason and understanding are developed; to change parental control to self-control, gradually, as the child becomes capable of assuming responsibility for his conduct, wisely assisting, guiding and supporting him in constantly lessening degree. The result will be a responsible, self-controlled, law-abiding schoolboy, college man and citizen.

Little Talks on Thrift

READY MONEY.

Many persons have missed their greatest opportunities in life simply because they have not been able to command a small amount of ready money, while others owe their advancement to the fact that when a golden opportunity was presented to them, they were able, financially, to take advantage of it.

In the saving of money we often are doing ourselves a greater service—making a more substantial provision for our future progress—than we realize. If we read the lives of those who have become leaders in the business world, we find that almost without exception the turning point in their careers came when they were able to take advantage of some great opportunity because they had the money at hand. In most cases, the sum of money thus involved was small, but coupled with vision, ambition, clean living and self-mastery, those men were able to turn their nest-eggs into colossal fortunes.

"Opportunities are more powerful than conquerors and phophets," wrote an old philosopher, and he might have added that most opportunities come as the result of thrift.

Disraeli said, "The greatest secret of success in life is to be ready when your opportunity comes."

To those who are drifting along from day to day withour getting ahead and apparently are making no effort to do so, this advice should come with special force.

Opportunities for self-advancement often come to those who, because of their thrifty habits, have gained the confidence of some person who is in a position greatly to advance their interests.

Thrift and opportunity are always on friendly terms.—American Society of Thrift.

WOMAN'S CITY CLUB NAMES NOMINATING COMMITTEE

The monthly programme meeting of the Woman's City club on Tuesday evening at the club rooms in the Wauregan hotel began with the regular business session, Miss Marion Lee Bishop presiding. Mrs. Geraldine Burnett, assistant secretary, read the minutes of the February meeting, and the statement of the treasurer. Mrs. Albert S. Comstock, was read and accepted by the club.

Mrs. Charles B Gilbert, commenting on the interesting programme of the civics department, said that at present several things are in the making. An important round table on the timely subject, Revaluation of Property, was recently held in cooperation with the chamber of commerce. On Wednesday evening of this week Mr Robynson of the local farm bureau office will speak on "Color and Its Application in the Home." Mrs. Frederick W. Cary in her report of guest night brought again to the attention of club members that most pleasant occasion.

At the close of these various reports Miss Bishop stressed some matters of importance. Preliminary to the coming annual meeting ni May the following nominating committee was approved by the club: Mrs. Charles T. Bard, chairman, Mrs. Charles H. Ricketts, Mrs. Charles B Gilbert, Mrs. James J Dutton, Mrs. Charles McGregory, the first three being named by the president, the two latter by the club at large.

Miss Bishop urged that each and every member study her by-laws with the idea of revision at the May meeting. The membership was requested to send of Mrs. Witter K. Tingley, parliamentarian, during the next month such changes as they thought should come under consideration.

Looking ahead to another year, Miss Bishop expressed the hope that there might be at least three business meetings included in the program, thus allowing time for the fuller discussion of club policies by the entire body of members. She also emphasized the fact that the membership card admits each member to every activity of the club, except current events and choral class, which are available only by extra expenditure. One announcement was read to the effect that the child study group is meeting on Monday evening, the subject being Adolescence.

BABSON SURVEY ON NORWICH POINTS OUT CONDITIONS RETARDING GROWTH

The report on the economic and industrial survey of Norwich made for the chamber of commerce by the Babson Statistical organization of Wellesley Hills, Mass., through its representative John H. Alden, has just been received here and came up for consideration before a meeting of the directors of the chamber on Tuesday afternoon. The report is a volume containing 64 pages or more and therefore too long for newspaper publication in one issue. The report will accordingly be published by The Bulletin in instalments, the first of which is given herewith, covering two topics in the report, viz: Economic Facts About Norwich and Conditions That Have Retarded Growth.

In September of last year the industrial survey committee of the chamber of commerce recommended to the directors that an economic or industrial survey be undertaken in Norwich and that a suitable sum be included in the current year's budget to assure the completion of this project. Accordingly in the campaign conducted last October by the chamber of commerce the citizens of Norwich generously responded and the sum of $1,000 was subscribed for this purpose. The survey was started by the Babson organization on Dec. 16 and was completed last week.

The following is the first instalment of the report:

Recommendations

This portion of the survey forms Part 4 containing our criticisms and recommendations.

You undoubtedly realize that a study of the kind here reported can be only a preliminary step toward the hoped-for expansion of a city's business. In order to obtain satisfactory results, recommendations resulting from a study of the facts must be vigorously pushed by the business men of the city. All that can be accomplished by those who make the survey itself is to point out the direction in which sound progress can be best attained.

We urge the directors to consider carefully the recommendations contained herein and to push them as a live working program. This program must be attacked without fear of jealousy and in a whole-hearted manner.

Economic Facts About Norwich

The basic facts regarding economic conditions in Norwich are given in detail under suitable headings in Part 2 of this report.

Briefly our study shows that Norwich possesses the following economic advantages and disadvantages.

1. Natural Resources. There are none of any industrial importance.

2. Markets for local products. Existing concerns in Norwich have found it practicable and profitable to distribute their product nationally either direct or through New York jobbing and commission houses.

Practically none of the larger concerns cater to any extent to the local community market, due primarily to the semi-manufactured nature of their product.

The population density of New London county—160 per sq. mile—is too thin to furnish substantial support and growth to concerns of any size making strictly consumers' goods. The great New York market, however, is open to such concerns on a favorable freight-rate basis. Direct delivery is also practicable to many New England cities.

3. Transportation Facilities. The city is on the lines of the New York, New Haven & Hartford R. R and Central Vermont R. R.; has direct and cheap boat freight to New York; is on good automobile roads to all parts of New England. The Central Vermont gives a direct route to Canadian points via Canadian Pacific R. R.

4. Power, Fuel and Water Facilities Plenty of power at reasonable rates, a good water supply, and facilities to obtain fuel cheaply.

5. Labor Conditions. Plenty of cheap common labor, mostly of the kind used by textile mills, a fair amount of skilled textile labor and a limited amount of skilled metal-working labor. On the whole the place lacks a skilled labor market. Labor troubles generally at a minimum.

6. Housing and Living Conditions. A shortage of suitable dwelling houses and a rather high rent scale. Otherwise the cost of living is low compared with many other cities in New England.

7. Real Estate and Factory Sites. A limited amount of factory sites with facilities for spur tracks. Practically no sites along the New Haven R. R within the limits of the city. A limited amount of vacant business buildings. Lists of these are in the appendix.

8 Banking Facilities. Banking facilities are entirely adequate.

9. Local Taxes and Insurance. Tax situation very bad. Total valuations too low, assessments disproportionate; tax rate too high. Fire underwriters rate the city as Class B.

10. Community Development. The streets are well paved and lighted; traffic is ably handled; fire department excellently managed but lacks equipment; crime relatively low; trolley or bus service to all important points; school system ranks high in Connecticut; poor hotel facilities; many churches of various denominations; many clubs; good Y. M. C. A.; excellent hospital; excellent public parks and playground; two good newspapers.

Our study, therefore, shows that Norwich is favorably located as regards freight transportation, notwithstanding it is off the main lines of travel between other large cities, and that boat connection with N. Y. city is a distinct asset. Moreover, from an industrial standpoint it is favored with a plentiful water supply, adequate power at competitive rates, and plenty of cheap common labor. On the other hand, Norwich lacks a skilled labor market, is short of houses at reasonable rent, and offers only a limited choice of factory locations. It possesses no outstanding advantages of location over a number of other cities. Moreover, it is not in the midst of a rich mineral or timber region. Nor is it at the junction of any great natural highway. It has no monopoly. Its economic future is strictly competitive.

Conditions That Have Retarded Growth

Chart "A" shows how growth in the population of both the city and town of Norwich compares with that of the cities of New London, Willimantic, New Britain, and with the state of Connecticut as a whole. The rate of growth in Norwich has been considerably slower than in any of these cities with the exception of Willimantic. The conditions in Norwich that have slackened the growth of the place are apparently as follows: (1) the general depression over a period of years in the woolen goods, cotton goods and firearms industries; (2) lack of a skilled labor market, limited choice of factory sites on railroads, limited housing facilities at reasonable rents; (3) a tax situation unfavorable to industry; (4) too much evidence of inefficiency in the organization and work of city government.

Depression in Leading Industries

One outstanding reason for the lack of growth in Norwich is that the city has depended rather heavily for its general welfare and expansion prospects on prosperity and growth in the woolen and cotton goods industries. Of the seventeen largest manufacturing companies in and around Norwich, nine are engaged in the cotton goods and woolen goods industries and a number of the smaller companies are likewise engaged or in more-or-less dependent and related lines. Both of these lines have been in a general depression for a number of years. When any industry suffers a general depression, the activities of all concerns in it are as a rule curtailed rather than expanded. Certainly there has been no incentive for new companies to enter these industries.

The two local plants manufacturing firearms and employing between them about 200 people have also been affected adversely ever since 1919, by a declining trend in the domestic market for their product. One of these was established in 1893, the other moved here in 1922. The latter was reorganized in 1927. It is true that these two plants, as well as the textile plants mentioned in the foregoing paragraph, have been affected by the conditions in their industry in a degree dependent on the abilities of their managements and the state of their finances. Nevertheless, in these lines there is much evidence to show that admittedly good managements with plenty of money have been in difficulties along with others not so fortunately equipped.

Some of the other manufacturers in and around Norwich, representing a diversified list of industries have had to struggle with severe readjustments in the prices of their basic raw materials, but have not nevertheless had such widespread fundamental factors operating against them as have the textile and firearms industries. The fortunes of these industries have been more directly influenced by the capability of their respective managements and the state of their finances.

Lack of Skilled Labor Market

Concerns employing skilled machinists and other metal workers looking toward Norwich as a possible location are now immediately impressed with the lack of local market for this class of labor. Cities like New Britain, Waterbury, and Hartford have a big advantage in this respect. The firearms, cutlery, and a few other lines are now the chief employers of skilled machinists. New concerns of any importance starting up in Norwich would probably have to bring in the necessary skilled labor.

Housing Scarcity

Closely allied with the matter of bringing additional labor to Norwich is the question of suitable housing for them. At present it would be difficult if not impossible to find satisfactory quarters at reasonable rents.

Factory Locations Limited

The limited amount of factory locations along the railroads is another factor that might grow troublesome later on, but presumably it has not been a retarding factor heretofore and there is still some choice.

Bad Tax Situation

Our study of conditions in Norwich had not gone far before we were impressed with the seriousness of the unequal state of taxation. It was obvious that not only was there widespread dissatisfaction among the business men and citizens, but outsiders looking at the city as a possible location for a new business were distrustful of a place where such conditions were permitted to continue.

During the past year valuations have been placed largely by guesswork on the various kinds of taxable property without regard to an equitable distribution of the city's tax burden. Valuations as made lack uniformity and justice. They are disproportionate. The present grand list of property values is also on too low a level. A high tax rate has been necessary in order to obtain sufficient revenue.

Proposals for revaluing Norwich property on a broad and impartial basis have been considered in the past, but the conflict of interest that developed between various classes of the taxpayers broke down the whole proposition. As the matter stood at the time of our study, the injustices of this long period of unequal appraising were apparently no nearer correction than they were when the last committee was holding its meeting in 1925.

Norwich is standing in a false light before the business world by reason of the small amount of total taxable property reported by it. One of the commonest methods used to compare the growth of cities is to show how the per capita assessed value of each city is changing from year to year. A city that makes a practice of understating the value of its property shows up as a less active and progressive place than one where values are fairly reported.

Another point in this connection is that Norwich has the second highest tax rate in Connecticut. Its low basis of valuation is not known to many outside business men who are surprised at this high rate. Their natural conclusion is that taxes in Norwich must be very high.

Again, an equitable and uniform basis of valuation enables bankers to do business with the citizens of a community on a much sounder basis than is otherwise possible. It is of distinct value, moreover, for a city to maintain a favorable credit rating. As conditions are now in Norwich such is not the case. If property were valued on an equitable basis and all taxable property included, the city might be able to pay its way without borrowing and have a high credit rating in case of real need.

A certain amount of suspicion is directed toward any community which allows bad conditions to exist in such an important matter as this, as it naturally brings up the thought that there may be other matters which are also being neglected. Norwich, as brought out heretofore, must compete for its future growth. It can hardly afford to allow anything to exist within its borders which can so easily be considered unfavorable.

City Charter Deficient

The type of city government and the degree of smoothness and efficiency exhibited by the various departments are factors of importance to industry. The point is made here for emphasis, because the present city charter is notably deficient. It lacks provisions enabling the efficient management of the city. Numerous amendments added since the original charter was granted in 1877 have lead to endless confusion in establishing responsibility in the various departmental activities. The work of the different departments of the city is apparently not properly coordinated. Moreover, considerable duplication results now due to the fact that the terms of mayor and council begin two months after the new fiscal years starts.

Harmful Civic Conditions

A number of other hurtful conditions mostly under the supervision of the city government, require mention here. The city lacks suitable construction codes. Norwich is far behind not only all Connecticut cities but also many other communities throughout the country in adopting an up-to-date building code. Also, the lack of a plumbing code subjects the citizens to disease arising from unsanitary conditions in the home and office and other places. It is a disgrace to Norwich to lack so many of the modern provisions against disease. Furthermore, the lack of a suitable wiring code is leading to many abuses on the part of unscrupulous houses and is putting a double handicap on those concerns which are attempting to use only high grade methods and materials.

Our recommendations further along in this report cover certain other miscellaneous matters which should be attended to in order to clear the road for an effective bid for new industries. These have to do with the prevention of fire loss, the work of the board of health, and the police department, the collection of taxes, and the purchase of materials and equipment for city use. These are all, of course, essentially minor to the general proposition of formulating a plan for the future growth of Norwich, but they are nevertheless important. They help to measure the general conduct of Norwich's city government in the eyes of outsiders. These latter in considering the city are likely to be more influenced by things they find wrong than by things that are right, for they stand out more prominently. The responsibility for these conditions apparently does not rest upon any particular individual. They are the result of disorganized administration and controversy over a number of years.

The above factors are largely responsible for Norwich's lack of expansion. Such of these conditions as are under the control of the citizens of Norwich must be corrected before the community can present a strong appeal to industry. In the following pages we give our recommendations as to what matters the chamber should busy itself with in order to appeal to new industry on as strong a competitive basis as possible.

WOMEN'S CLUB CHORUS GIVES EXCELLENT CONCERT

The Women's club chorus of Norwich made its first appearance in a concert programme Tuesday evening in the Wauregan hotel ballroom before a good sized audience that was delighted with the work of the chorus under the direction of J. Lawrence Erb, conductor. The singers showed the careful and painstaking training which has been given them by Dr Erb, the ensemble work was in admirable balance, perfect in phrasing and of tonal beauty throughout.

In the Negro spiritual, Deep River, a solo passage for altos was rendered with a great deal of finish. The Old Scotch number, Loch Lomond, was sung unaccompanied and was one of the triumphs of evening, calling for an encoore for which Nevin's Serenade was given, and as a final encore on the programme Dr. Erb's Serenade was repeated.

The soloist of the evening was Miss Gladys V. Pettigrew of New London, who displayed a lyric soprano of great beauty and clarity that made her selections among the gems of the evening and for an encore she gave Woodman's Pussywillow Had a Secret.

The programme opened with the club song by the chorus and was continued as follows:

Wagner: Spinning chorus from "The Flying Dutchman." Brahms: Around the Gipsy Fire (Art. by Paul Ambrose) the chorus.

Haydn: My Mother bids me bind my Hair. Handel: are Selve (Come, Beloved) from Atalanta, Miss Pettigrew.

Speaks: Morning. Schumann: Gipsy-Life, the chorus.

Nevin: Serenade (Arr. by Harris). Old Scotch: Loch Lomond (Arr. by Lynes), the chorus.

Stickles: Song of Spring. Curran: Nocturne, Miss Pettigrew.

Brahe: I passed by your Window (Arr. by Lucas) Erb: Serenade Negro Spiritual: Deep River (Arr. by Harris), the chorus.

The successful organization of the club reflects the indefatigable work of Miss Margarete Suck in enthusing the membership towards its support and maintaining the interest during the rehearsal season.

The following are the members of the chorus:

First sopranos: Mrs. A. Bailey, Mrs. Wm. Bailey, Mrs. D. Bailey, Mrs. C. T. Bard, Mrs. W. Buckingham, Miss E. Broadhurst, Mrs. A. E. Carpenter, Mrs. D. Disco, Miss V. Disco, Mrs. H. Gray, Miss M. "KING OF HOBOES" REGISTERS IN CITY

Joseph Leon Lazarowitz, who styles himself the King of Hoboes, arrived in this city Tuesday night, having just come from Worcester, getting a ride all the way by automobile. Making a call at The Bulletin office during the evening, he stated that he is on his way to Washington, where he intends to call on President Coolidge and plans to sail for England after the Hebrew passover. He has been eight years on the road and in that time has traveled 310,762 miles, has never been arrested, has never worked, never paid his way and never been broke because he carries an American cent and a Canadian copper.

Upon arrival here he looked up Rabbi Max Stamm, received his autograph, was given $1.50 as a donation and collected it at Cramer's dry good store. He stopped at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stein of High street as a guest of the local Jewish community.

He showed a book with numerous newspaper clippings showing his travels in Wisconsin, Minnesota, Canada and Massachusetts on his present tour

Lesson No. 5

Question: Why should school children receive emulsified cod-liver oil?

Answer: Because the strain of the study-period and playground uses up energy, and emulsified cod-liver oil not only provides energy but also protects with its vitamins.

IONIC CAMP HOLDS ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

Ionic Camp, No. 7694, Modern Woodmen of the World, observed its 28th anniversary Tuesday evening, by holding a smoker and entertainment at Steiner hall. A hundred or more members of Ionic camp and visiting members joined in the evening's pleasure. The programme opened with the singing of America in which all joined. Albert Turner then entertained with a vocal solo, after which there was a stirring address by State Deputy Joseph Hughes of Hartford. The drill team of Cohegan camp, No. 9266, of Montville gave an exhibition drill which was executed in splendid form. There were amusing sketches by Frank T. Maples, the well known local humorist, songs by Fred Powers, a piano solo by Frank Leete of the Westerly camp, a piano solo by Walter Brock of the Montville camp, and an interesting talk by John Lynch, also of the Montville camp. Prof. William J. Banfield gave a mystifying magical exhibition.

A feature of the evening was a card of three lively boxing bouts by Paul Brush and Tom Berry, Ned Kennerson and John Muckenstrom, Vic Darr and Mush Moriarty. They went three two-minute rounds. Tony Bruso was the referee and Albert Turner was the timekeeper.

Refreshments of coffee, doughnuts, cheese and cigars were served at the close of the programme. The committee in charge comprised William Shaw, chairman, George Shefer, William Banfield, John Fitzgerald and Albert Turner. It was a delightful evening for the camp members and the committee is to be complimented on the splendid programme.

ANNUAL SPRING OPENING OF STORES TOMORROW NIGHT IN WILLIMANTIC

The first annual spring opening, as a city-wide movement by the Willimantic Merchants' association will begin officially at 7.30 o'clock Thursday evening, March 22. The promise of great success in this cooperative project now awaits only the assurance of good weather. Every merchant has taken hold with enthusiasm and interest is manifest in every corner of Willimantic and its trading area. The Willimantic merchants will be hosts Thursday evening to thousands of folk who will crowd the sidewalks and the stores. There will be much to admire in a generous display of Easter and Springtime merchandise. While the displays in the store interiors will be elaborate, attention has been centered on special window trims as the merchants have gone in heart and soul into the window trimming contest. These window trims are the result of much expenditure of money and time within the past few weeks and should result in a surpassing display outshining anything of its kind in the history of local merchandising. The very newest in modes, the choicest products of designers who seek to please the ultra fastidious buyer, and novel stunts in window trimming, will combine to unfold a marvellous array profuse in color and design and setting forth the beauty of the springtime offerings.

Programme

The program opens at 7.30 o'clock with a big parade throughout the business section. A platoon of the "city's finest" and the Elks band led by the bandmaster, Charles N. C. Wheeler will act as a van to nearly 50 new model automobiles, several of which will bear attractive life models representing various wearing apparel and specialty houses of the city. The St Joseph's boy scouts and the Italian citizens' bands will join with the Elks band in rendering two-hour concerts at three principal points. It will be during this concert that the public will file along the streets and inspect the windows and the merchandise. It will be an evening of inspection as no goods will be offered for sale during the evening Many will take advantage of special theatre performances to complete the evening's tour of the city.

Some of the features that have been arranged for to complete the details of this history-making event include the installation of flood lights to add to the brilliancy of the white way and the extra lighting of the windows, and the furnishing of free parking under police protection in the large lumber yard at the corner of North and Meadow streets.

The special window trims will remain intact Friday and Saturday giving those who were unable to come to the city Thursday evening an opportunity to view them. All window trimmings are to be the work of local decorators, although no check is made on the sources of the material used. The judging of the window displays will be an arduous task.

Awards will be announced Friday afternoon and ribbons given the successful stores. The judges will be Arthur Harris of the Howland-Hughes Co., Waterbury; W. G. Shiell, of the D. M. Read Co., Bridgeport and Fred Wagner of Shepherd's stores, Providence, R. I., all three judges being decorators of distinctive recognition in national groups. Official stores of the opening will display a placard making announcement to that effect in addition to some of the 179 posters produced by school children in the poster contest. It was announced that an official automobile in the parade would bear Mayor Charles A. Gates, First Selectman Ernest P. Chesebro, Frank P. Fenton, town clerk and president of the chamber of commerce and Robert T. Newton, president of the Willimantic Merchants' association.

Parking Facilities

While there will be no parking restrictions except on Bank street, in the vicinity of the fire house and on Railroad street, it is urgently recommended by the merchants for the convenience and safety of automobile owners as well as pedestrians that there be as little parking on Main street as possible. There are miles of side streets within a minute's walk from the center, available for parking, which, with the lumber yard at the corner of North and Meadow streets, should easily take care of all parking demands.

Spring Opening Committee

The opening arrangements, which received the untiring and valuable cooperation of Secretary Earl J. Arnold of the chamber of commerce, were in charge of the following committees: James B. WESTERLY

DIVORCE WITH ALIMONY GRANTED MRS. CLARA L. MORRIS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 20—Decision for the plaintiff, Mrs. Clara L. Morris, in her divorce petition from Henry B. Morris, was given today at 4:15 p. m. by Judge Arthur P. Sumner in Washington county superior court at the conclusion of the fifth day of the trial. The petition was granted on grounds of neglect to provide and cruelty. Twenty-five dollars a week alimony was ordered by the court and Mrs. Morris was granted the custody of her three minor children.

Morris was on the witness stand when court opened on Tuesday morning and more denials of nuisances alleged at the Weekapaug home were testified to by him. Other witnesses for the defense were Mrs. Lillian K. Green, teacher at Dunn's Corners school, who testified to the good condition of Morris children while attending that school. Miss Ada A. Perrelly, a neighbor, testified to the five visits she had made to the Morris home, which she described as very dirty and disorderly, also that she had washed Mr. Morris' shirt and cooked meat for his family. Three brothers of Mr. Morris from Providence testified to the increasing disorder they had noticed in the household in the last few years. At 3:30 the defense closed.

Arthur L. Perry, vice-president and treasurer of the Washington Trust company, on the stand for the plaintiff, told of notice being given of interest overdue on mortgage held on the property by the bank and its transfer to Mrs. Mitchell, mother of plaintiff. Dr. S. C. Weber, Westerly health officer, described his action on complaint of a fish nuisance at the Morris place. Dr. John E. Ruisi testified as to his treatment of Mrs. Morris for several years, for nervous ailment. Mrs. Morris again took the stand in rebuttal of testimony given. The last witness of the day was Mrs. Elsie Ansel, a neighbor, who told of the work done on the place by the plaintiff.

Cascara is Your Doctor's Choice

When physicians pronounce cascara the PERFECT laxative—why experiment with things that lash the system into action? Cascara, you know, is the bark of a tree. A natural and normal stimulus to the bowels.

The Indians, who used to chew this bark, had no word in their language that meant "constipation"!

Perfect regularity is possible today, and to all of us. We have cascara in ideal form; the very delightful-tasting candy cascaret gives us pure cascara. It has helped at least a million people to habitual regularity. Millions of others, unfortunately, have stuck to stronger things and acquired only the laxative habit.

Your first cascaret will demonstrate how THOROUGH this gentle laxative is, after all. Your next surprise will be the length of time before you need another. Eventually, you'll see that cascarizing tends to make the bowels move thereafter of their own accord.

A modern drug store must stock many laxatives, but for your own good the druggist would rather have you ask for the inexpensive little box of cascarets than anything else.

NOANK

STATE HATCHERY GETTING FISH SPAWNING NOW

The state hatchery on River avenue, overlooking the harbor, is rated as one of the best in the state. The fishing fleet is getting flat fish that are spawning and there are dropped on the dock at the hatchery. Frank Banning knows every kind of a fish, also has made a study of fish eggs. In the Green building is everything up-to-date to hatch fish eggs. Now Manager Banning has 32,000,000 flatfish eggs being hatched at the hatchery, and expects to see one of the best seasons in years. When the eggs are hatched O. K., they are put in different places along the ponds and rivers. He has a million and a half of smelt eggs being hatched. When the yellow fish are running good, they are taken to the hatchery for the eggs and when the time is up the tiny fish are taken to different brooks. The Green building has been a great help to the village, for when the fishing fleet gets a large catch of flatfish with eggs, these are put on the dock for the hatchery. It was 20 years ago that the state put up the building. For a few years, eggs from lobsters were hatched out, these being brought by the lobster fleet.

Boy Scout Troop, No. 19, held a cross-country run with 15 in the group. As Sam Carson fired the gun, the race started, over stone walls, up hills, for six miles. Noank's fast man with a pair of running shoes, Deer Butson, was in the lead. But soon, Midget D. Robertson put on full steam ahead and left Butson in the rear with the rest of the runners. While jumping over a stone wall, Harry Dunn fell and turned his ankle on a stone. He was lying there when Walter Buddington came along and helped pick up the injured man. He carried him to the road and stopped an automobile and put him in and told the driver to take him to a doctor, then Buddington got going again and stepped on the gas to overtake his pals. The finish line was at the town hall, with the judges, Charles Cox, Walter Wobert, ston and Duncan McDonald waiting to see who was the winner. The crowd of 75 was on hand to see the finish. Neck and neck came Deer Butson and Midget Robertson, but Midget pulled ahead and won, with Butson second, and Long Hop Buddington third. To cover the six miles took 79 minutes and 20 seconds. Then a clam chowder was served the runners. It was made by Leo Harris. Dancing followed, to music by Rose Brothers orchestra. This is the first cross-country run taken by the troop this year. Hikes are being planned for the coming summer, also two weeks' camping. The Scouts are in charge of Scoutmaster Clifford Phelps, who fought in the war of 1898. A membership drive is soon to get under way, to try to induce every boy in the village to join and make this the largest troop around this section.

Rodney Clark, who manages the Clark tea room in the summer and is its owner, [illegible] South Carolina. He left there Friday for the village, coming through Washington and Philadelphia. He found [illegible] the worst weather in his delight, the worst he was [illegible] when he got off at the waiting room he was surprised to find the ground bare. He will stay around and will fix up the tea room for another season.

Frank McDonald has returned to Newport, R. I., after a visit in the village.

Elbert Palmer is spending a few days with Edgartown, Mass., friends.

Carl Ashcraft spent Monday on Block Island, going to see his uncle, Earl Beard.

Boat Betty C. is hauled out on the ways, where a new shelf is being put in and is receiving a coat of paint. She is getting ready for a fishing trip to Wood's Hole, where the fish are running in large schools. Captain Inis is going to make that his port for a while, instead of coming back here to the North dock. The boat carries a crew of three men.

George Deveau has returned from Providence.

Miss Dorothy Hahn has returned to Holyoke, Mass., after spending a few days in Noank.

Mrs. Antonio Bacciocchi is a patient at a New London hospital.

Murday Gaudett is confined to his home by illness.

Sam Fish has gone to Springfield for a few days' visit with friends.

SOUTH KILLINGLY

Mrs. R. H. Coffey and Mrs. A. E. Hall called on Mrs. Charles Young Wednesday. Mrs. Young gave an encouraging report of improvement in the condition of her daughter, Lillie May, who has been seriously ill for seven weeks.

Peter Bonway has been entertaining his son, Louis, of Bridgeport.

Several young people were out Saturday evening attending various St. Patrick functions.

Two women from Danielson on their way to Manchaug in Danielson Park rowly escaped serious injuries when their car completely overturned on Hall's hill Sunday afternoon. A number of men soon gathered and extricated the occupants, righted the car and put the older woman in the bus for Danielson which was passing. The younger woman went to the home of A. E. Hall to make arrangements for the removal of the car. On further examination it was found little damage had been done except to the top, which was demolished. It was taken to Danielson under its own power. A few minor cuts and strains were the only injuries received by the occupants.

Mrs. M. D. Whitaker and Mrs. Luther Cole have been ill with grip the past week.

A. A. Jacques, who has been in Florida during the winter, has returned to his home.

A. E. Hall entertained callers from Moosup Sunday afternoon.

Everett Winsor, sawyer at Hall's mill, spent the week end at his home in Plainfield.

At the Sunday service, Rev. H. W. Gaylord's subject was Life Persistent. This was the third in the very interesting series of Lenten sermons.

POETRY

The Skyscraper

I shall [illegible] that great thing there,
I shall not ask for it to be Fashioned that it might stop
Before it shut the sky from me.
I liked the sun that trickled in,
And rested on my desk each morn.
I liked its warmth; I wondered how
'Twould seem to me when it was gone.
I watched the musty earth give way,
I saw the shadows slowly creep;
It seemed as if the great thing grew
While all its makers were asleep.
Then came the day when morning traced
Ten steel forged forms upon my floor,
And wove of them a carpet there
In strange designs, up to my door.
And still it grew, and clanged aloud.
It came and hid my sky from sight,
And left instead the red of bricks,
And shadows that were like the night:
A hundred windows, staring eyes;
A friendless wall to look and see
A-towering there, and proudly too,
As if to smirk with scorn at me.
I hated it, but came one night,
When looking out, I saw its sides
A-twinkle with the gayest lights,
And bright as sun-swept ocean tides;
As if they beckoned me to smile.
Deep in my heart there grew a warmth
That had departed quite a while,
And of a sudden I was glad
That steel-cut girders met my eyes,
For now where only dark had been
A hundred lights winked at the Skies.

An Old Memory

She's somewhere, she's somewhere
I know not where today,
Somewhere her eyes are smiling
The world's cold heart away,
For there was something in her glance
That seemed to whisper you
The haunting charm of old romance,
The sweetest Love e'er knew.

I feel it, I feel it—
No matter where she bides
The roses blossom fairer,
More softly flow the tides;
And if the years have fled apace
And worked her beauty ill,
Time cannot harm her inner grace—
I know she's lovely still.

And so beside my hearthstone,
Wherever she may be,
I'm hoping here at midnight
She may remember me;
For prone the heart, as falls the snow,
To limn a vanished June,
And when the logs are burning low
To hum an old love tune.

—Samuel Minturn Peck.

Little first-graders at school are not too young to be taught to speak clearly, it has been found by speech teachers in San Francisco public schools. Children of the first three grades who lisp or talk baby talk have heretofore been generally left alone so that they might outgrow the defect naturally, if possible. Children of these ages can be taught to overcome defects in articulation more easily, however, than older children, Miss Edna Cotrel of the San Francisco public schools reported to the National Association of Speech Teachers. They respond to the idea of learning to "talk like a big girl, and not like a baby," and throw off bad speech habits more quickly than older classes.

Two patients, whose respiration had already ceased and who were virtually dead, have been recalled to life in the Hospital of Moerby, near Stockholm, through operations performed on the heart by two young Swedish surgeons, according to a statement by the head physician of the hospital published ther. The patients suffered from thrombosis, a condition whereby blood clots are formed in the blood vessels. The thrombi, or clots, had entered the heart, stopping up the artery of the lungs so that the blood could not be emptied from the left half of the heart. The young physician, Dr. Blarence Crafoord, assisted by Dr. J. P. Stroembaeck, at once decided to attempt operations, quickly made incisions in the heart and removed the thrombi. Both patients now seem to be out of danger. This operation was first made by a German surgeon, Dr. Trendelenburg, and only two or three successful cases are so far recorded in the history of medicine.

The Plainfield Pros and Taftville Crescents meet tonight at the Plainfield community house in the second game of their eastern Connecticut title series. A win for the Pros tonight will meet the championship for another season for Taftville was downed a week ago.

Taftville qualified for this series by beating the Danielson Town team in a two out of three game series and tonight will be determined not to let all this work go for naught.

Plainfield will present their regular lineup while Taftville will be considerably strengthened, listing some of the fastest performers hereabouts for this important fray. A banner crowd is expected for interest runs high all through eastern Connecticut.

In the preliminary the Plainfield Buddies will meet the Putnam Silk Sox. The preliminary starts at 8 o'clock with the main attraction at 9 p. m. Dancing will follow the main game.

TAFTVILLE CELTICS WIN OVER N. F. A. INDEPENDENTS

The Taftville Celtics, overcoming the lead of the Academy Independents, came out in the last quarter and won a hard fought game, 33 to 26 at Parish hall, Taftville, last night. The Independents started off with some nice floor work. Their passing, too, was excellent, while the shooting of Pingree and Jarvis was very good. The Independents took the ball from the first tap and after Pingree and La Croix dropped it in for two foul goals which started the scoring, they had charge of the ball most of the time during the first half.

The Celtics trailed along, getting warmed up to the situation after Harris bounded a field goal in after Gauthier missed one. Pingree, for the Independents, made a foul and points by Viau, Kelly, Jarvis and La Croix continued the lead while Harris, for the celtics making great shots from any angle of the floor and goals by Gauthier and Coleman, threatened to tie the score. But the Indees would not be denied and plugged ahead with the same spirit that has been apparent in their last few games. The Indees accepted six chances for fouls in the first half and made every one of them, which boosted their points, although the Celtics captured more field goals than their opponents. On the other hand, Taftville missed every one of their six chances for fouls in the first half, but Harris' work overcame the missing of fouls. The half ended with the Independents taking the the long end of a 16 to 14 score.

Although the Indees gave stiff opposition, the Celtics finally wore them down in the latter part of the second half and won.

In the preliminary game the fast Red Devils took a beating from the Taftville Rovers, 28 to 18.

In the opening game, the Whirlwinds trimmed the Norwich Crescents 20 to 22.

DAVIS TEAM TO START MATCH PLAY TODAY

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 20.—(AP)—Practice sessions for the Davis cup elimination round that will lead to selection of four players to "carry on" against Mexico early next month in American zone play were completed on courts of the Augusta Country club today.

Match play will begin tomorrow.

Despite continued cool weather, the full squad of ten men worked earnestly in an effort to achieve playing form for the three days of elimination play. Edward G. (Bud) Chandler, Harvard law student, and Johnny Doeg, Stanford university star, went through considerably longer sessions than the others.

MARYLAND COMMISSIONERS TO BAR SINCLAIR'S HORSES

BALTIMORE, March 20.—(AP)—The Maryland Racing commission announced tonight, through James F. Hagward, secretary, that it had requested owners of the four one-mile tracks in the state to bar the horses of the Rancocas stable, owned by Harry Sinclair, oil magnate, because of his connection with the Teapot Dome oil scandal.

DAVE SHADE'S PURSE RELEASED AFTER WRANGLE

CHICAGO, March 20.—(AP)—Dave Shade, the San Francisco middleweight, defended his reputation as a boxer before the Illinois state athletic commission today.

Shade was called to explain what appeared to be an unsatisfactory showing in his match with Del Fountaine of Winnipeg, claimant of the Canadian middleweight title last night. Members of the commission believed Shade might have finished his opponent with the result that payment of his purse was held up.

The case began, however, convinced the commissioners that in his last 38 bouts he had only succeeded in knocking out two opponents; that he did not grant Fountaine favors and that he gave his best efforts.

After questioning Fountaine, Eddie Purdy, the referee, and others, Shade's purse was released.

Settlement of the claim over Sammy Mandell's $5,000 forfeit to box Jimmy McLarnin in defense of his title here, instead of New York, was deferred a week because of the absence of Eddie Kane, manager of the lightweight champion. Promoter Jim Mullen has claimed the $5,000 on the plea Kane signed with Tex Rickard while Mandell was still under contract to Mullen.

SPORT SLANTS

By Alan J. Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, March 20—(AP)—The baseball dope that is being wafted gently northward already has offered answers to most of the momentous questions that accompanied the major league outfits to the south.

It may therefore be set down with a fair degree of impunity that—

1. George Sisler has beaten out Joe Judge in the contest for first base with the Washington Senators, chiefly by exhibiting a great hitting come-back.

2. Kiki Cuyler, batting in his chosen position, third, looks ready for a big season with the Chicago Cubs.

3. Joe Hauser has completely recovered from the effects of his broken leg, stayed a come-back and plugged the first base gap for the Athletics.

4. Connie Mack's pitching staff will be in much better shape for the start of the season than it was a year ago.

5. The Boston Braves, pepped up by the addition of Hornsby, will be extremely troublesome, if not an actual pennant contender.

6. Sparky Adams is fast filling the second base bill for the Champion Pirates.

7. Bill Cissell, White Sox infield recruit, hasn't yet measured up to his $123,000 price tag.

8. The Red Sox and Phillies, to judge from early exhibitions, will be the foremost contenders for cellar positions again.

Cubs May Be Dangerous

Most of the pre-season calculations favor the National league pennant prospects of the St. Louis Cardinals or Pittsburgh Pirates but it will be just as well not to overlook Joe McCarthy's hustling Chicago Cubs.

The Cubs are in somewhat the same situation the Yankees were two years ago in that their chief problem is located around the keystone bag. If Freddy Maguire and Woody English come through for the Cubs in anything like the fashion that Lazzeri and Koenig did for the American league champions in 1926 it will be pleasant sailing for Mr. McCarthy.

Otherwise the Cubs are well fortified. Cuyler, Stephenson and Wilson form a great outfield trio. Behind the bat Gabby Hartnett is one of the best in the business and the pitching staff is well stocked with such talent as Root, Carlson Blake and others to count on.

Cards Have Best "Exhibition" Record

The spring training games don't count in the pennant race but it is worth noting, at least, that the St. Louis Cardinals, Browns and Boston Braves have the best record in the grapefruit circuit so far while the World's Champion Yankees have the worst.

Up to today the Cards had registered four victories out of five games, the Browns four out of six and the Braves four out of seven, with one tie. The Yankees lost their first three in a row. The Phillies, with only one win and five defeats already are in the National league cellar, so far as the Florida standing goes.

If all of the new rules promulgated by President Barnard to speed up American league games are strictly enforced this year the umpires will have as complicated a job as football officials.

A 20-second limit has been fixed for the pitcher's delivery, among other things, but no new regulations have yet been established to limit the wild pitch or control the recovery of a fumbled ball.

It's an ill wind that escapes and leaves a flabby tire.

PENN. FIVE BEATS PRINCETON FOR TITLE

PHILADELPHIA, March 20.—(AP)—A field goal by Don Noble in the final minutes of play tonight gave Pennsylvania a 24 to 22 victory over the Princeton in the playoff for the championship of the eastern intercollegiate basketball league.

The victory gave Pennsylvania its seventh championship since the league was organized 12 years ago. It was the second straight year that Princeton lost a playoff game, Dartmouth winning the title from the Tigers here last year.

Tonight's battle was close and hard fought all the way. Joey Schaaf, Penn guard, who this year shattered the league's modern individual scoring record, after making three field goals and two fouls, was ruled out of the game on the fourth personal foul late in the last half. Witmer, a brother of the Princeton coach, who has been playing Schaaf, was put earlier in the contest for the same reason.

Sensational work by Noble and Captain Connell, of Pennsylvania, who replaced Schaaf featured the game. Noble, coming in late in the last half when Matthews was ruled out on personal fouls, was all over the court and his toss from the side court that cut the cords cleanly broke a 22-22 tie and gave the red and blue its winning margin and its first title since 1921.

Approximately 10,000 persons crowded the Pennsylvania palestra to see the contest.

'BOUT SPORTS

A bad case of "We know quite a lot" seems to have been the direct cause of Wilby's quick eradication in the Yale tournament. The following by Jim Keefe in the Waterbury American might interest, seeing as Wilby played the Academy here this season and is a regular rival for the Red and White in all sports. Here it is, under the heading of "Players take things into their own hands":

What was the reason? Well, from what we can discover the defeat was all up to the boys themselves. After winning 20 games this season, they suddenly came to believe that all this success was brought about mainly through their own efforts and not through the teachings of their coach, Jimmy Lee. And of all the places to pick out to display their independence, the state championship tournament. In the first half the Green and White clad warriors disregarded all the instructions of their mentor and did just about as they pleased, figuring, perhaps, that winning this game was simply a matter of form. But when things began to go bad for them, they had nothing in their own kit to check the disaster. Reserves were rushed into action by the coach to replace some of the erring and listless regulars, but it was altogether too important an assignment for the youngsters to carry out in competition as important as this and the result, an unexpected Wilby defeat, was no fault of theirs.

And after the game, we understand, some of the older players were heard to criticise the methods of coaching and training employed by Jimmy Lee. If this is true, the offending players deserve nothing but censure. They have no reason to criticise, or even question, the methods of a coach who has done so much for Wilby high school as Lee has done. With limited material, far below Crosby in quantity and quality, he has raised the Grove street school to the pinnacle of high school athletics in Waterbury. And when a coach can do this with the sparsity of athletes he has to work with at the commercial school where boys are greatly in the minority, then you've just got to admit he knows how to handle his job. Certainly Lee cannot be blamed because certain of the players hung around lunchrooms until 12 and 1 o'clock the night before the Yale tournament after he warned all of them to be home and in bed early. If these were the ones who questioned his methods after Fridays' defeat, then it is our hope that he bars them from Wilby athletics for the remainder of their school career, for the teams at the Grove street institution will be much better off without such malcontents in their lineups.

TOMMY HITCHCOK FALLS FROM PONY AND IS INJURED

AIKEN, S. C., March 20—(AP)—Thomas Hitchcok Jr., of the United States polo team and internationally famous star, is nursing several broken ribs and a broken wrist as a result of an accident in play here yesterday.

His mount fell as he was about to score a goal, the great "Tommy" falling heavily to the ground. The extent of his injuries was not known until today.

MILBURN ALSO INJURED IN FALL FROM MOUNT

AIKEN, S. C., March 20.—(AP)—Devereaux Milburn, ranking polo player, suffered a broken collar bone here today when his mount fell over the last fence of the Aiken Drag Hunt and threw him. He was not seriously hurt, friends said, although the shoulder injury will keep him from riding for about two months.

Milburn was thrown clear of his horse and landed on his shoulder. He was able to walk to a motor car, which took him to the home of S. S. Von Stade, his brother in law, where he is a guest.

A physician set the collar bone, after which members of the household pronounced the veteran polo ist "all right."

Von Stade said he would be prevented from playing "for a couple of months," but as there were no important matches scheduled during that period "it would make no difference."

PHIL M'GRAW AND DAY BATTLE TO DRAW AT N. H.

NEW HAVEN, March 20—(AP)—Phil McGraw, of Detroit, Mich., and Georgia Day, of New Haven fought a fast ten round draw in the star bout of the Arena A. C., here tonight. At the finish of the bout Referee Sloman raised the hand of both boxers denoting a draw decision.

Both are lightweights and stood toe to toe slugging most of the time.

McGraw had the better of the early rounds but Day seemed to grow stronger as the bout progressed. McGraw weighed 134; Day 133 1-2.

Tony Travers, of New Haven, was given the referee's decision over Izzy Grove, of New York in a fast eight round bout. A cut over Grove's left eye received in the third round seemed to bother him for the rest of the bout.

Johnny Scalzi, of Bridgeport, won on a technical knockout from Elmer Cicone, of New Haven in the sixth round of an eight round bout. The referee stopped the bout on account of Cicone's condition.

Willie Hussey, of Bridgeport, was given the decision over Rex Bell, of Ansonia, in a six round bout.

Frank Marino, of New Haven, won on a technical knockout over Willie Spencer, of Norwalk in the second round of a four round bout. Spencer's second threw the towel in the rings.

ENTRY BLANKS READY FOR DUWELL A. A. SHOW

Entry blanks for the coming Duwell A. A. amateur boxing show to be staged at the state armory, Tuesday, March 17, were printed yesterday and sent out to the various boxing teams in the vicinity and may be obtained by local talent by applying at the Duwell club. The regular policy of having an important team for the main bouts will be followed at the coming bill and in all probability the attraction will be provided by either Springfeld or New Haven squad of boxers. In addition to this the Duwell intend to put on a good number of scraps in the novice class as there is quite an array of new talent from both Norwich and Taftville about ready to burst into fistania. The novices will be carefully matched so as to avoid the possibility of uneven scraps, and unnecessary punishment to either principal.

DEALS FOR DONOHUE WITH CARDS FALL THROUGH

CINCINNATI, O., March 20—(AP)—Failure of a proposed trade of pitchers in which Pete Donohue, Cincinnati Reds holdout, would have gone to the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for Flint Rehm, was reported today from the Reds' training camp at Orlando to officials of the club here.

Branch Rickey, owner of the Cards, was in Orlando today for a visit with C. J. McDiarmid, president of the Reds. His offer of Rehm for Donohue brought a counter offer from McDiarmid to trade Donohue for Pitcher Jess Haines, but Rickey would not consider this trade, the dispatch said.

MILLER FINISHES ELEVENTH AT LAGORCE, JOHNNY FARRELL WINS

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 20—(AP)—Flashing a dazzling brand of golf to shoot a 63 in the final 18 holes for a new course record, Johnny Farrell, Mamaroneck, N. Y., today won the $5,000 first money in the $15,000 La-Groce open golf tournament, with a total of 274 for the 72 holes.

Bobby Cruickshang, New York, two strokes back of Farrell, with 276, won second place and a $2,500 slice of the big purse, while Joe Kirkwood, of Albany, Ga., took the third cut of $1,000 with a 279.

Others finishing in the first ten were as follows: Harry Hampton, Chicago, 282; Gene Sarazen, Newport Richey, Fla., 283; Tommy Armour, Washington, national open champion, 285; Harry Cooper, Buffalo, N. Y., 286; Al Espinosa, Chicago, 288; Lloyd Gulickson Cleveland, 288, and George Voight, Washington amateur, 288.

Sarazen Recovers Too Late

Sarazen, a prime favorite to win, led the field yesterday and at the close of the morning round, but was off his game for the first nine in the afternoon round, after learning of Cruickshank's remarkable drive. He recovered somewhat on the last nine to come in with 35 for a 74 in the final 18.

Miller Tied with Watrous

Others who finished in the money were:

M'LEAN CHALLENGES MOORE FOR FRIDAY NIGHT'S SHOW

Young McLean of Willimantic has challenged Denny Moore from the Sub Base for the Pastime A. C. show Friday night at Olympic hall. McLean claims he can stop the sailor although many will agree that he is picking a tough proposition.

Westerly and Willimantic will be here with strong teams and they are expected to bring along a heavyweight or so. At present, one heavyweight bout is certain with a strong possibility of at least one more fight in the unlimited class.

Extra seats will be had for this show so that there will be plenty of accomendations along this line. Mush Moriarty will appear on the show, it has been announced, meeting the best boy in his class. Mush will not fight Big Boy Burlap Friday, it was announced by Pastime officials.

AMATEUR SHOW FRIDAY AT DANIELSON ARMORY

Danielson sallies forth into the amateur boxing game Friday night with a show at the Danielson State armory. The Service battery team coached by Young DeForest, is training hard for the show and expects to make a great showing in its debut in the home town.

Beecher, who was formerly a trainer on the New York police force, was at the armory over last week end to watch the boys go through their paces. He remarked that the boys looked like comers. DeForest will try and secure the services of Beecher to train the boys.

The Danielson team will also be at the Duwell show here next Tuesday.

LUKE A. CASSIDY, RACING OFFICIAL, DIES SUDDENLY

NEW YORK, March 20—(AP)—Luke A. Cassidy, well-known racing official and for the past ten years general manager of prominent track associations, died "in harness" today. He was stricken with a heart attack while watching thoroughbreds work out at Belmont park and succumbed shortly afterwards at the home of Max Hirsch, prominent trainer.

Mr. Cassidy was born in New York 51 years ago, although never an owner of horses, he grew up with racing and became successively general manager of the Empire City Racing association of New York, the Maryland State Fair association of Laurel, Md., and the Miami Jockey club.

Mr. Cassidy was called to England last year to supervise the construction of a new racing plant just outside of London. He was to have returned this summer to complete the work and inaugurate racing there.

Although often associated with Mars Cassidy in the handling of racing programs he was not related to the famous starter of track classics.

Schaaf Elected Captain

PHILADELPHIA, March 20—(AP)—Joey Schaaf, was elected captain of the University of Pennsylvania basketball five tonight after the red and blue had defeated Princeton in the playoff for the title. The election was unanimous.

LESTER BELL TRADED TO BOSTON BRAVES

AVON PARK, Fla., March 20.—(AP)—Lester Bell, regular third baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals for three years has been released to the Boston Braves in consideration for Infielder Andy High and a cash consideration, President Sam Breadon announced tonight.

High is expected to arrive in camp here tomorrow morning from the Braves training base at St. Petersburg. Manager McKechnie said tonight he did not intend to use High as the regular third sacker but would give him a utility position and use Wattie Holm as the hot corner guardian. Holm played third base for a time last year.

Bell will join Rogers Hornsby, under who, in 1926, he had his greatest season. When the Cardinals won the pennant and world series in 1926, Bell was one of the best third basemen in the game. Missing the driving influence of Hornsby, Bell has been erratic in his performance and was unpopular with St. Louis fans.

Yanks Lose Again

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 20.—(AP)—The New York Yankees may be champions of the baseball world but the Boston Braves can lay claim to the title so far as it concerns St. Petersburg.

For the third time in as many games with each other, it is a matter of simple mathematics to establish that the Braves are "in" as champions of St. Petersburg.

As in the two preceding games, it was good pitching that turned the die for the Boston. Foster Edwards shut out the champions for five innings with four hits. Ed Brandt allowed three safeties, all of them in the seventh inning when the Yanks scored their brace of runs.

The Braves got nine hits off Herb Pennock, Wilcy Moore and Al Shealey, "Doc" Farrell getting three of them.

Babe Ruth showed a further return to form, getting two singles and a walk in his four appearances at the plate. Gehrig went hitless.

Score:

New York (A)	000	000	200	2	7	2
Boston (N)	200	110	00x	4	9	1

Pennock, Moore, Shealey and Grabowski, Bengough; Edwards, Brandt and Taylor.

Senators 6, Brooklyn 2

TAMPA, Fla., March 20.—(AP)—"Bucky" Harris led his Washington Senators to a six to two victory over Brooklyn in an exhibition game here today.

Harris crashed out a double and triple before giving way to Reeves late in the game with the Senators holding a decisive margin over their National league rivals.

Score:

Brooklyn (N)	200	000	000	2	9	1
Washington (A)	210	002	10x	6	11	1

Petty, Vance and Hargreaves; Marberry, Lisenbee and McMullen.

Cubs

AVALON, Calif., March 20.—(AP)—Pilot Joe McCarthy took advantage of perfect weather to give the Chicago Cubs a lengthy workout today in an attempt to iron out the faults in the National leaguers' play as seen in their weekend exhibition performances.

The workout was general, consisting of pitching, batting practice, fielding and signal work. The moundsmen, Nehf, Root, Blake and Vaughn, worked under the eye of the Cubs' leader.

McCarthy said a practice game between the rookies and regulars would be played tomorrow. It will be the last in the Island camp.

Pirates Lose

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., March 20—(AP)—The San Francisco Seals battered two recruit pitchers and won an exhibition game from the Pittsburgh Pirates here today 13 to 5.

Score:

Pittsburgh	001	000	400	5	13	3
San Francisco	402	000	70x	13	16	1

Brame, Lindsey and Smith, Gooch; Moudy, May and Sprinz, Read.

COBB AND SPEAKER HELP ATHLETICS TO BEAT GIANTS

FT. MYERS, Fla., March 20—(AP)—The New York Giants lost a hard-fought exhibition game to Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics today, 6 to 5, chiefly because Tris Speaker, grey-thatched veteran of more than score of American league campaigns, insisted on getting on base with great frequency.

Speaker came across with the winning run in the ninth inning on an infield single by Al Simmons. At the end of the game demon statisticians revealed that Speaker was on base four times during the conflict, twice on singles and twice on free passes. Ty Cobb got a single and a walk in five trips to the plate.

After pounding "Lefty" Grove for nine hits in five innings, the Giants could do nothing of account with Eddie Rommel for the balance of the game.

Score by innings:

New York	020	120	000	5	11	1
Philadelphia	400	000	101	6	10	2

Faulkner, Chaplin, Cantwell and Hogan, Cummings; Grove, Rommel and Fox.

Red Sox 11, Card: 8

AVON PARK, Fla., March 20.—(AP)—Twenty Cardinal players failed to check the Red Sox, and Boston took an 11 to 8 hitting spree from St. Louis here today. It was the second loss for the Cards in nine exhibitions.

Five boots chalked up against the Meckachnie Nine coupled with Bill Sherdel's inability to check the Boston club during his one and one third innings, brought the defeat down upon the Cardinals.

Score:

St. Louis (N.L.)	030	023	000	8	12	5
Boston (A.L.)	100	104	500	11	13	3

Ruffing, Brodley, Garrison and Berry, Hoffmann; Haines, Sherdel, Johnson, and Farrell, Mancuso.

WHITE SOX BLANK WICHITA FALLS CLUB

WICHITA FALLS, Tex., March 20—(AP)—The Chicago White Sox walloped Wichita Falls, 7 to 0 today with Goodell holding the Texas leaguers to two hits. The Sox scored four runs in the firth on hits by McCurdy, Clancy and Metzler, a passed ball, a wild pitch and an error. Steengrafe, a former Sox rookie, pitched for Wichita Falls.

NATIONALS TO MEET BRICKLAYERS APRIL 8

NEW YORK, March 20—(AP)—The grand final of the national soccer championship will be played at the Polo Grounds, April 8, the United States Football association officials announced tonight after a meeting here. The New York Nationals, eastern champions, and the Chicago Bricklayers, titleholders for the western division, will meet at that time.

Controversy over the site for the grand final developed following the sectional playoffs last Sunday with Chicago bidding for the contest.

MUCH INTEREST IN Y BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT

Present indications are that the Intermediate basketball tourney to be staged under the auspices of the local Y. M. C. A. Saturday will attract a large crowd. Teams are entered from all over eastern Connecticut and although but nine are now definitely certain of entering nearly that many more are expected by game time. At least, three more are practically sure of being in for the starting whistle.

WALTER JOHNSON EXPECTS TO BE READY FOR OPENER

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 20—(AP)—Walter Johnson, veteran of the baseball world and pitcher-manager of the Newark, N. J., Bears, is suffering from a slight intestinal trouble but will be on the mound for his club by May 1, James T. Sinnot, president of the International league club said tonight.

Johnson has been ordered to take a rest and probably will go to Daytona Beach within a few days, Sinnot said.

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

Taftville and Plainfield Tonight

The C. F. C. still is fully confident of taking their series with the Academy although the odds seem against them.

The Y tourney looks like a mighty sizeable undertaking. Plenty of interest is being shown in the meet and prospects for success are bright.

Penn and Princeton staged some battle last night for the Intercollegiate championship.

Sechter's Spooks are cleaning them up with regularity and now intend to enter the Y Intermediate tournament Saturday.

The Academy stepped up a little bit too far last night. The Celtics were above the high school class.

The Plainfield Buddies, in furnishing the preliminary to the Pros-Crescents game tonight, are not picking anything easy in the Putnam Silk Sox, even though the Buddies beat them in Putnam.

SUICIDE OF MANAGER FOR BURLESQUE SHOWS

NEW YORK, March 20—(AP)—Charles Falke, 55, road manager for burlesque shows died tonight in a hospital from injuries sustained when he jumped from the window of his room in the third floor of the Forest hotel in West 48th street.

Falke had been confined to his room under medical care suffering from a nervous breakdown since the death of his mother in Buffalo, N. Y., on March 5.

Secretary Work predicted that Herbert Hoover will be the next president of the United States.

GENERAL MOTORS AND RADIO AGAIN DOMINATED TRADING IN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP)—Resumption of violent speculation for the advance under the leadership of Radio and General Motors characterized today's stock market. Radio soared 23 points to 160, duplicating last week's record high price, and then dropped back to 155 on a revival of rumors that a "technical corner" existed in the stock. General Motors advanced 6 points to a new peak at 174, closing a point below the top. Total transactions in these two issues aggregated nearly half a million shares or about one-seventh of the entire day's turnover.

The upsuing, like those which have preceded it, was not traceable to any development in the day's news. The recent set-back in several of the pool favorites probably had encouraged further short selling, making it comparatively easy for powerful pools, plentifully supplied with funds, to again drive the "bears" to cover. The rapidity of the advance indicated a marked scarcity in the floating supply of many issues, jumps of 1 to 5 points between sales being quite frequent.

There was no change in the credit situation except that there was less tendency in the outside market to make concessions below the official 4 1-2 per cent. call rate. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady. Recent exports of gold and an increasing commercial demand for funds in connection with spring retail trade has revived expectations in some quarters of an early increase in rates.

U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, which is expected to announce a recapitalization plan next month, soared 18 points to a new high record at 353, making a gain of 46 1-4 points in two days. Victor Talking Machine convertible preferred stock, jumped 13 1-2 points to 165 and the common advanced 7 3-8 to 78 3-8, both new high records. Among the score or so issues to show net gains of 3 to 10 points were American Car and Foundry, preferred, American International Corp., American Linseed, A. M. Byers, Gimbel Brothers, Midland Steel Products preferred, Rossia Insurance and Kelsey-Hayes Wheel.

Concurrent strength of General Motors, General Electric, Electric Refrigeration and Savage Arms, the only listed stocks manufacturing electric refrigerators, was believed to be based in part on predictions of record breaking spring and su mmer business.

Railroad shares failed to make much response to President Coolidge's statement that the railroad consolidation bill would be passed at this session of congress. Texas & Pacific jumped nearly 5 points to a new high at 125 1-8, and then reacted to 123. New York Central, Delaware & Hudson, Lackawanna, Seaboard Air Line and a few others yielded a point or two.

International Telephone and Mackay companies reacted sharply on the traditional "selling on the good news" following publication of merger reports. Telephone sold down 6 points to 157 and rallied to 159 3-4 and Mackay broke 10 1-2 points to 130 1-2 and snapped back to 122 1-4. Armour of Illinois preferred, Fisk Rubber first preferred, and Mackay preferred, all showed net declines of 4 points or more.

Speculative interest in the commodity market was divided between the rally of $1.50 to nearly $2.50 a bale in cotton and the decline of about two cents a pound in crude rubber futures. Corn and rye advanced 1 to nearly 2 cents a bushel and wheat improved fractionally. An easier undertone was apparent in the coffee and sugar markets.

Foreign exchanges were slightly firmer, with sterling cables quoted around $4.88 1-4.

The supper, in charge of St. Paul's auxiliary, will be served in St. Paul's parish hall and the entertainment, a two-hour farce comedy, will be presented in the assembly hall of Plainfield community house. Dancing will follow. The ten members of the cast, several of whom were in the tea party play given a year ago, have been rehearsing for weeks. The committee in charge of the entertainment program is William Alexander, chairman, Frederick Lever, Miss Estella M. Bennett, Miss Cora Cleveland and Miss C. Doris Hasting Baxter, committee secretary. The ticket committee is Mrs. Ralph S. Crocker, Mrs. Joseph Lang, Eugene Currier, Harry Johnson and Thomas Wilson.

Mrs. Harry Cooley, the newly appointed secretary of St. Paul's branch of the Girls' Friendly society, has assumed charge of the branch. About ten members of the branch are planning to attend the G. F. S. gathering in Norwich, Sunday, March 25.

Rev. Theodore D. Martin, rector of St. Peter's church, Hebron, and Calvary church, Colchester, was the lenten preacher at St. Paul's Sunday night. During the service Mr. Martin also sang two hymns.

The above report was read at the regular monthly meeting of the Montville Visiting Nurse association held recently at the school house in Uncasville. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Ralph H. Melcer, Mrs. Hubert G. Dart, the first vice president, presided. All reports, including the secretary and treasurer's, were accepted. The next meeting of the association will be held at the Uncasville schoolhouse on April 6.

Harry Carter, proprietor and owner of Carter's garage of Palmertown, has been awarded the contract for transporting the high school students of sections of the town of Montville to and from the Norwich Free Academy. The daily trips will be from the Oakdale post office to the Academy and return via Raymond Hill and includes no children living below or east of the Oakdale post office towards Palmertown. Mr. Carter entered upon his new duties Monday and has recently purchased a 25 passenger bus for making the trips.

Mrs. Martin V. B. Butler entertained Friday at a luncheon at her home in honor of Miss Susie M. Wood, whose birthday anniversary occurred on that date.

Mrs. Harriet Edmonds, whose anniversary falls on the same date, was entertained in honor of the occasion at the home of Mrs. Almira Watt.

Several announcements were given by Rev. Edward L. Nield at the morning service of the Union Baptist church, including a notice of the meeting of the Ladies' Aid society on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry C. Bogue in Palmertown.

Special attention was called to the Lenten services to be held Friday evening in New London at the Second Congregational church at which time the Rev. William Amsbrown will be the speaker.

Saturday was Mother's day with Pine Cone troop, No. 6, Girl Scouts of America at their regular afternoon meeting in the Palmer Memorial school house. There were 21 members of the troops and many relatives and friends of the girls present from here and from New London. Mrs. F. S. Langdon, Mrs. C. Graves, Mrs. Doane and Scout Priscilla Doane.

The afternoon proved highly interesting to all, several awards being made at this time. It gave Captain Mrs. Robert Paton great pleasure to award to Miss Alice Ramage a "Thanks Badge" to show the troops appreciation of her interest and efforts in the scout work; to Scout Edna Paton a gold star pin for 100 percent perfect attendance; to Scouts Audrey Bogue and Doris Paton their tenderfoot pins and at the close of these awards Mrs. Langdon of New London awarded to Captain Paton a silver star pin for 90 percent perfect attendance record.

Two of the girls are ready to take the second class test and about eight more are preparing for same and Mrs. Langdon has generously offered to arrange transportation to and from New London on Saturday afternoon, April 7 to enable the girls to take the test in New London. In order to do this, the girls decided to postpone their April social and party for one week to co-operate with this kind offer.

Much interest was shown in the study of birds and flowers and the business of the afternoon was carried on in a creditable manner, games and stunts were enjoyed and several addresses by the visitors proved instructive.

The afternoon was brought to a close by the singing of Taps.

Miss Dorothy Brinkman of Norwich was the guest of Miss Lillian Ritchie for the week-end holiday.

Peter's Tropical Cousin

It is a fact that few are fated
To know just how they are related.
—Old Mother Nature.

Probably this is a good thing sometimes. You see, there are all sorts of relations. Some we are proud of and others—well, as I have just said, some we are proud of. So the discovery of a new relation is not always the best discovery in the world.

Peter Rabbit thought he knew all the members of his family. I mean, he thought he knew all about the members of his family. Of course, he is well acquainted with his cousin Jumper the Hare. He has known Jumper ever since he was a little fellow. Through Jenny Wren he learned of two southern cousins, the Marsh Rabbit and the Swamp Rabbit. He had heard of his western cousin, the Jack Rabbit, and of his cousins in the far north, the Arctic Hares. So Peter thought he knew all of his relations. But Peter was mistaken. It isn't safe for anybody to think he knows all of his relations. So Peter was greatly surprised when Scrapper the Kingbird remarked that when he had been down in a far-away country called Panama for the winter he had seen a cousin of Peter's down there. You ought to have seen Peter's long ears stand up.

"I haven't got any cousin down there," said Peter.

"Tut, tut, Peter! Tut, tut!" exclaimed Scrapper the Kingbird. "Have you ever been down there?"

"No," replied Peter. "Of course, I haven't been down there."

"Then what right have you to say that you haven't a cousin down there?" demanded Scrapper sharply.

Peter looked a little bit foolish, but he wasn't willing to yield yet.

"I guess if I had a cousin down there I should have heard of him before," said Peter.

"Did you ever hear of Prickly Parky's cousin with a long tail? Or of Bobby Coon's cousin with a long nose?" inquired Scrapper.

"No," replied Peter, "I never did."

"They are both down there where that cousin of yours is," said Scrapper. "You have never heard of them, so why should you have heard of him? I told you, Peter, that you wouldn't believe the things I could tell you of that far-away southern country. You see, I was right."

Peter hung his head. "Excuse me, Scrapper," said he meekly. "I beg your pardon. I'm sorry. You see, I thought I knew about all my relations and this one I have never heard of. If you say I have one down there I'll believe it, Scrapper; truly, I will. Does he look like me?"

Scrapper cocked his head on one side and pretended to look Peter over very carefully. "W-e-l-l," said he very slowly, "I should say that there is a strong family resemblance. Yes, sir, I should say that there is a strong family resemblance. There is no mistaking that cousin of yours down there for anything but a rabbit."

"Has he long ears?" inquired Peter.

"Not as long as yours" said Scrapper.

"Has he a white tail?" asked Peter eagerly.

Scrapper shook his head. "No," said he, "he hasn't a white tail. And it's an even shorter tail than yours."

Peter bounced up excitedly. "What color is his tail?" he cried.

"It is the same color as his coat and his coat is reddish," replied Scrapper. "But for all that he's a real rabbit. I've seen him often. He's a real rabbit and he's just as stupid as you."

"What's that?" cried Peter angrily.

Scrapper chuckled. "I didn't mean stupid," said he, "I meant just as full of curiosity."

EXPLORER GIVES FINE STEREOPTICON LECTURE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 20—George K. Cherrie, noted explorer, delivered a highly interesting illustrated lecture before a capacity audience at the Gem theatre tonight. His lecture entitled, With the Roosevelts in Eastern Asia, was substantiated with stereopticon views and motion pictures. It was held under the auspices of the Willimantic Exchange club, the funds to be used for the convention of Connecticut Exchanges in this city later this spring. Mr. Cherrie was introduced by Dixon Van Zandt, a member of the Exchange club, and fellow member with Mr. Cherrie of the Explorers' club of New York. Mr. Cherrie carried his audience through a long journey of amazing thrills and danger over the Himalayas from Turkestan into Northern China, where the Roosevelt brothers, Theodore and Kermit, succeeded in killing a number of the Ovispoll, Marco Polo's famous mountain sheep. The motion picture included the reel on one of Theodore Roosevelt's expeditions, of which Mr. Cherrie was a member.

We Moderns' Whist and Pinochle

The We Moderns held a successful whist and pinochle last week in Eagles hall. Those taking prizes in whist were ladies, first, Mrs. Bruette; second, Mrs. McKelvey; third, Mrs. Richards; gentlemen, Mr. Beckwith; in pinochle; ladies, first, Mrs. Robinson with 7740; Mrs. Walker 7600; Mrs. Scott 7450; gentlemen, first, Mr. Scott 7520; Mr. Moody 7280; Mr. Gladue 7240.

HUSBAND'S THREAT MOVES WIFE TO KILL BABE AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 20.—Mrs. [illegible] Muscarella, 21, youthful wife of Sebastian Muscarella, 42 Central avenue, who was technically arrested yesterday and taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital following the death of her day-old infant son, under suspicious circumstances, has made a complete confession. She admits slaying the child because of its illegitimacy and in an endeavor to keep her husband to continue to live with her. The young woman absolutely refused to reveal the identity of the father of the baby and declared that she never would do so, but it is known that she has informed her husband who the man is that was responsible for her condition. Other than to state that the father is a single man, Mrs. Muscarella would not make a statement that might lead to the identification of the father of the child. At the hospital last night Detective Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith and County Detective William Lewis interviewed Mrs. Muscarella for over an hour. She talked freely of her act. Mrs. Muscarella stated that she and her husband had been estranged for several months and that she returned to live with him in September, 1927. Recently when Muscarella realized his wife's condition he declared that he would not live with his wife after the birth of the child; he declared that he absolutely refused to permit the child to bear his name. He said that he would continue to reside with his wife until the child was two or three years of age and that he would then live apart from her. Mrs. Muscarella stated that she contemplated suicide by drinking iodine, but was not courageous enough to do so and that in order to persuade her husband to continue to live with her she decided to kill the infant. Sunday night about 15 hours after the child was born and when the baby was lying between the mother and Muscarella, the former awoke and decided then to slay it. She seized the baby by the throat and choked it, but a gurgling sound from the infant caused the woman to desist. She aroused her husband and informed him that the baby was dead, but when Muscarella examined the child he decided that it was breathing. He returned to sleep and then Mrs. Muscarella again seized the baby by the throat and this time she was successful in strangling it. She aroused her husband at 5 o'clock and Muscarella realized that the child was dead, especially when his wife informed him of her rash act. At 7 o'clock a physician was called to prescribe for the child. When the baby was examined impressions of fingers on the throat aroused the suspicion of the physician, who notified Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman, who later examined the baby and arrived at the conclusion that the baby had been choked to death. He reported his suspicion to the prosecuting authorities and Mrs. Muscarella was ordered taken to the hospital where she made her admissions unhesitatingly and with full knowledge that she would be prosecuted. The young mother's parents have gone to her assistance and have retained an attorney to defend her when she is presented in court.

Ralph, Jr., infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Harris, died yesterday after a brief illness. The funeral was held this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the residence of the child's parents and burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Miss Dorothy King, of 8 Granite street; Miss Alice Derry, 30 1-2 Truman street; Sidney Porter, United States Coast Guard academy and Mrs. Jesse Champion, of South Lyme, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

James N. Show has sold an undivided one-half interest in a building lot on Montauk avenue to Robert Tetreault. Tetreault has since sold the realty to Thomas F. Mullen.

Silas Maxson, Jr., has sold to Douglas J. Rathbun a building lot on the recently developed tract south of Thames street and between Montauk and Pequot avenues.

Daniel C. Patterson, of Bridgeport; Emma E. Patterson Mather, of Norwich, and Maude L. Patterson Barker and Grace A. Patterson, both of Niantic, have sold to John J. and Catherine Maloney a house and lot on Terrace avenue.

An automobile truck owned by the Max Pollack company, of Poquonoc road, Groton, was struck by a New Haven railroad switch engine last night at the union station crossing, the crash being the result of a confusion of signals by the crossing tender. The truck was damaged, but the driver escaped injury.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel has ordered the suspension of the driver's license of Moses Selesnitsky, 28 Cedar street.

Frank LaFemina, 44 Smith street, was in the police court this morning charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law, in driving while his license is under suspension. He was fined $100 and costs. LaFemina, who was arrested this morning by Automobile Patrol Officer Augustus Ray, was convicted in the police court several weeks on two counts of violation of the liquor law, he having been arrested at Fort Neck where he was dispensing liquor to members of the United States Coast Guard.

The condition of Thomas Dombroski, 28, of Potter street, who suffered a fractured skull a week ago when struck by an automobile driven by Leslie Hewitt, 79 Phillips street, continues critical at Lawrence-Memorial hospital.

The Young People's department of the First Baptist church, last night held a party at the church. Over 400 were entertained. An elaborate program had been prepared and was topped by the serving of refreshments. The success of the entertainment was due to the efforts of Roy Cole, Kenneth Eddy, Ida Pollard, Priscilla Sellew, Marion Moon, Paul Constantine and Raymond Griswold. The program consisted of a series of skits and songs. Prizes were given for the best poem submitted and for the highest percentage of attendance by any group of the church association.

The Master Plumbers' association was hospitably entertained last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Rockholtz on Broad street extension. Music and dancing formed the evening's program. At 10 o'clock supper was served.

Members of the Neptune club celebrated their eighth anniversary last night by staging a banquet in the Jibboom club rooms. A roast chicken dinner was served at 6.30 to thirty-three members. Afterwards the recently elected officers were installed by Mrs. Carrie Davenport, assisted by Mrs. Nellie Balcom.

Activities of the Health Week movement which has been observed by the different clubs of the Y. M. C. A. and the Visiting nurse association drew to a close last night with the presentation of a play entitled "Never too late to mend," to the Methodist Episcopal church. The play was written by a Connecticut college girl, and students of the school made up the cast.

FEARING SUICIDE ATTEMPT, MOTHER TAKEN TO NORWICH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 20—This evening Medical Examiner Kaufman ordered Mrs. Muscarella taken to Norwich State hospital for she apparently was intent on taking her life. Since the young woman has been a patient at the hospital she has made two attempts to destroy herself, especially since she was questioned last night by Detective Sergeants Cavanaugh, Smith and County Detective Lewis when she made a confession, showing that her killing of the babe was premeditated and planned. After Medical Examiner Kaufman had issued his order for the transfer of the woman to Brewster's Neck, Patrolman Patrick Sheehan, accompanied by a nurse took the young woman to the state institution. The trip was made without incident the mother of the dead infant apparently being in a composed state and not suffering from shock, nervousness or excitement.

Mrs. H. S. Richardson, of Boston, who is a guest at the Hotel Mohican, reported to the police tonight that her extension bag had been taken apparently by mistake by Stella Rosenberg, 309 Johnston avenue, or 253 Van Horne street, Jersey City, N. J. Mrs. Richardson requested the New London police to have her property returned to New London as she would be at the hotel several days. The Jersey City police were requested to assist the New London police in recovering the lost bag.

JOHN C. GEARY'S FUNERAL TO BE HELD THIS MORNING

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 20—The funeral of John C. Geary, prominent local attorney who died March 18 at Daytona Beach, Fla., will be held Wednesday morning at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. A solemn mass of requiem will be celebrated, the officers of the mass being Fathers Timothy M. Crowley, D. D. George Clark, Michael Reagan and Raymond J. O'Callahan, with Rev. William C. Fitzsimons, pastor of St. Joseph's church.

Besides a large representation of members of the New London County Bar association there will be present many city officials and men and women in various callings. The honorary bearers will be Arthur Keefe, Jeremiah Dillon, Edward S. Neilan, James T. Sexton, Patrick L. Shea and Thomas L. Reilly. The active bearers will be members of Niagara Engine company. Arthur R. Thompson, Willard D. Harris, Alvin S. Darling, Andrew J. Collins, Cornelius D Twomey, John Courtney and Dennis Cavanaugh. In order that members of the bar may attend the funeral there will be no morning session of the superior court, that tribunal not to convene until 1:30 o'clock.

Mayor James A. May is receiving plenty of compliments today because of his attitude at the meeting of the city council last evening, in opposing the appointment of Hibbard N. Alexander as tax collector by the city manager, in place of the present collector, Allen C. Richards, in an effort to collect back taxes. As Mr. Alexander's salary has been tentatively fixed at $15,000, the taxpayers are wondering why Tax Collector Richards could not exercise his best efforts to collect the tax without someone entirely unfamiliar with the work being called upon, more especially since Mr. Richards is to be retained in the office, but more from a clerical point than anything else. However, Mr. Richards' knowledge of the tax collection is to be used by Mr. Alexander, who has had no experience in such matters. Mayor May is determined that the retaining of the services of Mr. Alexander shall not be simply through the hiring of Mr. Alexander by the city manager, but that Mr. Alexander shall show his ability to collect the taxes due the city. Collector Richards has had the services of the deputy sheriffs of New London county to collect the taxes and no provision other than that to collect the taxes can be made. Mayor May is emphatic in his statement that the retaining of Mr. Alexander would mean causing needless expenditure by the city.

Rockville-Willimantic Lighting Co.

When one enters the new showroom of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company at 850 Main street, Willimantic, there is a strong inclination to momentarily relinquish accepted business terms and think of the spacious establishment as "complete from soup to nuts." This phraseology of the dietician becomes so applicable when one considers that in the elaborate display is to be found everything in the latest and approved gas and electrical appliances. Special trained representatives under Sales Manager George L. Black stand prepared to give free advisory service and demonstrations. Among these representatives are schooled agents for the famous Frigidaire which is adaptable for residences, restaurants, meat markets, in fact any place where refrigeration is needed. The Glenwood gas ranges, made by one of the oldest New England manufacturies and producing only products approved by the bureau of standards and specifications, stand as another feature. These many appliances and many of smaller and less expensive nature that are becoming the standard equipment of the modern home are offered to the public on installments. Reductions may be secured through monthly sales and special value sales on Fridays. The extensive showroom in Willimantic is the centre of similar activities in Stafford Springs and Rockville and throughout the company's wide service area.

Strand Theatre

Showing at the Strand is an unusually human and sound story from the pen of Gerald Beaumond. "Lefty" Flynn, the star is given a chance to show the stuff he is really made of in "Mulhall's Great Catch." Based on the heated rivalry between the police and fire departments of the same city and culminating in the animated interest with which the two forces cheer for the respective favorites for the hand of lovely Nora McCarron, the story leaps from howl to howl with the agility of a comedy chamois and a good one half dozen thrills. A fireman and policeman's ball which Lefty attends after his dress-suit is somewhat shot up while putting out a fire is one of the big riots of the film. Kathleen Myers is the leading lady and Harry Victor plays the part of Otto Nelson, the cop rival of Lefty Flynn.

The other feature picture is "Easy Going Gordon" an airplane stunt picture and has for its star, the clever daredevil of the clouds Richard Holt. The story is a novel one and is full of breath taking thrills. This cloud flyer certainly does his stuff "way up there" and his clever stunts add much to an already interesting story. This is a picture that the boys will like, plenty of pep, action and thrills.

"Aesop's Fables" is also being shown.

Bean Hole Beans

Kitchens seem to grow smaller every year, but appetites remain the same size!

It does seem, at times, impossible to keep anything in the cupboard. Just when the cake is baked, and the jam pot full, small son and daughter make a raid. And even hungry husbands have been found in front of the icebox!

New, appetizing dishes are so hard to find, "different" meals so hard to plan. Meals that will satisfy for once that seemingly irrepressible desire for food that growing children have.

No longer can you draw from the immense sacks of flour, the hams, the apple barrels that were the joy of grandmother's heart. Storage rooms nowadays—alas, where are they? Usually you are lucky if you have a shelf or two where you can keep a well-chosen array of canned goods, to give variety to the family meals.

Fortunately, this modern arrangement does not leave you always the loser. Did grandmother, for instance, even in that era of huge storerooms, ever command a Maine Woods outdoor oven? She may have heard that beans baked in such an oven had a mellow tenderness, a fragrant flavor, that no other beans had. But only those who lived in the forest could have such beans. Other people had to be content with the stove-cooked variety.

Now anyone, anywhere, can enjoy that old-time savor—the deliciousness of the Maine Woods beans. Bean Hole Beans, they are called, and they're an adventure in food flavor! They seem to have recaptured that wonderful woods flavor—the zest of the outdoors, the fragrance of pine and birch and a sweeping wind.

The lumberjacks called for them three times a day, those beans from the bean hole. Small wonder, then, that the new Bean Hole Beans immediately became popular with the whole family. They're a hearty, appetizing, mansize meal.

Conn. College Concert

Jascha Heifetz, after an absence of two years, returned this season for his longest American tour,—one which will take him from coast to coast and from Canada to Cuba and Mexico.

During the past eighteen months he has been giving concerts in sixteen countries, crossing the Atlantic six times and the Mediterranean three times. His return to America for this year's tour marks his fifth journey across the Pacific.

No longer the boy prodigy who came to us out of the World war, Heifetz, at twenty-seven, is today a mature artist whose place among the great is firmly established. In the two years he has been abroad he has won the plaudits of London, Paris, Berlin, and the great provincial cities of France, England, Scandinavia and Australia.

His American tour opened in San Francisco the middle of October. From there he proceeded to Southern California and back to the northwest of Oregon and Canada. His tour in the east began in New York January 4, and from here he will go south and then again to the north and middle west, where he will finish about the end of April. During this extended journey he will be heard in sixty cities. He will come to New London March 28 playing under the auspices of Connecticut college.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

St. Mary's Players

One reason for the success of St. Mary's plays is due to the time and effort which are put into them. No cast has worked harder than the present one, and for this reason the public is to see an excellent performance. To say that what they and the director have done is appreciated, giving as they have so generously and willingly of their time and efforts, and displaying such a fine spirit of cooperation and good will, is to put it mildly. Their work is recognized and appreciated as is that of the programs committee. We wish to thank them for what they have done. This organization holds together well, due to the loyal spirit of the players and workers—past and present—and also to the fact and hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Murphy. Tonight, then, we should have a full house. A good show is ready for you. If you have not a ticket, get one today.

Breed Theatre

"2 Girls Wanted," Janet Gaynor's first starring vehicle for Fox films, comes to the Breed theatre for a two day run beginning today.

Since her sudden rise to stardom as "Diane" in "7th Heaven," critics, producers and the public have been waiting to see whether or not this brilliant young actress would live up to the record she set in her first big picture. Those who have followed her career through the less important features had no fear at all for her future, and, according to the reviews on "2 Girls Wanted," those in doubt may put their fears aside.

For if the advance reports are to be believed, Miss Gaynor sets a new mark for herself as a comedienne in the film version of Gladys Unger's delightful play which established her definitely in the front ranks of screen stars.

"2 Girls Wanted" is the story of the struggles of two typical American working girls. As the spunky little Marianna, Miss Gaynor carries the burdens of the family fortunes on her shoulders, bolstering up the courage of her less optimistic sister.

Marie Mosquini, who played the part of Madame Gobin in "7th Heaven," is the sister in the play, and Glenn Tryon the hero.

Tom Tyler and his pals in "The Cherokee Kid," Tyler's latest western release will be the added attraction.

Gem Theatre, Willimantic

To provide entertainment to please the hundreds of visitors that will visit Willimantic at the spring opening Thursday and Friday, the management of the Gem theatre has arranged a double feature program of two of the newest pictures obtainable. Heading the bill is Marion Davies in "The Patsy." This is leap year and Marion makes up her mind to get her man. He escapes in a high-speed boat, but don't for a moment think our Marion is stopped. The picture tells the rest of the story.

Second on the bill is "Lady Raffles" with beautiful Estelle Taylor, presenting a tense drama with an unusual twist blending dramatic moments with a strong love interest. With this program, the management feels sure of maintaining the reputation that the Gem is one of the most up-to-date theatres in the state. Mats. 2:15; evenings, 7-9.

Palace Theatre

Starting Thursday for three days the Palace offers one of the strangest acts in the modern show world. It is George Lovett's "Concentration," a mystery which has baffled scientists and for which no student of the physical or occult has yet been able to offer an explanation. Two beautiful young ladies occupy the stage and will take mental suggestions from the audience and play compositions suggested, on the piano and violin. These suggestions are at times whispered to Mr. Lovett as he moves up and down the aisles. Instantly the girls go into the opening strains of the number and play a few bars. Sometimes the person in the audience merely "thinks" the melody of a song, and the musicians begin playing where the man or woman start thinking.

Adding still greater mystery, Georgia Templeton, described as the "Girl with the X-ray mind" will answer questions asked by the audience. Persons may write their queries on a slip of paper and she will give them a correct reply to their questions.

In addition to this great offering there will be four more acts of supreme vaudeville.

The feature picture will be "The Shield of Honor" with Neil Hamilton, Ralph Lewis and Dorothy Gulliver. It is a story of the inside workings of a metropolitan police force and shows how an officer of the law lives, loves and fights. It was written by Emelie Johnson and directed by her son Emory Johnson. The picture has only one thrill but that thrill grips you as the first scene flashes becomes part of you as the action moves swiftly forward, wrings you dry in the shooting sparks of its elemental conflict and holds you to the last drop of its enthralling romance.

CUPRACK HOUSE IS TOTAL LOSS BY FIRE

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed a two-story frame house on Gallows Hill road, the residence of the owner, Louis Cuprack, shortly after 2:30 o'clock Tuesday morning. The loss, covered by insurance, is estimated at $16,000.

Mrs. Cuprack was awakened by a crackling noise and called Mr. Cuprack, who, investigating, saw a shower of sparks coming from the roof of the house. The fire department was notified and the Yantic company and Squad A responded, but were able to do little, owing to lack of water. The firemen directed their attention to a nearby garage which was threatened several times. The house and all contents were practically destroyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Cuprack and two children hurriedly left the house, and were barely able to save enough clothing to wear. Some furniture was removed from the ground floor of the burning building. JUDGE TO CHARGE JURY IN $12,000 SUIT BROUGHT FOR HALLVILLE GIRL

When the superior court comes in for its afternoon session today (Wednesday) at New London, Judge C. L. Avery will charge the jury in the two suits brought for $12,000 damages on behalf of Geneva Genishevsky of Hallville, a girl 5 1-2 years old, against Isadore Fishbone of Norwich and Israel Chiat of Preston, for injuries she sustained when struck by a truck owned by Fishbone and driven by Chiat. The accident happened March 30, 1927 while the girl was in the yard of her home at Hallville.

After the plaintiff's evidence was all in Tuesday morning, attorneys for the defendants moved for non-suit, but Judge Avery denied the motion after hearing it argued in the absence of the jury from the court room.

The little girl claims that her foot is permanently twisted because of the accident, there has been a half-inch shortening of her leg and that she is suffering from open sores which are a result of the accident.

Trial of the case began last Thursday but came to an abrupt adjournment that noon, when Representive Mason Manning, of Stonington, who was sitting on the jury, fainted and was taken to the hospital, from which institution, he was sent to his home after several hours of rest. Mr. Manning returned to court Tuesday, apparently none the worse for the experience and is sitting upon the jury.

Robert McBurney, Norwich grocery clerk, and son of former Superior Court Messenger McBurney of Norwich; Isadore Fishbone, Jerod Gallup, auto mechanic of Preston; and Constable Charles Hill were called by the defense Tuesday morning.

The later, under cross-examination, told of passing the truck before the accident, and said that he did not see Chiat, the alleged driver, on the truck. He said that he was about 100 feet when he heard a child crying but said he attached no importance to it. He said he did not know of the accident until several hours later, when the girl's father came to him to make a report.

Hill was followed on the stand by Howard C. Cummings, of Hallville, a mill-hand.

Other defense witnesses were Dr. John W. Calahan and Dr. James J. Donahue of Norwich. The defense rested at 12.52 o'clock and when court opened at 2 o'clock, following the noon recess, several rebuttal witnesses for the plaintiff were put on.

The arguments were then made by Attorneys Charles W. Cassidy and Thomas M. Shields for the plaintiff and Attorneys John H. Barnes and Charles V. James for the defendants.

CONNECTICUT IS ASKING $559,373 FROM WASHINGTON

A bill introduced by Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, directing the secretary of the treasury to pay to the state of Connecticut the sum of $559,373.40 on account of expenditures made by the state in the war of 1812, has been favorably reported by the senate committee on claims.

Connecticut, although opposed to the declaration of war in 1812, did her part in the conduct of the war after the decision had been made. She furnished troops, supplies and money at the request of the federal government, and her seacoast towns, including New London, Norwalk and Stonington, suffered heavy damage at the hands of British sea and land forces which were seeking to bottle up Long Island sound and thus destroy the commerce of New York.

During the period from Nov. 25, 1813, to April 14, 1815, Connecticut obtained from her several banks loans totaling $130,000 all of which was used in the prosecution of the war. On these loans the state paid six per cent. interest.

Prior to 1817 the federal government due to the capture and burning of Washington by the British, was unable to meet its obligations to the state of Connecticut. After that time, until 1838, several payments were made, returning a total of approximately $115,000 to the state.

The larger part of the $559,000 included in Senator Bingham's claim on behalf of his state is for interest, based on a more recent decision of the federal government, in which payments to the state of Maryland set a precedent, of paying accrued interest to states which themselves had paid interest on such loans.

BOUCHARD OF TAFTVILLE GIVEN FINE OF $200

NEW HAVEN, March 20—(AP)—Changing their pleas to guilty, Ovilard Bouchard, of 11 Merchants avenue, Taftville, and Mark Dwyer, of 74 Grove street, Meriden, both charged with violation of the national prohibition act, were fined $200 and $300 respectively, in the U. S. district court here today.

The demurrer to Bouchard's motion to quash the indictment, entered by John A. Danaher, assistant U. S. attorney, was sustained in court by Judge Edwin S. Thomas, today, when the case came up. Bouchard had attempted to have the indictment quashed on the ground that the search warrant issued by Commissioner Earl W. Mathewson, Jan. 25, was illegal.

Dwyer's conviction today was the second for the same offense this year. He was previously convicted on a charge of possessing intoxicating liquor on Jan. 28 and fined $150. In addition to the $300 fine, Dwyer was given a suspended sentence of 90 days at the session today.

POSTPONEMENT IN TRIAL BY COUNSELS' AGREEMENT

By agreement of counsel for both sides the $200 damage suit brought by Demetrio Chinigo, Norwich contractor, against Walter Nawrocki and Martin Kozerensky, both of Norwich, was continued until March 31, when it will be tried before the court of common pleas there. The case was slated to be heard before Judge Charles B. Waller in New London Tuesday.

Chinigo claimed that he was hired by Kozerensky to excavate for a garage at 85 High street upon property owned by Nawrocki.

Old Folks Say Doctor Caldwell was Right

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will last a family several months, and all can use it. It is good for the baby because pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. In the proper dose, given in the directions, it is equally effective at all ages. Elderly people will find it especially ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

Gradually the public is being convinced of the importance of this modern adjunct for assistance in correct diagnosis and is already giving material aid. In order that the project may be a success, however, it is necessary that still further support be given, which the auxiliary has confidence will be accorded upon a fuller realization of the efficacy of the X-ray department.

COOLIDGE REITERATES HIS DESIRE NOT TO BE CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION

The President Has Declined to Accede to a Request Made by the Wyoming State Central Committee—Though His Secretary, Mr. Coolidge Refused to "Waive His Personal Preference"—First Expression of Definiteness Since the President's Famous Black Hills Statement Last Summer in Which He Said He Did "Not Choose to Run in 1928."

WASHINGTON, March 21—(AP)—Once again President Coolidge has reiterated his desire not to be a candidate for re-election.

He declined today to accede to a request of the Wyoming republican state central committee that he "waive his personal preference and consent to continue for an additional four years that leadership which has brought honor and prosperity to this country."

He made known his declination in a letter from his secretary, Everett Sanders, to L. C. Hinkle, chairman of the committee.

"The president has received your letter of the seventeenth enclosing a copy of the resolution adopted by the republican state committee of Wyoming on March 10," said the Sanders letter to Hinkle. "While he, of course, very greately appreciates and thanks you for the expression of confidence, the president directs me to say that he must decline to grant the request of the committee."

The president, unexpectedly in the Black Hills last August, first announced his unwillingness to stand for re-election in his terse "I do not choose to run" statement. Early in December, addressing members of the republican national committee in the East room of the white house, he elaborated on this announcement, advising his party leaders that he regarded himself "eliminated" from the 1928 presidential campaign. At that time he said his decision would be respected and he urged the party to set itself to the selection of "another candidate."

Since then, there has been nothing further from the president until today's indirect message to the Wyoming republican organization. Despite his August and December statements, however, there has been persistent talk in some quarters of "drafting" him as a candidate.

Georgia republicans, in convention, urged him to agree to become a candidate promising him the support of that state's delegation to the Kansas City convention in the event he would do so. A number of individuals, regarded as leaders in the republican party, also have been talking of a "draft" movement of late.

Among them are Charles D. Hilles, of New York, vice chairman of the republican national committee, Mayor Thompson of Chicago, and C. Bascom Slemp, of Virginia, former secretary to Mr. Coolidge.

As late as last Saturday, Slemp, before the republican state convention at Roanoke, Va., spoke of the possibility of continuing Mr. Coolidge in office for another term, but today, even before the Sanders letter to the Wyoming republicans, had been made public, Slemp in a statement announced that he favored the nomination of Herbert Hoover.

DEATH SENTENCE OF MRS. M'DONALD COMMUTED

OTTAWA, Ont., March 21—(AP)—The red gallows raised at Valleyfield, Que., for the hanging of a husband and wife on Friday is to be used to carry out the sentence of death only against the husband, George McDonald.

The governor-general today signed orders in council commuting the sentence to life imprisonment, as it affected Mrs. Doris Palmer McDonald. The orders confirmed the death sentence imposed upon McDonald.

Word of the commutation was sent by telegraph to Montreal and was carried to the young wife from the United States as she waited in the Fullum street women's jail to be taken to Valleyfield with her husband. She received the information with tears, for she was told at the same time that her husband must hang alone on the gallows prepared for them both.

The McDonalds were convicted of the murder of Adelard Bouchard, a Lachine, Que., taxi driver, whose body was found in a roadside pool of water last July. The young husband and wife were arrested the next month in Butte, Mont., and extradited to Canada where they were convicted and sentenced to death in December.

NAVY SUPPLY CALLS FOR EXPENDITURE OF $359,190,000

WASHINGTON, March 21—(AP)—Funds to carry forward a host of new naval activities, including the construction of eight 10,000-ton cruisers, two fleet submarines, two dirigibles and 271 airplanes, were asked today n the annual navy department supply bill reported to the house.

The measure, drafted by the house appropriations committee, called for a total expenditure of $359,190,000—the largest naval appropriation asked of congress since the Washington limitations conference.

The committee, in a report written by Representative French, republican, Idaho, said that there was no immediate prospect of a declining naval cost and that all indications pointed to an appreciable upward trend.

While the bill's total was $1,288,000 below budget estimates, it represented an increase of $20,384,000 above present appropriations. Most of this increase was necessitated by funds for aviation equipment and the eight cruisers.

WIRELESS TELLS OF RESCUE OF SHIPWRECKED SAILORS

NEW YORK, March 21—(AP)—Wireless reports today told of the rescue of six men of the crew of the Nova Scotian schooner General Byng, 500 miles east of New York, and indicated that the shipwrecked sailors will have to return home by way of Sweden.

The report was received by the Swedish-American line from its motor freighter, Korsholm, outward bound for Stockholm. The report merely told that the men were rescued and gave no details explaining why a rescue was necessary or what had become of the General Byng.

The General Byng, a 196-ton craft, was bound for St. Johns, N. F., from Kingston, Jamaica. Officials of the Swedish-American line believed the rescued men would be taken to Stockholm aboard the Korsholm and there transferred to some English ship for their return.

ARRESTED ON WARRANT CHARGING BENCH HOMICIDE

TORRINGTON, March 21—(AP)—Loftus Day, of Unionville, was arrested on a search warrant on the charge of bench homicide. The warrant was issued by Judge Elbert B. Hamlin, of the court of common pleas.

Day was the driver of an automobile on the Torrington-Winsted road, New Year's eve, in which Earl Minor was killed as the result of the car turning over. He was brought to the court after court was adjourned for the day and too late for bail, so was taken to the Litchfield jail for the night.

MASS. HOUSE PASSES BILL FOR 2 CENT GASOLINE TAX

BOSTON, March 21—(AP)—After a two hour debate in the state house of representatives today a bill providing for a two cent gasoline tax was passed to be engrossed by a roll call vote 116 to 98. The bill will appear on the calendar of the senate tomorrow for action by the body.

REPORTS OF UNEMPLOYMENT HAVE BEEN EXAGGERATED

WASHINGTON, March 21—(AP)—Undue alarm has been occasioned in the country by recent "exaggerated reports" as to the amount of unemployment existing in industry and commerce, the United States employment service declared today in publishing its monthly review of conditions for February. A winter slackening of industry did occur, Director Jones of the service asserted, and a considerable number of workers were jobless, but he also declared that consumption had increased and that the prospect was good.

"The horizon is clearing, and the employment outlook is encouraging," the summary declared. "The iron and steel industry, long recognized as a reliable barometer, has shown a definite improvement. Orders for structural materials, railroad cars, rails, and other equipment, not to mention the increase in demand for automobile materials, practically assured a steady increase to forces employed. With the advent of spring a further improvement in the unemployment situation will materialize."

ACREAGES OF IMPORTANT CROPS IN NEW ENGLAND

BOSTON, March 21—(AP)—Increased acreages of important crops in New England are indicated by reports from many farmers throughout the district, the New England crop reporting service announced today.

These reports indicated that the New England potato acreage this year may be expected to total 219,000 acres, an increase of 6.3 per cent. over last year, when the total was 206,000 acres. It was estimated that there would be a 10 per cent. increase in Vermont, eight per cent. in Massachusetts, six per cent. in Maine and New Hampshire, with a decrease of one per cent. in Rhode Island. No change was forecast in the Connecticut acreage.

Corn acreage, the reports disclosed, probably will increase in New England from 224,000 to 234,000 acres, or 4.4 per cent. The returns also forecast an increase from 248,000 to 268,000 acres of oats, a gain of 8.1 per cent. The acreage developed to hay this year is a fraction less than a year ago, while the tobacco acreage will be slightly greater than in 1927, the farmers reports showed.

13 ALPINE CLUB MEMBERS CAUGHT IN AN AVALANCHE

SALZBURG, Austria, March 21—(AP)—Thirteen members of an Alpine club attempting to descend from Kolm peak of Sonnblick range, behind the valley of Gastein, on skis, were caught by an avalanche this evening. Four others in the party succeeded in extricating themselves.

The run was attempted in a blinding snowstorm which was so severe that a party of 35 soldiers who were practicing maneuvers on skis near where the catastrophe occurred, were unable to aid the buried Alpinists. The soldiers received the signals of distress from the four club members, who dug their way out of the avalanche, but could not approach the place closely enough to effect rescues of the others.

The Sonnblick range has an extreme height of 10,160 feet above sea level. A meteorological station on its summit is said to be the highest in Europe. The valley of Gastein is a deep vale about 25 miles long.

DEATH OF THOMAS A. WISE, WIDELY KNOWN ACTOR

NEW YORK, March 21—(AP)—Thomas A. Wise, widely known character actor and shepherd of the Lambs club, died of heart disease tonight in his apartment at the forty-fourth street hotel. He was 62 years old.

Mr. Wise became ill while appearing in Chicago in "Behold This Dreamer," and returned to New York a month ago to recuperate. He collapsed yesterday as he was leaving the Lambs club.

Born in Faversham, England, March 23, 1866, he was brought to America when three years of age. He had earned his own living since he was nine years old and began his stage career at Dixon, California in 1883. He first appeared in New York at the old Bijou theatre in 1888 as Arthur Wilson in "Los in New York."

Mr. Wise was serving his second term as shepherd-president of the Lambs club.

LONDON, March 21—(AP)—Exchange Telegraph company dispatches from Brussels say that the police of that city have invited Alexander Subkoff, husband of Princess Victoria, sister of the former Kaiser Wilhelm, to leave Brussels as quickly as he can arrange to do so.

BUILDER OF ST. FRANCIS DAM TEARFUL WHILE TESTIFYING

LOS ANGELES, Calif., March 21—(AP)—A coroner's jury today heard from the quivering lips of the man who built the St. Francis dam how a silent warning came from the reservoir itself that all was not well eleven hours before the great concrete structure collapsed and dealt death in a mighty deluge over little Santa Clara river valley.

The warning was a muddy waters that trickled from the 185 foot retaining wall, indicating, according to the engineer that conditions was "bad, very bad" and that there was a leak through the earth about the structure.

It was William Mulholland, veteran chief engineer of Los Angeles city department of water and power who gave the testimony. In his face and figure was reflected the great tragedy of the little valley. His testimony was given in a dramatic hush.

"I envy only those who are dead," he said. "We must have overlooked something." The veteran engineer—he is 72 years old—nearly gave way to his emotions.

He had visited St. Francis dam in San Francisquito canyon 11 hours before its collapse. Leak conditions were "bad, very bad."

In the tears that rolled down the engineer's cheeks and in the sobs that shook his aged body, could be seen the reaction to the knowledge that probably more than 400 persons had died when the dam—his dam—gave way before its load of twelve billion gallons of water.

The dam always had been the driest of the nineteen built by Mulholland or any that he had seen throughout the country, he said.

VICTIMS TRIED TO BATTER HOLES THROUGH HULL OF S-4

BOSTON, March 21—(AP)—Evidence that the last hours of some of the 40 men who died on the sunken submarine S-4 were spent in frantic attempts to batter a hole through the hull was uncovered today by the naval board of investigation.

Cold chisels, hand wrenches and several other battering tools were found spread about the oozy debris on the motor room deck, the compartment where most of the crew died. The walls were battered and scarred by many heavy blows and one spot indicated that an attempt had been made to cut through with a chisel. The walls of the small tiller room bore the same marks, as did the torpedo compartment, where Lieut. Graham N. Fitch and his five comrades lived for 72 hours until, one by one, they were overcome by carbon monoxide gas and toppled into the shallow water to drown.

FRANCE WILL REPLY TO KELLOGG'S NOTE SATURDAY

PARIS, March 21—(AP)—The French government's reply to Secretary Kellogg's note of March 1 for a pact looking to the outlawry of war, will probably be ready for transmission Saturday. It emphasizes that an agreement must be signed by "all powers," not merely the six big powers.

The reply is couched in most conciliatory terms and expresses the deepest approval of Mr. Kellogg's project for outlawing all war. The French note makes a restriction respecting necessary measures to be taken should one of the signatory nations desire to withdraw from the agreement.

The term "aggressive wars" will be missing from the French reply.

THRONGS AT FUNERAL OF REV. DR. JAMES P. DONOVAN

MIDDLETOWN, March 21—Many communicants of the Roman Catholic faith, and many of other beliefs stood without St. John's church this morning while the pontifical high mass of requiem was sung within for the pastor, Rev. Dr. James P. Donovan, who died on Sunday. The church edifice itself was not ample enough in its accommodations for all the mourners, and those outside were numbered in the hundreds.

While the services were held business houses closed out of respect for Dr. Donovan. After the mass the funeral cortege bore the body to St. John's cemetery where committal services were read and burial made.

BOSTON, March 21—(AP)—The Boston owners of the four-masted schooner John C. Hildebrand received word today that the vessel, which sailed from Norfolk, March 14, for Eastport, Me., coal laden, had been sighted abandoned and in a sinking condition off the New Jersey coast. Her crew apparently had been taken off by a fishing vessel, the advices said.

Lindbergh Receives Congressional Medal

President Coolidge Presents Highest Emblem That the Nation Can Bestow.

WASHINGTON, March 21—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today received from the hands of President Coolidge the highest recognition of personal achievement that the nation can bestow—the Congressional Medal of Honor. By noon, more than three hundred were on hand to be augmented by a large group of cabinet officers and other high government officials.

Attended by enthusiastic applause, Mr. Coolidge circled the aviator's head with the blue ribbon of the medal.

"I offer you my heartiest congratulations," he said, adding that the medal was voted by congress for "heroic courage and great skill" displayed in the flight from New York to Paris. Col. Lindbergh, he continued, had "not only achieved the greatest personal triumph of any American citizen, but had shown that trans-Atlantic flying was possible."

A short while later, another honor was added to the aviator's unrivalled list, when Secretary Davis of the war department presented Lindbergh with a special medal from the Ligue Aeronautique of France. Accompanying it was a bound record of the trans-Atlantic flight, containing the signatures of many prominent Frenchmen. It was known as the "Livre d'Or," or "Book of Gold."

Secretary Hoover, Secretary Wilbur and Postmaster General New, in addition to Mr. Davis, represented the cabinet at the presentation. Vice President Dawes also was there, as were Senators Curtis of Kansas, and Robinson of Arkansas, majority and minority leaders in the senate, Representatives Tilson of Connecticut and Garrett of Tennessee, majority and minority leaders in the house, Assistant Secretary Warner, in charge of naval aeronautics, Rear Admiral Moffett, Chief of Staff Major General Charles P. FORMER GOV. SPROUL OF PENNSYLVANIA DEAD

CHESTER, Pa., March 21—(AP)—William C. Sproul, former governor of Pennsylvania, died at his home, Lapidea Manor, near here, tonight at 9:30 o'clock. Mr. Sproul, who was widely known in business and financial circles, had an attack of pneumonia a year ago and had not been in good health since. He was able to devote some attention to his many business interests, but spent much of his time at Lapidea Manor, his estate near here.

He was stricken with a heart attack shortly after Christmas and had since been confined to his home. For a month previous to that he had been ailing, his last public appearance having been at a dinner given by the Union league of Philadelphia at which President Coolidge was the guest of honor on Nov. 17. WASHINGTON, March 21—(AP)—The story of an alleged wholesale cotton market ring, leading up to the price smash of 1927, which took Arthur R. Judge Influenced by Personal Interests

Charge Made by Union Counsel Before Senate Coal Investigating Committee.

WASHINGTON, March 21—(AP)—Charges that personal interests influenced Judge I. G. Lazelle, Morgantown W. Va., to refuse a writ of injunction to require the Paisley coal interests to operate their mines under the Baltimore wage agreement with the United Mine Workers were made before the senate coal investigation committee today by Van A. Bittner, union counsel.

Bittner testified that Secretary Hoover had declared the Baltimore agreement to be a binding contract in a conversation with him and I[illegible]d advised him to file suit on behalf of the union to force its observance. The suit subsequently filed, he said, was turned down by Judge Lazelle with a criticism of the contract and a tirade against the United Mine Workers.

An investigation disclosed, he said, that the judge was receiving as much as $60,000 a year royalty from coal mined from lands leased by him to the Paisley interests. He said he had urged that impeachment proceedings be instituted against Judge Lazelle in 1926, but that these had never been brought to the attention of the state legislature.

COMMITTEE MAY TAKE TESTIMONY OF FALL

WASHINGTON, March 21—(AP)—A subcommittee of the senate Teapot Dome committee may be sent to Three Rivers, N. M., in an effort to obtain the full testimony of Albert B. Fall about the naval oil leases.

This matter was considered by the entire committee this afternoon after information had been received from newspaper sources that Fall had stated he was ready "to tell" since his physicians had informed him he had only a few months more to live.

The committee finally decided to send Fall a telegram saying that a subcommittee would be sent to Three Rivers if he was ready to testify in full.

Fall once refused to testify before the committee in 1924 after the oil scandal broke. Taking the ground that for him to do so would tend to incriminate him. He also failed to take the stand when he was tried and acquitted with Edward L. Doheny.

CATHERINE TIERNEY HAS RETURNED TO HER FAMILY

NEW YORK, March 21—(AP)—After more than a month's experience as maid in the home of a New York dye importer, Catherine Elizabeth Tierney, whose disappearance last month from Mary Mount college received wide publicity, has returned to her family.

Harry L. Lobsenz, in whose home Miss Tierney was found working nearly three weeks after she had left the school in which she was a freshman, said today that a delegation of relatives visited the girl Saturday and persuaded her to give up her work. He did not know whether she went to the Middletown, Conn., home of her parents.

Miss Tierney's aunt, Mrs. Martin Rogers, declined to say where her niece was staying, but said that if she still wished to be self-supporting her family would aid her in obtaining another position. Lobsenz said Miss Tierney was "a nice girl, and made a good maid."

CONTEST OVER PAYMENT OF A PHYSICIAN'S BILL

STAFFORD SPRINGS, March 21—(AP)—Controversy over the payment of a physician's bill for examination of school children wishing to obtain work certificates has apparently developed here between state and town authorities it was revealed today.

Town Treasurer J. Carl Converse, in a statement issued today, said that the town of Stafford would not pay a bill for services rendered by Dr. W. B. Bean in making physical examinations of school pupils applying for work certificates.

The state board of education has refused to issue any more certificates in the town until this bill has been paid, according to Town Attorney M. D. O'Connell. He said that the state is liable for the bill and that the town has not been paying for such services since 1924.

DELEGATES AT GENEVA ARE AGAINST THE SOVIET PLAN FOR DISARMAMENT

GENEVA, March 21—(AP)—Twenty-two of the 25 countries represented on the preparatory committee for a disarmament conference—are lined up tonight against the soviet plan for immediate complete disarmament.

Hugh S. Gibson, the United States, David Whitmarsh, Cuba, Baron Rolin-Jacquemyns, Belgium, Jonkeer Rutgers, Holland, E. Heening, Sweden, M. Sokal, Poland, and M. Markovitch, Jugoslavia, added their criticisms to those of yesterday, making the Russian defeat overwhelming.

Notwithstanding this, Maxim Litvinoff, the Russian vice-commissar of foreign affairs and head of the soviet delegation, will speak again tomorrow in favor of his plan, after which he may withdraw, if the plan is either discarded or referred to the various governments by the delegates for instructions.

Ambassador Gibson surprised everybody by taking the floor today. It had become generally understood that the Americans would not reply to the bid contained in M. Litvinoff's speech Monday for American support for the soviet project. All attention was centered on him as he began with a direct answer to the soviets in these words.

"In the opinion of one of the delegations sincerity, consistency and logic should impel a country which had proposed a multilateral pact against war to support the proposals now before us for immediate and complete disarmament. It is precisely on the grounds of sincerity, consitency and logic that my government supports the idea of a multi-lateral pact renouncing war as an instrument of national policy, and at the same time finds itself unable to support the drastic proposals for immediate and complete disarmament, which we do not believe are calculated to achieve their avowed purpose."

There were nods of approval all around the committee table, except by the Germans, Russians and Turks, when Mr. Gibson went on to say: "We are engaged in this study of how to effect limitations and the reduction of armaments by agreement. We are now asked to scrap this work which is the result of several years negotiations and accept in its place total immediate disarmament, which has frequently been considered in the past and invariably rejected as unworkable."

OIL CONTROVERSY BLOCKS LEGISLATION IN SENATE

Senator Robinson of Indiana Renews His Attack on Gov. Smith of New York—The Senator From Indiana Was Constantly Heckled by Democratic Senators—Robinson Characterized Smith Letter of Condennation as "Unstatesmanlike."

WASHINGTON, March 21—(AP)—Another storm revolving around Teapot Dome rolled today through both the senate chamber and the committee investigating room as republicans and democrats renewed their feud over Harry F. Sinclair's political gifts.

Standing alone in the senate among his republican colleagues, Robinson, of Indiana, again centered an attack on Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, and received in return a barrage of thrusts from nearly a dozen democrats.

Before the oil committee a new inquiry into democratic party financing was forced by the republican chairman, Nye, of North Dakota, with Wilbur Marsh, former treasurer of the democratic national committee, flatly denying that the democrats had received any contributions from any source which they desired to conceal.

Marsh emphatically declared that he ever had even suggested to the late Fred W. Upham, treasurer of the republican national committee, that neither party make a report in 1923, explaining that he was not then active in party affairs due to illness and knew that no report to congress was required by law until 1924, after he would have given up his notice.

The outburst in the senate came after the committee session and after Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, had caused to be read into the record Governor Smith's letter to Senator Nye, in which the democratic presidential candidate assailed as "false and reckless" the statements of Nye and Robinson in the senate on Monday that Sinclair had contributed to his campaign fund in the New York gubernatorial race in 1920.

Adverting to the Smith letter, Robinson characterized the governor's language as "unstatesmanlike" and said he had simply been trying to ascertain whether Sinclair had been a member of the Smith administration after 1920 in the office of racing commissioner.

Pressed by a number of democrats to explain a statement that democrats had betrayed their trust, the Indianan said three members of the Wilson cabinet resigned to take places with Edward L. Doheny, who became the lessee of a California naval oil reserve.

"Doheny and Sinclair sleep in the same bed and a lot of democrats sleep with them," Robinson shouted.

Constantly heckled by democratic senators, the Indiana republican finally recalled that Sinclair had held his official position under Smith until a month before his term expired, and added:

"I wonder why he was retained all this time. Governor Smith could easily have said: 'Mr. Sinclair, you are unclean, and we Tammany Hall people are clean. We don't want you.'

"Did he do so? He did not. He never did fire him.

"There's no use talking, 'birds of a feather will flock together.'"

The democrats were quick to pick up this quotation, Harrison, of Mississippi, particularly, turning it back on Robinson. Naming one by one the political associates of the Indianan who have been indicted or brought under charges in Indiana, Harrison said after each one:

"'Birds of a feather will flock together'" as the senate and galleries literally rocked with laughter.

"But none of those mentioned by the senator is now a candidate for president," Robinson retorted after Harrison took his seat.

"Is that the only crime of which a man can be guilty?" interrupted Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas.

After the laughter had subsided, Robinson declared that none of those mentioned by the Mississippian had had any connection with Harry F. Sinclair.

Senator Walsh, of Montana, prosecutor of the oil inquiry, ended the running fire of debate with a vigorous attack on the Teapot Dome sub-committee which visited Chicago and which took the testimony of the former associates of Upham to the effect that the late republican treasurer had told them Marsh had suggested that neither party make a report of 1924 contributions.

FALL SAYS COMMITTEE CANNOT MAKE HIM TESTIFY

EL PASO, Texas, March 21—(AP)—Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, tonight said the plan advanced today by the Teapot Dome investigating committee at Washington to send a sub-committee to El Paso to hear his story of the oil leasing seemed an "improper and unfair" procedure.

"The honorable senators can travel over the country as they wish, but getting me to testify before matters connected with the trial are settled is something different," he asserted. Mr. Fall's physicians declare he is too ill to appear for his trial with Harry F. Sinclair in Washington, April 2.

"The committee cannot make me testify at present quite aside from my rights and those of Mr. Sinclair. Such a procedure would show a lack of respect to the court in which our trial is scheduled to come on."

WIFE SAYS THAT FALL IS READY TO TESTIFY

EL PASO, Tex., March 21—(AP)—Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, declared through Mrs. Fall today he would be glad to tell everything he knows about the Teapot Dome leases.

"Mr. Fall is ready to testify whenever his health will permit," Mrs. Fall said, "if he isn't able to go to Washington for the trial scheduled April 2, and his testimony is desired, he is willing that it be taken here."

When interviewed last night, Fall said his side of the story had never been told and that he had always been willing but had never been given the chance to testify.

"I am not only willing, but anxious, to testify," he said. "I am not afraid of the facts. They will bear out my acts."

Last Monday a raid was made on the farm of Colonese which lies between Torrington and Goshen by state officers. One of the largest stills ever seized in Connecticut was found in operation in the three story cow barn.

ESCAPE OF HEAD OF ITALIAN FREEMASONRY

MENTON, France, March 21—(AP)—Information from Italy confirms the report that Domizio Torrigiani, head of Italian Freemasonry has escaped from Lipari Island, where he was imprisoned about ten months ago. He is believed to be in Corsica.

Torrigiani's escape required four months to effect, the island of Lipari being barred to all ships except police vessels, which call there weekly to carry food to prisoners, who exist in medieval conditions.

Loyal Masons are said to have brought about the night-time getaway of their chieftain. These island prisons lying off Sicily, are not unlike those of the Middle Ages. Many cells are underwater at high tide and the prisoners are supplied with a single bucket, with which they are obliged to bail for three hours through the upper window to prevent drowning. The names of most of the tiny prison islands are unknown, except to the police.

Domizio Torrigiani, for many years grand master of Italian Freemasonry and a political power under the old regime, was arrested on official orders on April 23 last. He was immediately condemned to five years confinement on one of the islands to which political enemies of the administration are banished. He was sentenced by the provincial commission, which deals with political offenses.

RURAL ROADS IN VERY BAD CONDITION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 21—The towns in this section of the state, especially those in the rural districts, face an expenditure that will run up into the thousands of dollars in putting country roads into shape for summer traveling. An estimate of the probable cost of road repairing is gleaned from reports of residents and of the rural free delivery carriers who work out of the local postoffice. The towns of Chaplin, Scotland, Columbia, Ashford and Mansfield have been hard hit road-wise. The past winter which was a confusion of freezes and thaws broke down road surfacing and ruts that sink automobiles to the hub caps are frequently to be encountered on the back roads. The deplorable conditions of some of these roads was brought forcibly to mind in the respective towns last Monday night when the attendance at the republican caucuses was so small as to invite comment. It was explained that the almost impassable nature of the roads was responsible for this. Horse-drawn vehicles are now the only practical means of transportation. As one local physician is ready to avow, travelling by automobile means trouble. This physician attempted to navigate West street, Columbia, a few days ago when his car became mired and it took a pair of oxen to free the machine.

The horse-drawn buggy has temporarily returned as the vehicle on the mail routes emanating from Willimantic. Roy Frederickson who has been covering the new and difficult star route to Chestnut Hill and Leonard's Bridge has been on the job since January. He has worn out one automobile and a set of tires within ten weeks. Frederickson is about to resign from his position. The selectmen of the towns are helpless to remedy conditions at this time. They state that travelling would be useless until the nightly frosts cease.

Proof of the new Dictator's advanced performance was established when a stock Dictator sedan traveled 24 continuous hours at better than mile-a-minute speed. No stock car under $1400 has ever equaled this record.

40-mile speed even when new

Due to advanced engineering practices, precision building, high quality materials and rigid inspections which this new Dictator receives, it can be driven 40-miles-per-hour the day it is delivered. No laborious 20-mile-an-hour breaking-in.

Lubricate only every 2500 miles

Studebaker engineers have also eliminated the necessity of oil change to but once every 2500 miles. Chassis greasing has been reduced to 2500-mile intervals through a unique system of magazine high-pressure lubrication.

Engineering genius and traditional quality

Throughout its design, the new Dictator is the product of advanced engineering development—yet its Cye-Profit price is still only $1195, f. o. b. factory, and it bears a famous name—Studebaker—the highest guarantee of motor car excellence!

DANIELSON

POLICE INVESTIGATE FALSE REPORT OF BURGLARS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 21—A famous episode entitled Much Ado About Nothing had something of a counterpart in Danielson today. As a matter of fact, the beginning of the absurdity dates back to 11 o'clock, or thereabouts, last night, when word came to Night Officer John Gebert that two young men were robbing the small neighborhood store of John S. Geogoulakus, at the corner of Oak and Mechanic street.

Two young men, it appears, sitting within their home near the store, saw two other young men parading up and down Mechanic street. The strollers, the watchers appear to have thought, were concerned with no good purpose, so word was sent down to Officer Gebert. The original tale was that the two young men were inside the store, cleaning it of what ever they might figure would be of value to them.

When Officer Gebert arrived the two youths were still strolling. They explained that they were merely waiting for a girl. The officer held the two youths for questioning. Later, at the police station, Chief John McFarland and Officer Gebert subjected the youths to a long quiz without developing anything to shake their story that they were not concerned with the store at all, or had anything to do with it.

A latter detailed survey of the exterior and interior of the store showed no signs at all that any door or window had been tampered with, and inside everything was in its usual order—this, be it recalled, in spite of the fact that the police were told when they started to go into the case that two young men were inside robbing it, and that one of them had been observed using a glass cutter on one of the windows.

Well, the whole case went up in a fizzle—for the very good reason that there was no case. Grilled a bit about the whole matter this morning, the informant finally admitted to Chief McFarland that he might have been wrong, and everyone that had anything to do with the investigation had arrived at that conclusion long before. A considerable hub-bub had been created over nothing at all. So much attention is given the matter here because it became generally circulated about town this morning that the store actually had been robbed.

DANIELSON TO HAVE LATE BUS TO ATTAWAUGAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 21—Several matters claimed the attention of President M. H. Berthiaume of the chamber of commerce, Secretary W. S. Hunter and members of the executive committee at a meeting in the office of Attorney Harry E. Back this morning. For one thing, Attorney Back, reporting as chairman of the transportation committee, announced that arrangements had been completed with the Connecticut company for a later bus out of Danielson for Attawaugan each evening. This new service will be established next Saturday and will be continued until it is determined whether there is sufficient demand for such service as to warrant its continuance. This late bus will leave here shortly after 10 p. m. Heretofore its run has ended at Daysville, but the run is to be extended to Attawaugan for the convenience of the residents of that community.

Another action taken at the meeting had to do with authorizing an invitation to all citizens to hear Tax Commissioner Blodgett talk on taxation at the April meeting of the chamber, for his talk is to be especially timely and intimately instructive on various tax matters. The meeting also voted to invite Dr. Stanley H. Osborne of the state board of health to talk to the chamber at the May meeting, and to request him to speak on Cleanliness and the Advantages of Keeping Clean, this talk to give Danielson's Clean-Up week a boost.

The body of Leander Allard, 41, who died at the Day Kimball hospital was brought here today in charge of Undertaker L. E. Kennedy. Mr. Allard was a native of Canada and had been in the employ of Byron Lewis of East Killingly, at Killingly Center. The deceased leaves a brother who is resident in Goodyear.

Preparations were going forward today at the state armory to arrange the big drill shed for the amateur boxing bouts to be given there Friday evening, reviving this form of sport in Danielson after a lapse of two or three years. The popularity of amateur boxing in other eastern Connecticut communities has contributed to re-developing enthusiasm here.

Incident to the coming here Thursday evening of this week of Rev. D. Brewer Eddy, D. D., associate secretary of the American board, to address the gathering at the monthly Church Family night at the Westfield Congregational church arrangements have been completed for an especially interesting evening. At 6.30 supper is to be served by the members of the Ladies' Benevolent society. There is to be a period for recreation and sociability from 7.17 to 7.45, Dr. Brewer to speak at 8 o'clock. After his address there is to be a devotional period, Rev. Harding W. Gaylord's theme to be A Sure Source of Peace.

Neither the citizens of the town nor the borough appear to warm up very much to political matters this season. Two events of the week, the republican caucus of Monday evening and the borough caucus of Tuesday evening, drew a joint total attendance of about 35 people. They represented nearly 3,000 qualified voters of the town and borough. As to the apathy there are sundry and various explanations, expressing a very considerable number of viewpoints. A very popular idea, it seems, is that the people, largely, are satisfied that the affairs of the town and borough are in competent hands. Were they not, one often hears it said, the people would not be slow to come out and express themselves and bring about such changes as they might desire.

W. Irving Bullard, who has been abroad since early February in the interests of the E. H. Jacons Manufacturing company, of which he is an official, has returned. His mission was to close agreements with foreign concerns for the handling of the new textolite loom picker, for which the Jacons company, with plants here and Charlotte N. C., are the sole and world-wide distributors, working in conjunction with the General Electric company. Mr. Bullard's trip abroad was very successful, it is understood.

As to the revaluation of the property of the town of Killingly, a matter that is getting much attention just now, a competent authority this morning expressed the opinion that the work could be done satisfactorily by the town's board of assessors, duly compensated for the special services they would be required to render. And, again, that any revaluation not made by the assessors, designated by law to assess property, need not be binding upon them, and that they could, figuratively, if they wished, throw any valuation other than their own into the wastebasket. These are interesting points to the people of a town who must in due course of time definitely decide as to who will make the revaluation.

Coach Dole of Connecticut Agricultural college is to be the speaker at Thursday evening's meeting of the Danielson Rotary club.

Mrs. Lena Tripp, regent, Miss Marion D. Chollar, Mrs. L. S. Ingalls and Mrs. R. C. Spencer represented Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., at a state conference held in Derby this week.

Michael Gavin, resident on High street for years and recently a patient at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, has entered St. Mary's home for the Aged at Hartford and is to remain there. Though he was resident in this town half a century, he has no relatives in this territory.

Hiram S. Franklin, who is ill at his home, was reported today to be resting more comfortably and in improved condition.

A minimum temperature of 18 degrees this morning rather left one with the impression that spring hasn't really gotten down to its gentle self as yet.

Representatives A. W. Williams and William S. Hunter, Alma Forcier and James N. Tucker are Killingly's delegates to the 28th senatorial district convention that is to meet in Putnam this Thursday to name delegates-at-large to the republican state convention.

Once again the sidewalk on the Killingly side of the approach to the Quinebaug bridge has caved in. Repeated repairs have been made to this stretch of walk, which for some reason continues to break down.

Oscar A. Linidenthal of Springfield was a visitor with friends in Danielson today.

Rev. Charles A. Downs preached at the Goodyear church last Sunday morning on Perfecting of Character, taking his text from Corinthians 3:18, and stressing that character may be beautified by the having of high ideals. Miss Nancy Whittaker enriched the service with a well rendered solo. The choir meeting of the week was with Mrs. Arthur Longbottom.

The big power shovel in use on the Brooklyn-Danielson road has been brought back from Brooklyn to a location near where the new road will cross the Brickyard brook, and where a small bridge is to be constructed.

Now the stage is set for the annual borough election the second Monday in April. As there is only one ticket in the field—a non-partisan ticket—and the candidates all are holding borough offices at the present time, the prospect is for the same efficient official family for another year.

News of the fire in the old Chickering house block at Putnam early this afternoon sent numbers of Danielson people scurrying up there in their machines to watch the blaze.

PUTNAM

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 21—Today a force of ten men representing the state park commission began operations that will eventuate into the construction of a bridge across the Quinebaug river, south of the city, to Priest's island, which is, and has been for a number of years, a state park.

Operations today included the making of a survey of the section where the bridge is to be located, at the north end of the Wheaton farm, just below the point where the river swings from a southerly to a westerly course. The bridge is to be of the suspension type, will be constructed of wood and will be 135 feet in length and have a clearance width of about six feet. It is to be a foot bridge, as it is not intended to allow any vehicles on the island.

There are approximately 36 acres of heavily wooded land on the island, and the state also has acquired six acres of land on the opposite side of the river near the bridge approach. These six acres will afford ample parking space for the cars of as many people as are likely to visit the park in any given day.

Construction of the bridge will go forward as rapidly as weather conditions permit and it is anticipated that it will be completed and ready for use in the early summer.

During the course of the winter season men have been engaged in cutting out underbrush on the island and this work of clearing up what is certain to be a very popular and restful resort will continue until the plans of the park commission have been carried out.

Priest's island has been in disuse as a pleasure resort for a great many years, though many people still resident in Putnam recall when picnic parties were regularly held there.

A delegation of Woodstock residents was in Hartford today to appear at a hearing before the public utilities commission in support of a petition requesting that permission be given the Interstate Busses corporation to do an interstate business in that nearby town.

Woodstock, one of the largest towns in Connecticut in point of area, is in the peculiar situation of having fine busses running through it on regular schedules without the privilege of using them as residents there would like. A particular line runs between Providence and Springfield via Putnam, Woodstock and Southbridge. These lines have been held heretofore to a strictly interstate business. It has not been privileged to accept the intrastate business. For instance, if a resident of Woodstock wanted to ride one of the busses to Putnam, he could not be taken on. Likewise, if he were in Putnam and wanted to get back to Woodstock, one of the busses of this line might be going his way and could not take him.

Prominent residents of Woodstock feel that this situatoin can be corrected without working any particular hardship on anyone. It would be a matter of very great convenience to the people in the neighboring town and the benefits of it undoubtedly would be reflected, in the opinion of many here in trade in Putnam, working a mutual benefit to both towns.

Dasigates from the various towns of the 28th senatorial district will assemble at the Putnam inn at noon Thursday to name delegates-at-large from the district to the republican state convention to be held in Hartford on April 17-18, and to name state central committee members from the district, these members at the present being John F. Reardon of Putnam and Miss Katherine Byrne of this city. The towns making up the district are Putnam, Killingly, Thompson, Woodstock, Eastford and Ashford. A lunch for the delegates will be a feature of the convention.

An appointment of a new public defender for Windham county is anticipated in the immediate future. This office was made vacant by the regrettable death of Attorney Charles L. Torrey a few weeks ago. Attorney Torrey held the office from the time it was created up to his death, and during these years represented scores of persons who found themselves cited to appear before the superior court to answer to criminal charges, and without funds to procure counsel on their own account. In Attorney Torrey that had an exceptionally able defender, and one whose interests in them always was keen and sympathetic.

There was no session of the superior court today, a case that was assigned having been settled. Thursday cases assigned to be heard by Judge Yeomans are those of Mildred Houlihan and John F. Houlihan vs. Schwartz Brothers, this action growing out of a motor vehicle accident, and that of E. Fitch Johnson vs. John Borgesson. For Friday a divorce case to be heard is that of Lloyd Miller vs. Clara P. Belleville Miller.

There appeared to be no foundation whatsoever for a story that gained some circulation here today that a dog that bit seven persons in Webster yesterday and believed to have been suffering with rabies came from either Thompson or Putnam. The dog was captured and is in confinement at the Webster town farm. The fact that the dog had a tag bearing an address of 10 Wilcox street is reported here as definitely establishing that the dog came neither from Putnam or Thompson.

Today the body of Leander Allard, 41, who died at the Day Kimball hospital was removed to Killingly, in which town Mr. Allard had been employed by Byron Lewis.

Officers and directors of the Windham County Farmers' association held a meeting here today with County Agent Frank L. Davis. About a dozen were in attendance, representing various towns of the county. Reports were made and consideration given to various projects that will claim the attention of the organization during the spring season. The association has been very active throughout the winter season, holding various institutes in different county towns and paying particular attention to dairy and poultry matters.

These are days when residents who live along country roads in nearby territory are making a bit of extra money by hauling stalled motor vehicles out of the mud. A particularly bad stretch of highway just at present is that leading from the Putnam Country club across to Attawaugan, and motorists will do well to avoid it.

Selectman Clarence E. Pierce, who recently underwent a major surgical operation, is at his home now and was reported today as progressing favorably.

Niel J. Bulger was confined by illness to his home on Farrows street today.

Thomas J. Aylward has been ill at his home on Pleasant street the past few days.

This first day of spring was not exactly of the variety that could be called beautiful, and as a hint that winter is officially out, but not so far away, there were snow flurries from time to time.

Though the rate has been cut one-half, the increased valuation on properties in Putnam in many instances will make the amount paid in for taxes in May about the same as paid by owners of these properties last year.

Applications are now going out of this territory to the motor vehicle department for registrations for cars that have been out of service since the first of the year, but are to be in use again by April 1.

Putnam boys will figure in amateur boxing bouts that are to be staged at the state armory in Danielson Friday evening.

Dr. Karl T. Phillips is scheduled to address the members of the Danielson Rotary club on Thursday evening of next week.

DAMAGE TO CHICKERING BLOCK ESTIMATED AT $15,000

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 21—Scarred and charred in several previous fires, the old Chickering house block was again afire today, and before the firemen were done with the work of extinguishing the flames the structure and the stocks of concerns doing business in it were damaged to the extent of thousands of dollars, the estimates running from $5,000 to $15,000, partly covered by insurance.

Persons who were in the building just before the fire broke out say that a heavy explosion in the cellar in the rear of the bowling alleys facing Front street preceded the billowing forth of smoke and flame. What caused this explosion had not been definitely determined late today. Engineers of locomotives in the railroad yard gave the first alarm by sounding the fire call with the engine whistles and at 12.10 p. m., an alarm was pulled from Box 41, from which have come many calls for bad fires in the past, including three others in the Chickering block.

In the absence of Chief Ralph E. Thurston, who was out of the city Deputy Chief Alphonse Dumas directed the operations of the firemen, and turned in a very good job of it. During the course of the two hours that the firemen were busy with their task the interior of the building was badly gutted, and stocks of concerns located in it were damaged, largely by smoke and water.

On the Front street side of the building is a Ginter store, Eli Vaugel's shoe store and Ben Kwarciak's bowling alleys, where the police staged a raid last Monday. The stock and equipment of these places suffered somewhat during the fire. On the Front street side also is the old Colonial restaurant, which was being refitted for occupancy. On the Union street side of the building the Talbot News store's stock was damaged by smoke and water.

Occurring at the noon hour, the fire attracted hundreds of people. After all the punishment the Chickering house block has received it is little like it was in the days when it was one of the best known hotels in eastern Connecticut. If has not been used for hotel purposes for years, much of the old hotel space—such as remained after previous fires and rebuilding arrangements—being used for storage. The building is the property of R. H. Bradley.

Kwarciak, bowling alley proprietor, was the only casualty of the fire. He was quite badly burned about the face as he opened a door at the rear of his rooms and was met by a blast of flame and hot air that shot out from where the fire started.

THE ESCH CASE

Under ordinary circumstances when the senate turns down a nomination by the president that can be expected to end it. With the refusal to approve the naming of John J. Esch of Wisconsin on the interstate commerce commission the senate was apparently actuated by other than good judgment. There was an evident determination on the part of certain senators to spank Commissioner Esch because he has participated in making a decision concerning coal rates and had previously sponsored certain railroad legislation when in congress which was not pleasing to them.

The reaction of President Coolidge to the refusal of the senate to confirm Mr. Esch's nomination is by no means surprising, and this is particularly so when it is reported that there are senators who refused to confirm who repent their action because they realize that they did it for personal or political reasons.

Such admissions, the reports that there were such being accepted, indicates the too-frequent disposition of the upper house of congress. There is a willingness to sacrifice experienced and qualified men in an attempt to put someone in a hole, instead of exercising the intended authority and refusing confirmation only when there is real reason for it.

President Coolidge has given Mr Esch a recess appointment and is credited with not only regarding the failure to confirm as a great mistake but by its act makes its difficult for the president to obtain men of the right calibre for the commission.

The senate will have difficulty in upsetting the claim that Mr. Esch was refused the appointment because he had done what he regarded as his duty. Interpret the action of the senate and any member of the commission who expects a reappointment must be careful to vote in commission so as to please the majority of the senate or expect to lose his job. The senate is judging interstate commerce commission appointments by the acts of the commissioners rather than by the fitness of the man and thus throwing a quasi judicial body, rated by many as next to the supreme court, into the worst sort of a political quagmire.

MUNITION SHIPMENTS

Efforts in behalf of legislation that will control arms exports may be expected as a logical consequence of the demands for international peace. There are the good points in connection with the idea and there are the bad. This government has never favored it and right now Secretary of War Davis is again voicing his objection to the resolution which has been introduced by Senator Burton which would place an embargo upon all munition shipments from this country in time of war.

Secretary Davis takes the attitude that this would place a serious curb upon our arms manufacturing industries, so much so that it would force this country to maintain huge arsenals in order to provide for its own protection against the day when war should come and this country would not be able to arm itself.

On another plea he maintains that such a resolution would be reason enough for other countries to proceed likewise and the result would make it impossible for the United States to obtain its firearms from other countries in case war required it to have such equipment over and above what is possessed. With our munition plants put out of business by our legislation we would not only be unable to supply others but we would be seriously handicapping ourselves.

It has been the policy of this government to establish embargoes against arms shipments to countries where revolutions have been started against constitutional governments. This has had to do chiefly with republics in the western hemisphere and is regarded as an obstacle to revloutions and valuable support to recognized governments.

With the demands and efforts in behalf of international peace the time may not be ripe for the placing of an embargo on arms shipments by this country, but it appears to be a part of the same movement, and as greater progress is made in the effort to bring about the adjustment of international disputes by other means than war the willingness to restrict arms shipments will be more evident. Agreements not to go to war if lived up to will obviate the demands for munitions shipments such as the resolution is aimed at.

HOUSECLEANING TIME

Complaint comes from State's Attorney Crowe of Chicago to the effect that that city has been maligned all over the United States. Possibly he is right in that respect. There is no doubt but what Chicago has been getting a reputation which cannot be regarded as enviable. Crime conditions have been frightful and there have been political conditions which it can hardly be proud of, conditions which may have an important bearing upon the crime situation.

It was not so long ago that there were others who took the same attitude as the state's attorney and made up their minds that instead of bad advertising Chicago should get good advertising. They undertook to offset the many uncomplimentary things being said about the city and the conditions prevailing there. Just how much was accomplished would be difficult to say, even though such emissaries undertook to tell good instead of bad stories about the western metropolis.

But if Chicago is being maligned it is unfortunate. On the other hand what is Chicago doing to prevent it? Does it regard its murders, its gang fights, its machine gun bandits as impressive conditions? Or does it take the position that these conditions do not exist?

Where there is smoke there is fire. Where a city gets a bad reputation there is some basis for it, especially if it continues over a long period and it doesn't help very much to put forth the claim that a city is being maligned unless something approaching effective steps are taken to make such claims impossible.

Stories made up of wholly false material will not stand. It is quite apparent that Chicago is being judged by what it has done and what it is doing, and it should be the aim of the Windy city to so control its conduct in the face of criticism that it will be a glowing example to the contrary. Decrying criticism will amount to little unless those things which are criticised are corrected. Perhaps the great need of Chicago is for a thorough housecleaning, and the housecleaning season is at hand.

NORWICH'S INDUSTRIAL SURVEY

Several months ago the local chamber of commerce provided for an industrial survey of Norwich in the hope of finding out the handicaps as well as the advantages that exist here as viewed from the position of an outsider. The purpose was to bring about a solution of some of our problems by having the situation set before us in black and white and then tackling them with a united front with a definite goal in view.

Through the Babson statistical organization that survey has been completed. Its report which is of considerable length is being presented in The Bulletin. It is entitled to and should get careful reading and thorough study on the part of all citizens. It will be found that there are some things set forth which have been fully understood. Light has been thrown upon others from a different angle.

It is reasonable that judgment should be suspended until the whole report has been read and digested. It will be remembered that it was as the result of the situation in regard to the assessment of property that was found by Investigator Alden that the movement for revaluation was started. Action upon this matter preceded the report and its recommendations, but it was the work upon the survey that displayed this glaring need and resulted in action being taken.

In the consideration of other problems, in the treatment of other suggestions made or to be made in the report, there is reason for the same mature judgment being exercised. If there are obstacles which can be overcome let the good work proceed. If there are recommendations which ought to be carried out, whether of long or short standing, a concentration of effort to accomplish them is to be expected.

Now that Norwich has gotten its survey, now that Norwich has been told what can be done and that much of the responsibility rests upon the individual and a forward looking public spirit, it will be a mistake if the deficiencies are not supplied.

INTER-REPUBLIC AIR LINERS

Perhaps Colonel Lindbergh is too optimistic in regard to the establishment of air lines between the United States and Central America when he expresses the hope that they will be in operation down through the Caribbean area to South American within the next few months, but there is little doubt but what they will come.

When he was making his flight down through the Central American republics into South America and back through the islands of the Caribbean he was paving the way for just what he contemplates. He maintains that it can be accomplished with our present equipment and that such lines can be maintained with safety and without great difficulty.

There are advantages for the other republics as well as this. It would mean bringing the republics closer together but it would also mean such development for large areas of the other republics for it would provide transportation and communication of which they are in great need. Through such air lines there would be a better understanding and relationship, and it is inevitable that they will be established even though they do not materialize within the next few months. Nothing should aid in their establishment more than the confident support which is given by Colonel Lindbergh.

DIARY OF A POINTED FOX.

Sept. 2—Miss Elinor, my mistress, did not stroke my fur today when she threw me across her shoulders. Instead, she made me snap my teeth together angrily. I tried to accommodate myself to her mood, staring savagely out of my green glass eyes, but unfortunately they are sewed in too widely apart, and so, Miss Elinor tells me, my attempts to look savage are hopeless.

Sept. 3—I have learned the trouble. It was that we weren't invited to the Arnold's dinner-dance to meet some young man or other from some town or other who has been described as "just too."

Sept. 4—All is well, and I was offered a taste of raspberries and cream, although what people see in the stuff I can't say. It seems we have been asked to Mrs. Cramer's party to meet the young man whose name is Rogers (a common enough name) and who comes from Cleveland (of all places!). Miss E. is very much elated, and tries me on in various attitudes in front of mirror.

Sept. 5—All day long shopping for party. Met group of Miss E's friends also shopping for party. Tried to pretend they were going to wear last year's dress. Didn't fool Miss E.

Sept. 6—Still shopping for party. Evening at home, quite chilly. Miss E. wrote letter. Tried on blotter signing her name "Elinor Rogers." Spilled ink, getting some on me.

Sept. —At cleaners. Quiet day. Refreshed.

Sept. 8—Went to home of a girl named Martha to find out what she is going to wear to the party. Didn't ask her, that not being the way. Discussed what girls named Helen and Dorothy were going to wear. Finally, we saw the dress. Miss E. said it was "perfectly lovely." She pinched my tail a echo said it.

Sept. 9—Tomorrow night is the party. It means nothing in my young life, but I'm really getting excited. Miss E. has been reading book reviews, the sport page, and a book on economics. She says a girl has to be prepared for anything.

Sept. 10—This is in great haste. I am on the library table at Mrs. Cramer's. It certainly is irritating to be cast o: just when things begin to get interesting. We went in to dinner with Mr. Rogers. He is, undoubtedly, a very good-looking man.

They didn't once mention books or sports or economics, but started right in to talk about what kind of men were suited to what kind of girls, and what kind of wives the modern girls made, and whether romance was dead and a lot of silly talk like that. Before soup was finished, he told her she was wonderfully understanding.

By the time dinner was over they had launched on a lively discussion of their favorite flowers, and fruits and plays and places to go, and she said it didn't matter how much good taste a girl had in beautiful things, if she didn't apply them to the making of a beautiful home what did it matter? And he said that she seemed to understand shuch things far beyond her years, and that he always had had some misgivings in his heart about women, and now he was coming to realize that, after all, they understood best the fulfillment of their own mission. And a lot more of this. And then he said he thought it would be nice to take a little stroll on the veranda, there being a veranda. And Miss E. said she thought it would be nice, too, it being warm tonight, and then, as fate would have it, she tossed me over here on the table, and I have to leave the rest to my imagination!

Sept. 11—I couldn't record any more last night, it was all too overwhelming. I lay there ever so long on the library table when in came, not my mistress, but the man Rogers. He picked me up and cok me out on the veranda, and put me with an air of tenderness around Miss E's neck.

"Thank you so much," she said in a tone which we ruury folk sometimes call purring.

"I have you to thank for so much more," he said. "You have answered so many questions for me that you have made tonight the turning point of my life. I have made a high resolve * * *"

"Yes, Mr. Rogers?"

"Why don't you call me Jimmie?"

"Yes, Jimmie?"

"I am going bac kto my fiancee in Cleveland and ask her to marry me."

I could have jumped out of my skin, except that there would be nothing left if I did. As for Miss E., I will say that the poor child behaved nobly. She went right on with the hightoned advice as though she had known that was what he had had in his mind all along. But on the way home I had to do a lot of biting, and, let me tell you, I am exhausted.

Sept. 12—An invitation came today from Mrs. Paul. We are to attend a tea-dansant to meet a young man from San Francisco. He is reported to be charming. I am being caressed again. As for Miss E., although she passed the morning despondently, in bed, she is now able to take a little steak, mashed potato, corn on cob and cherry pie a la mode. She wonders what she will wear.—Chicago News.

DAILY LENTEN DEVOTION

By Rev. Jay T. Stocking, D. D., Federal Council of Churches in America — Copyright 1928.

"RELIGION AND CHARACTER"
Thursday
"The Spirit of Kindness"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "Love suffereth long and is kind" (I Corinthians 13:4).

Read I Corinthians 13.

MEDITATION: There is no truer test of how Christian one is than the question, is he kind? For kindness is the heart of love. Love is thus a very practical, everyday thing. Kindness touches the heart, heals wounds, conquers asperity, melts opposition and puts a song into life. There is no place that needs it more than our homes. It is rightly called a "homely virtue." One of the painful facts that forces itself upon those who see many homes in the number of them where kindness does not seem to prevail. Where kindness is there will not be harsh judgments or sharp tongues, or a domineering, selfish spirit. The "mind of Christ" is a kind mind.

PRAYER: Give us, Lord, more charity, more self-denial for the comfort and welfare of others. We would be kindly in thought, generous in deed and gracious and considerate in manner. Let the loving mind of Christ dwell in us richly. Amen.

YOUR HEALTH

A Prick and a Pinch Invite Disaster.

By Reginald H. Jackson, M. D., Madison, Wis., member Gorgas Memorial.

Every surgeon of experience sees from time to time certain fatal cases which leave an indelible impression on his memory, cases which create an intense desire within him to broadcast to the laity an explanation of just why death should follow some simple home treatment for such an insignificant thing as a pimple or boil. Thousands of pimples may be pinched and squeezed each day without any bad effects but occasionally acute blood-poisoning develops. Why? All that is necessary in the research laboratories to produce acute blood-poisoning in an animal is to fill a hypodermic syringe with a fluid which contains pus-producing germs, insert the needle through the wall of one of the veins, and inject the fluid. This is followed in a few hours by chill and rising temperature and the other symptoms of general blood-poisoning.

Most of the cases of fatal blood-poisoning in man which are directly due to the pricking and squeezing of pimples are explained by the fact that the pimples and boils in these cases were situated on the face, especially the lips or nose or cheeks. Why should pimples in this situation lead to acute blood-poisoning when pricked and squeezed, any more than pimples on the back? There is a very good reason indeed. Veins under the skin throughout the tissues of the extremities and the trunk in general are supplied on their inside with little valves at regular distances which act as dams to support the column of blood. The speed of th stream of blood is greatly retarded by these valves and if inflammatory material to ches them they close, thus sealing off the blood stream temporarily. In the veins of the fatal triangle of the face including the nose, lips, and cheeks, however, these protecting and supporting valves are absent, so that if any infectious material enters even the tiny blood vessels it may be carried down into the general blood stream and produce acute blood-poisoning.

The usual story, as told by the laity in regard to these fatal blood-poisoning cases, is that the patient used a rusty needle to open the pimple; they leave the impression that if the needle had been sterilized this would not have happened. It is not the rust nor the actual pricking of the pimple which is the cause of the blood-poisoning, but the mechanical transference of some of the pus germs on the point of the needle into the little venous blood vessels. Pimples in this situation should be let alone until they are ripe, that is, until the pus sac opens of itself or is so soft that by gently pressing with toothpick cotton applicators, dipped in alcohol or some mild antiseptic, the pus will be discharged without any bleeding.

Little Talks on Thrift

Compound Interest Yields Amazing Results in the Accumulation of Money

Newspapers recently told of the return of $110 after its equivalent in merchandise had been lost for ten years. A poor office boy had lost the material. There was no obligation on his part to make restitution but as a matter of honesty he did so.

The incident furnishes a commendable example of honesty. It also may be made use of in emphasizing one phase of thrift.

The man who received the money objected to accepting it. If, instead of being generous, he had been one to insist on the last penny due him, he could have asked for $198.67 for that is the amount the $110 would have grown to he had it been invested at 6 per cent interest compounded semi-annually. Had the former office boy waited one year and 365 days longer it would have been necessary for him to have said $220 or just twice the original amount, taking into consideration the normal earning possibilities of money.

Figures illustrating the power of money to reproduce itself are always illuminating to those who have an appreciation of thrift and investment.

On August 16, 1819, $10 was deposited in a New York savings bank. On the 29th of August the following year, a deposit of $5 was made. No other addition has been made to those deposits excepting accrued compound interest yet the bank recently announced that the account had grown to $2,559.60. In a little over 100 years, the original deposit had multiplied 168 times.

The sum of $5 was deposited in a certain savings bank in 1836. No trace has ever since been heard of the original depositor. The account now amounts to $382.16 or more than 76 times the original deposit.

Any person who can save $90 a month during a period of 25 years, investing the savings at 6 per cent compounded semi-annually, will have the modest fortune of $61,975.

The lessons are obvious. Put your money to work. American Society for Thrift.

OBITUARY
John Harry Evans, M. D.
(Contributed)

In the death of Dr. John H. Evans, late of Brooklyn, New York, and a former Norwich resident, the writer of this article cannot refrain from alluding to some of his good works during his valuable life.

Born in East Thompson, June 15, 1877, he was the eldest son of Mrs. Genie Morarty Evans and the late Byron H. Evans. His noble career commenced when he was only a boy and as statistics will show, he was an exceedingly bright scholar; for when aspiring to reach the goal, he always attained it, through his ambition and perseverance. After his preliminary education in Connecticut, he attended the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia university, having had the distinction of being one of ten honor pupils in his graduating class of 250.

In his private practice as a skilled physician and surgeon, he has left an enviable record. His sympathies always went out to the unfortunate and when in the sick room, his presence was a benediction and his words uplifting and most comforting. His aid was cheerfully rendered in many instances known only to the grateful heart, where the memory of his oft-time self-sacrificing generosity will be tenderly cherished. His council was often sought, and though modest and unassuming in his profession, he was thoughtful at all times of others, and forgetful of self.

As a hero of the World war, during which he served faithfully and well, both in this and foreign countries, he won the love and respect of the soldier boys. The night before armistice was signed, he was engaged all night in dressing wounds in the trenches. While located at Fox Hill hospital, Long Island, following the war, he almost made whole men out of smashed-up wrecks—putting on new noses, new ears, new eye-brows, new jaws, etc. His extensive achievement in the Near East Relief work for nearly four years, when American lives were somewhat in danger, made him famous in his profession. To say nothing of other responsibilities and remarkable deeds, he performed 1,000 major surgical operations. Before returning to America, he was decorated by the Russian government, for his efficient service. At this elaborate ceremony which was decidedly formal in every detail, he won first-class honors for his service in that land. The authority concerning this unusual event was granted by the Central government in Moscow, from the republic of Armenia. The sweet influences of his life, his broad culture, kindly consideration for others, his conscientiousness, patience, gentleness, and generous charity that never failed, also his Christian faith, have been, and will continue to be, an inspiration to everyone who has been so blessed as to come within the circle of his influences.

In closing, he has gone to his Heavenly reward, there to meet the Master, face to face. "May he rest in peace."

Milton Everett Terry

Following a brief illness with pneumonia, Milton Everett Terry, 38, died at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday evening at his home, No. 145 Rockwell street. Mr. Terry had been confined to the house since Saturday afternoon, when he came home after concluding his day's work as conductor for the Connecticut company with which he had been employed for the past eight years. He qualified as a conductor and began work on May 22, 1920, and served the company efficiently up to the time of his illness, Saturday. For several days previous to that time he had not been in the best of spirits, but had continued work until Saturday afternoon, completing his regular schedule of work at 2:25 o'clock.

Mr. Terry was born in Lebanon on Jan. 26, 1890, the son of William H. and Adeline Terry, and had resided there for his entire life with the exception of the past ten years spent in Norwich. His marriage to Miss Anna Crary took place in 1915 at Griswold, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Francis Childs. Besides his wife, he leaves two sons, Milton E., Jr., and Harold P. Terry, at home; four sisters, Mrs. Wentworth Allen of Waltham, Mass., Mrs. Estella Lathrop, Mrs. Harry Peterson and Mrs. Leon Walker, all of Willimantic, and two brothers, Clarence Terry and William D. Terry, both of Willimantic. He is also survived by his father, William H. Terry, of Willimantic.

Mr. Terry was a member of Shetucket lodge, No. 27, I. O. O. F., Knights of Pythias of Willimantic and the Central Baptist church of this city. For almost his entire relation with the Connecticut company as conductor he had served in that capacity on the Willimantic and New London line, fulfilling his duties with precision and satisfaction to his employers and the general public. His genial disposition and personality won for him many friends during his comparatively short residence in this city who will learn of his death with profound regret. He was a kind and loving husband and father and conducted himself in the role of a good Christian man, being a friend to everybody.

There was a discussion regarding the party's choice of a candidate for mayor, at the city election in June. It is understood that candidates for the nomination include Senator Lee Roy Robbins, City Clerk Weston C. Pullen and Judge John H. Barnes. The committee meeting made no decision as to a candidate for endorsement.

ST. MARY'S PLAYERS GIVE EXCELLENT PRODUCTION BEFORE CAPACITY HOUSE

A crowded house greeted St. Mary's Players at the Palace theatre Wednesday evening when they presented their annual play, for the benefit of St. Mary's Memorial church. Once again St. Mary's Players upheld the enviable theatrical record they have made during the past years, in their production of the comedy, Nothing But the Truth. Every seat in the house was sold and every seat was occupied when the curtain went up for the first act. The audience, numbering close to 1,400, heartily applauded the players who certainly deserved the numerous bursts of applause showered upon them. It was, as a matter of fact the most successful theatrical fever stayed by the players. If it had not been announced as an amateur production it would have been difficult indeed to distinguish it from a professional play. It more than equalled many professional road companies that have appeared in local theatres. The players, their director, James E. Murphy, and the general committee in charge are to be complimented on the splendid manner in which the comedy was presented.

The comedy was stayed in three acts and was produced by special arrangement with Samuel French of New York, under the personal direction of James E. Murphy, principal of the Greeneville grammar school. Between the first and second acts there were vocal selections by St. Mary's Trio, Edward T. Connelly, Michael J. Farrell and Nicholas J. Spellman, all of whom are well known local singers. There were also vocal solos by the members of the trio.

Rev. Frederick M. Cohoian between the second and third acts expressed on behalf of St. Mary's parish appreciation of the efforts of the players, their director, and all, who in any way contributed to the success of the evening's entertainment.

Nothing But the Truth proved to be a comedy from beginning to end. It was the story of a young man who wagered $10,000 with his brokerage partners and a speculator that he could tell the absolute truth for 24 hours. The $10,000 had been entrusted to him by his sweetheart who had asked him to invest it and double it in two or three days time. She was a charity worker and her father had promised that he would duplicate $20,000 and all over that amount raised for charity by his daughter and a professor engaged in charitable work.

Telling nothing but the truth for 24 hours proved extremely embarrassing for the young man, almost spoiled his plans of marriage to the broker's daughter and came near wrecking the broker's business and his home life. All sorts of temptations to abandon the bet were laid in his way, but the young man steadfastly refused to tell anything but the absolute truth for the full 24 hour period. He won his bet, doubled his sweetheart's money, and finally untangled all the trouble in which his truthfulness had involved the broker, his partners and the speculator.

The members of the cast follows:

E. M. Ralston, senior member of Ralston, Bennett & Donnelly, a New York brokerage firm, Edward T. Connelly; Clarence VanDusen, a speculator, who was in on the bet with Mr. Ralston, John B. Keenan; Professor Doran, a charity work, who knew nothing about stocks but who cleverly saved himself $7,000, invested on the spur of the moment in Mr Ralston's quicksilver mine, Napoleon A. Kerpack; Dick Donnelly, one of Ralston's partners, also in on the $10,000 bet, Josent R. Portelance, Jr.; Robert Bennett, the partner who made the bet that he could tell nothing but the truth for 24 hours, Robert L. Enright; Mrs. E. M. Ralston, wife of Broker Ralston, Mary R. Keenan; Gwendolyn Ralston, "E. M.'s" daughter who entrusted her $10,000 to Bennett for investment, Eileen A. Hinchey; Ethel Clark, Miss Ralston's chum, Celine Bowen; Sabe Jackson, a scheming vaudeville actress, Teresa R. Portelance; Mable Jackson another scheming vaudeville actress, Justine E. Morrison; Martha, maid in the Ralston home, Loretta A. Gadle.

The Palace theatre orchestra gave an excellent concert programme of Irish airs for a half hour previous to the opening of the comedy while the large audience was being seated. A neat programme published by The Bulletin Co., was a big source of revenue for the play. It contained as a frontispiece a handsome "cut" of St. Mary's Memorial church which was dedicated December 10, 1922 and for which the proceeds of the evening will be applied. There also appeared in the programme a card of thanks from Rev. William A. Keefe rector of the church, to those who made the theatrical a success.

The programme boys were David Barry, James Quinn, James Johnstone, Wilfred Roberts, John Leary and Andrew McLaughlin. The Connecticut company provided extra services in handling the large crowd and held the late cars to accommodate the members of the audience who remained for the final scene of the play, which came to a close at 11 o'clock.

The programme committee comprised Rev. Frederick M. Cohoian chairman, John J. Sheehy, secretary, Mrs. Lucien R. Bisonnette, Mrs. James J. Brady, Mrs. A. Edward Brodeur, Mrs. Francis Cote, Mrs. Dennis Donovan, Mrs. Francis P. Donnelly, Mrs. M. Frank Leonard, Mrs. Laurence E. Millea, Miss Margaret Counihan, Miss May C. Nolan, Miss Mae J. Riley, James J. Brady, John F. Carroll, and Joseph A. Donnelly.

The executive committee were: Business managers, Rev. William A. Keefe and Rev. Frederick M. Cohoian; stage managers, Edward T. Connelly and Cornelius L. Crowley; prompter, Mrs. James E. Murphy.

The committee in charge acknowledged courtesies received from the following: Charles M. Maxfield, manager of the Palace theatre; Palace theatre staff of employes; Dr. Elijah S. Burdsall, acting superintendent of the Norwich State hospital; C. Edward Case, manager of the Western Union Telegraph Co.; The Plaut Cadden Co., The O'Neil Electric Co., Mara's Pharmacy, Reardon's Pharmacy, The Connecticut Co., John F. Carroll, Joseph T. Farrell and The Southern New England Telephone Co.

A verdict for the plaintiff, Geneva Genishevsky, of Hallville, in the amount of $2,500 was returned by a jury in the superior court at New London Wednesday afternoon after an hour's deliberation in the two cases for damages aggregating $12,000 brought by her and her father, Stanislaw Genishevsky, against Isadore Fishbone, of Norwich and Israel Chiat of Preston. Both suits were tried jointly but the jury returned only a verdict for the girl who is 5 1-2 years old. She claims to have been crippled for life, when a truck owned by Fishbone and operated by Chiat is alleged to have struck her while she was playing in the yard of her home in Hallville.

Late Wednesday afternoon a motion to set aside the jury verdict was filed with the clerk of the superior court by Attorneys John H. Barnes and C. V. James who tried the case for the defendants. Attorneys C. W. Cassidy and T. M. Shields were counsel for the plaintiff.

GAVE SOCIAL WORKERS TALK ON PROBATION

Robert A. Little, chief probation officer of the bureau of child welfare in Hartford, addressed the monthly conference of the social workers of New London and Windham counties Tuesday afternoon at the Montville Community house. Mr. Little's subject was probation.

A general discussion of the problem followed the talk. It is the aim of social workers to make some other provision than the county home for juvenile delinquents. More than 2,000 children went through the courts in the past year. Some of these were placed under probation, some in foster homes and others in the county home. It was Mr. Little's contention that there should be both men and women probation officers and there should be a special juvenile judge.

Mrs. Marion Phillips, of New London, of the Associated Charities, presided over the meeting which was attended by about 50 social workers.

The next meeting of the social workers will be in Danielson in April.

A call was also sent to the central fire station and a piece of apparatus responded from there, but the services of the city firemen were not needed.

The rear of the building was considerably damaged. The building is the old Case house and has been known for many years as the Judson Miner property. It is understood that Mr. Krieger intended to remodel it.

SPOKE UPON ROTARY SERVICES TO THE BOY

With President Clarence A. Spear presiding, the weekly meeting of the Norwich Rotary club was held Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel with a large attendance, including a number of visiting Rotarians and guests. A. G. Knebel of New York city, a member of the International Council of the Y. M. C. A., was the speaker of the day, his topic being "The Relation of Rotary to the Boy Life of the Community." Mr. Knebel, in bringing out his point, dealt largely with what the Y. M. C. A. has done for the boys of the community and cited four cases of nationally-known men where the Y. M. C. A. had been the means of giving the boy the right start. The cases named were: Elihu Root, who got his first training in statesmanship through a debating club sponsored by the old 23rd street branch Y. M. C. A. in New York; Edward Bok, author, who as an immigrant boy went to the Y. M. C. A., where he was helped to get an education in stenography and journalism; Rev. John Timothy Stone, one of America's best-known clergymen, who was inspired as a newsboy by receiving a membership to the Y. M. C. A.; Charles Taft, son of Chief Justice Taft who has been made president of the international council.

Rotary, in its work in assisting boys in getting an education or in helping them in any other way may do a wonderful work and time can only tell how much good Rotary has done for the boy.

At the business session it was voted to make a contribution to the x-ray fund of the Backus hospital. Announcement was made of the charter meeting of the East Hartford club, to be held on March 28.

Frank P. Murdy was the song leader for the meeting and Henry J. LaFontaine was at the piano.

NATIONAL COUNCIL SECRETARY SPEAKS AT Y CONFERENCE

Wednesday evening, at the local Young Men's Christian association, the members of the board and the Men's Bible study class listened with very unusual interest to A. G. Knebel, secretary of the National council of the Y. M. C. A. who gave an address on the trends and success of the Y. M. C. A. in America. He spoke interestingly of the large building program of the association during the last ten years, and stated that during that period more Y. M. C. A. buildings had been erected in America than in the previous 30 years. He told of the trend in the study of the needs of the young men and boys of a community before a new building was erected, and that these needs were very carefully considered before the building was built. The trend along religious work, said the speaker, is definitely along the line of religious education, and we are coming more and more in the association work to realize that no work, however spectacular it may be, counts for much unless it tends definitely to the building of Christian character. Mr. Knebel told of some wonderful happenings in the line of raising money for "Y" buildings, and that each year many millions are contributed by those who have watched the work and are convinced of the great good that is being done. He expressed the hope that the building in Norwich would be completed.

After the address a brief forum was conducted at which time several questions were asked and Mr. Knebel answered them with real intelligence. All present gained much inspiration. James L. Case, who is a member of the National council, presided in his usual efficient manner.

WOMAN'S GREATEST CHARM DECIDED
Hollywood agrees no one can star without Smooth Skin

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—The public demands exquisite smooth skin in women, say the leading film directors. No girl without a beautiful smooth skin has ever proved popular enough to star. They can't pass the test of the close-up without "Studio Skin," as it's called in Hollywood!

Under the strong blazing Klieg lights the slightest imperfection will show. "The cleverest make-up cannot fake beautiful skin under the blazing lights of the close-up" — as Lewis Milestone, United Artists director, expressed it—"it must be the real thing."

Nine out of ten stars are using Lux Toilet Soap. And in the dressing rooms of the big film companies it is also the "official" soap.

Made by the method France developed for her finest toilet soaps, it gives the skin a wonderful smoothness. "Lux Toilet Soap certainly gives my skin that lovely smoothness we mean by 'Studio Skin,'" says Doris Kenyon, the First National star. Lux Toilet Soap is made by Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Massachusetts.

PLAINFIELD PROS CLINCH EASTERN CONN. TITLE, BEATING TAFTVILLE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, March 21—Proving to the crowd that they are a hard team to beat, when hitting their stride, the Plainfield Pros defeated the Taftville Crescents in the second game of the series for the Eastern Connecticut championship by the score of 32 to 25 at Community house tonight and as the score signifies it was a close game. Not only close, but mighty hard fought every inch of the way, and until the last two minutes of the game Plainfield was not sure that they had the game sewed up.

Kiley was absent tonight from the Crescents lineup, but the other Boston Whirlwind players that played last week, Martin and Morley enhanced by Crotty and two Plymouth Town team men, Waters and Riordan had their hands full, but they made it a better game than it was last week.

Unfortunately the Crescents missed some field goals that might have turned the tide of battle in the last few minutes of play. Each team made ten field goals while Plainfield shot 12 fouls to the Crescent's five, so after all it was really the foul shots that won the game for Plainfield.

The score zigzagged all the way through from the first whistle. Taftville took the lead after Riordan dropped a field goal in, but Plainfield came through a few minutes later with a field by Brusso, and from then on, first one and then the other would take the lead. The floor work of both teams was mighty fast with little difference between the two teams. The passing too, was spectacular while Taftville outshined Plainfield in the shooting but fell down on their fouls while Plainfield took advantage of their chances on the latter, getting seven in the first half against five for Taftville. The Crescents were leading at the whistle 16 to 14.

Plainfield Spurts

Plainfield came out with a vengeance and proceeded to score ten points before the Taftville boys got going, taking the lead which they carried through until the end. Both teams sloughed it up a little in spots and Referee Smith had the fans giving him the well known ride. At that he seemed a little over-zealous in calling some of his fouls but, well——. Two fouls by Riordan, a field and a foul by Crotty, and a beautiful basket by Morley gave the Plainfield rooters something to think about when they came within a point of tying the score in the last five minutes of play. And the every angle, watching the Crescents fans saw some real basketball from trying for that tying goal. And it seemed that the ball just would not drop into the net. They tried all kinds of shots but to no avail. Then when Plainfield decided that Taftville had done enough they stepped out and away they went and proceeded to put the game on ice. Kasper with his usual fast floor work and superb all round basketball, Bernot with his brilliant long shots and Brusso the old reliable with the help of Dissinger the phantom and rough and ready Benson showed the fans that in form they can hold their own with any team in the country; and they were in form tonight. Taftville put up an excellent game and nothing can be taken away from them, but the extra fouls that Plainfield shot lost the game for them. Another break of the game.

Buddies Lose

The Putnam Silk Sox walked away with a victory over the Plainfield Buddies in the preliminary game 26 to 21, which had the fans on their feet throughout. It was a very good game to put the fans on edge for the final one.

YANKS FINALLY TURN TABLES ON THE BRAVES

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 21.—(AP)—The Yankees got revenge for the successive beatings today by inflicting an 8 to 2 defeat on the Braves.

Jumping Joe Dugan, veteran third sacker, was the hero of the game, having a perfect day at bat and knocking out the first Yankee homer of the season in the fourth inning. In his other three appearances at the plate Dugan got a walk, single and a double.

Of the "big three" Hornsby was the only one to get a hit. Rajah drove a single in the sixth to score Moore from second and tie the count. Babe Ruth fanned twice and was thrown out twice in his four trips to the plate, while Lou Gehrig drew two walks, fanned once and was thrown out once in the same number of appearances.

Score by innings:

OLYMPIC TEAM COACHES SELECTED

NEW YORK, March 21.—(AP)—The American Olympic committee, headed by Major General Douglas MacArthur, today moulded the framework of the complex organization that will represent the United States at Amsterdam this summer. All that remained was the picking of the athletes who will "carry the hod" for Uncle Sam and plans for the weeding out process were completed.

Managers and coaching staffs, assistants and trainers, and the date for Olympic tryouts were named in five major sports. The choosing of minor squads such as revolver and rifle teams, was left to the committees in charge of each event.

Heading the list was the appointment of Lawson Robertson, of the University of Pennsylvania, as head coach of the track and field squad, and the choosing of ten assistant coaches. They were John Behr, of the Illinois A. C., Dean Cromwell, southern California; Harry Hillman, Dartmouth; Wilbur Hutsell, Alabama Poly; John Magee, Bowdoin; Henry F. Schulte, Nebraska; Tom Keane, Syracuse; Eddie Farrell, Harvard; Jack Ryder, Boston A. A., and Dick Templeton, Stanford.

In naming Patrick J. Walsh, of New York, former president of the Metropolitan A. A. U., as manager of the team, the committee declared that in the interest of discipline, the managers of each squad would be in complete charge of the personnel. Athletes and coaches alike must take whatever orders are necessary from these divisional chiefs.

Ninety athletes will make up the men's track squad and twenty the women's team, the latter entered in the competition for the first time.

The Olympic tryouts will be staged at Cambridge, Mass., July 6 and 7, with competition in the 400 metre hurdles and 400 metre run held at the Yale track, New Haven, Conn., July 4. The women's tryouts probably will be held in Newark on July 4. Four men will be taken abroad for each of the 21 events on the Olympic program and six for the marathon.

The Liner President Roosevelt, chartered some time ago, to carry the entire Olympic representation to Amsterdam, will sail from either Boston or New York July 11. The athletes will live aboard ship in Amsterdam.

Hahn May Have to Go With Team

NEW YORK, March 21.—(AP)—The chances of Lloyd Hahn, star of the American Olympic forces, to precede the track team abroad in order to gain added practice and opportunity of acclimation, appeared slim tonight.

Following the meeting of the Olympic executive committee, Lawson Robertson, newly appointed head coach of the track and field forces, declared he would hold a conference within a few days with Jack Ryder, Boston A. A., Mentor and Hahn's tutor for several years, to discuss the matter.

'BOUT SPORTS

Of course there will always be arguments about high school states titles in the world of sport and in Connecticut there seems to be an oversupply. Hartford high, which had a tangle last year for the state grid championship is already making preparations for nothing like that to happen this year. Their grid slate, just announced includes games with all the leaders in the state including Harding, N. F. A. is on this schedule for the first time in many years.

Incidentally, in announcing the schedule, there apeared something that went like this: Norwich Free Academy is a new opponent and will be played at Norwich Nov. 10. And now the part that mildly interests—This should be a win for the locals.

Another incidentally, the Academy, although rated rather weak in the Insurance City, still has more games on its baseball schedule than two of Hartford's high school, and just a trifle less than all three schools in the capital. Any attempt by a team up there to claim the state diamond title on a nine or twelve game schedule, as they intend to play, will be greeted by loud guffaws from unpartisan fandom. N. F. A. has 23 games.

Plainfield has the basketball title of this section stored safely away for another year. And they deserve the honor for they played well. Honors also go to Taftville for her game fight but it was just another victory for teamwork against a group of stars.

SECHTER'S SPOOKS WIN OVER FITCHVILLE JRS.

Sechter's Spooks beat the Fitchville Juniors at Fitchville recently by the score of 48 to 17. The winners held the upper hand all the way with the shooting and passing of Sechter, Greene and Stockwell excelling. For the losers Chubby Gibbs was the best bet.

C. F. C. FAVORED OVER ACADEMY FOR NEXT GAME

Strangely enough the C. F. C. now seems destined to carry the favorite's ribbons into the second game of their city title series with the Academy Saturday night at the Y gym. There seems to be a strong opinion among some that the Baptists were not their best last week, although they received a rather decisive defeat.

This second game bids fair to be even better than the first. Last Saturday it was proved that no love is lost between these teams and with the C. F. C. facing loss of the series by dropping the game this week end and the schoolboys sighting victory, plenty of action can be expected.

PASTIME AND DANIELSON HAVE SHOWS FRIDAY: SPRINGFIELD TEAM-DUWELL

Eastern Connecticut will have its fill of amateur boxing during the next four or five days. Friday evening the Pastime A. C. stages its weekly show at Olympic hall and on the same evening Danielson opens up with a show promoted by Frankie Barber, former professional match maker. On Monday Walter Main will stage another bout at Stonington while on Tuesday evening the Duwell A. A. stages another at the state armory.

Each and every one of the shows is bound to furnish plenty of action for the fans. Danielson's show will be the first taste of the boxing game since Frankie Barber quit the professional game several years ago. Norwich's show will be an outlaw affair in the eyes of the A. A. U. but Matchmaker Quinn is featuring the battles between the two service teams, the Sub Base and the Coast Guards.

At Stonington Monday Promoter Main will have a number of Norwich boys on the card including Jimmy Quinn who Main claims will box Happy Bontempo. The Duwell team will meet stiff opposition in the Springfield team which has been cleaning up on a Canadian tour.

Pastime Expects Record Crowd

The Pastime A. C. is loking forward to a banner house for its amateur show Friday night at Olympic hall. The promoters have had installed extra seats so that there should be seating accommodations for all.

All of the boys slated to appear are working hard. The heavyweight bout between Young Brush and Kid Fritz is expected to prove a feature although several other likely looking fights have also been lined up.

More boys are expected from the Pacific coast team that is now migrating to the Sub Base but who they are or how many will appear is not known as yet.

Many Entries at Danielson.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, March 21.—Some future world champion may strut his stuff and sock his way up the first round of the ladder that leads to fame when Danielson revives amateur boxing at the state armory here Friday evening. You can never tell where they'll start! Nor finish!

In any event, the word has gone forth that every glove swinging scent on Friday night's bill is going in there with the ambition of being the only fighter standing on his feet in the ring when a bout is over. That sort of an idea spells action in thunder shower lots, and is the thing that induces fans to walk up to the box office and pay to sit on the sidelines.

Promoter Frank Barber, working in conjunction with the headquarters detachment at the state armory said this afternoon that he has boxers enough to produce what should prove to be a rattlety bang show.

There are five classes, assuring a total of ten bouts. In the 165 pound class are Erick Ryhanan and George Herr of the Casino A. C., of Danielson and Jack Dowd and Aldo Nocai, this latter pair pounding their way toward glory under the colors of the Worcester arena.

In the 147 pound class one finds Art Nerborne, a husky boy who swings with a will. He is a Casino A. C. boy—and a good one. Ben Dempsey and Eddie Koulas of Jewett City are also in this class, and they should be good if they live up to the ancient tradition of socking lore from that town down the line. Completing the 147 pound group is Young Firpo of Moosup, and he gets that name from knocking 'em out of the ring, so it's said. We shall see.

Boxing in the 132 pound class will be Byron Parker, Casino A. C., Joseph Bontempo, Jewett City, Steve Golish of the same town and Francis Socquet of the Casino A. C. Some rabid sockers here!

There are six contestants in the 124 pound class—Ernest Gauvin of Taftville, Young Paradise of Central Village, Young Wakeley and Johnny Harko, two more Central Village boys, Young Sanguet of Wauregan and Joe Marone of the Worcester arena. Well, what a mauling there's going to be in this group!

In a special class—112 pounds—will be Young Doyle of Wauregan and Joe Bishop of the Casino A. C.

There you are—10 bouts. Some of them most certainly will be good. All will be interesting. Outside the special class Promoter Barber is not telling who is to meet. That will be announced as the boys are about to enter the ring.

Springfield Team at Duwell's

Having recently returned from a successful tour of Canada the Brightwood A. C. team of boxers from Massachusetts has been signed by the Duwell A. A. for its next amateur boxing show to be staged at the state armory here on Tuesday March 27.

The boxing team that will represent the Brightwood club will be composed of a featherweight, a 130 pounder; two welterweights and last but not least, a playmate for the devastating Big Boy Burlap of Westerly.

Bob Phelps known throughout baseball circles in Connecticut, is in charge of the Springfield stable, which returned to its native haunts Saturday night after two weeks of touring in the larger cities of the dominion.

Although the local matchmakers are well informed as to the ability of his men, Phelps has forwarded a flock of clippings from Canadian newspapers boosting the stock of the pugs wearing the Brightwood colors. The sport writers all conclude their stories by expressing a desire to see the American boys in action again.

Having a field of over 50 boxers to pick from the Duwell matchmaker has not made his selection as yet, except for the heavyweight. Local fandom insists on some one to swap leather with the Westerly colored heavyweight and at the present time this is the chief concern of Duwell officials in selecting a foreign team regardless of where it comes from or how well it is reputed.

Big Bill Fielding, 215 pounds of bone and muscle as described by Phelps will carry the next battle against Westerly's big mauler. Fielding is noted as one of Massachusetts best heavies and promises to give Burlap a good evening's entertainment.

Where Quality and Service are the Watchword

ROTHMAN-MOPSIK ARE EXPERT LADIES' TAILORS

With spring rapidly approaching is it not well to call attention to the style which is to prevail. Rothman and Mopsik, expert ladies' tailors and furriers, of 117 Main street, are prepared today to begin work on spring costumes for women. They state that suits for women are to prevail in the spring and that it would be wise for women who are particular in their dress to make plans immediately for that new suit.

Tailor made clothes are perfected for the person for whom they are designed. A tailor made suit fits that person for whom it is made. This of course cannot be the case with ready to wear garments. These latter garments are made to a pattern to fit a certain type of person. Everyone understands, of course, that it is rare when the measurements of two people are exactly the same. A droop of one shoulder, a slight difference here and there. All this goes to make the ready to wear garment anything but a perfect fit.

Rothman and Mopsik measure every patron. Each line of the garment is figured in advance and cuts are made for that particular person. As the suit progresses more measurements are taken and when the garment is finished it is for that one patron and for no one else.

For the lady who would be well dressed this feature cannot be ignored. Ill fitting suits do not bring out the beauty of the figure. Tailor made suits do bring out the beauty of the figure and that is why they are in demand by women who are well dressed.

Besides the tailoring of suits and garments Rothman and Mopsik also are expert furriers. They suggest that you bring in your furs and let them look them over and make necessary repairs. Slight rips or worn places now, may soon become too large to repair and thus a valuable fur piece is destroyed. A slight alteration or repair now may be the means of saving many dollars.

Bring in your furs before it is too late to save them. Have them treated with that which gives them added years of wear. Call Norwich 2107 and Rothman and Mopsik will be only too glad to quote you on prices for garments of all kinds and also tell you about methods and prices for saving your valuable fur pieces.

NORWICH SAVINGS SOCIETY IS PLACE FOR YOUR MONEY

The thrifty man or woman places money not needed for ordinary expenses in keeping with some reliable banking institution. The Norwich Savings Society for all eastern Connecticut people is just such an institution and for over a century it has tood for reliable service.

Many a small savings account has been established here and in the years following has been increased, both by additional deposits and by interest payments, until the account has come to represent a protection against adverses of later years.

When a man is young and enjoys good health his earning power is rated at the best. This, then, should be the time when he should save against the possibility of poor health in his older years, bringing of course an impairment of earning ability.

Money improperly spent can be man's worst enemy but money properly saved is every man's best friend. The saving of one dollar or more a week, during the course of a score of years, amounts to several thousand dollars. This savings account then stands as a friend in need, which never fails when called on for protection of the family.

A modern and efficient bank prides itself on assisting its depositors to find the best means of saving. Your own financial problem of course must be worked out by yourself. A bank cannot force you to save if you desire to waste. One thing a bank can do however is to assist those of you who wish to save. A bank can suggest proper means of saving, arrange an easier way of keeping up with systematic savings.

This is the type of service the Norwich Savings Society seeks to give in Norwich. Why waste the earnings of our best years — visit our bank and let us how you how to save and build up a protecting bank account.

IT WILL PAY YOU WELL TO VISIT THE DAWSON SHOP

If you never discovered this tiny shop, located just off Main street on lower Cliff street, you have a treat in store for yourself. It is a real Millinery Shop, not a hat store, where numbers of hats all factory made, and as alike as "two peas" are for sale—but a millinery shop where the very latest in styles and materials of highest quality are offered. The service is graciously given, and your own ideas and individuality are brought out. Mrs. Tanner who conducts the shop is a millinery designer, not merely a saleswoman. It will pay you to visit this hop. The prices here are not expensive, but the millinery is exclusive.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Noank Crescents basketball tossers went to Mystic Tuesday evening and played the Shamrocks at Columbia hall in the second game of the series before the largest crowd of the year. A bunch of 75 fans followed the team. As they came out of the dressing room in their red and black suits, in lead was Capt. Lefty Patterson and a whoop sounded from the cheering squad of the Crescents. Then the green suits came on the floor. In front was Capt. Jeff Steward and the Shamrocks' cheering section gave the players a big hand. When Timer Bracci gave the signal, the battle was on. It was the fighting Crescents' last try to bring back the third game to the village. The ball was going around the hall fast and kept the referee on the move. In the second quarter, it looked like a runaway game for the Shamrocks, but the fighting Crescents were hanging on well and the first half ended—Shamrocks 29, Crescents 9. Coach Billy Crane gave the Crescents a good talking-to during rest time. He said "You are dead! No life at all! Get in there and fight!" So Capt. Lefty made a shift in guard, sending in Stretch. Then the battle raged again and with the never-die spirit of the fighting Crescents, a team that may be down but never is out, Dash Patterson dropped three in a row by quick throws. The Shamrocks were well covered and it was man to man. An over-head shot by Dash Patterson back to the basket, never touching the net, set the crowd to cheering. The referee had to stop the game for so much noise was going on that the players could not hear the whistle. Then Sure Shot Morgan was sent in the place of Flash McDonald, cutting down the score. The sharpshooter forwards were putting the ball in well and the lead was too much for the Crescents fighting the Shamrocks in the last half, 16 to 6. But the boys in the green suits sent the Crescents back to the fishing village on the short end of the score. Shamrocks 35, Crescents 25. Dash Patterson had six field goals and one foul for Noank. While Engine Foote, Dead Shot Trant and Steward were the stars for Mystic.

The flatfish have called off their strike and have landed back around the fishing grounds off Block Island again. It makes the fishermen wear smiles all day. The fish are bringing a big price in Fulton market. The boat Emerald, Captain Brown and Mate Gordon Clark, got 20 barrels of fish and Mate Clark said it is like eating peanuts at a movie show the way the fish came on. The deck was almost knee-deep with fish. The boat Baby had 14 barrels and the Julia had 15. So over 100 barrels of fish were sent to New York, going down by trucks. But the fishing fleet might go out to the same ground and make several sets, yet not get enough for the cat or a supper for a family of five. That is the way with the fishing game. You have to go out every day if you want to catch fish and can't give up, for the fish may come back to the same place.

The canvass for funds for the Methodist church from house to house is being made by members of the church. A committee was selected and the money is to cover the budget for the coming church year. A card is left at each house, explaining what the money is needed for. This is the first time in several years that the members of the church have made such a canvass of the village. The members are working in three teams and their canvass will continue until the last of the month.

On the jump in all weathers

3/4 of the Highway Police questioned said, "Saves us sore muscles"

THE MEN whose job it is to keep the highways safe are famous for their courage, their daring, their defiance of hardship, strains, danger.

In every state they represent the pick of its hardiest specimens. Their bodies must be strong, quick, supple to respond to the sudden emergencies they are constantly called upon to face. And yet they have to do their work under conditions that would lay most men up with colds, rheumatism, stiff, strained muscles.

How do they keep themselves free of these ailments?

We put this up to the men themselves. Three-quarters of the number questioned said, "We use Sloan's."

Everywhere—the chief reliance of hard workers

And everywhere you get the same answer from people whose work keeps them out in bad weather or brings a heavy strain on their muscles. They swear by Sloan's Liniment.

Used after exposure to wet or cold, it prevents chilling, colds, stiffening of the muscles. And it brings the quickest, surest relief for every kind of muscular pain, rheumatism, sprains and bruises.

Read this statement from a policeman who has served on the Philadelphia police force for twenty-seven years: "As I have used a considerable quantity of Sloan's Liniment in the last few months and received almost instant relief, I think it my duty for the sake of humanity to recommend it to others. It gives me great pleasure to recommend Sloan's for all pains in the back and legs, as I do a lot of walking and am exposed to all kinds of weather." William R. Christy, Sr., 1933 Master Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

And this from a brakeman on the Chicago and Northwestern who was suffering agony from a sprain and a wrenched ligament:

"I fell off the top of a box car on my left arm, spraining it and tearing the ligaments loose. I suffered considerable pain for about forty-eight hours. I got a bottle of Sloan's Liniment. It relieved the pain right away. It is now fifty-three hours since I was hurt. I have no pain at all to speak of. The swelling has nearly all gone down. I think it is the best liniment I have ever used. I suggest that anybody having a sprain get a bottle and apply it according to directions." Harry M. Hall, Belle Plaine, Iowa.

* * *

Everyone should have Sloan's Liniment always on hand—for immediate use in case of emergency. Apply liberally—but without rubbing. Right away you feel a glowing warmth—a quick, powerful stimulation to the circulation which breaks up congestion and sweeps away germs and poisons. The pain stops because the cause of the pain is gone. Use it for:

Rheumatism, Lame Muscles, Sciatica, Stiff Neck, Lumbago, Colds and Neuralgia congestions, Sprains and bruises

One of the Highway Police who said, "We swear by Sloan's to ward off the results of exposure and strain." It's the best ever to knock colds, prevent rheumatism, limber up lame muscles, and relieve the pain of sprains and bruises.

Here's what the company doctor of one of the big railroads says of Sloan's: "People whose work exposes them to strain or to damp and cold usually suffer from a good deal of muscular soreness. We find that Sloan's gives them quick, positive relief."

SLOAN'S Endorsed universally by those who do the world's hard work

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

A Lover of the Jungle

What pleases me you may despise;
What I dislike you mayhap prize.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit was eager to know more about his tropical cousin who lives away down in the Sunny Southland called fall by Scrapper the Kingbird on his way to lands even farther south. Peter hadn't known that he had a cousin Panama, which is visited every down there until Scrapper mentioned it. Then Peter was full of questions, as he always is.

"Are you quite sure about that tail?" Peter asked.

"What tail?" replied Scrapper, pretending that he didn't know.

"Why, the tail of that cousin of mine way down there. You said it wasn't white and that it was shorter than mine," said Peter. "Are you sure about it?"

"Quite sure about it," replied Scrapper.

"Then," said Peter, "the baby rabbits cannot follow their mother's tail, as my babies can. I think I prefer a white tail."

"But," pointed out Scrapper, "when they run they don't show a white tail to their enemies as you do. Not having a white tail, that cousin of yours can disappear more quickly than you can."

"Does he live in a dear Old Briarpatch?" asked Peter eagerly.

Scrapper shook his head. "No," said he, "he lives in the jungle, and a jungle is really what you call a Green Forest."

"Then he's like Jumper the Hare, isn't he?" said Peter. "I mean, he's like him in choosing a place for his home."

"Somewhat," replied Scrapper. "He likes the deep jungle, but I think he likes even better the edge of the jungle, where the plants grow thicker. He is like you in that respect. He doesn't move about much in daytime, so I haven't seen much of him. He likes the night best."

"Are you quite sure about that tail?" Peter asked.

Peter nodded approvingly. "That is where he shows sense," said he. "Where does he spend the day?"

"Oh," replied Scrapper, "he spends it sitting in his form under a log or in some other place where he is well hidden. He is very timid. And even if he does live 'way down where it is hot all the time, he certainly has learned the art of 'freezing'."

Peter understood what Scrapper meant. He meant that the rabbit sat perfectly still, without motion of any kind; as still as he would have been had he been frozen stiff. When an animal sits or stands in this way it is said to be "freezing." It is done to avoid being seen. It is motion that catches the eye. Peter Rabbit has saved his life more than once by freezing. An enemy has passed close to him without seeing him, simply because he did not move.

Peter nodded his head approvingly. "Evidently my cousin has sense," said he. "Does he have any private little paths?"

"Yes," said Scrapper, "he has his own private little paths which he uses night after night. So, you see, he is a real rabbit."

"And he doesn't know what snow is? Nor what cold weather is? My, my, my, what a lot he misses! I guess I'm satisfied to stay right here," said Peter.

Children Energized in Two Weeks' Time!

Play will keep children in condition, but you must send them forth eager and able to lead an active life. Fruits in abundance, if the child will eat lots of it. And if not, California fig syrup is a blessing! For no child ever refused this daily treat, and one spoonful means more than a whole bottle of the "tonics" some parents give youngsters. Nothing was ever like this fruity syrup for any liver that's sluggish; in twenty-four hours the system is rid of all sour bile. Within a few days, far better, more regular elimination will be quite apparent; the appetite improved, assimilation so perfect you will see no coating on the tongue even in the morning. Fig syrup would be worth trying for two weeks even though the benefits were only half those promised for this wonderful product. It would be an exceptional child indeed, who did not respond very quickly to its natural aid. If you have a listless boy or girl who has constant upsets of stomach, or is inclined toward constipation and need of strong purgatives, try fig syrup. Remember, too, that an ailing, fretful, or feverish baby is helped in this same harmless manner. Get the pure product; the genuine California fig syrup. Watch for the name "California" and get the generous sixty-cent bottle of any druggist, anywhere.

The consistency of Hudson leadership is but the performance of its first principle, resolution and tradition—to always lead in value.

Thus it was the first car at moderate price to give truly great performance, smoothness and reliability—the industry's standard today.

Thus it was the first in the development of American closed cars, and such smart turnouts as the Town Car and Speedster.

The Coach—a Hudson invention—turned the entire industry to closed cars.

The Super-Six principle and its companion invention that turns waste heat to power, is the most efficient combination in development and transmission of power, within our knowledge.

In the beautifully designed and luxuriously finished bodies that feature the new Hudson Super-Sixes the same relation of values obtain as made the Super-Six chassis famous.

HEAVY BUYING OF STOCKS CONTINUED UNABATED IN YESTERDAY'S MARKET

NEW YORK, March 21—(AP)—Prompted buying of stock continued unabated in today's stock market, the third largest session in stock exchange history. More than two score issues, led by General Motors, General Electric and Radio, established new high records, some of the gains running as high as 17 points. New leaders were quickly brought forward whenever the old favorites showed signs of slipping on profit taking, with the oils and coppers taking a prominent part in the upswing for the first time since the current "bull" movement started.

Total sales were 3,903,800 shares, or less than 10,000 shares behind the record turnover of March 13. It was the ninth consecutive full session that the day's sales had crossed the 3,000,000 share mark. Despite the abbreviated system of quotations, the ticker was unable to keep pace with the day's transactions, the final quotation appearing on the tape about half an hour after the market closed.

With the exception of a falling off in freight car loadings in the week ended March 10, the day's business and financial news was somewhat more cheerful in character. Price movements generally, however, had little relation to outside developments. The sharpest gain again took place in stocks believed to harbor a large short interest.

Lowering of the call money renewal rate to 4 1-4 per cent tended to allay fears of an immediate credit stringency although the prospect of a resumption of gold shipments to England because of the recent advance in sterling to the "gold export point" and the possibility of a sharp advance in brokers' loans this week were again sources of uneasiness. Weekly steel trade reviews were a little more optimistic in character and improved trade conditions were reported from the oil and copper industries.

Heavy buying of U. S. Steel common, which advanced 4 points to 150, or within 2 3-4 points of the year's high, was one of the day's features. General Motors advanced nearly 5 points to another new high at 177 7-8 and closed within a small fraction of the top. Radio, after opening 3 points lower at 182, rallied to a new top at 162 1-4 and then slid back to 155, unchanged on the day. General Electric advanced more than 4 points to 145 7-8, the highest price since the stock split-up a few years ago, and backed up to 144 1-2.

Victor Talking Machine convertible preferred added 17 points to its gain of 18 1-2 points yesterday, closing within a fraction of the record high of 172 1-4, while the common stock showed a net gain of 8 1-2 at 86 7-8, after having opened with a block of 10,000 shares at 88. Case Threshing soared 17 points to 292, but lost 4 1-4 points on realizing. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe moved up 7 points to 260, a gain of 53 1-4 points in three days.

Among the many issues to better their previous 1928 maximum prices were Art Metals, Atlantic Refining, Bucyrus Erie Steam Shovel, Butterick Publishing, Commonwealth Power, Du Pont, Graham-Paige, Hupp Motors, Hershey Chocolate common and preferred, Madison Square Garden corporation, Richfield Oil, Sinclair, Texas & Pacific railroad and William Wrigley.

Mackay company companies advanced nearly 5 points on the announcement of its merger with International Telephone, but lost more than half its gain. International Telephone closed 2 1-2 points net lower at 157 1-4. Most of the rubber shares were heavy.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Spanish pesetas dropped 5 points to 16.79 cents but most of the other foreign exchanges were firm. Sterling Cables ruled unchanged at $4.88 1-4.

Commodity markets moved within narrow and regular limits. Grain futures were slightly firmer while cotton lost a small part of yesterday's gain. Sugar quotations held steady and coffee advanced 7 to 21 points. Crude rubber dropped nearly a cent a pound.

LAFRANCE PUMPER TRY-OUT INTERESTS THE BOROUGH

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, March 21—The borough had an opportunity today to see what an America LaFrance 500-gallon pumper will do in connection with the water hydrants and the various river supplies in the borough. The machine arrived from Boston at 11 o'clock and was demonstrated all the afternoon at different points. The school children at Riverside grammar school were allowed to watch the pumper work from the river water supply, viewing the apparatus in action from the windows of the building. The truck is equipped with an 80-gallon booster tank, as well as ladders and all other necessary adjuncts. Chief Woodward, of Danielson, came down to see the demonstration, which was said to be very satisfactory. Sunday, Warden Edmond Jodoin, Burgesses Henry Olsen and John McDermott and Fire Marshal George H. Prior were in Boston looking over various fire trucks.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

GLEASON FAMILY SQUABBLES GET FATHER INTO JAIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, March 21—Ernest A. Gleason, of Willington, was sentenced to 30 days in jail and ordered to pay a fine of $30, together with $22.53 costs, by Judge William H. Heald in the Stafford Springs borough court yesterday morning, on a charge of assault and breach of the peace. The complainant was Mrs. Ida M. Gleason, wife of the accused. Mr. Gleason formerly conducted a filling station and tea room near his home on Willimantic road. During the past year the business has been carried on by Mrs. Gleason and her daughters, Marjorie and Mildred. Mr. Gleason said in court that he did not wish to have his daughters remain in the tea room after midnight, as they have been doing for some time. Friday afternoon an argument arose between Mr. and Mrs. Gleason over the purchasing of some furniture for the tea room and it is alleged that Gleason attacked his wife with a carving knife and threatened her life. The argument was renewed Tuesday morning and Mrs. Gleason and her daughters testified that Mr. Gleason had driven them out of the house. She and her daughter, Mildred, came to Stafford Springs scantily clad, the daughter being without shoes, saying that she was so much afraid of her father she did not dare to wait to put her shoes on. She borrowed some clothing from a friend in the Springs so that she might properly appear in court. The jail sentence together with the fine and costs will keep Gleason in jail about 83 days.

Morgan J. O'Brien paid a fine of $10 and costs after pleading guilty to the charge of speeding. He admitted coming down Chestnut Hill at 50 miles an hour. State Policeman Stevens considered this excessive and summoned O'Brien to court. Judge Heald also thought that a rate of 50 miles an hour coming into the village of West Stafford was greater than was reasonable and proper, therefore imposed a $10 fine.

The funeral of William Fall, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fall, of Main street, who died of lockjaw Sunday evening as a result of a gun-shot wound, was held at St. Edward's church Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, Rev. P. J. O'Neill sang the requiem high mass. Burial was in St. Edward's cemetery.

William Comins, of Akron, Ohio, has been spending a few days at his home on Crown street.

The Home Bureau club is to meet in the American Legion room this (Thursday) afternoon at 1:30. Miss Mason will give an illustrated talk on Home Furnishing.

State Forest Fire Warden Austin F. Hawes, of Hartford, has requested that all persons who desire to have rubbage or brush burned have it done during March. It is necessary, however, to obtain a permit from the local fire warden before building any fire in the open.

COLCHESTER

Oliver Woodhouse lodge, No. 51, K. of P., held its meeting in Pythian hall Tuesday evening. There was a large attendance, with visiting members from New London, Salem, Lebanon, Willimantic and Hartford. The lodge received a visitation from Grand Chancellor Walter R. King of Willimantic and his associate officers. The rank of knight was worked on a class of five esquires. The local degree team was augmented by members from New London and Willimantic. Three new applications were received, making 14 new members since Jan. 1, 1928. Three reinstated members were taken in. After the work of the evening the members and their guests sat down to an oyster supper prepared by the entertainment committee. During the supper speeches were made by the grand chancellor and others.

The dance given in Grange hall Saturday evening for the benefit of St. Andrew's church was largely attended, parties from Moodus, Fitchville and Bozrah joining local attendants. The affair was a great success.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Strong motored to Manchester Saturday and were guests of relatives.

William O'Brien of Naugatuck is visiting at Miss Nellie Doane's for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dember and child have returned after two weeks' visit in New York.

Miss Kathryn Morgan, who is teaching in Stamford, was at home over Sunday.

There was no school in the Ransom building Monday on account of water in the cellar. The pumper was taken over by members of the fire company and the water was pumped out.

William Hyman of Norwich was a caller here Monday.

PIMPLES ON FACE AND BACK

Festered and Scaled Over. Cuticura Heals.

"My face broke out with pimples and I also had some on my back. They were hard and red but not very large. The pimples festered and kept scaling over and over. They itched very much and when I scratched them they became larger and redder. They looked terrible, and I was ashamed to go out on the street.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. I purchased more, and in about four months I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Mary Objuski, 40 Anderson St., Naugatuck, Conn., June 13, 1927.

Only the heart-leaves of the tobacco plant are good enough for

OLD GOLDS

That's the bedrock reason for "not a cough in a carload." The tobacco itself! Indeed, the whole why of OLD GOLD'S honey-like smoothness rests in these five tobacco facts:

© P. Lorillard Co., Inc. 1928

[1] The finest tobaccos that grow

[2] Only the "heart-leaves" from the heart of the tobacco plant

[3] Selected for their silkiness and ripeness to insure that honey-like smoothness

[4] Extra long mellowing and ageing in a temperature of mid-July sunshine

[5] All tobacco . . . pure tobacco . . . the finest tobaccos that grow

SMOOTHER AND BETTER—NOT A COUGH IN A CARLOAD

ALONE?

No—not with a telephone at hand.

Far from it, in fact. Though there may be no one else in the house, she has beside her an instant contact with neighbors, friends; a dependable guardian to bring help if ever it should be needed; a constant link with the outside world, so that she need never feel deserted.

And there is the other side of telephone service, too—the calls that may come to you. Your name in the telephone book gives you standing among the people who use it for reference; it enables your friends to reach you as easily as you can reach them; it keeps you within speaking distance of the rest of the world day and night.

And it costs so little!

For as little as $2.25 a month you can enjoy the benefits of a telephone in your home. Convenience, economy, protection, contact with the outside world at all times, day and night. All this at so small a cost to you.

The above rate applies in the local base rate area.

Service Connection Charge, $3.50

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Strand Theatre

A combination police and fireman story, with a strong romantic thread without a weak link, holding together a choice collection of funny situations sounds like an unbeatable entertainment formula, and it is—as "Mulhall's Great Catch" at the Strand, will prove for the last time today. This Lefty Flynn picture is a dark for action, and contains more honest, all wool, yard-wide comedy than a dozen ordinary pictures. Lefty Flynn is a contestant for the hand of lovely Nora McCarron, while his chief rival is Otto Nelson, pride of the police force. Harry Victor plays the role of Otto Nelson, the cop rival of Lefty, and Kathleen Myers is the appealing heroine in this film.

"Easy Going Gordon" is an exciting airplane picture and has for its star the dare-devil stunt performer, Richard Holt. The story concerns a gang of thugs, who are foiled with the aid of a speedy plane, and there is a pretty heroine, who furnishes enough romance to this already snappy story to make it without a doubt the last thing in good photoplays. For pep, action and thrills, see "Easy Going Gordon," at the Strand.

"Aesop's Fables" completes this double feature bill.

Diocesan Bureau of Social Service

This bureau has now been in Norwich for the past three years. Many yet do not seem to know what this bureau is, its purpose, aims, the good it does in this vicinity as well as throughout the state. Social service work does not seem to interest them. Many, too, think that this bureau is well off financially, and so does not need to appeal to the public for aid. The Diocesan bureau is an organized society, with headquarters at Hartford, and under the personal direction and supervision of the Rt. Rev. Bishop Nilan. Its workers are trained workers. It is recognized by the authorities of this state. Its methods of doing its work, maintaining its files and records, of conducting its offices, is in accordance with the laws of this state, and it has legal recognition by the courts. The importance of all this cannot be stressed too strongly nor be repeated too often. Where organized charity exists, much greater and better results can be—and are—obtained than where social service work is not organized. Duplication, overlapping, unworthy appeals, frauds, etc.—all this is avoided with organized social service. More information and explanations will be given about this bureau in our succeeding articles. Just now we wish all to become interested in this bureau and be willing to help it. For this reason keep in mind the whist and dance to be given April 10 at the Armory.

Palace Thursday

Starting today, for three days, the Palace offers a fine combination vaudeville and picture program. The variety side of the show is headed by two headlining acts.

George Lovett, known the world over as the "Mental Marvel," presents an offering under the title of "Concentration" that has entertained and mystified thousands of theatre-goers. Mr. Lovett is assisted by Georgia Templeton, known as the world's most wonderful seeress, and Elsa Brown, the musical oracle.

"Concentration" is a spectacular demonstration of psychic power presented in a manner so vastly different from the old-time mind-reading acts that it leaves no room for comparison. In fact, Mr. Lovett offers a revelation in the science of the human mind and its activities. Miss Templeton, from the stage, will answer all questions that the audience may put to her through Mr. Lovett, without any interchange of conversation between them. Patrons wishing a private meeting with Miss Templeton may arrange one through the manager of the Palace theatre.

The second headliners are the Five Lamars, who present one of the most sensational casting acts to be seen in Norwich in a long time. This act has played all the large cities and has been a sensation everywhere. Jimmy, Louis and Sally, "The Fit Trio," have an extra-pleasing skit. Fox and Wilke in "Laughs a la Carte" are bound to keep the audience in an uproar, while Ed Selwyn, the Minstrel Boy, offers an exceptionally good selection of songs. The screen attraction is "The Shield of Honor, Universal's big police picture, featuring Nell Hamilton, Ralph Lewis and Dorothy Gulliver, which has been made under the patronage and endorsement of The Police Journal in the interest of better understanding between the police and the public they serve, and in the interest of public co-operation, without which the police are sorely handicapped in the discharge of their duty. "The Shield of Honor," as directed by Emory Johnson, shows the inside working of a police department and the human side of a bluecoat's life. It is a gesture of friendship from the wearers of the shield, who are seen as the leading characters of a stirring melodrama.

LARGE CROWDS EXPECTED AT WILLIMANTIC OPENING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 21—Visitors from all parts of eastern Connecticut will come to this city Thursday evening, to attend the first annual spring opening of the Willimantic stores. While here the visitors will be guests of over 100 merchants who have cooperated in arranging innumerable attractions that should prove at once educational and entertaining to the crowds. The hundreds of window-shoppers will find special window trims highly educational in the selection of spring-ware vying with more fantastic trims of novelties and fancy goods. A tour of the streets will unfold a kaleidoscope of the latest in spring merchandise covering every phase of modern retailing.

The automobile and live model parade will start at 7:30 o'clock and will be led by the Elk's band. The cars will be 1928 models and in several of these will be featured equally modern models of beautiful representatives of the fair sex displaying what Paris and New York have decreed shall be the approved in milady's wearing apparel this spring. When the parade is over the Elks' band will be joined by the St. Joseph's Boy Scout and the Italian Citizens' band to render concerts from various sections of the business center.

All of the stores will be open until nine o'clock and the merchants will be hosts to the public. An invitation is extended to all to make free use of the services of the clerks in inspecting the merchandise without fear of any salespressure. The open-house plan is merely to give an opportunity to look over the merchandise without thought of immediate purchase. The tour of the city over many will wind up the evening at the motion picture houses where special features are being offered.

It is evident that the special window trims will be the outstanding note of attraction during the opening days. Anticipating this anticipation on the part of the public, the merchants have been unsparing in their friendly but none the less keen competition in window trimming. The ruling provides that only local decorators be engaged in the window trimming and in response to the enthusiasm aroused they are virtually outdoing themselves. Novel decorations such as this city has never before witnessed are the result of vivid imaginations and artistic ability. The fact that three competent judges Messrs Arthur Harris of Waterbury, W. G. Shiell of Bridgeport and Fred Wagner of Providence, are to

Says F. H. Marble. This is Nature's Signal of "Danger Ahead."

Fred H. Marble, Danielson, Conn., says in his own home paper, the Danielson Transcript: "My bladder bothered me 4 or 5 times every night. After taking Keller's Lithiated Buchu a few days I saw I was improving. Now I am not troubled at all. They have also relieved my friend Elmer Martin. I will tell or write my experience to anyone."

Lithiated Buchu acts on the bladder as epsom salts do on the bowels. Drives out foreign deposits and lessens excessive acidity. This relieves the irritation that causes "Getting up nights." The tablets cost 2c each at all drug stores Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio, or locally at Geo Engler's, druggist.

Concessions given at Ocean beach by the city of New London should be paid for according to members of the city council. This opinion was given yesterday after an official inspection was made of the premises of the concession which Antone Leverone is asking of the city. Leverone petitioned the council for permission to erect a platform which would extend out over a part of the beach and the waters of Alewife Cove, the platform to be used as a parking space. After the city fathers went over the ground they decided that the proposed parking platform would not have any appreciable effect in relieving the automobile congestion at the beach and that no answer could be given Leverone's petition until the matter received further thought.

As a result of the decision of the Connecticut Power company to erect its proposed three story fireproof building in Waterford, rather than here, it is offering for sale the property recently purchased on Water street for that purpose.

Both pleaded guilty for they realized that there was not the slightest chance of being freed. They were found fighting by Patrolman Clarence Wells. Wicks was sentenced to ten days in jail, but execution of the sentence was suspended. Lysne was given a suspension of judgment. Lysne informed the court that he was on Shaw street about 10:30 and there met Wicks. During the course of conversation, the question of obtaining liquor was brought up. Wicks offered to obtain liquor, provided that Lysne would pay for it. Wicks was given money by which a bottle of whiskey could be purchased and went to a nearby residence where a woman obtains a livelihood by selling liquor and there Wicks made the purchase. Wicks and Lysne drank the liquor and Lysne then gave Wicks an additional $2 to purchase another pint. Wicks went to the house, but when he returned he did not have the liquor neither did he return the money to Lysne. Wicks said that the woman refused to sell him another bottle and neither would she refund him the money which he gave her for the liquor. DOMBROSKI BOY EXPECTED TO DIE FROM INJURIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 21.—It is evident that it is but a question of hours when the injury sustained by Thomas Dombroski, 8, of 80 Potter street, struck by an automobile 10 days ago, will have a fatal termination. At Lawrence-Memorial hospital, where the boy has been a patient since the accident, it was stated tonight that he was gradually growing weaker. He has been in an unconscious state since the accident, for he suffered a fracture of the skull. The boy, with several companions, was at the corner of Main and John streets, a week ago last Monday night and were throwing snow balls. The Dombroski boy ran to the street when an automobile driven by Leslie Hawitt, 79 Phillips street, was about to pass. The youth was struck and knocked down. The mudguard came in contact with the boy's head, producing a fracture well towards the front of the forehead.

At the plant of the American Fisheries company, Groton, the crews of the various fishing boats that bring cargoes of fish, principally haddock, to the plant, are frequently aggrieved because of the amount they are paid, which is according to the prevailing market price. Recently there was a difference of computing of the amount the crew of one of the boats should be paid for the cargo brought to port the day before and yesterday when another boat arrived and with an unusually large catch the value of the fish had decreased to such an extent that another dispute arose over the payment the crew should be entitled to. It was claimed at the plant that the boat had remained too long out of port since the catch of the fish was made, but the crew insisted that they made the harbor as soon as weather conditions would permit.

Later a vaudeville program will be presented and a collation will be provided.

Harry Kendel, 199 Huntington street, went to the police station this evening and complained that the driver of automobile carrying Connecticut registration, N-65872, had been guilty of evasion of responsibility. The boy stated that he had parked his bicycle beside the curb on State street and that the driver of the automobile caused the car to back against the cycle and instead of stopping to ascertain the extent of damage occasioned the car was driven away.

The police of Jersey City, N. J. tonight notified the New London police that the suit case owned by Mrs. H. S. Richardson, 92 Revere street, Boston, Mass., which had been taken by mistake by Miss Stella Petrosewski, 319 Johnston avenue, Jersey City, had been recovered. The Jersey City police were requested to send the case to New London by express and the case owned by Miss Petrosewski, which is being held by Mrs. Richardson, would be sent to the Jersey City address in the same manner. Mrs. Richardson and Miss Petrosewski were guests at the Hotel Mohican yesterday and in an unexplained manner Miss Petrosewski departed, taking Mrs. Richardson's case by mistake. When the error was detected, Mrs. Richardson requested the local police to assist her in recovering her property.

Breed Theatre

Tonight will be the last opportunity local theatre patrons will have of seeing Janet Gaynor in her first starring vehicle, "2 Girls Wanted," at the Breed theatre.

This delightful Fox feature shows Miss Gaynor in a role that is in strong contrast to the one which brought her fame in "7th Heaven."

Other features in tonight's bill are "The Cherokee Kid," Tom Tyler's latest western release a Helen and Warren comedy and the latest News events.

"The Wagon Show," a western picture with a circus background, a story combining the thrills, romance, daring stunts and trick riding of the two, is Ken Maynard's latest feature, which comes to the Breed theatre tomorrow

This unusual departure from the regular western picture fulfills a long standing ambition of Maynard, for he spent many years as premier stunt rider with Barnum and Bailey, Ringling Brothers' circuses, and ever since he made his entry into pictures he has wanted to make one dealing with the circus and its people. "The Wagon Show" is the result, and so far has it surpassed even Charles R. Rogers, the producer and First National expectations that it has been released as a Ken Maynard Special.

Conn. College Concert

The Heifetz family came to the United States in 1917 by way of Siberia and Japan and young Jascha made his American debut Oct. 27 of that year with sensational success. His second recital was sold out weeks in advance, and that winter he gave four other concerts in New York without once repeating a number. A certain manager, observing the overflow crowds clammering vainly for standing room at one of these concerts and then standing in a large disappointed group on the sidewalk in front of Carnegie hall, cried:

"What wouldn't about 50 young fiddlers and singers in town give for a chance to play to the crowd that couldn't get in!"

Heifetz plays at New London, March 28, for the Connecticut college concert.

Deputy Sheriff Edgar H. Perry, of Westport, who was stricken ill at the Fairfield county court house and removed to his home after treatment by a Bridgeport physician, was taken from his home to the New Haven hospital.

SAYS CITY'S GROWTH WILL NOT COME WITHOUT REVITALIZED CIVIC SPIRIT

An organized and revitalized civic spirit in Norwich is needed if the city really wants to grow is one of the conclusions reached by the Babson Statistical Organization in the economic and industrial survey of the city and town which it has made for the chamber of commerce. Four concrete suggestions are made, viz; that separate committee be formed to push the re-valuation matter, to accomplish the revision of the city charter and the correction of unfavorable conditions coming under the control of the city government, to make a continued study of housing and factory location possibilities and to forward the proper advertising of Norwich's economic advantages in large cities, especially in New York city.

The following is a section of the report which makes recommendations after a survey of city and town conditions:

How to Make City Grow

There is, of course, little that the chamber of commerce can do to bring to an end the depression in the textile industries.

Moreover, the present outlook in woolen goods and cotton goods lines holds but little hope for any substantial improvement over the coming year. Over the longer prospect there is the probability that conditions will turn very much for the better. On the whole, however, expansion in the textile mills of Norwich may be rather slow in coming.

The woolen goods industry, especially men's woolens, has not only had to struggle with a difficult and high raw wool market, but has also had to adjust its production to a lower per capita demand than existed before the war. How long it will take for the rising needs of the country's population to take up present capacity is impossible to forecast. Students of this situation say that gradual improvement is probable but they are not very hopeful of an early substantial recovery of any permanence.

The troubles of the cotton goods industry in New England are well known. Lower labor and tax costs in the south and nearness to raw cotton has caused most of the expansion in the coarse cotton goods branch of the industry to develop in that region. It is estimated that a period of 15 years will pass before the expansion in the south will have had the inevitable effect of raising labor costs and taxes there to a level with those of New England. In the meantime the industry in New England must develop the manufacture of fine cotton goods and specialties if it is to prosper.

Although the per capita consumption of cotton goods is figured to be as large as ever, the capacity of the industry has been and is excessive. There is on the whole no reasonable expectation of any early substantial improvement in this industry, although conditions may improve somewhat over present levels. Any expansion in Norwich will have to be, therefore, in special lines with exceptional management and good finances.

In this connection it may be well to point out that textile plants equipped to use rayon either alone or in connection with their regular lines are in a much better competitive position than those that are ignoring this new textile. The manufacture of rayon and rayon goods is the swiftest growing line of activity in the textile group of industries. The use of rayon either alone or in combination with fine cotton, wool, and silk goods has been expanding rapidly. This movement is still in its early stages. Rayon is destined to be widely used in important quantities.

Pending the return of more generally prosperous times in the textile industry, the chief thing to guard against is attempts to set up concerns that are poorly equipped to combat the abnormal conditions in these lines. The quality and special marketability of the product, together with the capabilities of the proposed management and the adequacy of its finances should be carefully looked into before the chamber spends much money on this type of concern. And we must not forget that the more diversified big business in Norwich becomes the better will be conditions for all concerned.

We do not look with favor on the idea of bringing in a cotton yarn plant, notwithstanding that considerable of this yarn is consumed in the various textile and cord mills. There is too much competition in the yarn business as it is, and a local plant would have great difficulty in making a favorable showing in competition with the large established mills in North Carolina and other states.

Development of Skilled Labor Market

The development of a skilled labor market of metal workers is a project the chamber should work on. A community with a labor element comprised largely of unskilled labor is not as desirable a city to live and do business in as one where a good percentage of the citizens are in more skilled lines of work. A proper proportion of skilled and unskilled is best. Of more importance, however, than this for the purpose in hand, is the fact that the development of diversified manufacturing in Norwich to offset the preponderance of textile mills necessitates the development of a skilled labor market.

The firearms, cutlery, and a few other lines are now the chief employers of skilled metal workers. New concerns of any size starting up in Norwich and requiring help of this kind, would probably have to bring it in. The matter of suitable housing would then be a problem. Moreover, large numbers of skilled metal workers coming in might unsettle existing wage scales in Norwich. Under the circumstances the encouragement of only medium or small sized concerns employing help of this nature would be best until the skilled labor market grows larger and suitable housing becomes more plentiful. The difficulty arising from the housing scarcity should be recognized and overcome by intelligent cooperation between the chamber, real estate men, and building contractors.

Iron Foundry Products Needed

A certain amount of diversification exists now among the smaller manufacturing plants in Norwich. Investigation among them reveals no outstanding line of goods needed to supply demand from these industries unless it be an iron foundry for small castings. There appears to be a considerable demand for this kind of material from the local factories and it has to be obtained from New London.

Look for Prospects in Big Cities

There is a strong tendency now for manufacturing plants to move out of big cities such as New York to more quiet and settled labor markets and lower industrial costs. Provided this matter of skilled labor and suitable housing is satisfactorily handled, the other advantages cited under the foregoing head "Economic Facts" should enable the chamber to go after concerns in a wider variety of lines in competition with other cities, especially with those inland without water transportation.

When Soliciting New Plants

When soliciting new plants or enterprises for Norwich it should be the endeavor to have these new concerns managed by experienced executives. They should start with sufficient capital to serve them through their early stages when business may come rather slowly. Lack of managerial experience and adequate capital are prolific causes of failures among new concerns. Such failures hurt the community spirit and should not be risked.

We recommend that when you start your campaign for new enterprises that you go after non-competitive, small and medium sized concerns. These smaller concerns if well financed and efficiently managed tend to develop and grow with the city and if enough of them are obtained give a very desirable diversification to a city's business.

Time is the important element in this matter of encouraging new enterprises to start up business in Norwich. Our observation is that there is no one best way of obtaining such enterprises. The community, however, that keeps its citizens' interest alive on the subject and loses no opportunity to advertise its advantages to people that are in a position to do something practical should in time prove successful. It may be well to form a development company with a small capital which would be in a position to buy a site and build a plant for the occupancy of a new concern. In this way land speculation which might arise to thwart a new enterprise would be prevented. The new concern could be given a period of about ten years to pay back the cost of the building to the development company.

We question the desirability of launching an extensive advertising campaign in order to obtain new concerns. Investigations show that many cities have spent large amounts in this way and have very little to show in the way of results. It is the advertising accomplished by the average citizen in his bearing toward the community's welfare and growth that accomplishes more in the long run than extensive magazine and newspaper advertising.

Revaluation of Property Essential

In addition to the efforts of the chamber along the foregoing lines, it is necessary that they keep actively behind the work necessary to correct the unfavorable conditions under the control of the city government. Our study shows up no one condition more hurtful to the growth and progress of Norwich than the highly unfair and inadequate method of taxation. We urge the chamber to exert its full power to acquaint the citizens with the desirability of having a revaluation of property done immediately and by competent outside experts.

It is apparent that the patience of the state tax commissioner is about at an end. If the town does not take action in the near future, it is certain then that revaluation will be done by outsiders hired from Hartford. The ignominy of having the state step in and do the work should be averted by prompt action. The citizens of Norwich should face this taxation problem with the will to clean it up so thoroughly that it will be an advertising feature and not a skeleton in the closet as it is now.

City Charter Should Be Revised

Revision of the city charter should be undertaken. This is an extremely important matter for the citizens of Norwich to realize and remedy. We suggest that the chamber use its discretion in advocating such revision. Probably it could be best handled by a committee selected for its tact in such matters.

In this connection some consideration should be given to the problem of improving the city government. Probably a city manager system would best suit the needs of Norwich. The town, moreover, should adopt the system of town finance board which is provided by law. The work of the different departments of the city should be coordinated so that in planning future work the activities of each department will fit in with that of all others without duplication.

Construction Codes Needed

An up-to-date building code and suitable plumbing and wiring codes should be adopted. The adoption of these three codes would not entail great expense as one man could handle at least two of the jobs. Moreover, inspection fees would help defray the expense. We do not need to emphasize the importance of this matter as we know the chamber realizes that they should be adopted.

Additional Fire Protection

The fire department should be supported in its efforts to keep the equipment as efficient as possible. A new fire station is needed on the West Side to replace the old one on West Main street. A light city service truck is also needed.

The center of the business district where the greatest fire risk exists is without sufficient water supply. Recommendations have been made by various authorities but no action has been taken. A beginning should be made to remedy this situation and perhaps help to prevent such an occurrence as Fall River has recently had. The greatest benefit for the least expenditure of money would be done by renewing the water main in Shetucket street from the Laurel Hill bridge to the corner of Main and Shetucket streets. The main here at present is a 6-inch pipe. It should be replaced with a 12-inch pipe, which would connect the new main at the bridge with the water main in Main street.

Efficient Board of Health Needed

The city lacks a suitable board of health. Such a board should be formed and given authority to act in cases of necessity. The present system of milk inspection, for example, cannot be classed as satisfactory in any respect. Matters of this kind are of increasing importance to any community and Norwich should take steps to put such work on a basis comparable with good modern practice.

Collection of Taxes Too Expensive

The usual method of handling the collection of taxes in a city such as Norwich is to have the city treasurer collect the taxes. The present system in Norwich is highly expensive and divides responsibility. In view of all the circumstances it cannot be defended on any grounds.

Police Telephone Printers Should be Added

A number of Connecticut cities have had installed police telephone printers and have found them extremely valuable in the rapid dissemination of news regarding crime. The expense of rental of such a system does not become an additional load on city finances, for the reason that a large proportion of the department's telephone toll calls are done away with.

Purchases of Materials and Supplies

Another suggestion that will help to cut and organize the handling of city expenditures, is as follows: The United States Bureau of Standards at Washington, D. C., is an authority on the true values of most kinds of materials, equipment, and supplies, used in city government. It is organized to test all commodities and to furnish its findings to purchasings agents in the various federal departments at Washington. It is also prepared to furnish this information to the purchasing departments of cities. A substantial saving coupled with the assurance of getting full value for the taxpayer's money can be affected by using the bureau in this advisory capacity. Good city managements are doing this.

Taxpayers of Norwich could also be saved a considerable sum of money by doing away with the printing of the journal giving in so much detail the meetings of the council and city expenditures. We do not in any way wish to discredit the work of your excellent fire chief, but his annual report contains a mass of detail of no practical value to the public.

Certain Civic Betterment Advisable

Falls avenue for a short stretch at the railroad crossing is a disgrace to the city and the bad condition existing here should be remedied.

It seems hardly necessary to call the attention of the chamber of commerce to the condition of the sidewalks in certain streets in Norwich. Much of the responsibility for this condition can be placed on the present confused state of the city charter and simply gives further emphasis to the fact that an immediate revision would be to the advantage of the city.

Hotel Facilities Inadequate

The chamber of commerce should take immediate steps to secure a modern hotel equipped to care for the class of trade which comes to Norwich. There is a considerable demand from the various clubs and civic organizations for luncheon and entertainment facilities. The present facilities are notoriously poor. No city can make any notable growth under the handicap of a poor hotel. On the other hand a good hotel produces a favorable impression on visitors and is a strong asset to any community. Good hotel facilities attract tourists and tourists bring trade. The impressions received by visiting business men may very easily be the deciding point in whether or not they choose Norwich as an industrial location.

Better Postal Service Advisable

The post office service in Norwich is inadequate. Some of the trouble is due to the curtailment of train service on the railroads and some to the collection schedules ordered by the postmaster. We doubt if there is another city of the size of Norwich located in a thickly populated region that has fewer deliveries or where there is not a collection after 6.30 p. m. on week days and 4.30 p. m. on Sundays and holidays. The last collections are made for the 8.25 p. m. southbound train and we recommend that the postmaster be requested to make a 7.15 p. m. collection at the downtown boxes. Sunday collections are notably an inconvenience. They should be made as late as 7 p. m.

The service in the post office itself is not as it should be. We suggest that the chamber take up the matter with the department in Washington and have an investigation made of the local situation.

Volume of Check Transactions Should Be Reported

We recommend that action be taken by the chamber toward arranging with the national banks and trust companies of Norwich to compile and report to the federal reserve board the volume of check transactions by months. Such information is valuable in measuring the business growth of a community. About 300 cities in the country are now compiling such statistics. A number of progressive places smaller than Norwich are included. The information is not only a measure of the amount of local business being done, but also serves to call the attention of the business world to the progress of the community.

Growing of Easter Lambs Suggested

The authorities at the state agricultural college at Storrs advise that there is a phase of sheep production which offers a possibility for a limited number of Connecticut farmers, namely, the production of winter lambs for the high-priced market in the late winter and early spring, especially the Easter market. This is a phase of agriculture similar to the production of fluid milk and high-grade eggs, one which depends on the nearness to market and the skill of the operator more than upon the low cost of production. Although this is not a city enterprise, the chamber may find it a useful thing to keep in mind as a contributing factor to town development.

More Favorable Freight Rates Possible

With navigation on the Thames to be expanded by the deepening of the channel, the chamber of commerce should devote some attention to the matter of obtaining favorable combinations of water and rail rates to as many places as possible. Combinations of water and rail rates are now available to the principal cities of the west, south and southwest. Freight rates to New York city via water are 2-3c per 100 pounds below railroad rates. If sufficient pressure were brought to bear on the interstate commerce commission it is probable that joint proportional rates could also be obtained via certain railroads running out of New York city.

Conclusion

We have considered in the foregoing all of the important economic points of advantage and disadvantage that Norwich possesses. Under the circumstances the civic spirit of Norwich as expressed by the business men and leading citizens must necessarily be the energizing source of Norwich's future growth. At present we are not impressed with the civic spirit of the average resident of Norwich. There is apparently a general disposition to believe that city growth takes care of itself. There is too much tendency on the part of many native-born citizens of the city and adjacent town to live in the past. The citizens need to realize that a community does not just happen. It is exactly what the people make it. Norwich's civic spirit, if the city really wants to grow needs to be organized and revitalized.

If the recommendations outlined in the above are followed and the various conditions corrected, the chamber will be in a position to make a convincing bid for new enterprises. The program is necessarily one that will take time and much tact to accomplish. No one man or group of a few men can hope to do it all. The chamber of commerce as a continuing organization can, however, be endowed with a purpose that will keep the policies outlined here alive in the coming years. We recommend that separate committees be formed to push (1) the revaluation matter, (2) the revision of the city charter and the correction of unfavorable conditions coming under the control of the city government, (3) the continued study of housing and factory location possibilities, (4) the proper advertising of Norwich's economic advantages in large cities, especially in New York city.

Surprise Party For Miss Madio.

A delightful surprise party was tendered Miss Mamie Madio Monday evening in honor of her birthday by the O. G. club at the home of the Misses Marion and Violet Pedace.

Games, dancing and singing was enjoyed, music being furnished by the Misses Pedace. The rooms were prettily decorated in green and white. The favors were green paper hats and dressed lollypops containing the fortunes of the guests. Dainty refreshments were served during which Miss Marion Pedace presented Miss Madio a beautiful gift in behalf of the club members.

Taftville people who had occasion to travel over the Old Canterbury turnpike to Norwich Town Tuesday morning were amazed to find the house of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Cuprak vanished entirely. The house had burned during the early hours of the morning, but so complete was the destruction that nothing but the standing chimney gave any evidence that the residence had not been removed to another site. The property was one of the most attractive on the road which is fast developing into a residential street, and Mr. Cuprak who is well known locally has many sympathizers in his severe loss.

POETRY

The Soul's Spring Cleaning

Yes, clean yer house, clean yer shed,
An' clean yer barn in ev'ry part;
But brush the cobwebs from yer head,
An' sweep the snowbank from yer heart.
Yes, w'en Spring cleanin' comes aroun'
Bring forth the duster an' the broom,
But rake yer fogy notions down,
An' sweep yer dusty soul of gloom.

Sweep ol' idees out with the dust,
An' dress yer soul in newer style;
Scrape from yer min' its wornout crust
An' dump it in the rubbish pile.
Sweep out the hates that burn an' smart,
Bring in new loves serene an' pure,
Aroun' the hearthstone of the heart
Place modern styles of furniture.

Clean out yer morril cubby-holes,
Sweep out the dirt, scrape off the scum;
'Tis cleanin' time for healthy souls—
Git up an' dust! The Spring has come!
Clean out the corners of the brain,
Bear down with scrubbin'-brush an' soap,
An' dump ol' Fear into the rain,
An' dust a cozy chair for Hope.

Clean out the brain's deep rubbish-hole,
Soak ev'ry cranny, great an' small,
An' in the front room of the soul
Hang pootier pictures on the wall.
Scrub up the winders of the mind,
Clean up, an' let the Spring begin;
Swing open wide the dusty blind,
An' let the April sunshine in.

Plant flowers in the soul's front yard,
Set out new shade and blossom trees,
An' let the soul, once froze an' hard,
Sprout crocuses of new idees.
Yes, clean yer house, an' clean yar shed,
An' clean yer barn in ev'ry part;
But brush the cobwebs from yer head,
An' sweep the snowbank from yer heart.

—Sam Walter Foss, in "Whiffs From Wild Meadows."

Doors

When winsome spring comes knocking at the door,
And eager hands are fumbling at the latch—
Long winter-rusted—and we see once more
The little sturdy crocus buds, and catch
The echo of the robin's earliest song,
Breathing the pungent fragrance all about;
Why do we linger at the threshold long,
When all the world is calling from without?
Because we know nothing is quite so fair
As that first glimpse, through doors half-opening,
No perfume quite so delicate and rare
As this first whiff of shy, elusive spring;
Through summer's doors flung wide all things we see—
But where is fled spring's beckonning mystery?

SENATE SIDETRACKED THE MELLON RESIGNATION BILL

An Effort to Gain Unanimous Consent For an Immediate Vote Failed—After Two Hour Discussion the Resolution Was Moved to Calender—A Seperate Motion and Majority Vote Will Be Required to Bring the Matter Up Again—Senator Couzens Said He Charged No Conspiracy or Dishonesty by Mr. Mellon, But Insisted Treasury Department Conditions Were "Rotten With Favoritism and Corruption."

WASHINGTON, March 22—(AP)—Supporters of Secretary Mellon in the senate today forced temporary sidetracking of the resolution of Senator Couzens, republican of Michigan, declaring for the resignation of the secretary after the Michigan senator had launched an attack on the cabinet member.

The resolution was moved to the calendar, where a separate motion and majority vote for consideration is necessary to get it up again, when senate rules automatically ended discussion after two hours and an effort to gain unanimous consent for an immediate vote failed.

The two hour debate brought a renewal by Couzens of his charges against the secretary, contained in the preamble of his resolution presented Tuesday, and a sturdy defense by Senator Reed, republican, of Pennsylvania, a close personal friend of Mr. Mellon.

Senator Moses, republican, of New Hampshire, got into the arena, long enough to protest that the Couzens move was a continuation of a "personal feud" with the secretary. This went unanswered by Couzens who has fought the treasury on tax matters during much of Mr. Mellon's seven years administration.

Before the close of the senate's so-called "morning hour" at 2 o'clock forced an end to this discussion in favor of unfinished business, Senator Reed moved to refer the resolution to the finance committee and announced he was ready for an immediate vote. Senator Norris, republican, of Nebraska, sought unanimous consent finally that the resolution go over until tomorrow without prejudice, but that proposal and another effort to go ahead with it today met with objection, and Senator Oddie, republican, Nevada presiding officer at the time, sent the resolution to the calendar of business.

The debate was all on the republican side of the chamber, Senator Couzens cited a long list of complaints, including one that Mr. Mellon had failed to reveal knowledge of the contribution of Harry F. Sinclair to the republican 1920 campaign deficit, and another charging that he was holding office illegally because of a statute forbidding appointment of a secretary of the treasury who is directly or indirectly interested in trade or commerce.

Replying, Senator Reed told for the first time the story of how it was learned that Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, had some liberty bonds traceable to Harry F. Sinclair and how the Continental Trading company, of Canada, whose profits were represented in the bonds, was discovered.

Reed said that four secret service men investigating another deal had traced some liberty bonds to Fall's account in a New Mexico bank. When government counsel in the oil cases asked for secret service aid, Reed said that Mr. Mellon sent him the men who had worked on the liberty bond case in the first instance.

"It might well have been," he continued, "had there been a desire to shield Sinclair, that men of little intelligence could have been put on the job."

He told how the agents traced Fall's bonds through various banks and finally to the Continental Trading company. He said that H. S. Osler, president of the company, had misled the agents but finally they had discovered Sinclair's connection with this company and with the bonds in Fall's hands.

Senator Couzens said he charged no conspiracy in the treasury department or dishonesty by Mr. Mellon, but he insisted that conditions there were "rotten with favoritism and corruption."

AT LEAST ONE MAN ON S-4 LEFT WILL AND TESTAMENT

BOSTON, March 22—(AP)—At least one of six men who died a lingering death in the torpedo room of the sunken submarine S-4, arranged his affairs and disposed of his estate before the deadly carbon dioxide deadened his brain. Today the naval board of investigation, searching the hull of the submarine in drydock, at the navy yard, discovered what they believed to be the "last will and testament" of Torpedoman Roger Leslie Short, of Bloonville, Mo.

In a cardboard box in one of the torpedo room lockers the officers found money, bankbooks and other effects belonging to the sailor. Hurriedly scribbled in pencil on a piece of white paper, 8 by 10 1-2 inches, were the instructions:

"In case of my death please send entire contents of box to my mother, Mrs. M. G. Short, 804 East Spring street, Boonville, Missouri. By Roger L. Short, U. S. N."

In the box, which was soaked with salt water and falling to pieces, were found these items: A card case containing $52; an American Express money order book containing $30 in money orders and $40 in cash; two bank books; several stock certificates; insurance certificates; records of enlistments and decorations; and a number of letters addressed to Short.

FAVOR CONNECTICUT FOR VETERANS' HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 22—By vote of the veterans' committee of the house today, Connecticut will get a recommendation for $1,000,000 for a veterans' hospital to be located in that state. The committee has not yet filed its report, but the above statement is made on unquestionable authority and can be safely credited.

The favorable report in the face of heavy competition is very largely due to the untiring efforts of Congressman Tilson, of New Haven, who has been untiring in his efforts to secure the hospital for Connecticut, and has been before the committee with forceful arguments. All the Connecticut delegation were strong in its support, but it was Tilson, leader of the house, who followed it daily and to the end.

The measure will be reported to the house at an early date.

BURIAL OF BODY OF LIEUT. GRAHAM N. FITCH

WASHINGTON, March 22—(AP)—The body of Lieut. Graham N. Fitch, of Washington, the officer who tapped out with a wrench on the hull of the submarine S-4 the story of those trapped in the ship, was buried in Arlington cemetery today with full military honors and in the presence of the highest naval officials.

Services were conducted by Capt. C. H. Dickins, chief of the naval chaplain's corps, at Fort Myer Chapek. The body was escorted by six classmates from the Naval academy, a company of bluejackets and a firing squad.

Secretary Wilbur, Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of naval operations, and Rear Admiral R. H. Lehigh, and their aides, attended the funeral.

$5,000,000 TO AID JEWS SETTLING IN THE CRIMEA AND UKRAINE

NEW YORK, March 22—(AP)—Julius Rosenwald, of Chicago, has pledged $5,000,000 to aid in settling Jews upon the land in the Crimea and the Ukraine, Russia, conditional upon, an equal amount being raised for the work. This announcement was made today by James N. Rosenberg, chairman of the American Jewish Joint Agricultural corporation, which has been conducting a similar work in Russia for four years.

No public campaign for the sum to match the contribution of Mr. Rosenwald is planned but a society is being organized to take over the project.

CONGRESSMEN ON FLIGHTS WITH COL. LINDBERGH

WASHINGTON, March 22—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh stayed on the ground today just about long enough to jump from one plane to another, spending the rest of the time showing the sights of Washington to more than a hundred congressmen, members of their families, and government officials.

The army's Fokker and the navy's Ford ship, both triple motored cabin models, together made nearly a score of trips with Lindbergh at the controls, carrying the legislators over the capitol, Arlington cemetery and the Washington monument.

Several thousand persons swarmed over the field, seeking by fair means or foul to be included in the list prepared by Assistant Secretary of Commerce MacCracken. The carnival spirit of the crowd was enhanced by the arrival of five bombing planes from Langley field, Va., and maneuvers of other army and navy planes.

The flights went off without a hitch, except that at one time Lindbergh's plane stuck in the mud while taking off. The passengers, among whom were Representatives Taber, New York, and Shallenberger, Nebraska, had to get out and walk, and the program was delayed for several minutes while mechanics gave the plane a shove.

Mrs. Jardine, wife of the secretary of agriculture, their daughter, Marian, and Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aeronautics Warner, were among the more than a hundred passengers.

The flier will be kept busy tomorrow and Saturday taking up the legislators.

RESCUED SAILORS HAVE ARRIVED IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, March 22—(AP)—Eight men who watched from lifeboats the sinking of their schooner in a heavy storm off the New Jersey coast last night reached port today aboard the coast guard destroyer Roe.

Captain T. A. Larrabee of Machiasport, Me., and his crew were picked up by the Roe 100 miles east off Sandy Hook a short time after heavy seas had opened bow seams in their four masted schooner John C. Hildebrand, and forced abandonment of the vessel. The Hildebrand sank in 34 fanthoms of water.

The schooner was bound from Norfolk for Eastport, Me., with a cargo of lumber.

TO ASK WARRANT FOR ARREST OF A WITNESS

WASHINGTON, March 22—(AP)—For a second time at this session the senate will be asked tomorrow to issue its warrants for the arrest of a witness, before one of its committees. He is Thomas W. Cunningham of Philadelphia, treasurer of the Pennsylvania republican state committee, who refused to answer certain questions put to him by the Reed slush fund committee in 1926.

In reporting Cunningham's refusal to the senate today Senator King, democrat, Utah, introduced a resolution for Cunningham's arrest and will ask tomorrow for its immediate consideration. Adoption was regarded as a foregone conclusion in view of the speedy manner in which the senate voted to arrest Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil company, of Indiana, after he had refused to answer questions in the Teapot Dome inquiry in January.

Cunningham, who is clerk of a court in Philadelphia, and one of those who were prominent in supporting William S. Vare, republican, in his fight for a senate seat, refused twice to tell the Reed committee the source of $50,000 in cash which he contributed to the Vare primary campaign in 1926. His salary as court clerk is $8,000 a year and members of the committee expressed curiosity as to how he could have accumulated such a sum by savings and be able to give it to a political campaign committee.

THE HOLLYWOOD DAM IS SIMILAR TO ST. FRANCIS

LOS ANGELES, March 22—(AP)—A great water-barrier, anchored to "rotten" stone, with the flow in the river below it being steadily increased before the structure collapsed, was the picture of the St. Francis dam drawn by H. A. Van Norman, Los Angeles city engineer, at the coroner's inquest for its victims here today.

Under cross-examination, Van Norman, assistant to William Mulholland, chief engineer of the Los Angeles water bureau, said the water in the Santa Clara river below the huge buttress had increased 1500 miners inches or water inches, 17 hours before the dam broke.

The engineer also named three other dams in southern California built on the same lines as the 185-foot structure in San Francisquito canyon, which went out March 13 with a known death toll of 278 and a missing list of 173 persons.

The other three are: Hollywood dam, up in the Hollywood hills, whose canyons open on the gay and wealthy film capital, Aroyo Seco dam, known also as the Devil's Gate canyon dam, north of Pasadena, and Barrett dam, near San Diego.

All, said Van Norman, are of the monolith type, similar in design and construction to the monster of concrete that made of the early morning of March 13 a dawn of horror.

DAY'S DEVELOPMENTS AT THE COAL HEARINGS

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—Developments today in the senate investigation of the bituminous coal mining industry touched upon particular interests of each of the states cited in the Johnson resolutions authorizing the inquiry—Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia.

W. G. Warden, chairman of the board of the Pittsburgh Coal company, informed the committee at the close of the session that he would refuse to participate in any conference which included representatives of the United Mine Workers. Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, asked whether that stand applied to a meeting such as might be held by a senate committee with both operators and union representatives for the purpose of agreeing on legislation to aid the industry. Warden replied affirmatively.

Senator Gooding, republican, Idaho, said that he had hoped for cooperation from the operators in drafting legislation and asked whether his answer to such a proposal might be different in the future.

"Today, tomorrow, next month and in two months, it will be the same answer," returned Warden.

"Then your attitude is a disappointment and a disillusion," said the Idahoan.

4,007,300 Sales on Stock Exchange

Furious Upward Movement Buckled Under an Avalanche of Selling Orders.

NEW YORK, March 22—(AP)—A 4,000,000 share session on the New York stock exchange, freely predicted for two years, but never reached, became a reality today.

It developed in a day of extravagant speculation in which prices started upward at a furious pace and then buckled under an avalanche of sell orders, bringing to a halt, at least temporarily, a rapid and sensational upswing of two weeks' duration such as Wall Istreet has seldom witnessed.

Early gains, which ranged from $2 to $18 a share in active issues, were substantially reduced, or wiped out, and in many cases converted into losses, some of which ran to nearly $8 a share.

Total sales set a new high record at 4,007,300 shares, or 83,800 shares above the previous high mark established on March 13. It was the tenth consecutive full session in which sales had crossed the 3,000,000 share mark. There were 743 individual issues traded in, or 5 below the record.

The decline in many active issues was attended with considerable violence, but measured by the averages, the day's loss was relatively small. The average of 20 leading industrials compiled by the Associated Press showed a net loss of slightly more than 3-4 of a point, and the average of 20 leading rails about half a point.

Officials of the New York stock exchange, recognizing the inadequacy of present facilities for keeping the public promptly informed of the trend of the market, are busily at work on two major improvements which, it is hoped, will allay criticism of the present system.

The first involves a further speeding up of the ticker so that 4,000,000 share markets could be handled without any appreciable delay. A recently inaugurated system of abbreviated quotations speeded the tape up considerably but not enough to take care of the volume of orders that has poured into the market during the last two weeks. Last Saturday there was a delay of 40 minutes after the market closed in recording the final quotations. In full sessions the delay has ranged from 15 to 32 minutes.

The second major improvement, intended primarily to relieve floor brokers of the irksome task of reporting bid and asked quotations, contemplates the installation of a large switchboard in the exchange with extensions to all posts on the trading floor. This will permit a brokerage house to telephone the exchange direct for bid and asked quotations and receive a prompt reply instead of waiting until the broker on the floor has had an opportunity to visit the post where the stock, the quotation of which is called for, is traded at, and report back over a private wire to his own office. Under the new plan floor brokers will be able to confine their activities to the actual execution of buying and selling orders.

SHARP TILTS AT THE COTTON CASE INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, March 22—(AP)—Counter fire of counsel for William L. Clayton, Houston, Texas, cotton dealer charged by Arthur R. Marsh, of New York, with cotton market manipulations—that jarred the whole cotton industry to its roots last year, made some dents in Marsh's five day indictment today, although frequently broken into by members or guests of the senate investigating committee.

The occasion was the opening of cross examination of Marsh by David H. Miller, Clayton's attorney, which is to be followed at some time by a similar examination of Clayton by Joseph Gilbert, Marsh's lawyer. Clayton himself has not been attending committee sessions since he completed his direct testimony more than a week ago, denying all charges of operations of an improper nature or for an improper purpose.

Today's session were marked by the sharp tilts between Miller and Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, who visited the subcommittee, proceedings on the strength of his membership on the senate agriculture committee, of which it is an offshoot. Caraway turned the Marsh cross examination into his own cross questioning of Miller once or twice, so the challenge being made in behalf of Clayton to almost every charge or implication Marsh has made against him did not get over a great deal of ground.

TWO LIQUOR SMUGGLING VOYAGES WITHOUT PAY

PHILADELPHIA, March 22—(AP)—Leslie Tibbo, of Halifax, captain of the seized British rum running steamship Bulko, the government's chief witness against the two alleged "master minds" on trial for the third time, today testified that he had made two liquor smuggling voyages without collecting all of his pay.

This is the third time in two months the defendants John McCambridge, owner of a fleet of tug boats in New York, and Jack Murphy, Halifax, N. S., alleged supercargo of the alleged rum syndicate, have faced smuggling and conspiracy charges in the federal courts here in connection with the Bulko, seized last September with a liquor cargo valued at $500,000.

The trial is before Judge William H. Kirkpatrick and a jury of ten men and two women. In the first two trials the juries disagreed and the court directed the acquittal of Samuel Bernstein, New York, and Morris Rotman, Providence, R. I., described as the "money men" of the alleged plot, for lack of evidence.

BRITISH SUBMARINE WAS DAMAGED IN COLLISION

PORTLAND, England, March 22—(AP)—The British submarine R-4 was damaged in a collision about twelve miles off this base today when she came to the surface right under the nose of the Destroyer Thruster.

The submarine's periscopes were hit, one being smashed and the other bent. One of the periscope standards and the bridgework on the conning tower were also damaged.

Those aboard the submarine felt only a slight bump, and hardly realized what had happened. Nobody was injured and no water entered the vessel.

The two craft were engaged in maneuvering with a squadron consisting of four destroyers and three submarines. The water was calm.

All the vessels returned to Portland this evening. The R-4 is moored alongside her depot ship and is being repaired.

It is understood that no exchange of the stocks of the two companies is planned, but rather their facilities will be placed at each other's disposal.

Th enet effect will probably be the acquisition of control of Victor by the Radio Corporation of America. Taking current market values, the new combine involves over $200,000,000.

HARRY F. SINCLAIR MUST FACE TRIAL ALONE IN WASHINGTON ON APRIL 4

WASHINGTON, March 22—(AP)—Without the support of his co-defendant, the aged and ailing Albert B. Fall, Harry F. Sinclair must face trial alone here on April 4 on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the government out of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve.

Justice Jennings Bailey so decided today in the District of Columbia supreme court, indefinitely postponing the trial of the former interior secretary; severing the two cases and granting the lessee of Teapot Dome a two day's delay instead of two months he had sought.

Representing that Fall is a material witness in his case, Sinclair wanted a postponement so the one time cabinet officer and senator, who is ill in El Paso, might with safety be moved here for the trial at a time when he would not be subjected to the rigors of Washington winter weather.

SOVIET DELEGATE RECANTS HIS DISARMAMENT SCHEME

Maxim Litvinoff, Spokesman For Russia, Has Agreed to Discard Details of His Proposal if the Committee Would Accept the Principle of Complete Disarmament—A Vote Will Be Reached on the Russian Project This Morning.

GENEVA, March 22—(AP)—Maxim Litvinoff, spokesman for Russia before the preparatory committee on disarmament, agreed today to throw overboard the details of his disarmament scheme if the committee would only accept the principle of complete disarament for four years as a basis for discussion.

The Russian delegate seemed to take it for granted that the great majority of the committee were against him, since, in replying to the rather sharp criticisms of his project he made no attempt to conciliate the delegates, but gave blow for blow. He showed more sorrow than anger at the failure of the United States delegation to respond to his appeal for support, saying that he had reason to place hopes in that direction as the American government had been pointing seriously toward the abolition of war.

Having found himself unable to poll the American vote in the committee, he made use of a precedent furnished by the American delegation to illustrate how those outside the league could co-operate with that body without accepting the league's control. He cited the fact that Hugh S. Gibson, ambassador to Belgium and head of the American delegates, when beginning his work with the committee, made it understood that his government would not accept the jurisdiction of the league in certain questions.

In replying to Lord Cushendun, Great Britain's representative, and others who had resented the scornful attitude of the soviets toward the league and had unsparingly denounced the soviet proposals, Litvinoff displayed no contrition, but aimed to raise doubt concerning the motives of some of the members of the league. Referring particularly to the dissension, he declared that this had made it impossible for the committee to go on to the second reading of its draft convention on disarmament.

One of the direct questions which Lord Cushendun had put to the soviet delegates was whether the soviets included civil war among the conflicts they desired to stop. To this M. Litvinoff replied that the league itself is not interested in the internal affairs of its members and he did not imagine that this subject would be considered at Geneva.

A vote will be reached on the Russian project tomorrow morning, after which Count Bernstorff, of Germany, will endeavor to force immediate discussion of the draft convention.

WOMEN TRIED TO KILL ACQUITTED POLICE CHIEF

COLUMBIANA, Ala., March 22—(AP)—Two middle-aged women, the mother and aunt of Miss Louise Monteabaro, took the law into their own hands today in a frenzied effort to kill the man they had accused of slaying the girl.

In a dramatic climax to the trial of Police Chief H. F. Blake, of Calera, Ala., for the murder of the girl, Mrs. Mabel Monteabaro, 45, her mother, and Miss Cecil Tubbs, 43, an aunt, leaped simultaneously upon the officer with pistol and hunting knife just as the foreman of the jury pronounced him not guilty of the crime.

A wild shot fired by Mrs. Monteabaro buried itself in the wall above the jury box. Miss Tubbs then plunged the knife into Blake's neck and the officer fell, blood streaming from the wound.

The spectators in the courtroom became panic stricken and fled for the doors. In the turmoil, Attorney-General Charlie C. McCall, of Alabama, who prosecuted Blake, slumped to the floor in a faint.

Blake was taken to a hospital where physicians said he was in a "very grave" condition. He was weakened from loss of blood, and physicians said that even if he recovers from the wound he may lose the use of his left arm.

Guilfoyle on Tuesday elected to be tried by the court instead of by a jury, and this will be the first murder trial before three judges in Hartford county under the new law.

Mrs. Gaudet was slain on January 18, while she and Dr. Guilfoyle were passing through the hallway outside the Guilfoyle apartment after a family dinner party.

The indictment was obtained by the state's attorney who did not wait for a finding by the corner nor definite action by the police.

JOKED WITH JAILERS AS HE AWAITED EXECUTION

VALLEYFIELD, Que., March 22—(AP)—George McDonald joked with jailers in his cell today while in the prison yard the frock coated hangman tested the crimson gallows on which McDonald is to die in the morning for murder.

Until his arrival here this morning McDonald had not been told that the death sentence imposed on his young wife, had been commuted to life imprisonment. As he entered the prison through the warden's quarters he scanned the rows of cells.

"Is Doris here?" he asked.

The chaplain of Bordeaux jail, who had accompanied McDonald here from Bordeaux admonished him to be courageous and then told him that governmental intervention had saved Mrs. McDonald from the gallows.

"Well, I am glad of that," McDonald responded, and then turned the talk to other matters.

MEXICO CITY BUILDINGS DAMAGED BY EARTHQUAKE

MEXICO CITY, March 22—(AP)—The United States embassy residence was among buildings in Mexico City damaged by an earthquake last night which spread panic throughout the capital and several otherf cities in central and southern Mexico.

Only minor casualties were reported despite the fact that the earth movements were considered the most severe that have shaken Mexico for many years.

The damage to the American embassy residence was in a wall of the bedroom of Dwight W. Morrow, the American ambassador, and in one of the outside walls. Mr. Morrow was in his drawingroom conversing with Dr. John C. Merriam of the Carnegie institute when the temblor was felt. Neither man left the room and after pausing in their talk to see what was going to happen they resumed their conversation.

When Mr. Morrow went to his bedroom later to retire he found a crack half an inch wide from the floor to the ceiling. Several smaller cracks branched out from the central one. It was not until this morning that attaches found another crack in one of the outside walls. This was from a half inch to an inch wide and ran from the ground to the second story.

Before daylight this morning pilgrims began trudging to the shrine of Our Lady of Guadeloupe, Mexico's patron saint, to offer thanks for their safety from the quake.

SHIPMENT OF $4,000,000 GOLD TO BUENOS AIRES

NEW YORK, March 22—(AP)—America's huge gold reserve was depleted $4,000,000 more today when the French American Banking corporation shipped that amount of the metal to Buenos Aires. This increased the total shipments to South America in the last week to $8,200,000.

Of this amount, $1,370,000 was consigned to Brazil, and prior to today's shipment, the Federal Reserve bank reported exports aggregating $4,200,000 to the Argentine.

A further movement of the gold held earmarked here for the Bank of France was also reported by the Federal Reserve bank. The amount of the shipment was $11,925,000 raising the total amount of French earmarked gold withdrawn from this market, to about $25,000,000, all of which went from New York in the past two weeks.

Aggregate exports of gold in the week ended March 21 were $17,400,000, against imports of only $259,000. Yesterday's consignments of $1,000,000 to London and $2,000,000 to Hamburg were not reported to the Federal Reserve bank in time for inclusion in the report.

"DIAMOND JOE" ESPOSITO, FORMER GUNMAN, SLAIN

CHICAGO, March 22—(AP)—Gangland's mysterious circle of obscurity, rise to power, wealth and political pull and finally violent death was complete today for "Diamond Joe" Esposito, and the police groped unsuccessfully in the dark of Little Italy's usual reticence for one of a dozen reasons they said enemies had for the assassination.

A few doors from his home in the old "bloody nineteenth" ward, now the twenty fifth, in which "Diamond Joe" was a candidate for ward committeeman for the republican group headed by United States Senator Charles S. Deneen, Esposito was shot down last night by three men who leaped from an automobile and fired fifty-eight slugs into his body.

"It's a wonder he lived so long," remarked Michael Grady, chief of police. "By all the laws of gangland he should have been dead at least ten years ago."

Grady and other police department officials conversant with "Diamond Joe's" rise from obscurity said that numberous slayings, illicit alcohol traffic and association with women were among the many causes which might have made some one wish to do away with Esposito.

Senator Deneen paid tribute to Esposito as a loyal friend.

FORMAL SPRING OPENING OF WILLIMANTIC STORES

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 22—Resultant from elaborate and expensive preparations for his reception, Spring made a most auspicious bow in the commercial life of Willimantic tonight on the occasion of the grand opening of the stores, over 100 in number. Even the weatherman decided, after some hesitancy during the day, to lend cooperation to this joint movement of the merchants. Taking no minor part in this tremendous reception to what is expected to prove a booming season, were thousands of people who attended the public show. As the parade filed down Main street early in the evening the crowds milled about the sidewalks the business section, brilliantly illuminated and highly colored, looked like a great bazaar created by some fancy of imagination.

The parade left Windham street at 7.30 o'clock. In the front line was Police Chief Thomas F. Grady and a group of the city's "finest". Then came the Elks band under direction of the leader, Charles N. C. Wheeler. The band was followed by a long line of handsome automobiles showing the 1928 models of local dealers. In the leading cars rode city and town officials including Mayor Charles A. Gates and First Selectman Ernest P. Chesebro; Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton, president of the chamber of commerce and Robert T. Newton, president of the Willimantic Merchant's association.

The parade over, concerts by the Elks, Boy Scouts' and Italian Citizen's bands were in order. This left the public at leisure to wander about the streets, admire the superbly decorated show windows and be guests of the merchants for a display of merchandise. This reception, during which no sales were made, proved a very successful feature of the opening programme. The exterior and interior of the stores were found resplendant with the colorful and joyous note of the springtime season. Complimentary opinions were forthcoming from every side. The crowds joined in the spirit of the windows trimming contest being staged among the merchants and during the tour of the city individuals found much delight in doing a little judging for themselves. The official judging of the windows will take place Friday, however, and will be in the hands fo the three prominent window trimming experts previously named in these columns. All of the merchants contributed heartily of time, effort and money to make the event the history-making success that it proved to be.

MRS. FRINK AND MAYOR GATES ELECTED DELEGATES-AT-LARGE

WILLIMANTIC, March 22—The republican delegates from the nine towns of the 29th senatorial district met in convention at the Nathan Hale hotel at two o'clock this afternoon to elect two delegates-at-large to attend the state convention a Hartford, April 17 and 18. The convention was preceded by a dinner served to 60 delegates and guests, the latter including Secretary of State Francis A. Palotti of Hartford, Mrs. Lillian M. S. Frink of Canterbury, Mrs. Helen Wittler of Brooklyn, Mrs. Fannie Landon of Chaplin, Mrs. Emily Loring of Central Village, Attorney Harry S. Gaucher of this city, Mrs. Bertha Thompson, Mrs. Otto B. Robinson and Mrs. Mary E. Noyes of this city.

State Central Committeeman C. A. Gates called the convention to order and Judge George Reed of Chaplin was chosen chairman with A. H. Gallup of Scotland as secretary. The roll call showed but seven proxies for the 29 delegates who were elected in the various town caucus last Monday night. The delegates and proxies were Brooklyn, Frank A. Mayor Charles A. Gates and Mrs. Lillian M. S. Frink of Canterbury, both members of the state central committee from the district, were elected as delegates-at-large. State Senator LaFrance presented the name of Mayor Gates and that of Mrs. Frink was presented by Andrew T. J. Clark of Canterbury. Mayor Gates and Mrs. Frink were also chosen as members of the state central committee. The respective nominations for these positions were made by A. Linn Weatherhead and Mr. Clark of Canterbury. Officers of the district for the state convention were chosen as follows: Vice president, George A. Reed of Chaplin; permanent secretary, Andrew T. J. Clark of Canterbury; committee on credentials, A. Linn Weatherhead of Windham; and rules, Clarence H. Perry of Scotland. Edwin J. Donnelly made a motion that the convention go on record as being heartily in favor of a man from this district being selected as a delegate to the national convention at Kansas City. In his motion-address he said that he referred to a man of great record throughout the county and one who had served his city as mayor for three and one half terms. His selection had been a member of the state central committee for over a quarter of a century and county sheriff for many years. When he closed with the name of Mayor Charles A. Gates the convention arose in giving the venerable politician an ovation. Short talks by State Secretary Palotti, State Senator LaFrance, Mrs. Frink and others, brought the convention to adjournment.

A collection of 1,500 egg clusters has brought Walter Solenski of the Center school in South Coventry in the limelight as unofficial leader in the caterpillar egg cluster contest sponsored by the Earl W. Green post, No. 53, American Legion, of Coventry and Mansfield. The movement initiated by the legionnaires is meeting with cooperation from many other organizations including the South Coventry Men's club and Willimantic lodge, No. 311, B. P. O. E., which voted a donation of $10 to the project as award money to the winners. The Solenski boy is listed in group 3 and his present score of 1,500 clusters puts him in leadership. Contestants are given an unlimited field to work in. Many of the children report over 500 clusters to date. It is estimated that within three or four weeks the eggs of the clusters collected to date would have developed into nearly 300 little green caterpillars that are greatly destructful to vegetables and flowers. Some of the farmers have become interested and offers of compensation are already being made if groups of the contestants will visit the farms and clean them of the clusters. The Radio league offers $25 to any school making the best record in destroying one of the worst roadside pests, the tent caterpillar. The award for the highest score by any Boy Scout or Girl Scout troop is $20 and $10 to the individual boy or girl. Caterpillar eggs are found on wild cherry trees. On some of the twigs will be noted little swellings or bunches almost or completely encircling the twig and appearing shiny. The twigs so effected should be cut off with a sharp knife or pruning shears and the clusters or masses of eggs placed in a box to keep cool so they will not hatch.

VICKSBURG PAPER OF 1863 PRINTED ON WALL PAPER

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, March 22—Louis Masse has in his possession a newspaper which is unique in that it is printed on the back of a piece of wall paper. It is The Vicksburg Daily Citizen of the date July 2, 1863. There are four columns of Confederate news and one of Yankee items. This information is printed as follows: "This paper is copied from the original by the Confederate printer, Mr. Swords, at Vicksburg, Miss., on wall paper in 1863, and sold at that time for 20 cents a copy. Was taken possession of by the 8th Illinois (known as Oglesby) Regiment, to do the government printing in. O. P. Martin was a printer in the Eighth Illinois regiment, and was ordered to charge by Gen. Logan. Mr. Swords, the Confederate printer, was not very favorably impressed with Mr. Martin's appearance as his trousers were rather ragged, after the long siege before Vicksburg. He says to Mr. Martin: 'What do you want here? We have no use for Yanks.' It was a glorious Fourth of July, 1863, when the Union troops captured the city, and it was here I found the copy, printed on wall paper—all they had to use at that time."

LEDYARD

James F. Connelly of Norwich, supervisor of Ledyard schools gave a very interesting historic address on the Philippines in Grange hall, Friday evening last. Mr. Connelly was introduced by Carl H. Holdridge, acting lecturer of the grange for this evening. Mr. Connelly prefaced his address with a poem. He then gave a historical address on the discovery of the islands by Magellan coming down through the various centuries to the Spanish-American war when the islands became the possessions of the United States. Spain had dominated these islands for centuries, consequently the Spanish religion and language were very much in evidence. William McKinley, president of the United States at that time issued a call for teachers to go to these far-off islands to teach the English language. One hundred and forty men and 400 women answered the call, making a total of 540 teachers who embarked on an army transport for these new possessions in the Far East. This group of teachers were not sure of their duties but they all agreed that there were three essentials which they should exact from those they were going to teach: These were: Be truthful, be honest, be socially virtuous. After they arrived at their destination they found no equipment and no buildings in which to hold school. Old deserted buildings and sometimes out of doors were the places used. Teaching was difficult in the beginning but later equipment and modern buildings were provided and the Filipinos learned rapidly. So rapidly, that many soon were graduated from grammar school, high school and had entered normal school and college. Mr. and Mrs. Connelly stayed on these islands nine years before embarking for the United States. Before Mr. and Mrs. Connelly returned home the dreaded Asiatic cholera spread over the islands and millions of the natives died before the scourge was stopped. Artisian wells were driven and a source of pure water helped to stay the plague. DANIELSON

DANIELSON GETS FIRST TASTE OF REINDEER MEAT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 22—Danielson's gourmets had an opportunity today to indulge themselves on reindeer meat—and not a few of them availed themselves of the privilege. For the first time, as far as can be recalled, this variety of meat was placed on sale here today.

As many purchased of the meat on the "try anything once" basis as did those who know the reputation of reindeer meat as being excellent food and well worthy of all the laudatory things that have been said about it where it is in common use.

The sale of reindeer steaks and chops was so ready here that there is the prospect of its being a regular offering to the trade in Danielson and vicinity. The steak was selling for 60 cents per pound and the chops for 43 cents. The meat is light in color and has something of the appearance of lamb. It is understood that the meat offered here was from an animal that once roamed Alaska and a member of the vast herds being made ready to help out the meat suply of the United States.

The death of Edmond Touchette, 54, occurred at his home on Goodyear today after a long illness. Mr. Touchette had been a resident of this town practically all of his life. He leaves his wife, a sister, Mrs. Joseph Fortin, of Danielson, and three brothers, Joseph of Norwich, Alfred of Dayville and Odias of Goodyear.

Can it be possible that another once prosperous business has slipped tremendously insofar as fat profits are concerned There is such an impression abroad relative to the bootlegging game, which was reported a marvelous money-maker for several years. It appears, from the stories one hears talked areound, that the game is not so good as it was—far from it. There are varied explanations. Too much competition is one. Fewer suckers is another. Still another is that drastic price cutting has helped spoil the racket. And, again, that court appearances for violations of the liquor law cost a lot of money, one way and another. No more tales are heard of big cash cleanups at the game in this territory. It appears that the industry has settled down to hard-boiled competition, and the customers not too plentiful.

There is nothing new to relate this week to date relative to the proposal for a new hotel and theater building in Danielson. Landlord W. S. Brown of the Attawaugan hotel, standing on the site of the proposed building, said this afternoon that it had been impossible for the architect representing the financial interests that are in conference with Mr. Brown to make the preliminary plans and draw up the estimates by Tuesday of this week, as had been intended, but he expects to have them within a day or two. Then there will be further conferences relative to the deal, which Danielson so earnestly hopes may be realized.

That what appears to be a misunderstanding may be cleared up, it may be stated this morning that amateur boxing bouts to be held at the state armory here will help the Service battery and the Headquarters detachment camp fund. These organizations are to reserve the money obtained from these exhibitions for their camp fund. The military organizations have arranged with Frank Barber to do the matchmaking, because he is experienced in that line and his assistance is valuable to them if they are to achieve the success they hope will come. The officers and the men of the organizations feel that any misrepresentation of these facts should not be allowed to persist, and this means is taken to correct any false impressions that have gone out.

A big motor coach is scheduled to roll out of Danielson Saturday afternoon filled with members of Quinebaug lodge of Odd Fellows, bound for Springfield, where there is to be a gathering Saturday evening of delegations of Odd Fellows from all parts of New England. Other special coaches, it is understood, will take Odd Fellows from Putnam, Central Village and Jewett City. The expectations are that about 7,000 members of the order will be at Springfield. A feature of the great assembly will be the conferring of the first degree on a class of candidates. A Boston degree team will do the work.

Walter Anderson, a former warden of the borough and assistant secretary and assistant treasurer of the E. H. Jacobs Mfg. company, which concern he has been identified with since October 1917, today announced his resignation. Mr. Anderson is to continue to be engaged in the sale of mill supplies, with a different concern. He has not definitely decided as yet whether he wil remain in Danielson, where he has been a valuable citizen and credited with much valuable public service. Mr. Anderson, among other things, spent much time on the draft of the new borough charter now in force.

Goodyear is experiencing some depradations of thieving persons. Among other losses $5 was taken from a little bank in the Goodyear school, and the Boulais store up there was entered and tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, pipes and candy taken. Out of Ballouville comes the story of the theft of $590 for a bureau drawer in the home of Mrs. Henry Cusson. When this money was kept in a room little used and some times not entered for days. State officers are working on the cases.

A suggestion contained in this column last week that Powdrell and Alexander were prospective purchasers of the Connecticut Mills was verified this afternon when William H. Brown, treasurer of the company, stated that negotiations for the purchase of the plant are pending and will be consummated if satisfactory agreement can be reached, and this presumably has to do with the price at which the fine plant can be taken over. This afternoon at a stockholders' meeting in Boston it was voted to increase the capital stock of Powdrell and Alexander by $1,000,000. This big concern already is operating five mills in the town of Killingly, and the Connecticut Mills, when taken over, will be the sixth.

There was an under current of confidence here this evening that the Connecticut mills deal will be carried out. It is known that the Connecticut mills is anxious to dispose of its local holdings, as it is now engaged in manufacturing in a new plant in Alabama. It so happens that its local plant is a particularly fine one, and it is of the type that will fit in splendidly with the expansion plans of Powdrell and Alexander, now the largest manufacturers of curtains in America and Killingly's greatest industrial asset.

The money derived from the sale of the $1,000,000 stock issue authorized today will be used in retiring outstanding obligations incurred in the course of carrying out improvements and in developing and to take care of the costs of further extension of the organization's activities.

Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., is honored through the appointment at the state conference in Derby this week of one of its members —Mrs. J. H. Milligan—as a state councilior.

Friday afternoon members of the Roundabout club are to have a dinner at the Attawaugan hotel at 1:15, and later are to play whist at the home of Mrs. Walter Anderson, on Broad street.

Members of the Wakatina Camp Fire Girls are to invade Plainfield next Tuesday evening for a swimming party at the Community house pool.

Albert Bernier was in Providence today on a business trip.

From Attawaugan came expressions of appreciation today for the ater bus service to be established nights between Danielson and that place.

PUTNAM

PROVIDENCE MAN JAILED FOR BREAKING INTO HOUSE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 22—In the city court, William O'Neil, who gave his residence as Providence, was sentenced by Judge M. H. Geissler to serve three months in Brooklyn jail after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking and entering a house on Harris street. State Policeman Irving H. Nelson of the Danielson barracks testified that he had been summoned by a railroad man to the home of Joseph Roy on Harris street. The officer stated that he found a window open in the house. He told the court that he went into the house and found O'Neil in an intoxicated condition and placed him under arrest.

James Nichols, a car knocker on the New Haven railroad, testified that he saw O'Neil making his way into the house and that he went to get the police. He said that he met Officer Nelson near the station and he directed him to the Roy home.

Joseph Roy testified that he hired O'Neil to drive a newly purchased pair of horses to Putnam from Providence for him. He said that he paid him for his services and gave him a night's lodging at his home. He said that the defendant left in the morning and he thought that he was returning to Providence. O'Neil said that he had some beer given him by Roy and that he saw where he kept it. He stated that his reason for breaking into Roy's home was to get a few more drinks of the beer. He said that this was his first offense and asked the judge for mercy. Judge Geissler found that the most lenient sentence he could impose was 90 days in jail. The judge also imposed costs of the court, which amounted to $11.30.

The new police dummies made their first appearance Thursday morning, when they were placed at the corner of Grove and South Main streets and at the underpass on Front street. The new policemen are mounted on a cement base and weigh nearly 350 pounds. They contain two red discs on which traffic instructions are inscribed.

Captain Jarvis of the Putnam police believes that he has finally overcome the problem of keeping the corners guarded with the silent officers of the law. The captain has had much trouble lately with his wooden policemen. They have been continually damaged by collisions with careless motorists. Captain Jarvis feels that there will be no driver fast enough to destroy one of the new dummies that have just been placed on duty Thursday.

SCHWARTZ BROS.-HOULIHAN CASE SETTLED OUT OF COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 22—The short calendar session of the Windham county superior court opened Thursday at 10:45 a. m., with Judge Edward M. Yeomans presiding. The cases of Mildred and John F. Houlihan of Elmville vs. Schwartz Brothers of Norwich and the case of E. Fitch Johnson of Plainfield vs. John Borgesson of Plainfield were tried before the court.

The case of Houlihan vs. Schwartz Brothers grew out of an accident between a truck belonging to Schwartz Brothers and a car belonging to Mr. Houlihan. The accident occurred on the evening of Nov. 22, 1925. Mrs. Houlihan was injured to such an extent that she received a nervous shock from the effects. Mr. Houlihan was injured about the knee, so that he was forced to give up his work for a long period of time. John M. Joubert, a constable of Jewett City, testified that he was brought to the scene of the accident and he investigated it, arresting Leo Buzenski, who was the driver of the truck, for being under the influence of liquor. Buzenski was called to the stand to testify. He stated that he had been drinking but he was not very drunk at the time. He also explained the scene of the accident to the court. Judge Yeomans then ordered a short recess. The attorneys, E. L. Darble for Houlihan and H. L. Bradford for Schwartz, came to an agreement before the court opened that they would settle the case out of court. It was also agreed by the parties that the results of the settlement would not be given out for publication.

The next case brought before the court for trial was that of E. Fitch Johnson vs. John Borgesson. This case grew out of the attachment of a pair of horses and farm implements by Sheriff Frank C. Tillinghast of Plainfield that belonged to John Borgesson. The case was not finished when the judge adjourned the court and it was ordered continued.

Citizens of Putnam and Woodstock met before the public utilities commission Wednesday at the state capitol in Hartford at 10:30 o'clock for a hearing on a petition of the Interstate Buses corporation and upon a petition from the citizens of Woodstock and Putnam. This was the third hearing held upon the application of this bus company for the right to pick up and discharge passengers between Putnam and Woodstock and between Putnam and East Putnam and vice versa. All the town officials of Woodstock and a large delegation of private interested citizens, Mayor Richard of Putnam, Selectman W. P. Warren, representing the town of Putnam; Thomas H. De Coudres of the chamber of commerce, Katherine Byrne, E. C. Rogers, B. D. Bugbee, Arthur C. Keith and others from Putnam petitioned that the commission grant the Interstate Buses corporation a right to carry passengers between those two points. The evidence submitted clearly showed that the sentiment was in favor of the Interstate lines and it proved that they had given the desired service. No evidence was submitted in behalf of the Gary Transportation company. This line has held the franchise now for over a year and during that time it appeared that they had not been rendering the desired service, but at a previous hearing of the committee they had promised to do so in the future, but had not done so up to Wednesday. It is not known which line will receive the franchise, as the people were not given a preference of choosing a desired line. The public utilitis commission will grant the franchise to the bus company regulated by the commission in the given territory.

Rumors have gained considerable credit this week as to the old Manhansett Manufacturing plant getting ready to commence operations again under a new company. It is believed that the rumors started when old spinning frames were seen being moved out, and that a new company was getting ready to move into the old plant.

It was found out that the hearsays had no foundation. The spinning frames were being taken out and moved to the south. Many times at different intervals a rumor will gain circulation that Henry Ford was contemplating buying the old Manhansett plant to manufacture upholstery for his famous automobile, but the rumor could not be confirmed by any officials. When such a concern as the Ford Motor company purchases the idle plant it will be a boon to Putnam, but until that time the only prospects will be rumors of some concern buying it.

Weather conditions Thursday halted the work being done by the state park commission on the bridge that is to span the Quinebaug between Priest's Island and the south end of Park street. The work was started Wednesday by a force of ten men and was to continue as the weather permitted. The bridge operations Wednesday and Thursday morning consisted of a survey of the site where the span is to be erected. Many people have been interested in the construction of the bridge and the making of a state park out of the island. Years ago, that heavy wooded island was used as a pleasure resort and many Putnam people remember the days when Priest's Island was the center of amusement about Punam. Work on the construction of the bridge will be resumed as soon as the weather permits.

The weather man sent Putnam many various kinds of weather Thursday. The day broke with light snow squalls and during the forenoon continued fair. Early in the afternoon a heavy rain started to fall. The rain was interrupted by a heavy snowfall which lasted only a few minutes and returned to the rain. The spring season has been moderate so far and it is hoped by many that the mild early spring weather will continue to prevail.

No further evidence has been obtained by the Putnam police as to who made the attempted break into the store of Chandler & Morse on Monday night. The would-be burglar broke a window on the east side of Union block and unfastened a window catch. As he was about to enter the store he was discovered by Officer William Durand of the local police. The burglar at once jumped from the window sill and made his way down the railroad track into the darkness. The only possible clue the police have to work on now is that the man was seen by the night operator in the tower which is near by. The night operator is Joseph Bernier, a stranger in town, and as he is not acquainted about Putnam testimony to the police might be to no avail.

John B. Byrne, vice-president of the Hartford-Connecticut Trust company, was recently elected a member of the board of directors of the Dime Savings bank of Hartford. Mr. Byrne is a resident of Putnam and former state bank examiner.

TAX CUTTING BILL

Predictions from Washington are that there is a stormy time ahead for the tax reduction bill. This measure was hustled through by the house weeks ago when approval was given to the plans for cutting taxes by $290,000,000. This was more than the treasury department and the president had recommended, more than they considered safe, in view of large expenditures so the senate put aside the tax matter until it was possible to get some information from the tax payments on the 15th of March as to what might be expected in the way of revenue.

The reports thus far indicate a slight increase in revenue over a year ago. This information will make it possible for the senate committee to make a report soon upon this matter and it is certain that there will be a chance for reasonable tax reduction at this time.

Just what kind of treatment the tax bill is going to get in the senate will be disclosed before long. There remains but little time for dealing with this and other important measures and there have been numerous threats of loading down the tax bill with all kinds of riders. Without any certainty as to what these may be it should be appreciated that if there is a disposition to overload the bill, either by such an excess in tax reductions as to threaten a deficit or by attaching to it other matters which ought to be allowed to stand on their own feet it can be expected that the president will apply his veto.

The president believes there should be a cut in taxes at this time. He would be reluctant to veto such a measure and he would not do it under reasonable circumstances but when there is a refusal to give any consideration to sane legislation he will be justified in so acting. It is to be remembered that even if there is no tax reduction bill as the result of a veto, the taxpayers of the country would benefit just the same through such debt reduction as any surplus would make possible. Debt reduction means the elimination of just so much interest.

COUZENS' GRUDGE

Just as long as he remains in the senate and just as long as Secretary Mellon remains in the cabinet it can be expected that Senator Couzens will make use of every opportunity to wage that personal fight which he has been conducting almost from the time he went to Washington.

Thus when the senate presents a resolution asking that the secretary of the treasury resign it is certain to be judged by the country for what it is. He is simply reviving an old grudge. Because this is a presidential year and because the democrats and the republican insurgents, of which Couzens is one for the most of the time, are playing hand in hand for political purposes the Michigan senator tries to create an entirely wrong impression over the fact that secretary Mellon refused years ago to have anything to do with the Sinclair bonds. He turned down the proposition cold and yet Couzens would penalize him because bonds had been offered to him and he, like the average person, saw no reason to blab it to the world.

We feel quite certain that Couzens would not be offering his resolutions now if he hadn't had a series of tilts with the secretary of the treasury. And even though the resolution should be adopted it would amount to nothing. It would simply be an expression of the senate, or that part of the senate whose purposes would be all too clearly set forth.

Senator Couzens started the trouble long ago when he called for an investigation of the internal revenue department. When the senator undertook to pay counsel from his own pocket there was unpleasant publicity. Not long after the investigation of Mr. Couzens' own income taxes was started and it was shown by treasury figures that he owed the government millions on the amount he received for the Ford stock he sold. That of course added fuel to the feud and the belligerency of Couzens has been displayed at every opportunity since then. The feeling which he has shown against the secretary almost from the time he went into the senate is such as to explain his whole interest in the resolution. It is a puerile effort and reflects solely upon the Michigan senator.

LITTLE FAITH IN RUSSIA

When Russia brought up the question of world disarmament at the previous conference at Geneva it didn't arouse much enthusiasm. It wasn't felt that Russia was sincere. It was looked upon as another of those radical undertakings for which the soviet government is noted.

Inasmuch as Russia took occasion to revive the proposition a few days ago at Geneva and demanded that it be accepted or rejected as it stood some action was favored by a few of the nations. It looked for a time as if the plan was to be discussed but after Lord Cushendun, the British spokesman at Geneva, got through with the expression of his views there was nothing further to be said. He handled it without gloves. He questioned the sincerity of Russia and while he referred to the fact that Russia was making a gesture to end all war he pointed out that it has been engaged in causing civil war in various parts of the world. While he said that there might be an attempt to end international strife he considered it would only be an opening for the creation of civil strife in those countries which had disbanded their means of dealing with such conditions.

Because there is no diplomatic relations between Russia and Great Britain at the present time, Lord Cushendun was free to express his mind and he did so with telling effect.

The idea of limiting armament hasn't been helped any by the participation of Russia in the Geneva thus far. It has disclosed anew the distrust that is maintained for that government and it has been clearly indicated that when disarmament comes it will be through a gradual approach rather than by a sudden, abnormal leap which would create decided uncertainty and suspicion. If Russia is so anxious for disarmament and is ready to participate, it ought to be willing to be willing to make headway slowly if the others feel that that is necessary in order to surely and safely get there. Russia must now realize, however, from the applause in the council of the league to the Cushendun speech that not much reliance is placed in its sincerity.

MINOR VIOLATIONS

In order to deal more effectively with the minor violations of the automobile laws the recommendations have been made in Massachusetts that the laws should be so changed that the police who discover the violations can report the violations to the registrar of motor vehicles to be dealt with by warning or suspension or revocation of their licenses.

The purpose is to eliminate that great amount of business which is now caused by summoning such persons into the courts, the claim being that there is no other way of dealing with the overtime parkers or the driver whose tail light is out than by bringing them into a court.

There is unquestionably a jam in many courts because of auto law violation quite the same as there are traffic jams on the streets. In some instances it would appear that there should be a simpler method of handling the cases such as making it possible for certain authorities to collect fines for violations without waiting for court action. But when it comes to sending a driver to court when his tail light is discovered out there are too many instances when it does not represent a square deal for the driver who cannot see the rear of his car and doesn't know he has no light until told. In those cases where there is a continued refusal to have such lights fixed prosecution should be expected, but the injustice of fining a driver for a violation of which he has no knowledge is clear and such action gives no assurance that he will not be unconsciously doing the same thing the next evening if his light suddenly burns out.

AID IN FIGHTING PESTS

Those vested with the responsibility of waging fights against certain damaging pests often encounter much opposition from those whom the work is intended to benefit. They not only fail to lend their cooperation but they offer resistance.

For the purpose of dealing with the situations which have arisen in connection with the fight against the European corn borer there has been introduced into congress and favorably acted upon by the house a pest control bill which gives representatives of the department of agriculture authority to search persons suspected of transporting vegetable matter that has been placed under quarantine.

This might seem to be entirely unnecessary but it has been found to be much needed in connection with the attempts to prevent the carrying of borer infected corn from one state to another. Most people would willingly submit to an inspection of whatever vegetable matter they might have in going from one state to another in order to be sure that they were not being carriers, but there are those who resent the efforts to prevent a distribution of the pest.

Under the proposed law it would be a violation of federal law to refuse to an authorized person the right to search for pests. It ought not to be necessary for motorists to be held up every half mile for an inspection, but there is unquestionably justice in the demand for prevention of pests being carried in such a way when large sums are being spent for the eradication of such a pest. It is one of those cases where a reasonable attitude on the part of all concerned, the searchers and those to be searched, would obviate the necessity for legislation requiring it.

RICH AS CHURCH MICE.

Ma Chuckled suddenly. Pa lifted an inquiring eyebrow over his newspaper.

"You know, pa, I'm beginning to think being poor is a state of mind, not of pocket book."

"Yeh?" and knowing by experience that it was his turn to listen, pa dropped his paper a half inch, focused on ma, placidly mending in the yellow circle of the evening lamp.

"I always figured that the Raginses were poor—poorer than church mice. But I donno." Pa's paper lowered another inch.

"Of course you can't exactly rate folks by corn-meal mush. But I never fed you that even when you were working by the day and it rained for a week. But the other day Mrs. Ragins come to her kitchen door and called her brood to dinner. 'Guess what we're going to have,' she says, all sparkly with excitement. And then, like it was going to be turkey and cranberry sauce, 'Corn-meal mush,' says she. 'With brown sugar on it?' chimes in all the young ones, on tiptoe. 'With brown sugar on it,' says she, and they all came scuttling for the house.

"You ought to hear her when they have stew. She poises her big spoon over the kettle and grins down the table at Wally—the red-headed one—and says, 'Well, Sonny, will you have white meat or dark?' Wally comes up grinning like a horse collar. 'How's chances for some of both, ma?' says he.

"Here is the Gainses' with their nice big house and lovely yard. You would think all the children in the neighborhood would love to play there. But, no, sir! When any mother for blocks around wants her young ones she has to hang over the Raginses' and fairly urge 'em into coming home.

"Last week, the day after the train hit Beecher's new sedan and toppled it into the ditch, Mr. Ragins comes home, proud as punch. What do you suppose he'd done? Bought that pile of junk and come trundling it into the yard.

" 'Oh, ma, come look!' shouts all the Ragins young ones at once. 'Come look. Did you buy that swell auto for us, pa?' 'Yes, sir,' says Ragins. 'We Raginses are going to have a car.'

"Well, he began unwrapping the battered tin and picking out kindling wood with the whole gallery of kids milling around him. 'Kin I have the door knobs?' shouts one. 'Kin I have this pa?' and 'Kin I have that, pa?' You would have thought it was a Christmas tree and him Santa the way he passed out presents. He was digging for the seats when Mrs. Ragins appears at the door. 'Whatcha going to do with the back seat, pa?' she wants to know. 'Oh, I donno. Guess it ain't good for much,' says he. She runs her hand over the gray velour upholstering appraising like. 'It's good goods,' says she. 'Petty, you run get the scissors.'

"Pa, you ought to see that car. They set the two front seats down on the floor, racer style and hitched an old truck box on behind. I guess they unrolled old stove pipe for fenders and unearthed a buggy step for a running board and to cap the climax, Ragins went down into the cellar and comes out with a three-pane cellar window and if he doesn't hitch it onto the front for a wind shield! Then he steps on the starter. The engine spurrs like a Rolls Royce, the whole family piles in, mister and missus and a couple of babies and the dog in the front seat and goodness only knows how many behind.

"Just then the Gaineses roll up in front of their house in their great big, cushiony car. The doors pop open, and like two animated streaks come Anabel and Wilbur pelting across the street. They clambered in among the squirming arms and legs and rolls off down the street.

"Don't start reading yet, pa. There is another chapter. This afternoon the front door of Raginses burst open and out come Hildaguard strutting down the front walk like it was the boulevard—in a chic little gray velour coat that looked like it had come straight from the smartest engenue shop on the avenue. Following her was all the Raginses—an army of admiration.

"At the gate they met Anabel and Wilbur Gaines all togged out in the new coats their father brought from New York last week. 'Look,' shouts the Ragins young ones, turning little Hildaguard around and round like a top. 'See what our mamma made for Hildaguard out of the back seat of our car.'

" 'Oh!' and 'Ah!' and 'Ain't it pretty!' says Anabel and Wilbur, round eyed. 'But your mamma can't make such pretty coats for you,' says Petty. 'No,' admits Anabel wistfully, 'she can't,' and then, all woebegone, she says, 'Wilbur and I always have to wear boughten ones.' "—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

Must Everyone Have Measles?

By Bernard Fantus, M. S., M. D., Chicago.

"Children should not be kept home from school for every little cold," a school principal asserted, thereby declaring herself either ignorant of the elementary principles of modern hygiene, or else willing to sacrifice health to scholarship. As a matter of fact, this is just what should be done, and it should be the business of the school doctor and the school nurse to see to it that this rule of excluding children with colds from school be rigidly adhered to. Parents should co-operate with the health authorities on this matter, instead of indignantly antagonizing them as some do.

A cold is by no means a trivial affair; and the grisly array of sequels, from rheumatism and heart disease to deafness and brain abscess, might be much cut, died, were colds treated with due respect and consideration. That, however, is a long story, an adequate discussion of which would take us much beyond the arbitrary limits of this article. It would also make too indigestible a literary mess for the non-medical reader. Hence it may be best to point out at least one of the many reasons why a child with a cold should not go to school.

The child may be coming down with the measles. This disease, as every experienced mother knows, starts just like an ordinary cold with watering of the eyes, running of the nose, sneezing and coughing; and, for a day or two, even the most expert medical diagnostician might be unable to decide which it is. Yet, even at this stage, the disease is highly contagious. It is chiefly because of this and the entirely neglectful attitude of people toward colds that it seems necessary for everyone to get the measles at least once in his life. This being apparently almost a necessity, it is highly desirable that children should not get the disease while very young or when feeble, because in such cases measles is far from being the joke it is thought to be by some. For, though it is a fact that measles in itself is practically never fatal, it is liable to serious complications and sequels, such as broncho-pneumonia and tuberculosis.

The time may come when we can protect children against measles by active immunization, as we now can protect them against smallpox, diphtheria and scarlet fever. The best we can do at present is to shield children, as much as possible, from exposure to other children with colds, and, should a known exposure to measles occur in a child probably too young or too feeble to pass through an attack of the disease successfully, to protect it by passive immunization with blood or serum from a measles convalescent, or, less efficiently, from a parent who has had measles.

A child with measles should be given the benefit of medical care, and, until such is secured, kept in bed at absolute rest in a moderately darkened room. Other children should be kept away from him, not only to protect them against the measles infection, but also to protect the child with the measles against other infections, to which measles seem to predispose him.

"RELIGION AND CHARACTER"

Friday

"Gentleness and Judgment"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "Looking into thyself, lest thou also be tempted" (Galatians 6:1).

Read: Matthew 7:1-5.

MEDITATION: Religion is a way of life. The Christian religion is in part the way of gentle judgments. Jesus bids us to be cautious and charitable in judging others for our judgments are self-judgments. He was charitable when all others were harsh. He who knew what was in man made allowances. St. Paul bids people reflect on their own shortcomings when they pronounce judgment. As we desire mercy and generosity at the hand of others, by so much should we employ the same spirit in passing opinions on them. There is no sphere where the Golden Rule should be more constantly practiced.

PRAYER:

"Help me to feel another's woe,
"To hide the fault I see;
"That mercy I to others show,
"That mercy show to me."

—Pope.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Solar Plexus Blow.

Mr. Editor: Borrowing a term from the ring, we must say that with commendable courage, accuracy, and deference to all, Mr. Martin has surely administered a knock-out blow to the abuses now being contrived and fostered in some of our churches of today. Particularly is this rebuke appropriate at this time of Lent, a season set apart in the calendar as a time of greater abstenance and devotional regard for holy thoughts and observances—but this year, more than ever before, is made an opportunity for cards, shows, dances and other frivolities that are adverse to the spirit of Lent, or even soberness during Lent.

This adds to the force of Mr. Martin's letter and invokes an A men! echoed from many who will endorse his rebuke, and who patiently submit, but see in the letter, an argumentum ad hominem which can not be parried and may produce a good effect.

Natural Resources

Mr. Editor: While reading your published report of the Babson survey of the city of Norwich, several parts of it struck me as rather odd. This expert states first that Norwich has no natural resources? Doesn't he know that we have a natural waterway, whereby we bring in coal coke, iron, paperstock and other material for our manufactories at a low freight rate. Didn't some one tell him that we have unlimited water power, and that being surrounded by hills we have no damaging high winds and we have no floods to inundate the city and cause millions of dollars loss.

Couldn't he see that we have an excellent water system and an incomparable climate to drink it in. Doesn't he call those natural resources.

Of course we haven't any coal or iron mines or gold mines in the city limits but we have plenty of gold diggers that are on the job every minute. Then this alleged expert goes on to say that we have no skilled mechanics. Will somebody tell him that we make the best heater in the world here, cutlery that shines on the tables of the best people on earth, leather that decorates the understanding of presidents, and the best newspaper in Conecticut! Whisper in his ear that we turned out $50,000,000 worth of manufactured products in 1926 and that we will double that in 1928. That requires skilled labor, Old Boy! But if he still doesn't believe it, let him send on some of his skilled mechanics and we will make the tools, that they in their clumsy way will try to use.

More About Ford Ned

Mr. Editor: An article "What I Know About Ford Ned" written by E. C. Peck of Willimantic, was recently sent to me from my old home town, Scotland, Conn. The article inspired me to dig into my trunk on a recent visit to my mother and find the copy of a manuscript which I wrote about 18 years ago. It was published in the Hartford Daily Times under the title "The Deserted Village." It was perhaps a more complete article than enclosed as this is just taken from the rough original copy, but such as it is I'm passing on for its human interest and memories to you who inquire "What can you tell us of Ford Ned."

In the northeastern part of Connecticut, only a few miles from several prosperous towns, is the little village having the Indian name of Apaquag. This village is also called Fort Ned owing to tradition which speaks of a man called Ned who used to ford the stream before a bridge was built.

Whichever road leading to it is taken, it can be reached only by way of steep hills sloping down to it from all sides. The pleasantest road occupies a narrow space between a winding stream and a steep hillside which meets the highway at a sharp angle. In early summer people passing can look upwards for several feet at a bank of laurel, wild rose and verdure, and down at a clear blue stream which presently leads to a mill pond in whose waters are reflected the deep green foliage of surrounding trees.

Few people now visit this spot. An occasional fisherman comes to the pond to get pickerel; lovers of romantic scenery drive this way; artists come and take away on canvas memories for future days. But whoever comes cannot fail to be impressed with a sense of silence, loneliness and departed joys.

The rows of houses near the mill pond have long outlived their usefulness, and now stand, a forlorn group, windowless, with fallen roofs and some simply a heap of ruins. The location of the former woolen mills is marked by masonry, the dam and old flume. The bridge near by is fast going to decay.

People, perhaps some of those reading this article, can recall when this was a thriving little town, the scene of happy village life. The woolen mill, operated by Charles Hilbert, employed many industrious people. The houses, now in ruins, were occupied by happy families. A boarding house stood near the mill. The employes, mostly young people, worked during the day and in evening congregated on the wool flakes and made the surrounding hills echo with their song. During the winter skating parties and dances were enjoyed, young folks from surrounding towns coming to join those at Ford Ned. Sleigh bells rang merrily on the air, as with happy voices, sleighing parties started on long journeys over the snow.

Former residents like to recall one evening in particular when a merry group walking about the village, noticed a horse and sleigh outside a house in that weary attitude of waiting which betokens that the horse's master is making a prolonged call on a sweetheart. The young merrymakers, themselves denied a horse and sleigh, instantly besought the young man, their escort, to give them a sleigh ride. With many inward qualms, both of conscience and fear (for he didn't know how to drive) the young fellow yielded to feminine pleadings. The patient horse was taken with subdued screams of delight the party clambered into the sleigh, and, for a while, all went well. Suddenly in crossing a waterbar the sleigh overturned and the occupants found themselves in a ditch by the roadside. The alarmed feminine element fled in dismay, and left the forlorn knight to return, place the abused animal in his former position of martyrdom, and then "Fold his tent like the Arab and as silently steal away."

The scene of the overturned sleigh was near a house called "Hilbert's Folly," so named owing to the cost of the mansion erected by the mill owner, Charles Hilbert. The mansion was built on a plan more than extravagant for those days.

The owner welcomed many visitors with lavish hospitality. Prosperity reigned for a few years, then failure, the mills were closed; shortly afterwards the beautiful Hilbert mansion was destroyed by fire of a mysterious origin. All that remains of the beautiful building are foundations of crumbling stone and fallen chimneys.

Mansion and village are alike deserted:
"No cheerful murmurs fluctuate in the gale,
No busy steps the grass grown footway tread
But all the bloomy flush of life is fled."

Written by a daughter of one of the former residents of Little Old Ford Ned. (From stories recited by Mrs. Caleb Anthony, Scotland, Conn.)

Song of the Out-of-Doors

Come with me, O you world-weary, to the haunts of thrush and veery,
To the cedar's dim cathedral and the palace of the pine;
Let the soul within you capture something of the wild wood rapture,
Something of the epic passion of that harmony divine!
Down the pathway let us follow through the hemlocks to the hollow,
To the woven, vine-wound thickets in the twilight vague and old,
While the streamlet winding after is a trail of silver laughter,
And the boughs above hint softly of the melodies they hold.

Through the forest, never caring what the way our feet are faring,
We shall hear the wild bird's revel in the labyrinth of Tune,
And on mossy carpets tarry in His temples cool and airy,
Hung with silence and the splendid, amber tapestry of noon.
Leave the hard heart of the city its poverty of pity,
Leave the folly and the fashion wearing out the faith of men,
Breathe the breath of life blown over upland meadows white with clover,
And with childhood's clearer vision see the face of God again!

$1 JURY VERDICT FOR WORLD WAR VETERAN

A verdict of $1 was returned by a jury in the superior court in New London Thursday afternoon in favor of the plaintiff, Stanley J. Plumstead of Old Lyme, a World war veteran of 19 battles and holder of French and American decorations for bravery, against Mrs. Sadie Weckler of Old Lyme, whom the former A. E. F. hero claimed choked him and pulled his hair and ears about 1.30 a. m. on Dec. 11, 1927.

Judge Christopher L. Avery accepted the verdict. The case was begun in the superior court late Wednesday afternoon and progressed rapidly, there being few witnesses, who gave brief but sensational testimony.

Waffle Shop and Gas Station

The evidence brought out that Mr. and Mrs. Plumstead operate Jones' Waffle Shop in Old Lyme, while about 500 feet away is a gasoline station operated by the Wecklers. The Wecklers went to Middletown and so they rented their home to a Mr. and Mrs. Dumond and their 14-months-old child.

According to the evidence, there came a night when Mr. and Mrs. Plumstead and Mrs. Dumond went to a theatre, leaving the 14-months-old child in the house alone. Mr. and Mrs. Weckler came back that night to get their car and remained there over night. The evidence showed that after the theatre the Plumsteads returned to Lyme about midnight and Mrs. Dumond entered the place she had rented. From then on the testimony is conflicting.

Plumstead claims from outside he heard Mrs. Weckler tell Mrs. Dumond to get out, that she took her baby and went to the Plumstead home. He testified that later Mrs. Weckler came to his home and asked him if he told Mrs. Dumond's husband that Mrs. Weckler had turned her and her baby out in the cold. Plumstead said he answered "yes" whereupon Mrs. Weckler said, "You lie!" He said that she then assaulted him.

Mrs. Weckler's Story

Mrs. Weckler's story is that she was in bed when Mrs. Dumond came home, that she called down and asked if it was her and that she replied something about not expecting her laudindy to arrive there and put up for the night. Mrs. Weckler testified that she told Mrs. Dumond that it was agreed that they might come back for a night when they had to and that she was free to leave if she did not wish to remain. The defendant's testimony was that of her own accord, Mrs. Dumond took her child and went to the Plumstead home.

Mrs. Weckler admitted going to Plumstead and of telling him he lied when he told Mr. Dumond that his wife and child had been ordered out into the night. She denied any assault and it was brought out in the evidence that Mr. Dumond went back to the Weckler home that night and has not since lived with Mrs. Dumond.

Witnesses for the plaintiff were Stanley J. Plumstead, Constable James F. Bugbee, Frederick B. Green and Janie B. Plumstead, while for the defense were Sadie E. Weckler and Albert Weckler.

Attorney J. B. Henry, counsel for the plaintiff, made the opening argument. He was followed by Attorney Kenneth Wynne of Hartford for the defense. Attorney Henry then made another brief argument.

Judge Avery, in his charge to the jury took just seven minutes.

Miss Pasnik Wins Prize

Mrs. Gertrude Abramson was hostess at a bridge party at her home in Huntington street, New London Wednesday night. Her guests were Belle Ribner, Minnie Bogoslofsky, Shirley Belgrade, Norma Bernstein, Pauline Eisenstein, Dorothy Pasnik of Norwich, Gertrude Abramson and Bertha Plattus. Miss Pasnik and Miss Bernstein were winners of the prizes.

PRESENTS CONCLUDING SECTION OF SURVEY ON CONDITIONS IN NORWICH

The conclusion of the Babson economic and industrial survey of Norwich, which has been made for the chamber of commerce, is given as follows:

Introductory Description.

Norwich, with a population of approximately 23,000 is located in the town of that name in New London county, in the southeastern part of Connecticut. Its business establishments comprise 99 manufacturing plants, 44 wholesalers, 537 retailers, 637 service establishments, and 211 professional offices. The city has a diversified list of industries, the principal lines being fine cotton goods, woolens, silks, thermos bottles, metals, bleaching and dyeing. It is the trading center for a substantial portion of New London county.

Norwich is 12 miles north of New London; 15 miles southeast of Willimantic, 40 miles southwest from Providence, 95 miles southwest of Boston, and 35 miles southeast from Hartford, the capital of the state. It is at the head of tide-water navigation on the Thames river. The city is served by the New York, New Haven & Hartford, and Central Vermont railroads, and by the Thames River line. Bus service is given to all parts of the state.

About three-quarters of the city of Norwich occupies a hilly position between the valleys of the Yantic and Shetucket rivers which here unite to form the Thames. The remaining portion lies to the west of the Yantic and Thames. The latter is in the nature of an arm of the sea, inasmuch as the influence of the tides is felt at Norwich. The channel of this river is now deep enough for small barges and it is to be further deepened in 1928 to accommodate boats of 18-feet draught.

The town of Norwich was settled in 1659 by a company of colonists from Saybrook. The land comprising the town was deeded to the colonists by the Indians on June 3, 1659. The deed granted 35 proprietors the title to a tract nine miles square. This tract was called Mohegan until 1662 when it was re-named for the old English town of Norwich. The original town has been reduced in area by setting off the towns of Bozrah, Franklin, Sprague and Lisbon, and now covers only 29.23 square miles. Of this area the city occupies 2.91 square miles, or about 10 per cent. The city was chartered in 1784 and re-chartered in 1877.

Norwich in 1784 carried on a thriving commerce with the W. I. Indies and the Atlantic ports. The embargo of 1807 and the War of 1812 proved a death blow to this commerce, but the protectionism of 1813 resulted in a rapid development of manufacturing. The first large company was the Thames Manufacturing Co., established 1823. There was a spurt in manufacturing in 1833, but many firms went under in the 1837 panic. A renewal in activity occurred between 1838 and 1842.

The industrial history of Norwich shows enterprises established in Norwich as follows: Gristmill (1661), iron works (1750), stoneware and pottery (1750), cutlery (1766), linseed oil (1748) (1778) (1786), stocks (1766), paper (1766) this was the first paper mill in Connecticut), chocolate (1770) (1779), clocks and watches (1773), printing (1773), frilling mills (4) (1773-80), looms (1790), cotton goods (1790) but discontinued in 1800, nails (1791), cork-cutting machinery invented in Norwich (1864). By 1880 only the paper mill was left of the above enterprises. A hemp-spring mill was started in 1804 and failed about 1915.

Civic Development.

The town and city of Norwich have been showing a gradual but slow increase in population over the past 18 years. Growth has been much slower than in other comparable cities such as New Britain and New London, but has been equally as good as that experienced by the neighboring city of Willimantic. Chart "A" compares geographically the growth of the town and city of Norwich with cities of New Britain, New London, and Willimantic and also with the entire state of Connecticut.

The government of the city of Norwich under the revised charter of 1877 is vested in a mayor chosen every two years at a bi-cameral council elected one-half each year on a general ticket which controls elections of all administrative officials.

There are 75 miles of improved streets within the town of Norwich of which 46 miles are within the city limits. Of the streets within the city 5½ miles are paved with concrete surface and 9 miles are finished with macadam, the remainder having a gravel surface.

The streets are well lighted by electricity with a so-called white-way in the downtown section. Automobile traffic is remarkably well handled. The city authorities are to be congratulated on having solved the problem so satisfactorily considering the layout of the streets in the business district. Automatic signals are used wherever they lend themselves to clearing up congestion.

Approximately 75 per cent of the city is served by sewers. Where the sewers are installed, the system is adequate. The storm and sanitary sewers have been combined. The discharge is into the Thames river below the city where the dilution is assisted by the action of the tides. There are sections of the town which have no sewers whatsoever and in particular instances conditions are decidedly unsanitary.

The fire department is supervised by one of the leading experts in the country and one who is in the front rank of fire chiefs. The department exhibits remarkable efficiency in keeping the fire loss in Norwich as low as it is. The department consists of four pumping engines equipped with chemical tanks, three combination chemical and hose cars; one 75-foot aerial ladder truck with one steam fire engine and one 45-foot extension ladder in reserve. The personnel consists of chief, deputy chief and 33 permanent men. There are in addition to the permanent force 11 men on the call force which are available in emergencies.

The police department is made up of one chief, one captain, 28 regular patrolmen and 19 substitutes. Norwich being situated a little off the main travelled routes does not have the amount of trouble and crime as do some of the neighboring cities. We were not impressed with one or two individuals on the force, but this can properly be charged to local politics.

There is a local Bell Telephone exchange with 6321 stations connected. The character of the telephone service in Norwich is especially good. The Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies have offices in Norwich with call service.

Norwich is well served by trolley cars to all outlying sections of the town.

Frequent bus service is maintained to New London, Westerly, Providence, Willimantic, Hartford and Springfield.

Railroad service for passenger traffic practically does not exist as far as Norwich is concerned. This is due to a combination of circumstances and there appears to be no easy remedy. The deficiency in this respect is, however, more sentimental than otherwise. The nearness of Norwich to the two main lines of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. with frequent bus service brings it in fact within easy travelling distance of New York and Boston.

Norwich has one large and six small hotels with rates $1.50 to $3.00 per day E. P.

Many churches of imposing appearance add to the attractiveness of the place. The complete list of the denominations is as follows: Congregational 5, Baptist 4, Episcopalian 4, Methodist Episcopal 3, Lutheran 2, Jewish 1, Christian Science 1, Spiritual 1, Universalist 1, Roman Catholic 6, Greek Catholic 2, Polish Catholic 1.

The United Workers is an organized charity bureau in which most of the public charity work in Norwich centers. It is a remarkably strong and aggressive organization well supplied with funds for its purpose. The Salvation Army is also represented in Norwich.

Norwich possesses a suitable Y. M. C. A. occupying a building on Main street near the center of the city. There is a modern annex to the rear housing a gymnasium, swimming pool, baths, pool rooms, dormitory, social and heading rooms. The membership includes 900 men and boys and also 110 women and girls who are allowed the privileges of the physical department one afternoon a week.

The public schools of Norwich rank high among those in Connecticut. The advisory force consists of a superintendent and three supervisory principals. There are special teachers in music, dancing, drawing, physical education, domestic science and manual training. The health of the scholars is looked after by the town health department. There are fife and drum corps in the three larger schools.

Norwich is to be congratulated on possessing an excellent hospital which on account of its private endowment fund involves very little expense for its upkeen on the citizens. This hospital is the Wm. W. Backus general hospital equipped with 220 beds.

The state of Connecticut maintains two state hospitals just outside of Norwich in sightly locations.

Mohegan park comprising 375 acres of rolling country was donated to the city. The park is fortunately tuated as one entrance is only one mile from City hall. There are entrances on all sides for the convenience of the public. The park which has been left in its natural state as far as possible, contains ball and playgrounds, artificial and natural ponds for skating and separate bathing facilities for boys and girls. There is a natural lake in the center of the park equipped with a pavilion and bandstand where concerts are given during the summer. Twenty acres are set aside for deer and there is also a menagerie with a variety of small game.

The young people are well supplied with playgrounds in addition to Mohegan park. There are 11 playgrounds and one field, looked after by a superintendent with seven male and 12 female supervisors. There was an estimated attendance in 1927 of 70,000 children and 50,000 adults. It is pleasing to note that the American Playgrounds association has mentioned Norwich as having one of the finest layouts in New England.

There are four theatres in Norwich, three of which are regular movie houses and one having both vaudeville and pictures.

The following clubs are organized in the town: Rotary, Lions, Arcanum and Norwich Country club with a modern club house and golf course.

There are two daily newspapers published in Norwich, both controlled by the same interests. For a city of the size of Norwich they may be classed as very good news sheets.

Mercantile and Industrial Development.

Fortunately for Norwich it has never become a one industry place. There is great diversity of enterprise as is shown in the following lists: Cotton, woolen and silk textiles are the most important manufacturing lines.

Banks:

Norwich is noted as a banking center. There are at present four commercial and three savings banks with total deposits of $45,476,000. Chart "C" shows the trend of capital and deposits of the commercial banks yearly since 1918. The ratio of surplus and profits to capital is shown at the bottom of the chart. This ratio for the Norwich banks appears to be lower than in the case of some of the neighboring cities. The line is showing an upward trend for Norwich, however, and reflects improved conditions.

The Norwich Building and Loan association with 801 shareholders and total assets of $390,256, is a successful organization, assisting local home owners in financing their operations.

Natural Resources.

There are practically no mineral or timber resources around Norwich suitable for commercial exploitation. Raw materials of this nature must be brought in from other places. For this reason the subject of freight rates via rail and water is an important one for Norwich industry.

About 50 percent of the total area of the town of Norwich is in farms. In recent years the average area per farm has been about 65 acres. Dairying and poultry raising are the chief farm activities. Fruits and vegetables are also grown. Crops other than corn are not important. The activities of the town farmers are thus in line with those of New London county as a whole. In 1925 New London county ranked second among the Connecticut counties in the production of eggs, fourth in the number of cows and fifth in fruits and vegetables.

The county agent, whose headquarters is in Norwich assists the farmers in applying more scientific methods in their farm activities. He also assists in marketing the products. Statistics covering the trend and importance of agriculture in New London compared with other important counties are shown in the appendix.

Markets For Local Products

The products of most of the larger plants now located at Norwich or nearby are marketed all over the country, either direct or through New York jobbing and commission houses. By reason of the excellent rail and water transportation facilities, products made in Norwich can be shipped quickly and at relatively low rates via boat to New York. Norwich is to be congratulated that through the untiring efforts of certain citizens the Thames river is to be further deepened as this will be an effective aid in insuring direct water transportation. All other things being equal, this factor of water transportation should give Norwich an advantage over other Connecticut cities not similarly located, or at least give competitive equality.

But few of the larger companies in Norwich cater to the local city and country trade. The market for consumers products among the farming communities in eastern Connecticut and western Rhode Island where the density of population is nowhere over 160 per square mile is rather limited. However, Norwich is the trading center of New London county and factories and wholesalers find here the best location to cater to the surrounding region. Factories making consumers good, moreover, can ship by boat to New York city and there compete in that wonderful consumers market.

In the last analysis, of course, the ability of a manufacturer in Norwich to sell in New England and in other parts of the U. S. depends on the quality of his product and price to the consumer. These elements vary with each company. Nevertheless the ability of companies located in Norwich to ship in fuel and raw materials at low rates, to obtain cheap common labor and to ship finished products out again at low water rates enables manufacturers in many lines of goods to operate profitably from this point.

Transportation Facilities and Rates

Norwich is located on the N. Y., N. H. & H. and Central Vermont railroads about 12 miles north of New London which is on the main line of the New Haven railroad, half way between New York and Boston. Norwich is also on the Thames river at the head of navigation. Its location makes it admirably suited for the location of industrial enterprises as regards shipping facilities and freight rates on raw materials and finished products. Freight rates to other sections of the country are favorable and are based on the rates from Boston.

There is a freight boat to New York making 3 trips a week. Freight rates to New York city on this line are 2-3 cents per hundred pounds below railroad rates. A combination water and rail rate is also available to the principal cities of the west, south, and southwest. These rates average 4 to 7 cents below the all-rail rate.

Freight rates to and from Norwich on raw and manufactured products are the result of very elaborate studies by the railroads and shipping interests involved and have been carefully checked under the supervision of the interstate commerce commission. As Norwich is so favorably situated with regard to railroad facilities, it is considered that the freight rates affecting in and out shipments on raw and manufactured products have no objectionable features. If there is any cause for complaint, the matter should be immediately brought to the attention of the local freight agent.

Power, Fuels and Water Facilities

There is a plentiful supply of electric power available in Norwich for manufacturing purposes. Current is supplied by the Gas & Electric Dept. of the city of Norwich which has both hydro and steam plants located along the Shetucket river. The Eastern Connecticut Power Co. has several power plants in the vicinity of Norwich but does not supply current directly to consumers within Norwich. It does, however, sell power to the Gas & Electric department and thereby serves as a reserve supply at times of extra demand. The average daily consumption of electricity in Norwich is 30,000 K. W. hrs. The number of meters connected November 1927 was 7000.

Rates for electric power are so involved that it is not considered practical to list a complete schedule in a report of this kind. Power rates in Norwich have recently undergone a considerable revision downward especially for those having a high power consumption. Specific rates should be obtained from the Gas & Electric department covering any particular requirements. The residential lighting rate is 10c per K. W. hour.

Gas is also supplied by the municipally owned plant. There is an ample supply for all purposes. Rates are average for the cities in this section of the state and are as follows:

1st 100 ft.—.80c per 100 ft.
Next 7,400 ft.—.135c per 100 ft.
Next 22,500 ft.—.12c per 100 ft.
Next 30,000 ft.—.115c per 100 ft.
Over 60,000 ft.—.09c per 100 ft.

A discount of 20 per cent is allowed on all over 1,000,000 ft. per month.

Coal and oil are shipped into Norwich by both rail and water and therefore are obtainable promptly at reasonable prices.

Norwich is particularly favored by nature as to the supply of water for municipal purposes. Due to the topography of the surrounding country it has been possible to obtain an abundant supply of water without having recourse to the expense of pumping. The city has recently completed the construction of a third reservoir with sufficient capacity to supply the needs of Norwich for many years to come. The monthly tests by the Connecticut state department of health indicate that the public water supply meets the U. S. T. D. standard for drinking purposes. All water supplies are chlorinated, however, for safety.

Labor Conditions

There is a plentiful supply of common labor around Norwich which can be obtained at reasonable rates. The building trades are well organized, but the factories practically all operate on an open-shop basis. Wage rates are as follows:

Male skilled—$20 per week and up.
Male unskilled—$15-18 per week.
Female skilled—$15-20 per week.
Female unskilled—$10-12 per week.
Building trades:
Common laborers 62 1-2c per hour.
Hod carriers 73 1-2c per hour.
Painters 95c per hour.
Plumbers $1.00 per hour.
Electricians $1.00 per hour.
Carpenters $1.10 per hour.
Masons $1.37 1-2 per hour.

The list of leading employers given below shows that the textile mills of Norwich employ most of the factory labor. Only a few mills employ skilled machinists. There is on the whole no skilled metal workers market in Norwich.

The leading employers of labor in Norwich and vicinity are as follows showing the approximate number employed:

500 and over—American Woolen Co (2 mills) men's woolen goods; Ponemah mills, Taftville, cotton cloth; J. B. Martin annex (2) silk winding velvet, automobile robes; United States Finishing Co., cotton finishing.

$1,500 FOR PLAINTIFF IN BREACH OF PROMISE

Judgment for the plaintiff, Esther Sutton of Waterford, in the amount of $1,500 damages was entered Thursday in the superior court by Judge Christopher L. Avery in the breach of promise suit against Charles L. Raymond of New London, following the filing of a stipulation by attorneys for both sides.

The stipulation also withdrew the case from the docket of the superior court, in addition to fixing the damages. The plaintiff, in consequence thereof, was given a quit-claim deed of property at the Golden Spur belonging to Raymond.

The plaintiff alleged in her complaint that in 1916 she, at the request of Raymond, agreed to marry him; that she was and is ready to marry him, and that he has refused to marry her. The case was scheduled to be heard before Judge Avery and a jury in the superior court at New London on Thursday.

ANOTHER BANNER CARD PROMISED BY PASTIME TONIGHT; HEAVIES FEATURE

Featured by at least one and possibly two heavyweight bouts, a clash between two old rivals, the Sub Base and Coast Guard teams, and the appearance of all the usual local favorites, the Pastime A. C. card tonight at Olympic hall is being held up as one of the best attempts that this club has ever made.

Young Brush and Kid Fritz are expected to stage one of the fights in the unlimited class while a heavyweight is promised from the Pacific coast outfit. He is described as having just arrived from the Pacific coast where he put in many and many a battle and helped boost his team to the heights that it attained just before being transferred to this side of the country. A suitable opponent was being sought Thursday night for him and should plans go through he will be seen against one well able to test him thoroughly.

Young McLean from Willimantic, a protege of Police Captain McLean, will mix it with Denny Moore from the Sub Base. These boys have been filling the air with challenges at each other and the matchmaker finally got them together and both readily agreed for the bout. It will be remembered that they fought a draw at the last show and neither was pleased with the verdict.

Two boys will be on hand from Danielson while Hookie Jackson, Jimmy Metcalf and ten other boys will be seen from Westerly.

Four boys will come from the Coast Guards and at least a similar number are promised from the Sub Base with the promised inter-service battles, in all probability resulting for each division is aching to prove its supremacy.

The two Levalley punchers, one from Willimantic and the other from the Base (no relation) are slated to mingle while Mush Moriarty, Vic Darr and the rest of the local boys are in top condition for the show.

There will be plenty of seats as the management has had installed extra accommodations along this line. The first bout goes on at 8.15 with a novelty, songs by Frank McHugh, to entertain the crowd before the show starts. He will sing two of Edgar Caron's latest numbers, You'll Be Sorry and Would You Be Happy. This is expected to prove a novelty to the crowd and should keep the audience well entertained until the opening of bloodshed.

EAST TEAMS SHOW WELL IN CATHOLIC TOURNAMENT

CHICAGO, March 22.—(AP)— Eastern states basketball teams entered in the National Catholic high school tournament at Loyola university here indicated today that they would make a strong bid for championship honors when they won three of their five first round encounters with midwest and western opponents.

Midwest teams won two of their five sectional games while the far west broke even in two games. St. Patrick's of Pueblo, Colo., defeated Sacred Heart of El Reno, Okla., 22 to 15 and the St. Peter Five of Anaconda, Mont., only other western team entered, lost 16 to 7 to St. Mary of Clarksburg, W. Va.

St. Mary's of Westfield, Mass., displayed the best brand of basketball in the tournament to defeat St. Theresa of Detroit, 30 to 20. The Westfield four-man offense and almost perfect five-man defense had the Detroit team completely baffled.

LaSalle of Cumberland, Md., also showed unexpected strength defeating St. Patrick's of North Platte, Nebr., 39 to 15. The Cumberland team was weak in advancing the ball, but hit the hoop regularly when in open play.

St. Phillips, who tied with St. Ignatius for the Chicago Region Catholic title, handed the east its first defeat, when it romped over St. Titus of Titusville, Pa., 38 to 15.

Holy Rosary of Syracuse, N. Y., one of the strong eastern fives and a favorite to go to the quarter finals, fell by the wayside in its first game with St. Mary's of Lansing, Mich., which won 20 to 15.

One of the hardest fought games of the tournament, between St. Mary's of San Antonio, Texas, and St. Mary's of Bloomington, Ills., went to the southwestern quintet, 23 to 19.

In a rough game in which the result was in doubt up to the last few seconds of play, St. John's of Brooklyn, N. Y., defeated St. Ambrose of Davenport, Iowa, 28 to 26.

In the final game of the night, the rangy St. Ignatius Five of Chicago downed Cathedral of Sioux Falls, S. D., 16 to 8.

FUGAZY MAY LINE UP WITH MULLEN FOR CHOICE BOUTS

NEW YORK, March 22.—(AP)— Humbert J. Fugazy, summer rival of Tex Rickard in the local boxing field, opened a drive today to break the Madison Square Garden promotor's corner of the heavyweight market.

Before leaving for Chicago to discuss a possible alliance with Jim Mullen, mid-west fistic power, Fugazy settled a financial squabble with Paulino Uzcudun, Spanish heavyweight, and announced that the Basque Woodsman had agreed to a return match with George Godfrey, giant Negro, at Ebbets Field early in May. Godfrey gained a decision over the Spaniard in ten rounds on the Pacific coast recently.

The promoter's trouble with Paulino dated from the Basque's conquest of Harry Wills last summer. Fugazy held up payment of $8,000 from Paulino's share of the receipts claiming he had advanced that amount to the Spaniard before the match. The controversy was about to be aired in court here.

Fugazy will attempt to match Jack Sharkey and Jack Delaney for an outdoor bout. He also hopes to toss Knute Hansen into his own "elimination" series along with Phil Scott, the British champion, in spite of the fact that Rickard has the champion, Gene Tunney, "cornered" for 1928.

COMBS AND LAZZERI HIT HOMERS BUT YANKS LOSE

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 22—(AP)—The New York Yankees got the home runs today but Boston's hard-fighting Braves hit enough singles to overcome this handicap and take the final game of the exhibition series, 6 to 2.

The victory gave the Braves the series, four games to one, the single Yankee victory being the only one the champions have gained this season.

Kent Greenfield and Bob Smith held Miller Huggins' famed batters to four hits, two of them home runs off the bats of Earle Combs and Tony Lazzeri. Those circuit blows marked the two hits Greenfield allowed. Smith gave up two singles, one by Babe Ruth and the other by Lazzeri in the four innings he worked.

Stanley Coveleski, essaying a comeback started for the champions and was pounded for six hits and three runs in three innings. Two Yankee errors, however, helped the Braves materially.

New York (A) 1 0 010 000—2 4 3
Boston (N) ... 201 000 12x—6 10 1

REDS POUND TWO ORIOLE PITCHERS AND WIN, 8 TO 1

Giants 8, Red Sox 7

BRADENTON, Fla., March 22.—(AP)—The New York Giants won another ball game today, 8 to 7, but it was presented to them on a platter by Dan MacFayden, Boston Red Sox moundsman.

With the score tied at five-all in the eighth, Dan suddenly developed a streak of wildness. Two walks and a single filled the bases with Giants and Dan with Dismay. Whereupon he passed Terry, a foolish thing to do under the circumstances, and Spohrer came home with the winning run.

The game was a hard-fought, free-hitting sort of affair, the Giants getting twelve hits off Russell, Wiltse and MacFayden while Levy and Clarkson were being reached for 10 hits by the Red Sox. Harper hit a home run for the Giants in the second inning.

Score:
New York (N) 210 031 010—8 12 2

Cubs

AVALON, Cal., March 22—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs, well conditioned, broke camp today and headed for the mainland to engage in exhibition games before moving eastward for the opening of the National league pennant drive.

A light workout consisting of batting practice and base running marked the close of the Cubs training grind on the island. Pilot Joe McCarthy seemed satisfied with the physical conditions of his charges.

Games divided between the Los Angeles and Hollywood clubs of the Pacific Coast league will keep the Cubs busy for the next six days.

Robins Win

AL BEAUREGARD AGAIN BEATS CONNOLLY AT BOSTON

BOSTON, March 22—(AP)—Sid Barbarian, of Detroit, won a ten round decision over Johnny Cecco lof Scranton, Pa., here tonight. Barbarian weighed 140 pounds and Ceccoli 143. Ted Sandwina, of Germany, won on a technical knockout over Eddie Callahan, of Arlington, in eight rounds.

In a four rounder Al. Beauregard of Norwich, Conn., won the decision over Mickey Connolly of New York city. It was Beauregard's second victory over the New Yorker here in two weeks.

'BOUT SPORTS

One question that has been bothering many this basketball season ought to be settled by the Plainfield-New Britain series, namely, whether the Pros would have been a title contender in the state league this year. New Britain has been up front all season and stands now in a good chance to cop the second half championship and go into the playoffs with the New Haven Atlas, first half winners. A multitude of reasons were advanced for Plainfield's non-entrance into this loop, but none of them were that the Pros were not speedy enough to cope with the style of play fashionable in the circuit. This Plainfield-New Britain series ought to be conducive to record gates and Plainfield is fortunate in having the opening chapter at the Community House.

The Intermediate tournament at the Y Saturday will attract teams from the majority of eastern Connecticut towns. It is an all-day affair, starting at 9:30 in the morning and finishing up in the evening, either before, or after the Academy-C. F. C. game. No club has been installed as a favorite as yet and probably none will be. A tournament is a hard grind and anything is liable to happen at any time.

Al Beauregard, the flashy local bantamweight, is sure hitting the comeback trail hard and with success. His win last night at Boston over Mickey Connolly was his second over that fighter in two weeks. Monday, the Taftville lad is to fight Jim Bones at Pittsfield in an eight-rounder.

SINCLAIR'S STABLE NOT TO BE BARRED ON N. Y. TRACKS

NEW YORK, March 22—(AP)—The colors of Harry F. Sinclair and his Rancocas stable, although barred in Maryland, will be carried this year on New York tracks.

After considering the action of the Maryland Racing authorities the stewards of the Jockey club, controlling turf body in New York, adopted a resolution today that it "in no way affected the entries of the Rancocas stable on race courses under the jurisdiction of the Jockey club."

No explanation of their decision was issued but it is understood the stewards based their ruling on the ground that Sinclair's activities on the turf are not affected by any developments outside that sphere. The Maryland commission barred the oil operator as a result of his connection with the Teapot Dome scandal and its resultant political ramifications.

No request was made by the Maryland commission, however, that its action be endorsed here or elsewhere. The Jockey club took the matter up voluntarily in order to make its position clear.

The horses of the Rancocas stable already are well distributed in the list of entries for spring meetings at the four metropolitan tracks—Aqueduct, Jamaica, Belmont and Empire City—as well as for the summer session at Saratoga, which is also under the jurisdiction of the Jockey club.

PIERCY LOST TO COLUMBIA EIGHT FOR THE SEASON

NEW YORK, March 22—(AP)—The jinx that seems to be pursuing Columbia's intercollegiate championship crew struck again today when it developed that Gordon Piercy, No. 4, is out for the rest of the season as the result of a foot injury.

The loss of Piercy closely follows that of Horace Davenport, No. 7, who is now recovering from an operation for appendicitis and not expected to be available again before late spring, if at all. The varsity eight started its workouts earlier without Eric Lambart, crack stroke and 1927 captain, but he has since returned to pick up the pace-setting job.

ACADEMY AND C. F. C. READY FOR SECOND SERIES GAME

The Academy and C. F. C. are now practically ready for the second game of their city title series that will come Saturday night at the Y gym. Although the schoolboys gave the Banists a decisive licking, still interest runs high with a goodly number even venturing as far as to pick the C. F. C. as winners in this tilt.

Both teams are expected to use practically the same lineups that started last Saturday. The Academy will have Lloyd Jarvis and Les Pingree at the forwards, Joe Viau at center and Capt. Jim Kelly and Buck LaCroix at the guards while the C. F. C. will use Lambert and Leffingwell at forwards with Ludlow at center and Brown and Davis at guards.

LARGE CROWD EXPECTED AT DANIELSON SHOW TONIGHT

A banner turnout is expected at Danielson tonight to welcome amateur boxing back to that place after a lapse of some years. The show will be held at the state armory and will feature boys from all over eastern Connecticut.

JACK DELANEY SLATED TO MEET TOMMY LOUGHRAN IN LIGHTHEAVY TITLE BOUT

MIAMI Beach, Fla., March 22—(AP)—Jack Delaney, who recently stepped into the heavyweight class will go back into the light heavyweight division probably to meet Tommy Loughran in June for the title in that division, but neither man will meet Gene Tunney this year, Tex Rickard announced tonight.

Rickard said he was expecting acceptance of a Loughran-Delaney bout offer from their managers tonight or tomorrow, but he stressed that Delaney's shift back to his old division had no significance as far as Tunney's opponent this year was concerned.

"Neither Delaney nor Loughran is big enough to worry a man as strong and clever as Tunney" Rickard declared, but added that Loughran "if he keeps on growing may be a good match for Tunney in 1929."

"It would be foolish for Tommy to step out of the light-heavyweight class now," the promoter asserted.

Rickard's announcement came as a denial of reports that a Loughran-Delaney match would be arranged to select an opponent for Tunney, this year.

SPORT SLANTS

By Alan J. Gould,
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, March 22.—(AP)—The heavyweight elimination game has turned into a guessing contest.

Tex Rickard doesn't care how many guesses the boys take so long as they make it clear that the New York promoter has the market in title bouts cornered. There is no limit to the number of chances on this merry-go-round.

Maybe Rickard himself doesn't know the answer. But the experts are doing the best they can.

Heeney Is Popular

But the experts are doing the best they can to help him out. Some insist Tom Heeney, the honest but no longer overcoat-less Anzac, will get the big call. Tom is the common people's choice. Others say it will be bounding Johnny Risko, the big rough and tumble boy. Johnny is backed by the bakers and pretzel-benders, the "big dough men."

John and Tom are the finalists of the heavyweight tournament but the answer seems to be: What of it? No arrangements have been made for any final yet.

Paulino, others guess, will be called back into the Rickard fold. The Basque has as much "color" as any of the contenders but otherwise his chief recommendation is an ability to "take it." Even Jack Sharkey's name continues to be mentioned in some quarters. There is no doubt the Sailor once was the fair haired boy, so far as Rickard was concerned, but a knockout, a defeat on points and a draw, in his last three fights have taken the logic out of the Sailor's challenge.

Back again, then, goes the guess that it will be Dempsey and that the one big title fight that Rickard plans this year will be held in September instead of July.

Tunney and N. Y. Moguls Also Guess

Meanwhile Gene Tunney and the New York boxing commissioners are having a little guessing contest of their own.

The commissioners aren't quite flattered by the way the champion has ignored their list of heavyweight challengers—Sharkey, Heeney and Risko. They see no humor in the fact that Sharkey is at the head of a list of logical contenders even though some of the experts do.

The solons will exhibit their annoyance tomorrow when they consider Tunney's reply to their request for definite action and even may take some drastic action against the champion.

Tunney, a New Yorker, hasn't yet forgotten that the commission refused to recognize him as a challenger in 1926, the year he won the title in Philadelphia, and also erected obstacles in 1927 that forced Rickard to take the second Dempsey-Tunney battle to chicago.

"Eliminations" In Tennis

The Davis cup team trials at Augusta, may be as complex and inconclusive as the heavyweight eliminations of the first few days of play is any indication.

The boys have been polishing each other off without the least regard to rankings or reputation. Even the lofty team captain, Big Bill Tilden has suffered defeat.

Immediately it may be recalled that Tilden, before going south said: "If I am beaten it will count as much against me as anyone else. There will be no favorites, no picking on reputations. I will yield my place to those who beat me unless I can reverse the verdict in the final trials after we get to Mexico City."

Junior Coen, the 16 year Kansas City star, who was invited to join the squad merely for "experience" seems to have become imbued with the idea that he is out to make the team. The youngster is not even on the national ranking list himself but in successive days he has bumped off two of the "first ten"—John Doeg and Arnold Jones.

TILDEN BEATS LOTT IN HARD-FOUGHT MATCH

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 22—(AP)—"Big Bill" Tilden, the nation's ranking tennis star, had to fight hard today to avoid a second defeat in the Davis Cup singles adversary of the day, George Lott of Chicago, 6-8, 6-2, 6-1, 3-6, 7-5.

MID-WEST BOXERS DIVIDE HONORS AT DETROIT MEET

DETROIT, March 22—(AP)—Missouri and Michigan boxers divided major honors in the first round preliminaries of the national amateur junior championship tournament here tonight. Due to the heavy list of entries, first round bouts which got under way at 8 p. m. were continued until well after midnight.

Missouri representatives entered by the Western Amateur Athletic association won the first three bouts in which they participated. Mickey Adams, St. Louis welterweight, won from Steve Mastroianni, of Schenectady, N. Y.; Clifford Dotzel, St. Louis flyweight, defeated Ensign Sam Constantino, U. S. naval academy, and Joe Connelly, St. Louis bantamweight, eliminated Richard Holland, naval academy.

James Kerr, Grand Rapids flyweight; Henry Schmid, Grand Rapids bantam; Chester Karston, Grand Rapids featherweight; Stanley Grendel, Detroit lightweight, and Mart Levandowski, of Allegan, Mich., light-heavyweight, Michigan A. A. entries, all were victorious in their first round bouts.

Other favorites to fall in the initial bouts were Ensign Pisons of the navy, who was defeated by Al Santora, Jersey City flyweight, and Lou Farber, New York lightweight, who lost to Henry Schmid of Grand Rapids.

YALE "DUCKS" SMASH THREE WORLD'S RECORDS

NEW HAVEN, March 22—(AP)—Three world's relay records were broken by the Yale swimming team today during the interclass swimming meet at Carnegie pool.

This makes five records broken by the team this week and leaves Yale holding every record for the long, or 75 foot pool from the 200-yard up to the mile. The records broken today were the 400, the 500 and the 600 yard free style.

BUSHEY GRAHAM WINS DECISION OVER JOE RYDER

TOLEDO, Ohio, March 22—(AP)—Bushey Graham of Utica, returned to the ring in the featherweight division tonight and won a newspaper decision over Joe Ryder of Brooklyn in 12 rounds. Graham weighed 122 and Ryder scaled 126.

Earl Sande Reinstated

BALTIMORE, Md., March 22—(AP)—After a four month's suspension from Maryland tracks for fouling another rider's mount in the Pimlico futurity, Earl Sande, noted American jockey, was reinstated by the Maryland Racing commission today, and under the direction will be permitted to participate immediately in turf classics.

Interscholastic Sports

Practically all of the high schools are now turning to baseball.

Westerly and Chapman Tech have been holding indoor drills for the last few days while Windham is preparing to start work.

The Academy still works out at the Y gym, having been there for nearly a month but hopes run high to get outdoors the coming week.

The locals' first game comes April 14, so that there's not a great deal of time in the interim.

Several high school players are inclined in the rosters of teams slated to appear in the Y Intermediate tournament Saturday here.

Weaver High and St. Thomas Seminary meet Saturday in Hartford in one of the last all-scholastic clashes of the year in the state.

Lyman Hall of Wallingford sprung a surprise by decisively outpointing Meriden high, a Yale tourney entry, Wednesday night.

The Academy is figuring on closing its city title series with the C. F. C. tomorrow night by winning.

The Bulletin's All-eastern Conn. scholastic quintets will be printed next week, Thursday.

Charles Brown, guard, was elected captain of the Stonington High basketball team recently.

Seven players will receive letters at Stonington.

Stonington's baseball team started indoor practice yesterday.

James DeAngelis, guard, was elected captain of the New Haven Hillhouse basketball team Wednesday.

PROS-NEW BRITAIN IN TITLE SERIES

Announcement was made last night of a two out of three game series between the Plainfield Pros and All-New Britain to decide the state semi-pro basketball championship. The first game will be played next Wednesday evening at the Plainfield Community house with the second at New Britain. A third game, if necessary, will be staged at South Manchester.

Both teams will use practically the same lineups as have appeared for them all season. Each has had success to date and prospects for success in this series along financial lines look bright.

Plainfield Wednesday night clinched the championship of the eastern part of the state by taking the second straight game from the Taftville Crescents, who previously had annexed a series from the Danielson Town Team.

New Britain is the present holder of the state title, having earned it in a victory over the Bristol Endees last spring, a post-season game. In the state league the New Haven Atlas won the first half championship and the Atlas and New Britain will meet Saturday night in New Britain in the deciding game for the second half title. Should New Britain win, which seems most likely in the face of recent events, then these teams will play off for the championship for the year.

The Pros were not included in the state league this year. Many reasons were advanced, the chief ones being that Plainfield is too far to the east for the rest of the clubs to travel while the fact that the Community Housers had always campaigned under Pros rules at home was another obstacle.

Although it has not been announced, it is expected that the series will be a sort of split-affair as regards rules, with Plainfield having the pro species at the Community House and New Britain the amateur end, the kind used in the state league on her home surface, the Stanley Arena. Probably a toss of a coin will decide under what set of rules the third game will be staged.

ACADEMY GOES OUTDOORS NEXT WEEK

The Academy baseball candidates expect to get outdoors early next week, with a strong possibility of Monday being the date for the first workout.

After nearly a month's drilling indoors at the Y gym the batterymen are in fairly good shape and will of course have a little on the rest of the squad. About a dozen men have been working out under Coach Earle E. Brigham and although it is much too early to form any opinion several showed as likely looking prospects.

More pitchers and catchers are expected when the team takes to the campus as some have been unable to attend the indoor sessions. Capt. Mace Goldblatt and Lloyd Jarvis, two of the "Big Three" on the state champions have been working at the Y while Johnny Greene, the third of those expected to prove the backbone of this year's nine, will get his first taste of work with the squad next week on the local ball field.

The campus is to be put into shape shortly in anticipation of a banner year. The field survived the winter in good shape although the infield, especially around the middle bag, will stand some alterations.

Last year's opening day turnout was over 100, about 120, to be more exact, and whether this year's assemblage can equal that is something to guess. There seems to be plenty of confidence around the school as regards this year's team with the student body, to a man, ready to argue at any moment, that their team can defend successfully the first scholastic state championship that Norwich has had in nearly a quarter of a century.

BOXING JABS

Pastime and Danielson tonight.

The draw decision on the Phil McGraw-Georgie Day bout in New Haven Tuesday night did not ring well with some. They thought that McGraw had a big edge.

Powers, a former Stonington high school athlete, plans to break into the amateur fight game at the show in his native haunts Monday night.

There probably would be a little extra rivalry should Frank McCarthy, local fighter and Academy grid player, ever tangle with the Stonington lad.

The Coast Guards will stage an amateur show in New London Saturday night.

LUPTON, Ariz., March 22.—(AP)—Seth Gonzales, Denver runner, and Ed Gardner, Seattle Negro, tripped into Lupton together today to tie for first place in the 34.7 mile stretch from Navajo in the coast-to-coast marathon. On the basis of elapsed time Arne Souminen, Detroit, still leads the field having covered the 686 miles from Los Angeles.

Mrs. Chapin Loses

BROOKLINE, Mass., March 22.—(AP)—Two of America's "first ten" in women's lawn tennis were defeated in the semi-finals of the national indoor singles here today. Mrs. Alfred H. Chapin, Jr., of Springfield, who ranks number three, was beaten by Mrs. Charles J. Hubbard, Jr., of Cambridge, in a three set match and Miss Margaret Blake, of Lenox, who ranks number eight nationally, was defeated by Miss Edith Sigourney, of Boston.

SEVENTEEN STATE CHAMPS INVITED TO CHI TOURNEY

CHICAGO, Mar. 22—(AP)—Winners in seventeen state high school basketball tournaments closing yesterday were invited today to participate in the national tournament sponsored by the University of Chicago, two weeks hence. Fifteen teams have accepted, including thirteen state titleholders and invitations to five other teams who are outstanding. Last year's tournament drew 43 teams from 38 states.

FORT WAYNE TAKES SECOND GAME OF SERIES WITH CELTICS

FORT WAYNE, Ind., March 22—(AP)—The Fort Wayne basketball team, champions of the Western Division of the American Basketball league, tonight defeated the New York Celtics, champions of the Eastern Division 28 to 21 in the second game of a five game series to decide the league championship. The New York team won last night's contest.

Krems Wins

LIBERTY HILL

P. J. Griffin and family, of Southington, were week-end guests of Mrs. Griffin's mother, Mrs. James A. Choquette.

While in Norwich, Sunday afternoon, the mercury reached 46, it didn't go above 37 here and most of the day was 33 degrees with ice on the trees and with plenty of hail and snow on the ground. An iron bar strikes frost at the depth of four to five inches. The mercury was not above 40 in shade Monday.

As there is a prospect of having a state road on the Trumbull Memorial highway here, it seems positively necessary that the bad places and across Village Hill should be graveled, from Liberty Hill to the Windham town line on the road to Willimantic, so that residents here could get to that city in a four and a half mile drive, instead of the 14-mile drive they have to take, as the traveling has been most of the past winter, and the prospect is for some time to come.

There was no service at the church Sunday on account of the hail and snow storm and strong northeast wind.

Sunday, April 1, Rev. John H. Knott, of Chaplin, is expected to occupy the pulpit of the Exeter-Liberty Hill church.

J. A. Choquette, who has been in Hartford hospital the past five weeks with a broken leg, is expected to be home in a few days.

E. C. Payson carried the milk for the Hartford Dairy Co., Monday and Tuesday.

George Caldwell motored to Waterford Sunday and attended the funeral of his brother, William Caldwell.

BALTIC

MRS. FRANKLIN OWNS UNUSUAL SWORD PLANT

Friends of Mrs. Louisa Franklin are admiring a handsome palm fern, or sword plant in full bloom at her home on Railroad street, Baltic. This plant is about five feet high and has twelve sword-like stalks. It has been in bloom for over a week. During the day it remains in bloom; as darkness approaches the blossoms which are white with lavender and yellow centers close to open again when daylight returns. This is the first sword plant to be seen in bloom in Baltic.

Deep Chest Colds or a Raw Sore Throat

END QUICKLY WHEN YOU USE CAMPHOROLE

Stubborn Coughs and Colds that do not clear up quickly, may lead to serious trouble of the Nose or Throat, such as Fullness in Ears, Deafness and Head Noises or extend into Chest followed by Bronchitis or possibly Pneumonia. You can avoid them with CAMPHOROLE, the new ideal treatment, which acts two (2) ways, as it soothes and heals the inflamed membrane, and loosens up a Cough or Cold in the Throat or Chest. It kills the germs. Then you'll know how soon a nerve-racking Cough with a sticky, clinging mucus can be eased.

It's surprising how promptly it opens up clogged nostrils, and takes hold of a stubborn Cough, as it soothes and heals the sore irritated lining of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and Chest, loosens up phlegm, stops annoying tickle in the throat. You'll then know why thousands prefer CAMPHOROLE, once you have tried it for Colds in Head, Throat and Chest, Asthma, Tonsilitis, Bronchitis and Catarrhal troubles.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Pictures World War.

The R. E. Hourigan post, No. 594, of the Veteran of Foreign Wars is to be commended for bringing to our town the famous war picture, "History of the World War." The greatest of all war pi tures, of which 21 governments took part in and millions of lives lost and the archives of the government searched to make this wonderful and interesting authentic record as to just how the World war was fought by the nations involved in it and the heroic part played by the best of America's manhood to make the world safe for democracy.

Hundreds of camera men of the government signal corps lost their lives on destroyers, battleships, sea and airplanes and going over the top with the boys in taking of actual battle scenes for the archives of their governments, the close ups of submarine warfare taken from the famous German sea raider U boat 35 when at last captured are never to be forgotten. The great artillery bombardments, air attacks, tanks lumbering into action, men going over the top in night battles, trench raids are all vividly projected in the silver screen, and are guaranteed to hold you spell bound through the 11 reels, which take more than two hours in the showing, which will be shown under the auspices of R. E. Hourigan post, No. 594, V. F. W., at the Breed theater, March 28 and 29

Palace Theater.

"The Shield of Honor," a thrilling photo play showing the inside workings of a metropolitan police force, five star acts of selected vaudeville, a Buster Brown comedy and the Paramount news make up the exceptional show at the Palace theater.

Two distinct headlining acts top the vaudeville show. First is "Concentration" presented by George Lovett with Georgia Templeton known as "The Girl with the X-Ray Mind," and Elsa Brown, the Musical Oracle, Miss Templeton yesterday answered hundreds of questions put to her by people in the audience and their satisfaction was very evident when their thoughts were carried in a split second via thought waves to the stage. Miss Brown played numbers on the violin that many thought she did not know.

The second headliner on the bill, "The Five Lamays" offer the most sensational casting act to be seen here in a long time.

Fox and Weeks have a comedy skit that kept the large audience in roars of laughter and they received several encores. Jimmy Sona and Sally, the Flit Trio, have a singing, dancing and musical number that went over with a bang, their offerings were all exceptionally good and their dancing a revelation. Ed Selwyn, the Minstrel Boy immediately sang his way into everyone's funny spot and won for himself round after round of applause.

It seemed to be the opinion of the Palace patrons that last week's vaudeville bill could not be equalled in a long time, but from all reports it has, and while this week's offering is entirely different it is giving unusual satisfaction and the theater is drawing capacity audiences.

Conn. College Concert Course.

The name of Jascha Heifetz has been before the American public for so long that it seems hardly creditable that this really great violinist, who will play in New London, March 28, is only 27 years old.

Heifetz was born in Vilna, Russia, February 2, 1901. He began his musical studies at the age of three, playing a tiny violin made especially for him. His father, who was a violinist in a theater orchestra, spent his days teaching his remarkable son. He would sit beside young Jascha hour after hour while he practiced, correcting every mistake. Undoubtedly this early drilling explains Heifetz's uncanny accuracy and superlative mastery of his instrument. A group of Paris fiddlers were once discussing his amazing technique. One said:

"There's nothing remarkable about it. He never practiced anything but the right notes."

Heifetz's first public appearance was made at the age of five, but it was not until he was nine that he gave his first public recital in Petrograd.

STANDISH STORE HAS ATTRACTIVE DISPLAY

Among the many outstanding displays being shown throughout the city during the spring opening, the jewelry show at Standish's store is proving an attraction to lovers of silverware. In an alcove a beautiful arrangement of the famous Minuet pattern of flat silverware invites the visitor to study the exquisite workmanship and history of this leading ware. The Minuet pattern was recently chosen by Mrs. Calvin Coolidge for the White House tableware. It is a symbol of gracefulness of the dance of lovely Colonial days and its pattern is taken from the charming scrolled pediment that adorned entrances, highboys and other furniture of Colonial vogue. Its delicate style and engraving is designed as an expression of the culture of early American life.

In another section of the store stands a large framed plaque bearing the historical group of 1847 Rogers Bros. silverplate. Spoons of family plate bearing the progress of beautiful designs from 1847, a period of 80 years, are arranged on the plaque. The engraving is shown in groups from 1847 to 1865; 1865 to 1880; 1880 to 1890; 1890 to 1910; 1910 to 1928. One of the show windows being featured for the spring opening shows a most interesting sun dial known as the sun dial gun type, a model of a dial built in 1850. The dial was secured by Mr. Standish in connection with the showing of Hamilton watches, which includes timepieces that were sold in Windham and are still keeping good time after a century and half of service. One of the watches was sold by Carey, the Windham jeweler, in 1750, and another by Chapin, Willimantic jeweler, in 1795. Another old timepiece being shown is an original Waterbury watch made in 1890.

Strand Theater.

"The Four Footed Ranger," a Universal Feature Western, starring "Dynamite," the canine cinema celebrity, is showing at the Strand tonight and Saturday night. "Dynamite" would put many a film actor on his mettle by the manner in which he interprets his role. Supporting this wonder dog is an unusually large cast, every member a well-known screen personality. Edmund Cobb, star of many actionful western photoplays plays the leading human role, opposite Marjorie Bonner, who has the featured feminine art. Pearl Sindelar is entrusted with comedy relief role.

Action! "Speed Crazed" is packed with it. There are fights galore, a headlong dive from a railroad bridge into a rushing torrent, an automobile race which for excitement has never been approached. Furthermore, there is a bunch of clever acting, a keen and intelligent story and direction and sets which are veritably the last word. In the cast are Billy Sullivan, the star, and he has the support of Andre Tourneur, Joseph Girard, Albert Smith and Harry Maynard. "Speed Crazed" moves at breakneck speed, and is the season's fastest offering.

"Non Stop Bride, is a snappy Fox comedy, that will hand you some good laughs.

Maids of honor are those who do not indulge in flirtations.

Helpful Man (to motorist crawling out from an overturned car) Did you see the car that hit you? What was its number?

Super-enthusiast: Did I? I should say so! It was a 1927 straight eight, overhead camshaft, supercharged front wheel drive, flying Snorter, with a special racing body of Bullinger's. I didn't notice the number.—Punch, London.

An international university in the Swiss Alps is being urged to aid students who are trying to complete their education while they fight tuberculosis. There are said to be in Europe 15,000 of these tuberculous students who are attending school in unfavorable climates. A university sanatorium for Swiss student-patients has been in existence for five years at Leysin. A committee of international student associations has devised a plan to turn this university into an international institution at Davos. The proposed Alpine university would be financed by contributions from the governments whose pupils would benefit by the project.

A new variety of cotton, to which has been given the American-sounding name "million-dollar cotton," has been bred in China, and promises to make that country at least partly independent of foreign sources of high quality, long stapled cotton, which must now be imported. The native varieties now universally cultivated in China all have short staple or fiber, which does not permit the weaving of high grade fabrics of normal strength. Dr. J. B. Griffing of the University of Nanking reports the new variety to the Journal of Heredity of Washington. He states that the new variety originated with a single plant which he discovered some years ago, as the result of a search among the much mixed fields of Chinese cotton.

Most baldness, doctors say, is due to dandruff germs. As the germs are everywhere, the best way to avoid infection is by shampooing often enough to keep the scalp aseptically clean. Specialists recommend weekly shampoos with Packer's Tar Soap. It is antiseptic, banishes germs with dirt, tones, stimulates—keeps hair and scalp healthy. Men like it for all toilet purposes. Bobby Coon's Cousins.

Some there are who have no cousins,
While others have them by the dozens.
—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit just couldn't leave Scrapper the Kingbird alone. At every opportunity Peter was over in the Old Orchard looking for Scrapper. You see, he wanted to know a lot of things. His curiosity had been aroused and you know how very curious Peter can be. He felt that he just had to know more about that far-away land where there is no winter and the people who live there. Scrapper goes there every winter and Peter had discovered that Scrapper could tell him many strange things.

"Now that you've told me about my cousin who lives down there where it is summer all the time, I want to know if any one else up here has any relatives down there," said Peter.

Scrapper's eyes twinkled. "A lot of people up here have relatives down there," said he. "Why, I have cousins down there myself. A good many of the feathered folk have cousins down there. Bobby Coon, Prickly Porky the Porcupine and Unc' Billy Possum have relatives down there. So has Lightfoot the Deer and so has Yowler the Bobcat and so has Shadow the Weasel, and the Rat family is very well represented there. Grandfather Frog and Old Mr. Toad have a lot of funny relatives down there."

By this time Peter's eyes were very wide open and his ears were pointing right straight up to the sky. "Did I understand you to say that Bobby Coon has cousins there?" he demanded.

"I guess there wasn't anything wrong with your hearing," replied Scrapper.

"Does he know it?" cried Peter.

"Who is he?" asked Scrapper, pretending not to understand.

"Bobby Coon, of course," reported Peter. "Does Bobby know that he has cousins down there?"

"I don't know whether he does or not," replied Scrapper. "I've never asked him."

"Do these cousins look like Bobby?" asked Peter eagerly.

"Some do and some don't," replied

"They call him a coati—Nosey the Coati."

Scrapper. "Nosey doesn't and Kinky doesn't, but still they belong to the same family that Bobby belongs to so I suppose in a way they are cousins."

By this time Peter Rabbit's eyes were fairly popping out of his head. "Is Nosey a sure enough raccoon?" he asked.

"I don't know as I would say that," replied Scrapper, "but he belongs to the Raccoon family. They don't call him a Raccoon. They call him a Coati—Nosey the Coati."

"And what is Kinky's full name?" inquired Peter.

"Sometimes he's called Kinky the Kinkajou and sometimes he's called Kinky the Honey Bear," replied Scrapper. "I've heard Nosey the Coati called a Honey Bear too, but Kinky says that he is the real Honey Bear."

"But how can he be a Raccoon if he is a Bear?" demanded Peter.

"I didn't say he was a Bear," reported Scrapper. "I said he was a Honey Bear."

"Well, isn't a Honey Bear a kind of a Bear?" Peter wanted to know.

"No," said Scrapper most decidedly. "It's just a name. Buster Bear hasn't any relatives down there that I know of. Where are you going, Peter?"

"I'm going over to the Green Forest to look for Bobby Coon and find out if he has ever heard of Nosey and Kinky," cried Peter over his shoulder. And away he went, lippety-lippety-lip.

FARM SUCCESS.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

"I distrust two men in Kansas. One is the fellow who says there is a farm problem. The other is the man who claims he has a remedy for it."

So said William Allen White, more or less famous editor of The Emporia, Kan., Gazette, at a recent meeting of the Kansas Livestock association.

And the 500 Kansas livestock breeders rose up as one man and cheered him like mad.

Rather significant, seems to me. Of course Mr. White's remark about the farm problem and its self-appointed doctors is no new. It is simply the same thing you and I have been saying in the column for a long time, only put in a characteristically breezy Kansas way.

It has been said by many others, who not seeking public office and therefore not feeling themselves compelled to carry mob favor, have felt free to speak the truth.

The significance of Mr. White's sarcastic fling and of the uproarious approval it brought from his audience is that he is a native and life-long Kansan, and that the men who cheered his utterance were also all Kansans—all farmers.

Judging from the sayings and doings of creatures such states as Iowa and Wisconsin and the Dakotas and Oklahoma and Kansas send to congress as their alleged representatives, and from the stuff which is printed by the yard in their local papers, outsiders have been warranted in the suspicion that a great part of the farmers in those and some neighboring states had gone "woozy" over a big ogre they called "the farm problem."

It is therefore with a sense of relief that we find one of the most prominent editors of Kansas, living in a purely agricultural section and dependent for circulation mainly upon farmers' subscriptions, saying right out loud that he distrusts the man who says there is a "farm problem."

Of course, Mr. White meant by that the man who pretends that there is a general, almost universally felt problem, affecting practically all farmers, and so sharply defined as to fitly called THE farm problem—with that "the" in capitals, please.

It would, as I think we have agreed, be silly to pretend that farmers have no problems to solve or that some of them aren't teasers. There isn't a farmer from PPenobscot bay to Puget sound who hasn't a problem to solve.

It is how to get a living and a little profit off his particular farm. As that particular farm differs in various degrees from any other farm his problem is necessarily different from anybody else's.

To say that the problem confronting a Cape Cod cranberry grower and a Los Angeles orange raiser and an Iowa corn planter and a Dakota wheat produced and a Kansas stock breeder is the same problem is to talk self-evident nonsense. It is just as absurd to make believe that the problems of two farmers in the same town, but working different crops on unlike soils, are the same.

Each has his own and each must work it out for himself as best he can. He can get some help by watching how a successful neighbor works. He can get some by talking over his troubles with another neighbor who is struggling under somewhat similar conditions. He can get some from his state agricultural college and from the many interesting and informative bulletins issued by the agricultural department at Washington. He can get some from soil surveys, if any have been made near him, and some from his county agent.

But he can't get any from congress or the legislature or the board of selectmen.

The job is up to him. He must tackle it his own way and solve it according to his own lights. By his own measure it will be meted.

——All this must seem to some of you—as it does to me—like threshing over old straw. But the so-called "farm bloc" in congress has been so lonk threshing that same old straw and making so big a dust from it that one retired old farmer up in the country won't add much to the chaff by swinging his own flail in for a crack of two.

And I confess that Editor White's outspoken denunciation of the "farm-bloc" demagogues, coming as it does from an almost purely farming state, and applauded as it was by an audience of farmers, gives me a feeling of hope that the light of common sense is, at last, beginning to dawn where the night of demagogic fog has been densest.

Two or three times, recently, I've mentioned the farming experience of T. B. Terry of Ohio. When he was saddled with a practically worthless farm of less than eighty acres, he tried to get a living off it the usual way, the way that his neighbors with beter farms were following. It didn't work. It brought him hardly enought to pay taxes and interest. After a year or two of this, he began seriously to think of going back to town and working again for a salary. But his pride and a certain dogredness in his character made the idea of surrendering as a failure abhorrent to him. He reasoned that there simply must be some way out,—if only he could find it.

But how to find it? Where to look for it? Let me quote a few lines from his little book, "Our Farming."

"I determined that I would stick and that I would conquer right there before I left. I did not then stop to inquire whether it could be done or not; it had got to be done and do it I would, or die in the attempt. When a rainy day came and I could spare the time I used to go out to the barn and just sit down and think and figure. Sometimes I would go out and sit under a tree with an umbrella over me, as far from the house as I could get. That was a favorite study of mine those days. It was there that light first began to come to me. In those lonely thinking days it was clear to me that there was no possible chance to go on as we had been doing, and have a nice home and our reasonable share of comforts and luxuriese.

Such bsing the state of things, he decided to strike out on what was then a new line. He sold all his own cows in the spring when prices were up. Then he harvested and barned or stacked all the hay and other forage he could rake and scrape, and in the fall when other farmers were over-stocked or short of winter forage bought farrow cows from them at low prices. This gave him a lot of manure and brought in a somewhat better money return. The fertility of the farm having been renewed by the added manure, he discovered that it was naturally adapted to potato-growing. So he went in for potatoes, beginning with only five acres and working up as his manure supply increased and his experience grew.

He finally developed a rotation of potatoes, wheat, clover, potatoes, which kept one third of the farm in each crop each year, and brought in bigger money returns, acre for acre, than any other farm in the state. He sold the wheat, of course, but its chief purpose was to nurse the clover crop. And the chief purpose of the clover crop was, not only to furnish hay to feed and sell, but to load up the soil with potato-making nitrates, which the clover-root nodules took from the air and gave him, for nothing.

Having by test ad repeated experiment found that his land was naturally adapted to grow prize potatoes, he turned to them as his main dependence and made everything else subsidiary.

Whereby he won out.

You'll observe that he didn't, at the end, try to run his farm as others ran theirs. He managed it as he found it had to be managed to pay. He didn't take anybody's advice or follow anbody's rules. He found out for himself what he must do under the conditions which confronted him. He worked hard with his hands. But he worked his thinking machine even more effectively.

That picture of him, pacing the old barn-floor rainy days, or sitting under an umbrella with his back against a tre, thinking, thinking, puzzling over the elusive solution of his problem is one for every discouraged farmer to take comfort in and inspiration from.

There used to be a picture in the advertising columns of a very wishful looking baby, hanging over the edge of his bath and reaching for a slippery cake of soap on the floor. It bore the legend, "He won't be happy 'til he gets it."

Farm success is an exceedingly slippery and elsuive soap-cake. It cant be got by beckoning to it or whistling after it or wishing that somebody else would push it within reach.

It can be reached noly by finding out, first where it is, second how to get it, and third how to take hold of it when found.

Nor is it the same, here, there, and everywhere. It may be in one place on one farm and quite another place on another farm.

It may be interesting to watch the trail the other fellow made in finding his. But yours and mine lay in quite another direction and have to be run down by totally different methods.

One thing may be set down as certain; if anbody finds it, the finding will be due to his own sagacity of planning and stick-to-it-ativeness of purpose.

Those characteristics are not dependent on legislation nor on any other form of outside aid. It may well be that they are not possessed by all. In that case there's no more to be said.

But there are mighty few of us who are willing to admit that we lack either the brains to plan of the eyes to see the industry to accomplish.

Pleading the baby act is not a man-size job.

NOANK

Steamer Baird went out from the shipyard on Wednesday afternoon around Fishers Island sound, trying out the compass, which was overhauled. The captain of the steamer docked at the shipyard late at night. The test proved a success. The steamer is here for a general overhauling. It is a mine planter and runs to the different forts, is stationed at New London and works about Fort Wright. The ways at the shipyard were tried twice to haul out the steamer, but broke the chain, so it went over to the Ship & Engine Co., was put on the ways there, and after a week's work returned to the shipyard here.

Boat Mystery was hauled out on the south ways for a coat of paint and to have a new mast put in at the shipyard and then it will go to Boston and fish out of that port.

When Noank Fire company held its last meeting, Foreman Walter Palmer was in the chair and Secretary John Ellis called the roll, 30 members being present. The basketball committee reported. George Dwyer, of the Hose company in New York, came to town and saw Chief H. Park, who brought him to the meeting. Mr. Dwyer told about a big fire on Long Island and the hose he represents was used by the firemen and did great work. For 30 minutes he talked hose. Finally the company voted to send for 300 feet of 1 1-2 hose. Chief Park told the smoke-eaters that it looks as though the siren fund is getting larger and it won't be long now till a new siren will be put on top of the firehouse, so everybody can hear the alarm for a fire, and Noank will be up with the other towns, not 100 years behind time. Three cheers were given for Chief Park. John Ellis read a letter from Miss Ava MacGown, thanking the firemen for the good work they did at her mother's house when afire a few weeks ago. With no city water supply, the smoke-eaters did hard work to save the house and the other homes on the street, while Foreman Walter Palmer took charge so handy. A check for $25 was in the letter. It will be added to the treasury. One new member was admitted, so now the company has 50 active members. Hoxie Engine company, of Mystic, is trying to arrange a pinochle match with Noank Hose company pinochle sharps, but no answer has gone from the village firemen to Capt. John Sherman, of Mystic, yet. The match is for the best two out of three for a New England supper. After the meeting, Assistant Steward Robert Lamay gave the fire fighters an oyster stew, with cookies and cake and some of his famous coffee. The piano was played by Earl Foster and the smoke-eaters' trio sang several songs.

4,000,000 SHARES, HIGH SALES RECORD, HALTS BULL MOVEMENT IN THE MARKET

NEW YORK, March 22—(AP)—The wild bull movement in prices which had been underway with little interruption for two weeks was abruptly checked today in the first 4,000,000 share session in stock exchange history. Prices shot upward during the morning and more than a score issues, led by General Motors and General Electric, reached new high ground. A bad break in Radio around midday started a reaction which continued through to the close despite sporadic rallies in a few stocks.

Total sales reached 4,007,300 shares, or nearly 90,000 above the previous high record established on March 13.

Net declines in the active issues ran from 1 to 8 points although final quotations also disclosed a sprinkling of gains, a few of which ranged from 3 to 14 1-4 points.

Selling, which originated with bear traders, presumably was based on the speculative belief that stocks had passed from strong to weak hands in the recent violent upswing and that the rapidity of the rise had weakened the market's financial technical position. Fears of a huge increase in federal reserve brokers' loans also were an important factor in the liquidating movement. The actual figures, published after the close of the market, showed an increase of $322,650,000, bringing the total to $3,778,714,000. In view of the wild speculation last week, the gain was much smaller than was generally expected.

Other reasons brought forward to explain the sudden wave of liquidation were the advance in the call money, renewal rate from 4 1-4 to 4 1-2 per cent. followed by the calling of about $15,000,000 in loans, and the statement by Secretary Mellon that he expected the new treasury estimates to show a smaller margin of revenues available for tax reduction than was originally forecast last December. The delay of 30 to 80 minutes in the stock ticker, which made for widespread confusion in brokerage houses, also was used to advantage by bear traders.

General Motors set another new high record at 181 3-4, broke to 177 1-8 and rallied to 179, up 1 1-4 net. Radio broke from a high of 137 1-2 to 146 and rallied to 151, off 4 points net. General Electric, after establishing a new high of 148 1-4, sold down to 144 7-8, closing at 145 1-8 for a small fractional net gain. U. S. Steel common touched 152, or within 3-4 of the year's high, slid back to 147 1-2 and closed at 148 1-4, off 1 3-4 net.

Similar recessions from the high levels took place in other active issues. DuPont dropped from 372 to 364, International Nickel from 98 to 92 3-4, International Match preferred from 126 1-2 to 112 1-4, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe from 265 3-4 to 258 and Greene Cananea Copper from 128 7-8 to 122 1-4 but partial recoveries developed in each case. Rossia Insurance collapsed from 215 to 201 3-4 and rallied to 206 1-4, off 7 3-4 net. Air Reduction, A. M. Byers, Collins & Aikman, General Refractories, Mathieson Alkali and Mackay Companies showed net losses of 4 points or more.

Case Threshing soared 13 1-4 points to 306 and retained all but 4 points of its gain. Christie Brown closed nearly 8 points higher at 124 3-4. Independent strength also was shown by Savage Arms, Spicer Manufacturing, General Cigar preferred and Dunhill International.

Heavy buying of Frisco common which advanced more than 4 points to a new record high at 120 was the outstanding feature in the railroad group. Texas & Pacific also attained a new top at 123 1-2 but sold down 2 points from that level for a small fractional net loss on the day.

There was no change in time money or commercial paper rates.

Foreign exchanges were slightly easier with sterling cables quoted around $4.88 3-16.

Commodity markets again moved within narrow and irregular limits. Grain futures were slightly firmer and cotton showed practically no change. Coffee prices dropped 5 to 7 points and sugar held steady.

NEW YORK, March 22—(AP)—Stock of the National City Bank of New York, largest in the country, has risen 60 points in the last two days to a record price of $325 a share on rumors of a pending merger with the Mechanics Bank of Brooklyn, which officials of both institutions denied.

J. Chester Cuppia bought his third membership on the rubber exchange of New York at the high record of $8,000 from E. Vail Stebbins. Mr. Cuppia, who is one of the governors of the exchange, also bought the seat of I. B. Katz for $7,900. Value of membership has advanced $2,000 since the first of the year. Two seats are being offered for sale at $9,000 and $10,500. A seat on the New York Produce exchange also was sold today at a new high of $8,000.

Collins & Aikman has orders for car fabrics from General Motors, Overland, Hudson, Chrysler, Studebaker and Chandler, a large part of which has been booked in recent weeks, giving the company a record volume of business.

Net income of Associated Gas & Electric for the year ended January 31 soared to $6,172,742 after charges and preferred dividends of subsidiaries from $3,998,565 the year before.

Real estate market activity for February was measured by an index figure of 139 in a compilation by the National Association of Real Estate, from official figures of transfers and conveyances recorded in 41 typical cities. The index is 9 points higher than that for February last year and 14 points higher than for January this year.

Financing of $55,000,000 for Engineers Public Service company is proposed by directors which will save the company $580,000 annually. All the company's 311,662 shares of outstanding $7 dividend preferred stock will be redeemed at $110 a share and accrued dividends on July 2, mainly through the sale of $20,000 shares of $5 dividend convertible preferred and the balance provided by sale of 100,000 shares of common stock. Stockholders will take action April 12. The new $5 preferred will be convertible into common stock on a sliding scale.

SHOWS GREATEST SNOWSTORM WAS IN FEBRUARY, 1717

The following clippings from the Boston Transcript, which were published at the time of the great blizzard of March 12, 1888, have been sent to The Bulletin by J. A. Isham, of Columbia, giving a description of heavy snowstorms during 50 years:

The greatest snowstorm in New England began Feb. 17, 1717, and continued until the 24th, with an average snowfall of ten feet. In some places it was 15 feet. In many instances cottages, cabins and log huts were buried from sight. In Boston the snow in the streets was six feet deep on the level. In Barnstable ten feet, and in the Deerfield valley, 12 feet. The first hour it was very wet and damp, sticking to the trees; later as it progressed, the cold increased and freezing. Many trees were broken by the accumulation of ice and snow. The mail from Boston to Portsmouth, which was sent out during the storm, was ten days on the way and the return trip was made in seven days. The following from a memorandum which was printed in Concord (N. H.) Monitor of a year or two ago:

May 16, 1834—Ground white with snow six inches deep on the hills in Warner and vicinity, two feet deep at Haverhill, N. H.

March 23, 1836—Snow three feet deep on a level in the woods and very solid. April 3, snow more than two feet deep and very solid. Ox teams crossing Merrimac on the ice at Kimball's ferry. Good sleighing without interruption from Nov. 20, 1835, to April 1, 1836 (131) days. Of that storm Hon. John Winthrop writes: We lost at the island, 1,100 sheep, besides some horses and cattle. It was very strange that 28 days after the storm, the people of Fishers Island, in digging out the remains of 100 sheep, found two of them alive by feeding upon the wool of the others. For very many years after, old people dated events as so many years after or before "the great snow."

The following are the heavy snowfalls in March for the past half century:

1841, March 6—During the night, ten inches. During the month, four snowstorms aggregating 20 inches. April followed with six inches, five of which fell on the 12th.

1843, March 16-17—Was 12 inches; on the 29th, five inches, and during the month, 26 inches. During April following, ten inches.

1863—During March was the heaviest snowfall of the half century, 31 inches. During April following, five inches.

1865—During the month of March, no snow fell.

1870, March 17—St. Patrick's day, a snowfall of 13 inches, and during the month, 22 inches.

1887—On the 5th and 6th days of March, the fall of snow was over 12 inches.

1843, April 1—Snow three and one-half feet deep in the woods. And it is now snowing. 2nd, snow four feet deep. 3rd, teams engaged breaking out roads to federal bridge and Little Pond, and up Washington street snowdrifts as high as the fences. 8th, passing on the ice at Butters ferry. 10th, very cold. Snow three feet deep. 11th, country sleighs passing with loads.

1852—Good sleighing, from Nov. 11, 1851, to March 20.

1852—Without interruption (129 days). April 15, snow two and one-half feet deep in the woods and it is still snowing.

The following is a copy of the record of the winter, 1810-11, as kept by David Earns of Spencer: Remarks on the weather from the cold storm: Dec. 23, 1811, was a warm day, the wind south at sunset. About 12 at night, the wind turned to the northwest and formed almost a hurricane, snowed and blowed all the next day and night. Our old fathers say nothing so cold and smothering a storm. The snow drifted to a great height at the south and east of our house. The drifts of snow were almost to the top of our doors and windows. A son of Mr. Phineas Jones was teaching a school, at the schoolhouse near Mr. Bemis'. He boarded at Esq. Draper's. The morning that the storm began he set out for his school, and was found dead by Eli Hatch, neighbor Lieut. John Muzzy. A Mr. Synds was lost about the same time. January very cold, almost the whole month. The 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th and 11th cold, cold, cold. Mr. Synds was found where he perished, 23rd of December, in the month of April. May the 3rd, a cold snowstorm began Sunday night and continued until Tuesday morning. The snow was six inches deep in the woods.

This is the way they have had snowstorms on the other side of the Atlantic: The great storm of 1794 in Scotland is the most extraordinary of which there is any record. In one night the snow fell to the depth of over eight feet. In some places lofty trees were covered. By that storm, 17 shepherds lost their lives, and thousands of sheep and other animals perished. One farmer reported a loss of 1,400 sheep. After the snow had somewhat disappeared there were found collected by its violence in one spot, the bodies of two men, one woman, 45 dogs, three horses, nine cattle, 180 hares and 1,840 sheep.

The storm of 1867. From a Wallingford man's diary: Thurs., Jan. 17, began snowing at 10 o'clock this morning. Snowed all day. Trains all late. Eight o'clock express snowed in near North Haven, still snowing and drifting.

Fri., Jan. 18—Clear at last. Snow drifted very bad. Express still in snow at North Haven. A train from New Haven gone to rescue. On Shore line, one train snowed in at Branford. Snow in cuts 15 feet deep.

Sat., Jan. 19—Clear and cold. Railroad track is blocked up on down track. No trains on that track for three days.

Sunday, Jan. 20—Clear and very cold, ten below zero. Began to snow again at 9 o'clock.

Mon., Jan. 21—Snowing this morning again. Roads blocked. Six inches snow fell. No trains yet.

CAUGHT YANTIC WOMAN AFTER 16 MILE CHASE

Rhode Island state policemen who chased Mrs. Viola C. Neville, 27, of Yantic for 16 miles about 1:30 o'clock Tuesday morning placed her under arrest on the charge of transporting liquor when they found 30 gallons of alleged moonshine in the automobile she was driving.

The troopers were on traffic duty at Charles street and Mineral Spring avenue in North Providence when Mrs. Neville shot around the corner at a high rate of speed and in violation of traffic rules. One of the officers blew his whistle but Mrs. Neville put on more speed.

The troopers jumped into their own car and gave chase. At a rate of speed exceeding 60 miles an hour the two cars tore over the roads until Greenville on the Putnam Pike was reached when the police car overtook the flying Neville car and forced it into a ditch. Mrs. Neville was turned over to the federal prohibition force and later secured her release on bonds. She made no explanation of her presence in North Providence nor would she explain how she obtained the moonshine. She said she was on her way home when she was arrested.

Last Thursday her husband, Joseph Neville, 39, was arrested in New London on the charge of transporting liquor.

TWO SPEAKERS BEFORE NORWICH LIONS' MEETING

The weekly luncheon meeting of the Norwich Lions club was held at the Wauregan hotel Thursday noon with President William R. Frisbie in the chair. A feature of the musical programme was the singing of a quartette comprising Earl Taggart, Frank Eggleton, Joseph A. French and Thomas Savard. Another quartette, Rudolph Henschel, Dr. Charles W. Solomon, Dr. K. K. Markoff and John T. Barry, also entertained with selections.

Louis M. Crandall, the chairman of the speaker's committee, presented as the speaker John P. Killgore of the Eastern Connecticut Bond and Mortgage Corp., who gave an interesting talk on some of the famous persons he has met.

James L. Case, secretary and treasurer of the Eastern Connecticut Bond and Mortgage Corp., spoke of the value of a second mortgage bonding association to eastern Connecticut. The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

COMPROMISE AGREEMENT IN WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION

A compromise agreement for $200 in the workmen's compensation claim of Harry Dowsett of 19 Lewis street, New London, against Corticelli Silk company of that city has been approved adjudged and decreed by Commissioner Albert J. Bailey.

Dowsett made the claim that he had sustained a left varicocele on Dec. 16 last by a strain in pulling wet ashes from the fire box in the silk factory. In opposition to this, it was claimed that his incapacity on and after that time was entirely disconnected with this injury. At the hearing before the commissioner, the claimant was unable to produce any medical evidence to show that his disability was caused by the injury which he alleges he sustained on Dec. 16, and it was agreed that the claim was one which ought to be settled on a compromise basis.

Seeks Divorce for Desertion

Divorce on the charge of desertion since Jan. 2, 1923, is sought in a suit brought in the superior court by Margaret Young Post of New London against Frederick L. Post, now of Thomaston, Maine. They were married June 11, 1904.

The suit is returnable in April.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

It's here at last, a circus picture with a real circus star!

Ken Maynard in "The Wagon Show," now playing at the Breed theatre, was for years a star member of Barnum and Bailey and Ringling Bros. tent shows, and now he is appearing in a motion picture that is an authentic story of the big tops.

"The Wagon Show" tells a story with Ken in the role of a daredevil stunt rider and star member of this struggling troupe. Maynard, whose previous pictures have all been endowed with daring and breath-taking stunts of the saddle, far surpasses anything he has done to date in this feature. Ken personally supervised the technical end of the picture. His long years spent under canvas authorized him to make "The Wagon Show" one of the best circus pictures to appear on the screen.

Charles R. Rogers, the producer of Ken's pictures, spared no expense in giving a production that will stand out as the premier western circus picture of all time. Harry J. Brown, the supervisor of Maynard's westerns, personally directed "The Wagon Show." The remainder of the cast includes Marion Douglas, Paul Weigell, Maurice Costello and George Davis. Tarzan, the wonder horse, was never seen to better advantage. It is a First National feature.

RELATIVE IS FATHER OF BABE STRANGLED BY NEW LONDON MOTHER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 22—A relative of Mrs. Emma Muscarella, 21, wife of Sebastian Muscarella, 42 Central avenue, who murdered her day old son last Sunday because her husband had gained knowledge of the illegitimacy of the infant, was the father of the baby. In a confession made to the police the relative freely admits having been responsible for the young mother's condition. Not only does the relative confess that he is the parent of the baby, but he relates the circumstances attending the illicit relations of the couple and is most specific in his declarations. He did not hesitate making the confession and signing it and related his story of his acts without any attempt to cover up his doings. He stated that his intimacy with the young woman occurred at a time when there was an estrangement between Muscarella and the latter's wife and that she was agreeable to their illicit acts. Since Mrs. Muscarella strangled the infant and after she had refused to reveal the name of the father, Detective Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith have been engaged in an investigation to determine the father of the infant, but not until today were they able to positively determine that the relative was the parent. Besides admitting his illegitimate relations with the woman, the relative told of having gone to a Bank street pharmacy and at the request of Mrs. Muscarella he purchased medicine for her when Mrs. Muscarella's delicate condition was revealed. Mrs. Muscarella, who is a patient at Norwich State hospital, to which institution she was taken after she was said to have attempted to strangle herself with a handkerchief, will procably be presented in the police court during the latter part of next week.

Henry R. Bentley has sold to Arthur L. Kebbe a building lot on Glenwood avenue.

Josephine Helen Aimette has sold a house and lot on Center street to Benjamin and Ethel Bloomenthal.

ASLEEP AT AUTO WHEEL GEO. A. WILLIAMS IS INJURED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 22—George A. Williams, Jr., 23, of 590 Broad street this city, is at Lawrence and Memorial hospital, suffering with severe lacerations of the face and body and a possible fracture of the skull, as a result of an auto accident at 12:45 o'clock this morning two miles this side of Colchester on the Hartford turnpike. The accident occurred, according to State Policeman Donald Brown, of the Groton barracks as the result of young Williams falling asleep at the wheel. The car being driven by him was a coupe and evidence shows that it left the road, plunged over an embankment then crashed into a power pole beside the road. The plight of Williams was discovered by Clifford Bullis of the Crocker House, who removed him from the wrecked car and rushed him to medical aid.

GIRL MAY HAVE ELOPED WITH WATERFORD YOUTH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 22—Mary Piccinetti, 16, residing with her parents at 802 Bank street, is missing from home. It is believed that the young girl has eloped with Antone Sibelli, Station 5, Waterford. The girl is described as being about five feet one inch in height, has brown hair and dark brown eyes. When she disappeared she wore a brown coat, with a black collar; brown hat, black silk dress, with red collar; black shoes and stockings. The girl disappeared from her home yesterday afternoon and at 8 o'clock this morning when she failed to return one of her parents reported the girl missing, also that she might be found in the company of Sibelli. The state police were requested to aid in the search and Sergeant Henry Albright went to the Sibelli residence and the young man was not there. His relatives stated that the girl had not been at the Sibelli house and that they had no knowledge of her whereabouts.

Sergeant Albright this afternoon ascertained that Sibelli had not been at his home for two days and nothing was known as to his whereabouts.

Fishermen furnishing fish to the Atlantic Coast Fisheries corporation and executives of that concern seem to disagree as to what constitutes a fresh fish. The steam trawler Brant brought in this week 192,000 pounds of fish of which 79,000 pounds were rejected as being slightly under grade. The portion of the catch that was rejected, however was packed in iced barrels and shipped to New York where they sold for fresh. The explanation given by the management of the fisheries corporation is that in manufacturing filet of haddock the greatest care must be exercised, else the fresh flavor and appearance of the food will be lost in the process of preserving. If the slightest portion of a catch is not up to standard the complete lot will, as a necessity be turned down.

A delicious turkey supper was served last night at Moose hall by members of the Dairymaids' association. The supper was in charge of Mrs. C. H. Thompson, assisted by Mesdames Grace L. Keeney, Marian Brewster, Sarah McCarthy and George F. Hart.

Mr Shea recently withdrew from the fir mof McGarry and Shea of which he had been a member since passing the bar examination here. After April 1 he will practice his profession in Hartford as the partner of a former classmate at Georgetown university law school, who has an established business in that city.

Over one hundred Odd Fellows gathered last night at a meeting of Mohegan lodge No. 55, of this city. A large class of candidates received the second degree. Guests present were from the following lodges, Pequot No. 5, of this city, Fairview lodge No. 101, of Groton, Thames lodge No. 22 Montville and Shetucket lodge No. 27, of Norwich.

There was no session of the police court today.

Odd Fellows hall, School street, Groton, owned by Fairview lodge, I. O. O. F., is to be equipped with fire escapes, something that the building has needed for a long time. Providing the building with the safeguard against persons being imprisoned in the structure during a fire, was made possible at a meeting of the Fairview Aid society, composed of the woman's branch of the order last night, when a vote was taken authorizing the construction of fire escapes on the north end of the building. The work will be started at once. At the present time there is but one means of egress from the building in the second story.

Louis Gasmand, a junkman who conducts his business soliciting patronage through the streets was arrested tonight by Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh charged with purchasing junk from a minor. He was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $100 and will be in the police court tomorrow morning. It is understood the boy stole the junk and the junkman was a fence in the transaction.

By the progress the force of workmen employed in widening Bank street is making the work will not be completed before next summer, if then. It is planned to cut down the size of the sidewalk on both the east and west sides of Bank streets about a foot and a half and in order to do this the location of both the water pipes and the telephones must be changed. The entire street surface will have to be rebuilt and a permanent surface laid.

Tax Collector Allen C. PRES. MARSHALL LET GO—PROF. WELLS ASKED TO GO

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 22—At the March meeting of the Board of Trustees of Connecticut college, held this afternoon at the Hotel Taft, New Haven, the vote was 10 to 3 in favor of accepting the resignation of President Marshall. A majority vote was also passed to request the resignation of Professor Wells, a participant in the argument that resulted in Mr. Marshal tendering his resignation a short time ago.

The meeting of the board began at 2 o'clock and lasted until almost 5.30. The facts of the case from the beginning of the controversy were reviewed by the board, with the result that a majority of those present decided that it would be for the best interest of the college and for the persons involved in the difference, to accept resignations of both President Marshall and Professor Wells. No personal feeling at all entered into the decision and both gentlemen have the assurance of the board of its confidence in the their sincerity over their respective stands regarding the policy of the college faculty.

Several prominent New Londoners attended the meeting. Mayor James A. May spoke briefly on the dissension which precipitated the trouble at the college, but was one of those who voted not to accept President Marshall's resignation.

The entire board expressed itself as regretting that the difference between the two educators had taken place. But, it was argued, with both dissatisfied and unable to work together, it would be fully not to accede to Mr. Marshall's wish that his resignation be accepted. The asking of the resignation of Professor Wells was somewhat unexpected, although it will be recalled that the professor of English precipitated the controversy between himself and President Marshall when he objected strongly to the methods in vogue in instructing English being continued, while President Marshall insisted that the system employed was the proper one. The difference of opinion resulted in frequent clashes between the educators, with the result that President Marshall tendered his resignation several weeks ago. It will take effect in June.

When a woman reaches the limit of her argument she gets angry.

BISHOP SHAHAN SUBJECT OF WORCESTER WRITE-UP

Because Rt. Rev. Bishop Thomas J. Shahan, D. D., rector of the Catholic university of America, at Washington, lived from boyhood in Millbury, Mass., although born in Manchester, N. H., in 1857, the Worcester Telegram Sunday devoted an entire page to his achievements. There is Norwich interest in this fine tribute to a distinguished prelate and scholar, since Bishop Shahan spent a short time, after his ordination at Rome, in Norwich, when his uncle was pastor of St. Patrick's church; also he is a cousin of Mrs. William H. Murphy, of 208 Broadway.

Bishop Shahan recently resigned as rector of the university that he might continue to reside there and devote the major portion of his time and effort to the completion of America's great memorial to patriotism; the shrine of the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary. This victory memorial, to cost $10,000,000, will be a tribute not only to the patroness of the Catholics of America, but is erected in gratitude to God for the sacrifices of the flower of American youth, the soldiers and sailors of the nation, as well as countless others who contributed toward the preservation of that freedom which is the priceless heritage of this nation.

Already the crypt of the shrine has been completed at a cost of over $1,000,000 and Bishop Shahan has ordained to date about 1,000 priests therein. Now comes the news that Pope Pius XI is presenting to the shrine a superb gift—a reproduction in mosaic of Murillo's famous painting, "The Immaculate Conception," in the Prado gallery, at Madrid; this is to be the pope's personal gift to the shrine, and will be for the high altar. The shrine is being erected by contributions from rich and poor throughout the nation, Catholic women bearing the name of Mary having contributed $50,000, the Catholic Foresters of America a check for $50,000, the auxiliary to the A. O. H. has sent $10,000, etc.

Members of military organizations are especially interested in the project, since the World war had hardly been declared when Bishop Shahan offered the university buildings and facilities to President Woodrow Wilson, organized a students' army training corps, conducted a school for paymasters of the navy, placed all the university laboratories at the disposal of the government, and co-operated in very important chemical research for war purposes. He conducted a rehabilitation school for wounded soldiers, also administered the Knights of Columbus scholarships for ex-service men.

The shrine will be over 465 feet in length, and will hold about 7,000 persons. It will have 15 chapels.

Suit for annulment of his marriage to Nanette Hyde Gulnac of Hyde Park, Vermont, has been brought in the superior court here by Martin G. Gulnac of West Mystic. The couple was married Dec. 27, 1927 at New London by a justice of the peace and the husband claims that certain facts were concealed from him with the intention of imposing upon him and inducing the marriage. The suit is returnable in April.

held above normal figures. Many of the lower-priced tenements have been allowed to become obsolete and are consequently unrentable at asked prices. The average weekly rate for board is $10.00.

The cost of living in Norwich and vicinity compares very favorably with other sections of the country. Some complaint has been made that rents are high and possibly this is justified in some instances. This condition is a result of the lack of a progressive policy on the part of the real estate men.

The climate of Norwich is equitable. The extremes of temperature experienced further inland are very rare. Average yearly precipitation for 40 years 43 inches. Average annual temperature for 40 years 48 degrees.

The community health of Norwich is good. The birth rate for 1925 was 25.2 per 1000 population and the death rate 16.4 per 1000.

Real Estate, Factory Sites, Etc.

There is no evidence of a building boom in Norwich. Nor is there any in practically the whole of eastern Connecticut. Values of property in the main business district of Norwich, however, show a considerable increase in recent years and indicate a demand for desirable locations.

Norwich has a city zoning law which is apparently functioning successfully.

Owingfl to tile proximity of the railroad and the rivers around Norwich there is not a great amount of vacant land available for industrial purposes with facilities for railroad sidings. The number of vacant properties suitable for business is also rather limited. The following is a list of the more desirable properties:

No. 31 Water St. (Old Gallup Bldg.) Brick construction, 3 floors suited for jobbing or manufacturing, has spur track on N. H. railroad.

No. 23 Commerce St. (Austin Nichols Bldg.) Brick construction, suitable for jobbing purposes, has spur track on N. H. railroad.

West Thames St., between Geer and Dunham streets. Dolco Garage, new wooden building.

Tide Water Paper Co., on C. V. R. R. with 3 sidings, large brick building, one story.

210 West Main St. American Waste & Metal Bldg. 4 buildings brick and wooden construction with sprinkler system installed. Suitable for manufacturing.

Lafayette St. Used Car Exchange. Wooden construction, 2 floors, oil heat, sprinkler system.

Franklin St. Between Pond and Grove streets. Bacon Bldg. Wooden construction, in poor condition.

191 Frank St. Sunshine Laundry. Brick construction, 3 floors.

Gordon Bldg. Corner Chestnut and Willow streets. Brick building, 2nd floor to rent, 4,900 sq. ft.

222 North Main St. Brick construction, 2 floors suitable for light manufacturing. Can have spur track. Will alter to suit tenants.

555 No. Main St. Economy Paper Co. Brick construction, 3 floors. Has spur track.

North Main St. At South Golden street. Old Atlantic Carton Bldg. Brick construction, 2 floors and basement. 50' x 190' suitable for heavy manufacturing, has R. R. siding.

North Main street at 8th street. (Dupont property). Completely equipped for manufacturing thin paper. 100 H. P. water power available.

There is some vacant land across the C. V. R. R. from the Paper Board Mill and some along the same railroad in Norwich Town near the New London turnpike and along Otrabando avenue. There is practically no vacant land along the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. within the limits of the town.

Taxes, Insurance and Legal Requirements

The city of Norwich comprises an area of about 3 square miles in the southeastern portion of the town of Norwich. All property located within the town boundaries is assessed by a board of assessors elected by the citizens and pays a town tax. Property which lies within the boundaries of the city also pays a city tax. Any person dissatisfied with the valuation as finally determined by the assessors may appeal to the board of relief.

The town tax rate in 1926 was 26 mills and the city tax rate was 28.75 mills. Property within the city, therefore, pays a combined tax at the rate of 54.75 mills on a dollar. There are no school, county, or state taxes on real estate. Property in Norwich is supposed to be assessed at about 30 per cent of actual value.

Norwich is rated by the National Board of Fire Underwriters as a Class B city. Such rating takes into consideration the topography of the city, nature of street layout, type of construction, efficiency and equipment of the fire department and supply of water available in congested districts. It is improbable that Norwich could attain a Class A rating for some time. It should, however, pay some attention to the recommendations of recognized experts which we have touched on in Part 1 of this report.

INCOMPATIBILITY CAUSE FOR RIFT AT COLLEGE

According to an Associated Press dispatch from New Haven Thursday night announcing the action of the trustees of the Connecticut College for Women, at New London, in accepting the resignation of President Benjamin T. Marshall and requesting the resignation of Professor John Edwin Wells of the department of English, the action of the board was made public in a statement issued after the meeting.

President Marshall had said prior to the board meeting that he would have no comment to make on whatever action was taken.

Members of the board also said that they would not comment as the action taken was fully explained in the statement prepared by the secretary who had been authorized to give it to the press.

It was also explained that when Andrew Marshall, offered the resignation of his brother on February 10, it was with the condition "that no attack should be made upon the president's honesty, his integrity, or his management of the college affairs."

Statement Issued

The statement said further "The board of trustees of Connecticut college, in accepting the resignation of Dr. Marshall, realizes fully how exacting and difficult the post of chief executive of such an institution may become. In addition to his appointed work he may be called upon to meet and adjust the many clashes of personality which often arise between a board and an executive, or between a chief and his subordinates.

"Sometimes these situations, through the fault of no single person, eventually become so involved and tense as to seem beyond solution by adjustment.

"During the past several years, such a situation has developed and grown constantly more aggravated between President Marshall and several officers of the board, the business manager, and at least one important member of the faculty. This series of misunderstandings has tended to hamper the growth of the college. It has been a heavy strain upon the health of the president, and has made for ineffective service on the part of the board.

"With this in mind, therefore, and while fully appreciating the devoted service which Dr. Marshall has given to the college, the board has been regretfully forced to the conclusion that it should accept his resignation to take effect July 1, 1928.

"It was voted that, in lieu of a sabbatical year to which the president is entitled after his long service, his present salary and emoluments, not to exceed $10,000, be extended in monthly installments for one year from July 1.

"A change in administration is often essential for the continued progress of an expanding institution. With deep sense of the responsibility to every element in the college, the faculty, the students, the alumni, the parents, as well as the outside friends and supporters, the board believes it has acted for the best interests of the future of the college.

"This action should not be interpreted as an endorsement of all the other opposing factions involved. The board will continue its investigation and take such further action as it shall deem necessary. For the present the administrative work of the college will be carried on probably by a committee. The board will give its best endeavor to finding a successor to Dr. Marshall. There is a general desire among its members to choose as the next incumbent someone not now connected with the college whose sympathies have not been involved in the present difficulty.

"The board also voted to request the resignation of Professor John Edwin Wells of the department of English."

Three Trustees Absent

No other business was done at the meeting. Three members of the board were absent, Charles T. Treadway, of Bristol, and Harrison B. Freeman, of Hartford, who are in Europe, and Henry B. Plant, of Groton. In the past few weeks other members of the board had learned through letters the attitude of the absentees towards the resignation. It was not stated just how the absentees felt.

The vote to accept the president's resignation was 10 to 3, taken after a vote not to accept it had been lost.

Mayor James A. May, of New London, who is ex-officio, a member, took considerable time to read petitions and letters in which it was urged that President Marshall be asked to withdraw his resignation and praising his administration and personality. Many petitions and letters also had been sent to Secretary C. C. Buell who had sent copies of them to the members so that all were familiar with their contents and reading of them was unnecessary.

President Marshall took part in the discussion but withdrew when it came time to act on his letter. While he was absent from the room a Mr. Lyons is understood to have spoken in his behalf.

At his home in New London, Professor Wells, upon learning that his resignation had been asked for said: "I am surprsied but until I have complete details of the situation I have nothing to say."

President Since 1917

Rev. Dr. Benjamin Tinkham Marshall, president of Connecticut college, whose resignation has been accepted, came to the college in 1917 following the incumbency of President Sykes. He had been Phillips professor of Biblical literature at Dartmouth college for six years and prior to that had been in the Presbyterian ministry with pastorates at Scarborough, N. Y., and New Rochelle. He was graduated from Dartmouth and took post graduate work at Columbia and his theological courses at Union seminary.

Professor Wells came to Connecticut college in 1917. He was graduated from Swarthmore in 1896, and took post graduate courses at Columbia and Yale, and taught at Friends Central school, Philadelphia, Hiram and Beloit colleges.

2,461 PAID $37,065 IN INCOME TAX RETURNS

A total of 2,461 persons subject to income taxation in New Londoon and Windham counties paid in a total of $37,065.40 to the New London division office and the zone officers at Norwich, Putnam and Willimantic, in the period of March 1 to 15, it was announced Thursday by Division Chief James R. Maxson, in charge of the New London division office of internal revenue. These figures do not include the returns submitted directly to Washington by mail.

The amount collected in taxes exceeds the amount collected in the same period last year by $3,713.70 and exceeds the amount collected for the same period in 1925 by $2,505.21. Last year 2,496 persons filed returns at the division office and in the 1925 returns 2,456 persons filed returns.

PETITION TO CONSOLIDATE THE CITY AND TOWN

A proposal to consolidate the town and city of Norwich will probably be brought up at the 1929 session of the general assembly. A petition asking for the consolidation of the city and town is in circulation and is understood to have been signed by a number of voters of both the city and town.

There is also being circulated a petition to the court of common council asking the establishment of plumbing and electrical codes for the city and also for a new city charter. It is understood that the latter petition will be presented for action at the April meeting of the common council.

VIEWS OF CAPITALISTS ON COAL MINING SITUATION

R. B. Mellon, Brother of the Secretary of the Treasury, Followed Schwab and Rockefeller on the Witness Stand—Mellon Testified That the Jacksonville Wage Scale Was Abandoned Because the Pittsburgh Coal Company "Was Losing Too Much Money"—Schwab and Rockefeller Expressed a Willingness to Aid the Investigation in Any Way Possible.

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)—Three distinctly contrasting personalities—each a prominent factor in the economic life of America—were questioned today by the senate interstate commerce committee regarding their connection with the floundering bituminous mining industry.

First came Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, whose good-natured bantering and disarming smile quickly dissipated the tenseness in the crowded committee room. He denied active connection with the Bethlehem Mines corporation of West Virginia, and miners alike, and advocated other occupation for the surplus miners as a solution.

Then John D. Rockefeller, Jr., quietly and evenly asserted his confidence in the officers of the Consolidation Coal company, in which he owns 182,836 shares of common and preferred stock. He disavowed any ability to suggest or to work for a panacea for troubles in the bituminous mining fields, emphasizing that he appeared "as a layman."

Finally R. B. Mellon, brother of Secretary Mellon, haltingly explained that he and the treasury secretary held 25 per cent of the stock of the Pittsburgh Coal company, which has been a principal target of the United Mine Workers throughout the inquiry, in a voice that could hardly be heard. He repeatedly answered: "I don't know" to queries by committee members and union counsel.

Schwab held the stand for one and a half hours; Rockefeller was questioned for just over an hour, and Mellon had completed his testimony before an hour elapsed.

The first two cheerfully consented to examination, while occasionally expressing a preference not to be required to go into issues about which they claimed lack of knowledge, each expressed a willingness to aid the investigation in any way possible, but Mellon volunteered no remarks aside from the brief matter-of-fact answers to questions of fact.

Both Schwab and Rockefeller were allowed to leave upon completion of their testimony, the former saying he wanted to head south where his wife is ill, and the latter to catch a New York train.

Two questions put by Oliver K. Eaton to Mellon toward the end of the hearing were:

"Do you think employers should keep their word?"

"Do you think employes should keep their word?"

The answer in each instance was "I don't know" and with that the committee adjourned.

Schwab's light-hearted attitude resulted in frequent raillery between him and the committee, but the tenor of his talk at other times was deliberate. He declared against collective bargaining, asserting a conviction that the best relations between employer and employe were obtained through direct dealing. On one occasion he informed union counsel heatedly that such was the policy of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, and that it would remain so permanently.

The steel magnate said that his work with that corporation had been one "of love," and that he had never received any money for it. His ideal, he added, was to work for the betterment of human relations between capital and labor. Expressing a satisfaction with his progress in that direction, he expressed the opinion that conditions similar to those pertaining in the steel industry could be brought to the coal industry. One suggestion made by him was for legal permission for consolidation of coal companies.

Rockefeller maintained that four steps needed to be taken by those seeking to solve the bituminous problem. This dealt, he said, with questions of over-production, adequate freight rate structures for transportation, distribution to consumers and laborers. He paid tribute to organized labor, asserting a belief that it had been one of the agencies which has made collective bargaining effective.

"I take off my hat to them," he added, nodding in the direction of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

LONDON, March 23—(AP)—For the first time in three years Great Britain will have a balanced budget, said Winston S. Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, in a speech at Wanstead, a London suburb, tonight. He not only prophesied this but added: "For the first time in years we actually have a surplus."

VIENNA, March 23—(AP)—Dispatches from Theresiopel, (the Austrian name for Subotica) to the Vienna Tagespost report the seizure of a trainload of explosives on the Jugoslavian border and add that it has been discovered that other carloads, routed from Italy [illegible] Rumania via Hungarian territo[illegible] passed Theresiopel several days ago.

JERUSALEM, Palestine, March 23—(AP)—Here, on the Mount of Olives, where Solomon worshipped idols and Jesus Christ preached the greatest of sermons, missionaries from the United States, Great Brital nand the continent of Europe tomorrow will begin a fortnight of international discussion on religious subjects. It will end on Easter Sunday.

R. I. HOUSE VOTES INQUIRY INTO KU KLUX KLAN ACTIVITIES

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 23—(AP)—The house of representatives today by an unanimous voice vote empowered the house committee on militia to start public hearings next Tuesday in an investigation of reported continued Ku Klux Klan control of the First Light infantry regiment, general militia conditions in Rhode Island and the conduct of the adjutant general's department.

Chairman Herbert Bliss, of Newport, a veteran of the Spanish war and a former member of the Newport Artillery company, will head the investigating body.

Adjutant General Cole, who is seeking legislation which would give the state authorities power to revoke the charters of such chartered commands as the First Light infantry infantry in the event of disobedience of orders of the militia superiors today denied that because the Newport Artillery and Kentish Guards should be chartered by King George II, of England and the Colonial Government of Rhode Island, respectively, the Rhode Island legislature has no power over them.

"What authority has King George got over any military forces in the United States?" demanded General Cole in reply to the contentions put forward by Col. Howard R. Peckham of the Newport Artillery. "When Rhode Island accepted the constitution of the United States it threw off all allegiance to any foreign body. I hold the assembly, under our state constitution and laws, has the absolute right to regulate or abolish the charter of any chartered command."

MINN. SPLIT BETWEEN HOOVER AND LOWDEN

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 23—(AP)—Minnesota's 27 votes in the Republican National convention will be split up between Frank O. Lowden, Herbert Hoover, and an uninstructed group, with Lowden controlling most of the instructed delegates.

This became evident tonight as the result of eight district conventions, in which sixteen delegates were named. Four delegates were selected last week, and the remaining seven delegates at large will be chosen here tomorrow by the state convention.

Of the twenty delegates which the ten districts of the state will send to the national convention, 14 are favorable to Lowden and six to the cause of Secretary Hoover.

Twelve are under instructions to support the Illinois man with two uninstructed from a district whose convention endorsed his cause.

Hoover forces have two delegates under order, those from the fifth district, comprising all but three wards of Minneapolis. Four recognized Hoover supporters, from the eighth and tenth districts, will go to the national convention without instructions, but representing groups which at district meetings indicated decided preference for the commerce secretary.

WASHINGTON OFFICIALS FLY WITH LINDBERGH

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh spent another day piloting Washington officialdom through the air, he stopped an hour for lunch, but spent half of this time inspecting and flying another ship at the naval air station at the other side of Bolling Field.

A high wind raised huge clouds of dust, but it failed to daunt the crowd of several thousand who lined the field to watch the flier change planes. A double row of ropes was placed about the planes to prevent accidents.

The list of passengers numbered Miss Alice Davis, daughter of the secretary of war; Senators Nye of North Dakota, Oddie, Nevada, Thomas, Oklahoma; Fess, Ohio; McMaster and Norbeck, South Dakota; about thirty representatives and a number of government officials. The remainder of the nearly 200 carried today was made up of the members' families.

MAY REORGANIZE AMERICAN RAILWAY EXPRESS COMPANY

NEW YORK, March 23.—(AP)—Reorganization of the American Railway Express company, involving a severance of the banking and money order departments from the express business, on the expiration of the present contract with the railroads next February is under contemplation by a committee of railroad executives now studying the subject, it was learned in Wall Street today.

While definite plans have not yet been whipped into shape, it is understood that a new company would be created by the railroads to take over the express business and that a guaranteed dividend of $7 a share would be assured. Additional income would accrue to present American Railway Express holders from the earnings of the banking and express business and advertising concessions.

Nye said the gang had dealt in counterfeit securities of twenty-nine different companies, some of which bore the forged signature of the Guaranty Trust company. Nye recently picked up the trail in Louisville where $8,000 in bogus bonds had been given in payment for two automobiles. Slater, he said, came to St. Louis yesterday in one of the machines.

Plane Wreckage Received at Halifax

Might Be Remains of One of the Missing Trans-Atlantic Planes of Last Summer.

HALIFAX, N. S., March 23—(AP)—Two jagged pieces of wind and water worn wreckage evidently from the upper part of a heavily constructed airplane, raising the belief that they might be the remains of one of the missing Trans-Atlantic planes of last summer, were received today by the local consul.

One of the pieces of wreckage was found on the Island of Miquelon and the other on Langlade Island nearby. They were forwarded to Emile Gabobry, the French consul, by Governor Juvanon of St. Pierre, who ordered the investigation that uncovered them.

First report that one of the trans-Atlantic planes might have crashed on Langlade Island, a French possessor between Nova Scotia and the southern tip of Newfoundland, was received in New York by a shipping employe, from his father, captain of a ship in those waters. The father said a native had tried to send in his ship several hundred brass screws and when asked where he got them said he had found a wrecked plane. Investigation was immediately orderd.

One of the pieces of wreckage was covered with white linen, coated with a brown preparation, and then heavily daubed with gray paint.

THEATRE OFFICIAL KILLED IN ATTEMPTED HOLDUP

PHILADELPHIA, March 23—(AP)—Max Harrison, 27, assistant manager of the Cross Keys theater in West Philadelphia, was shot and killed and Martha Yetter, 17, a patron, was seriously wounded as they stepped from the theater tonight.

Three would-be holdup men escaped in an automobile. They did not obtain any loot. Harrison was on his way to a bank with the night's receipts of about $700.

Miss Yetter left the theater with her mother by the same exit as Harrison after having witnessed the night's performance. Two bullets were fired into her body and physicians said she probably was fatally injured.

Harrison dropped to the pavement with the first shot from the robbers' guns. A policeman, who was waiting outside the theater to escort the assistant manager to the bank, grabbed the bag in which he carried the money, threw it inside the theater and opened fire on the holdup men, wounding one of them, he believes, before they made their getaway.

TAX CUT OF $225,000,000 IS POSSIBLE, COOLIDGE SAYS

The President Says That Any Tax Reduction at All is Contingent Upon Reasonable Economy on the Part of Congress—Is of the Opinion That the Cut of $289,000,000 Proposed in the House Bill is Impossible—Tax Collections Are Maintaining a Sizeable Advance Over Returns For the Same Period of Last Year.

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)—President Coolidge thinks that a tax reduction of $225,000,000 still is possible on the present status of the treasury but he believes the cut of $289,000,000 provided in the house bill is impossible.

The possibility of any tax reduction at all, however, he believes, is contingent upon reasonable economy on the part of congress in appropriating funrs. The full tax returns for the month of March have not yet been tabulated but from preliminary estimates the president is confident that a tax reduction as originally advocated by the treasury will be possible.

Details of the March 15 returns have been awaited by the senate finance committee as a guide to tax reduction while keeping the house bill inactive. A few days ago, however, Chairman Smoot of the committee announced that the committee would meet April 3 to consider the bill. Whether public hearings will be held will be decided by the committee.

In the meantime, treasury receipts show that tax collections are maintaining a sizeable advance over returns for the same period of last year.

The $225,000,000 reduction originally proposed by the treasury and supported by President Coolidge was ignored in the house where a combination of democrats and republicans added numerous reductions not sugrested by Secretary Mellon. Its total of $289,000,000 was met in the senate with republican statemnts that it was too high and democratic assertions that it was insufficient.

The three other police officers held in connection with the Kier death are Lieutenant M. A. Tilbbetts and John Caudell and Tom Nazworth, detectives. All are charged with first degree murder.

CORONER'S JURY VISITS SCENE OF DAM DISASTER

LOS ANGELES, March 23.—(AP)—A coroner's jury, seeking an answer to the St. Francis' dam disaster of March 13, today viewed San Francisquito canyon and the wreckage of the structure that collapsed and unloosend the devastating torrent which took a toll of 451 persons dead and missing.

Led by Coroner Frank Nance and accompanied by legal and technical advisers, the jury holding an inquest over the bodies of Los Angeles county victims, journeyed to the ruins of the great serervoir to "see for themselves."

The jurors found that in places the rock side wall of the canyon, on a line with the broken end of the dam, could be crushed readily under their blows, made with small hammers. They also found that there was no sign left of an excavation into the canyon wall, in which the concrete dam was declared to have been set.

The terrif rush of water appeared to have sheared the rock off clear, leaving not a trace of the dam's concrete abutments existing for examination by the jurors.

The strong quality of the concrete mid-section left by the break was disclosed to the jurors, who noted that stones and rocks bound in the mix, had been broken cleanly in two, testifying to the grip of the cement about them. The jurors returned here late today.

The matter will come before the house at an early date. Moreover it is today disclosed that Chairman Luce of Massachusetts who had urged the hospital be located in that state, is incensed over the failure of the committee to act according to his preference that he has threatened to resign from the chairmanship.

He has not yet filed such resignation but well grounded rumor has it that he will do so immediately. However that may be he will undoubtedly work against the report but it will have a strong advocate for Connecticut in the person of Mrs. Rogers of Massachusetts who has urged it was only fair play to Connecticut to locate the hospital within that state.

Congressman Tilson is expected the committee report for the Connecticut location will be accepted.

SENATOR NYE REPLIES TO GOVERNOR ALFRED E. SMITH

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)—Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, was accused today by Chairman Nye, of the senate Teapot Dome committee, with seeking "to undermine public confidence in the fairness and impartiality of the committee in the midst of its investigation."

The North Dakota republican's declaration was made in a letter replying to one by the New York governor, who charges him with "infamous insinuations," "demagogic slander" and "reckless" and "outrageous conduct" because he had stated on the senate floor in response to an inquiry that he had information that Harry F. Sinclair had contributed to Smith's campaign fund years ago.

Senator Nye declared that by writing his "unwarranted letter," Governor Smith had given "aid and comfort to every scoundrel whose infamy has been exposed" in the long oil investigation and added that he did not "propose to be deterred in the performance of my official duty by abuse or criticism of my work from you or anyone else."

There was an overwhelming majority against the disarmament proposals as first enunciated by M. POLITICAL EFFECT OF THE DEATH OF SENATOR FERRIS

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)—Senator Woodbridge N. Ferris of Michigan, a veteran of many of his state's political battles and for two terms its governor, died early today after a struggle against pneumonia which set in more than a week ago.

Death came but a few weeks after Mr. Ferris, who reached the age of 75 last December, had announced his retirement from politics. On March 7, he said he would not run for re-election to the senate because of his advanced years and not, he asked that "it be distinctly understood," because of "any fear of the result." At the same time, he indorsed the candidacy of Senator Walsh of Moptana for the democratic presidential nomination.

It is expected that the death of Mr. Ferris will decrease the democratic strength in the senate by one vote. Governor Green of Michigan who has the power of appointing his successor is a republican and is expected to appoint some one from his own party.

Mrs. Ferris and their two sons, Carleton and Phelps, were at the senator's bedside, together with Mrs. Ferris' brother, John McCloud and Garrit Masselink, vice-president of the Ferris institute and one of Mr. Ferris' college mates.

The senate adjourned immediately or the house did the same. Both bodies er the house did the sam. Both bodies adopted resolutions and appointed committees to attend the funeral.

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)—The shipping board today ordered Vice Chairman E. C. Plummer, to take action to prevent two foreign steamship lines from violating the United States coastwise laws by transporting passengers from various American ports to Miami, Fla., to attend the Shriners convention there in May. The matter is expected to be referred to the bureau of navigation of the commerce department which can prohibit clearance of ports by these vessels.

The Italian ship Presidente Wilson is advertising its intention to sail from New York to Miami, thence to Nassau, where the vessel would remain during the convention and then return to New York by way of Havana, the board made known. The French line is planning to sail the steamship De La Salle from New Orleans to Miami, where the vessel would remain during the convention and return to New Orleans by way of Havana.

The coastwise laws prohibit the transportation in foreign ships of passengers or freight between ports of the United States whether directly or indirectly by way of a foreign port.

FRIENDS AND FOES PAY TRIBUTE TO FERRIS

Ferris, the man, the statesman and the educator, was extolled in tributes that came today from his political friends and foes alike, following his death in Washington today. They came, too, from hundreds of others who knew "the good gray governor" best as the schoolmaster of Ferris institute at Big Rapids, Mich.

All expressed sorrow over the loss of the state's outstanding democratic leader and the only standard bearer of his party in 70 years to upset the state's republican traditions to win a seat in the United States senate.

One tribute, from a biographer, classed Senator Ferris as one of the three outstanding democratic party leaders of Michigan since its admission to statehood. The two others were named as Lewis Cass and Don M. Dickinson.

Group 1. 1. Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company; 2. Martineau-Bacon company; 3. H. C. Murray Boston store.

Group 2. 1. Church-Reed company; 2. Tubridy-Weldon compan; 3. Rhode Island Textile company.

Group 5. 1. Jordan Hardware company; 2. Willimantic Lumber and Coal company; 3. Jordan Buick company.

Group 6. 1. Union Shoe store; 2. Curran & Flynn; 3. Brick & Sullivan

Much originality and salesforce had been injected in the decoration of the west window of the Jordan Hardware company which captured the grand prize. A clever arrangement depicted a winding trout brook in which water was made to ripple as it flowing by a concealed fan. A green moss bank and field and small pine trees made up a most attractive and vivid scenery. To complete this picture a sturdy young Windham son was busily engaged in angling for the elusive trout during the show hours. The picture was complete to a detail, even to the fish in the young fisherman's basket. Space does not allow of a review of all of the beautiful trimmings which merited the awards but there is indication that the choice of the judges meets with public approval. The three judges who were guests of Secretary Earl J. Arnold of the chamber of commerce, worked nearly all day at their task of judging. The judging, made by a trio of competent decorators from large cities, was based on points for originality, selling power and artistic arrangement.

The special window trims continued to be the source of wide attraction throughout the day and large crowds are expected to come to the city Saturday to view the beautiful array of merchandise.

One of these salesmen explained his work to the satisfaction of Police Chief Thomas F. Grady and was allowed to continue his work. Two men representing that they were collecting money for an orphanage in Providence failed, however, to meet with the sanction of the chamber, although under the present city ordinances they are allowed to continue their soliciting. That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster; does the work without blister.

Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

WESTERLY

PROVIDENCE STEAM SHOVEL ARRIVES FOR STATION WORK

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 23—Evidence that the dirt would begin to fly in the construction of the three-door fire station for Pawcatuck Fire district was given by the arrival on the site at 1 p. m., Friday, of a large Erie steam shovel from Providence. At 9 a. m., Thursday, the construction contract was signed by the building committee with the Donatelli Construction company of Providence. At 3 a. m., the large steam shovel with caterpillar traction was loaded on a huge Rogers trailer and, hauled by a Mack truck of the A. Gonelli Steam Shovel service of Providence with escort of another Mack truck, was on its way toward Westerly. The Rogers trailer with steam shovel meant a load of 29 tons and when it rolled across the Pawcatuck river bridge soon after the noon hour, the heavy macchines moved so rapidly it was difficult to keep up with them. Progress was slow through the West Broad street New Haven railroad bridge underpass and up Liberty street, where low-hanging telephone lines crossed the highway and had to be raised. The steam shovel had steam already up and its scoop bucket rested in the body of the Mack truck ahead, in which fashion it had proceeded along the Boston Post road. Two trucks hauled the trailer up the Liberty street grade past the old P. S. Barber fire station.

A slight mishap occurred on Franklin street, Westerly, when the heavy brakes of the trailer, operated by a wheel similar to a freight car, so heated the rear wheels of the tractor that the heavy solid rubber tire tread on the inner section of the rear right wheel became so hot that the cement let go and half of the heavy rubber wheel tread came off. The remainder of the distance was covered without it.

SALIMENO FINED $50 FOR LIQUOR POSSESSION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 23—Judge Oliver H. Williams, in the Third district court Friday morning, tried a civil case and pronounced sentence in a criminal case for possession of intoxicating liquors.

In state, Thomas E. Brown, chief of police, vs. Pasquale Salimeno, for possession of intoxicating liquors which were seized in a police raid at his grocery store near the corner of Pleasant and Canal streets, Feb. 11, Judge Williams found the defendant guilty and fined him $50 and costs. At the hearing Attorney Dunn raised the question as to description of property given in the search warrant under which Officers Madison and Knight raided the store, and Judge Williams allowed a week for filing authorities. On Friday Judge Williams declared that he "found the warrant sufficiently described the premises searched and declared the defendant guilty."

Much of the court's time was taken up with the trial of the book account case brought by Samuel Felrman, et al., doing business as the United Music store in Westerly, vs. Andrew S. Grant. The bill of particulars set the amount of $145.85 as due on an Atwater Kent radio, purchased on a contract, dated Sept. 17, on which but $5 had been paid. For the defendant, G. R. McKenna claimed the set did not "radio" as radios should, in that it would not receive well and would "fade" after being operated on short periods, contrary to assurances by Assistant Manager Thomas F. Plunkett, who made the sale. He testified that only one payment had been made and that for two days previous to signing the contract the set did not give a satisfactory performance.

Others to testify for the plaintiff were Manager Harold J. Rutman and Alexander Taylor, who gave evidence that on his four visits to the Grant home, 170 High street, the only trouble was a run-down battery.

Defense witnesses were Andrew S. Grant, who said that he had telephoned and written for the radio removal as it did not give good service; his 16-year-old son, Jack Grant, who said "it couldn't keep him home," and Mrs. Margaret Grant. Defendant's counsel argued that this could be no "heads I win tails you lose, deal" and the plaintiff's attorney, that a nationally advertised and sold product should operate "presto-chango, no music." Judge Williams rendered his decision for the plaintiff to recover $148.85 and costs.

Other court business was disposed of as follows: Civil Docket—John Bishpam vs. Frank A. Toscano. Stipulation filed for Judge Turano for $88.45 an costs and jury trial claimed.

Frank A Toscano vs. John Bishpam. Decision for defendant and jury trial claimed. Gavitt Furniture company vs. Agnes C. Fraser and Arthur E. Fraser, Continued one week for trial. Domenic Priami vs. James Carlesi. Continued one week. Stephen J. Casey, trustee, vs. Egbert L. Blacklock. Continued two weeks. Walter J. Grenolds vs. Stephen Farago. Continued one week. Jacob Rickert vs. John Palazollo. Defaulted Feb. 17. Decision given for $42.61 and costs.

They left Westerly last November for a visit in New York state and in December started on the southern trip. The body will arrive here Sunday. Mrs. Miller was the oldest daughter of Mrs. Sarah A. Opie and the late Philip Opie. Besides her mother and husband she is survived by three sisters, Miss Edith Opie of Westerly, Mrs. Roland Taylor of Phoenix, Arizona, and Mrs. Lewis Tetlow of this town, and a brother, Fred S. DANIELSON

OLIVER CHASE, LIFE-LONG RESIDENT OF KILLINGLY DEAD

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 23—A death today at East Killingly was that of Oliver Chase, a life long resident of that section of the town and of a family associated with the affairs of the town of Killingly for generations. Mr. Chase was the last of his immediate family. He died at the home of his nephew, John Chase.

He was a son of Israel and Polly Young Chase. His brother, John Chase, dead for several years past, was for years a selectman of the town of Killingly. Mr. Chase's nearest relatives in Killingly are John Chase and Arthur Chase, nephews, and Mrs. Nellie Chase Davis and Mrs. Emma Rich, nieces, of East Killingly.

Early spring days, with mud where numbers feel that good sidewalks should be on some of the streets of the borough is reviving the demand for a sidewalk building plan that will be comprehensive and steadily worked out much after the manner in which the borough undertook the construction of its sewer system. It is a matter that may be taken up under a section of the borough charter. It happens to be a matter about which there has been much talk for a number of years, and very little action. One of the plans that appears to find favor would lay part of the cost of sidewalk construction on abutting property owners and the remainder on the borough, which might issue bonds to carry on the work.

There are business men here who feel that the establishment of a credit bureau is almost imperative, if they are to be protected from losses that they should not be called upon to suffer. The present situation has come about largely through the willingness of such a great number of people to mortgage themselves, practically, from anywhere from three months to three years. Doing this repeatedly, they find themselves in a position where they cannot even pay for the necessaries of life—and trouble begins both for them and the merchants. It is to protect merchants from this class of buyers that the establishment of a credit bureau is being urged. It has been a subject of discussion in the chamber of commerce on several different occasions, but no definite action has resulted. The situation having become particularly difficult as to credits, numbers of business men are seeking some way in which to protect themselves. Their object is to separate the good credit risks from the poor ones, and then act accordingly.

There is for lovers of nature the alluring prospect of the return of the beaver to Windham county. As a matter of probably well founded fact, at least two colonies of these animals are now living within the confines of Windham county. The colonies are in widely separated sections and, naturally, in sparsely settled sections. If they are unmolested, beaver may again become quite common in this section of the state, where they are said to have been abundant many years ago.

Now that boxing of the amateur variety is having a revival in Danielson it appears to be coming back with a rush. Announcement was made this afternoon of the formation of the Killingly Athletic association, which is to stage bouts in the town hall, beginning next week. Louis Peloquin, who has a team of boxers in training here, is the promoter and is understood to have associated with him others who are interested in sporting events. Fans are promised much action, with boxers from Worcester, Norwich, Hartford and other cities competing here, as well as local boys and representatives of nearby towns.

A minor automobile accident about one o'clock this afternoon involved a Ford sedan driven by Mrs. Omer LaBarre of the Wauregan road and a Chevrolet operated by Uldéric Gervais, who was coming out of a driveway on to Dyer street. The main floor of the vault will weigh 23,000 pounds.

Volume of business has grown so at the Danielson postoffice, as to keep the place congested with packages a good part of the time, and leaving insufficient room for the clerks to work as conveniently as would be desirable. The condition suggests the idea that the time may have come to seek an appropriation from the government for a postoffice building, something talked of for years.

PUTNAM

SHORT CALENDAR SESSION HELD AT PUTNAM FRIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 23—The short calendar session of the Windham county superior court was continued Friday afternoon, opening at 2 o'clock with Judge Edward M. Yeomans presiding. The case of Lloyd J. Miller vs. Olga Belleville Miller was heard. Miller was suing for divorce on the grounds of desertion. He stated to the court that he was married to Olga Belleville in Liverpool, England, on Sept. 19, 1923. He told the court that he and his wife lived together in England for about three months. Miller testified that the last time he saw his wife was in Edinburg, Scotland, on Oct. 23, 1923, when he left his wife with passports, fare and other necessities for her embarkment to the United States.

Miller said that at the time he was a member of the crew of a freight ship and he could not have his wife on the boat with him. He further stated that his wife spent the money for other purposes and she cancelled the shipping passage. Later she wrote him asking for more money to make her trip to America. He said he responded by sending her the money but she did not arrive on the boat she had engaged passage on. Miller told the court that his wife had written to him many times but in each letter she had not desired to come to make her home with him in Sterling, where he is engaged in the garage business.

Selectman Ervin E. Frink and Richard Shermap, of Oneco and Sterling, testified that they both knew the plaintiff for a number of years and during that time his wife had not lived with him. Judge Yeomans granted Miller a decree of divorce on grounds of desertion.

The case of Rose O'Clair vs. Louis O'Clair, of Brooklyn, and Danielson, was heard Friday. Mrs. O'Clair charged her husband with being a habitual drunkard and that it was impossible for her to continue living with him, although she had done so for 18 years. The couple have three living children and all were in court Friday. The defendant, Mr. O'Clair, has two of the children in his custody, while his wife has a younger son in her care. They were married in Dayville on Nov. 23, 1908, and have had their residence in adjoining towns since then. Mrs. O'Clair was the first to take the stand. She testified that she was 16 years of age when she was married. When she was married she told the court that she knew she was marrying a drinking man, but like most girls at that age she thought she could reform him. She stated that from the time she was married she was forced to work to support herself and her husband, and she was forced to work up until a month before her children were born, and that she had to resume work about a month after her children were born, because her husband had not worked and had been continually drunk during that period. Mrs. O'Clair had her husband arrested in October, 1927, and sent him to Brooklyn jail for 30 days. She told the court that after he was released from jail he did not return to her but kept on his old path of not working and drinking much, leaving her to support her family and work.

Three witnesses testified in behalf of the plaintiff, each one being a boarder at her home and they all confirmed her story. Dr. Nathaniel Gibbard, of Danielson, testified that he had been called to the O'Clair home many times to attend O'Clair when he was emerging from a drunken spell, but as far as the doctor knew otherwise he said that he could not tell the court anything about O'Clair's personal affairs, outside of his excessive drinking.

Mrs. O'Clair again assumed the witness stand. She stated that her last child was born in 1925. When asked by Judge Yeomans if she wanted alimony from her husband in the event that the divorce be granted, she made the following statement: "No, I don't want no money from him. I want to get rid of him clean." This caused much laughter from the attendance at the court.

Louis O'Clair took the stand to testify. When questioned by Attorney Harry E. Back, of Danielson, he admitted that he was a drinking man and that he had done much loafing and did not do much to support his family, but since the time that his wife sent him to jail he had taken a different attitude toward life. He stated that he was able to leave liquor alone and go back to his wife, but she refused to have him, threatening to have him arrested again should he return. Attorney A. G. Bill of Danielson, representing Mrs. O'Clair, cross-examined O'Clair, asking him if he did spend any of his money on his wife. He stated that his mill earnings in the Quinebaug company were stopped at the mill and turned over to the Quinebaug store to pay grocery and meat bills. This statement was proved by Charles Carver, bookkeeper and paymaster of the mills, who testified that his statement was correct.

O'Clair stated to the court that he had not been drunk since Dec. 1, 1927, and that he had rented a house in Danielson and was working every day to support his two children.

Other witnesses testified that they were acquainted with O'Clair and that in recent months he has been doing everything possible to bring his family back together again.

Attorneys Back and Bill, after completing the examinations, presented their arguments. Attorney Bill argued solely on the evidence submitted, while his opponent, Lawyer Back, had many law textbooks and decisions of judges who decided other divorce cases that he presented to the court. Attorney Back gave the state's attitude on divorce. Both lawyers had equal grounds to argue and both gave wonderful specimens of oratory when they presented the summary of their case to the court. Judge Yeomans failed to give any decision on the case at the close, but reserved it until a later date. Sheriff Charles E. Ayer adjourned the court without a definite date as to when it should be opened.

The Connecticut State Health bureau will conduct a Child's Welfare conference at the auditorium of Putnam high school on Tuesday afternoon, March 27, from 3 until 4 o'clock. Mothers are urged by state health officials, to bring their children to the conferences for the free examinations rendered by the nurses in the employ of the department. During the past few years that the state has been holding these conferences at Putnam they have been successful and many mothers have taken advantage of the service offered. Each child is carefully examined and any physical ailment is noted and the parent of the child is informed so that it might be corrected before the defect might become permanent.

The regular weekly card tournament between the Odd Fellows and Knights of Columbus was played Thursday evening at the Odd Fellows' rooms. The Odd Fellows again proved to be the inferior players and they bowed to the Kaceys by a score of 8 to 4. The score now stands 137 to 73 in favor of the Kaceys, with only one contest to be played. The Kaceys won or lost as follows: Bridge whist—McCauley and Charron won from Carpenter and Perry. Bid whist—Bologna and Light won from Allard and F. Gifford; C. Bove and A. Giraca from Card and Ferns; Montville and Renshaw from Chandler and McIntyre; Bourgeois and Reilly from F. Morrarty and G. Gifford; Irving and Igoe from K. Andrews and Shippee; St. Onge and Remillard from J. Gifford and C. Shaw; J. Bove and Martin from Campbell and C. Tourtellotte. E. Phaneuf and M. Hannifan lost to Wilson and H. Morrarty; U. Valade and T. Hannifan to Strombells brothers; Welch and L. Giraca to Warren and L. I. Tourtellotte; O'Connor and Rice to Adams and Arnold.

Odd Fellows from Putnam, Danielson, Central Village are to leave Putnam this evening (Saturday) for Springfield to attend a first degree of the order that is to be worked upon a hundred candidates by a degree team consisting of 363 members. The degree work will be accompanied by a band of 50 pieces and an orchestra of over 30 pieces. Grand lodge officers from New York, Connecticut and Massachusetts will be present. Israel Putnam lodge from Putnam will send over two buses full of members, while lodges from Central Village and Danielson will send buses full of members that will come to Putnam to pick up those left. The Webster lodge of Odd Fellows is to send a large delegation. All buses will meet at Putnam this evening and then proceed to Springfield where they will be met by a band and escorted to the auditorium where the exercises will be held.

Work was resumed Friday on the bridge at Priests Island, that is to be built across the Quinebaug river just south of Putnam, by the state park commission. Operations were temporarily halted Thursday when it started to rain in the afternoon. The work on the improving of the land on the island and the building of the bridge will be continued as the weather permits.

The stalwart new silent policeman have resisted the jams from autoists for over a day without being waylaid. The new officers are large and command more attention than did the old wooden dummies that were used before the police department purchased these new silent arms of the law.

No possible candidate has yet been chosen by the democratic city committee to succeed Willis B. Carroll in the city council as alderman from Ward 4. Saturday the city committee met in private session at the municipal building to select a new alderman, but nothing yet has been given out for publication.

The senior class of Tourtellotte Memorial high school in North Grosvenordale will make its annual pilgrimage to the national capitol in Washington next week. The class will be accompanied by members of the school faculty.

As Memorial day begins to near, it brings before many the small number of veterans of the strife of '61 that are now living in Putnam. There are now but eight members of the Grand Army of the Republic left in Putnam. John Whitney, of Farrows street, and Alfred Lavelle, of Van Den Noort street, are confined to their homes. Chauncy Morse, of Pleasant street, the elder member of the hardware firm that bears his name, shows his years but he is at his place of business every day and appears to be in apparently good health. Richard Gibney, of Bellevue street, is employed as a night watchman in one of the local mills in Putnam. Mr. Gibney is now in his 80's but he daily attends to his home cares, besides the hours that he enjoys about the city.

Anson Buchanan, of Grove street, is one of the remaining veterans of the Civil war. Mr. Buchanan is seen about the streets of the city every day, he has attended about every athletic contest that has been held in Putnam since he can remember. Mr. Buchanan is an ardent lover of baseball. Mr. Buchanan was one of the soldiers of the Union forces that participated in the battle of Winchester, where General "Phil" Sheridan turned an apparent Union defeat into a victory. Thomas L. Taylor, of Oak Hill, is the only livin veteran of the Union navy in Putnam and the last survivor of the original Monitor. Mr. Taylor recently celebrated his 86th anniversary of that famous engagement of the Monitor and the Merrimac. Hiram L. Barrett, of Oak Hill, is also a Union veteran of the Civil war. Mr. Barrett is daily about the city and enjoys caring for his beautiful Oak Hill home overlooking the city. Mr Barrett told a Bulletin reporter that the first president that he ever voted for was Abraham Lincoln and that he has remained with the republican party since. So when Memorial day is celebrated these few remaining soldiers will once again turn out to decorate the graves of their deceased comrades.

MANSFIELD CENTER

The Mansfield Hollow school opened Tuesday after a weeks recess because of the development of two other cases of scarlet fever, one in Conantville and the other Arnold Burnham, whose brother had been released from quarantine more than two weeks previously.

The road from the church east and north to the Warrenville road was officially closed to traffic Tuesday, while the state road is under construction. Those using this road do so at their own risk. Work of grading has begun starting from the cement bridge and working north.

ELECTRIC FISH GIVES SHOCK TO MATE DAVE STEWARD

Boat Dew Drop, Capt. Mike Long, came from Block Island after a day's fishing and had a good catch of flat fish. In the net the skipper caught a small electric fish, about 14 inches long. It was like rubber and when Mate Dave Steward touched it a shock went through his hand so he had to drop it. When the boat landed at Rogers' dock to forward its fish a crowd of fishermen came over from the packing house dock to see the queer fish from the salt water. Some of them never saw anything like it. Many of the residents came down to the dock and asked Capt Long all about the electric fish; for 15 minutes he told them all about it from the tail up The fish is not worth anything; it is not very often caught around this part of the ocean, but about every five years it appears around the fishing grounds off Block Island. Capt. Long had the fish on exhibition for a day, then took it back to his home port, Edgartown, Mass. He forwarded 15 barrels of fish to New York.

The ice season is over, the ice owners did not get their houses filled and are claiming that it was the poorest season in 25 years. At one pond a large force of men got busy when the cold wave came and started to get in the crop. Then came a rain storm, so they only put in 500 tons. Now the ice will have to come from Maine or New Hampshire to help supply the fishing boats and it will come by rail to the station.

The Shamrocks had a cheering squad of 75, led by Billie Backus with green hat and cane. The Nuggets cheering section was fellows with cow bells and fish horns. It was like walking into a boiler shop there was so much noise. The section was in charge of Nelson Chesebro. Lightning Deveau was as fas as chain lightning, all over the floor putting up one of his best games of the year and how the crowd did cheer him as he left the floor. In the first half the Nuggets were ahead 17 to 10. The Shamrocks came back strong in the second half, so the final score read Shamrocks 38, Nuggets 31. A snake dance followed as Russo's orchestra played a march.

Short Talks by Thoughtful Mothers

A New England Mother says, "Our children are very susceptible to coughs and colds. Being located some distance from town, we felt the need of a good dependable cough medicine, and when our druggist recommended Foley's Honey and Tar Compound as the best in his experience, we accepted his judgment gladly. For coughs, croup, whooping-cough, troublesome night coughs, bronchial coughs, we have tried it time and again, always with complete satisfaction."

THE DAM'S DEFECTS

Before all sources of information are exhausted it is probable that there will be definite information as to the cause of the collapse of the St. Francis dam. Just at the present time reports indicate that an inkling of the dangerous situation at the dam had been given a few days before the disaster. The man at the dam who had discovered the leaks and the mud coming through lost his life with the others, but he had conveyed his information to the engineer who constructed the dam and he had made an examination.

Indications point more strongly to the fact that it was faulty construction through failure to anchor the dam in solid rock. The bed of schist which was used appears to have given away and to the surprise of the engineer, who seemed to have as much faith in the stability of the structure after he examined the leaks as he did just after it was completed. Had the menace of the leak been properly appraised the break could undoubtedly have been prevented, quite the same as the disaster might have been prevented through sound construction.

The revelations which have come to light since the St. Francis dam went out make it more imperative than ever that all other dams in that region should be carefully inspected to see that similar conditions do not prevail in regard to them. It is to be hoped that in no other instances such soft rock has been accepted for the foundation of a huge dam and yet if it has now is the time to find it out and apply the needed reinforcements.

It is difficult to believe that those charged with the responsibility of erecting such an important piece of work should be careless about such an important detail, especially in view of the recognized strain that it would have to withstand and the pressure that would be exerted by the great volume of water. It will therefore be necessary to wait until all the facts in the matter are brought to light before passing final judgment but it is certain that the admissions of the Los Angeles engineer do not make a good impression.

FIGHTING THE WHITE PLAGUE

Whatever statistics might show there is no question but what the fight against the white plague would continue unabated. Nevertheless there is encouragement of a substantial character furnished when it is announced by the National Tuberculosis association that gratifying progress is being made in reducing the number of deaths from tuberculosis.

This is shown in the figures which are furnished by 30 of the large cities of this country in which there is a population of 25,000,000. These show that while there were 91.1 deaths per 100,000 in 1926 there were but 85.6 in 1927. What this means is further disclosed by the figures which show that four years ago the death rate in the same cities was 100 for each 100,000 of population. Thus in that period the methods that have been employed in fighting the disease and the cooperation which has been obtained from the afflicted and those threatened has brought about a reduction of nearly 15 deaths in each 100,000.

These figures, of course, show that there is still much to be done, that the disease is still carrying off too many and that there is opportunity for further reductions, but these improvements not only give encouragement to those who are waging the long, hard fight, but they give hope to that large number afflicted with the disease in some of its stages.

They further demonstrate that the methods being employed are well directed. Whatever results in reducing the death rate furnishes proof of the methods used and that demonstration cannot fail to impress that great number who are directly or indirectly concerned in the struggle. Great increase in interest and activity in reducing the tuberculosis menace has been made in the past quarter of a century. Greater efforts in behalf of prevention have likewise been noted. This developed from a widespread recognition of such a need and it is to be sincerely hoped that even greater progress will be made in the next 25 years.

OVERCOMING DIFFICULTIES

When the Nicaraguan congress turned down the resolution that would give authority to General McCoy to supervise the election in that country this year it threatened to be an embarrassment. It was action against the sentiment of Nicaragua for that country had already invited such supervision for the sake of fair and free election. It was the result of the exercise of authority by the leader of the conservatives who had become convinced that such supervision of the election would result in the success of the liberals. At least there is no other construction that can be placed upon the action.

If it was figured that such refusal to give congressional sanction would prevent the supervision for which an agreement to stop fighting was obtained months ago it has failed for the president of Nicaragua has signed a decree ordering it and it will proceed as planned.

By this action President Diaz carried out his part of the agreement. He has acted regardless of what the result may be for if it is so that the liberals give indication of polling the most votes if there is an open election he can expect to not only go out of office but to see his party defeated. Nevertheless he has acted in a manner that was to be expected if he lived up to his pledges.

This country desires to supervise the Nicaraguan election solely for the good of that republic. It is time that the people were permitted to elect their officials instead of depending upon revolutions. The welfare of the country hinges on constitutional procedure and yet there are those who seem to think that they can be cast to the wind and other things substituted. Instead of ballots they quickly turn to bullets and conditions in a country where such a situation prevails cannot long be satisfactory or stable.

It was preferable that the Nicaraguan congress should grant the authority to supervise the election, but failing to get that because of political selfishness the next best method has had to be adopted. The action of the congress doesn't prevent the necessary steps for an open election.

LEARNING TO SWIM

In Springfield an organized campaign for the purpose of teaching boys and girls to swim has been started to open next month and continue into May. The plan is to obtain the use of certain indoor tanks in that city for this purpose and provide supervisors and trained instructors for the various classes.

This action is taken for the purpose of teaching a much greater number how to take care of themselves in the water and to prevent if possible many of the needless cases of drowning.

The importance of knowing how to swim is getting more and more appreciation. There are those who never learn, those who learn the best way they can, those who take great chances when they know they cannot take care of themselves beyond their depth and those who are afraid of the water because they cannot swim. Yet many of these are numbered in the long list of annual drownings because they find themselves in unexpectedly dangerous places perhaps through no fault of their own.

If they know how to swim they will be in a position to make a successful fight for life under such circumstances. They will not be as near helpless if suddenly thrown into the water, thrown from a boat or if they step into a hole at the bathing beach. The value of being able to swim manifests itself on many occasions while the handicap of not knowing how too often means untimely deaths.

Whatever can be done to better this situation is deserving of the highest commendation. It is in keeping with such efforts as have been made locally and from which there is no doubt as to the advantages gained.

ANOTHER CANAL?

It is quite evident that if there is to be another canal across Central America plans for it must be made in advance. The talk about increasing the capacity of Panama canal has always stimulated the discussion concerning the desirability of exercising our treaty rights and building the Nicaraguan canal.

Even though there was serious consideration given to such a canal at the time the Panama canal was built it is desirable that there should be estimates obtained under present day conditions as to the best route for such a canal and the cost that would be involved. That would be quite important in reaching a decision as to whether future outlays should be made in altering the Panama canal or devoted to the construction of a second canal.

There would not only be involved the cost of construction but the cost of maintenance and the resolution which has been introduced in congress asking for the authorization of a half million dollars to carry out such work is entitled to serious consideration.

The advocates of the Nicaraguan route point to the fact that it would open up new territory and would shorten the route between the east and the west coasts of this country. Panama canal has not become overcrowded as yet. It is still able to handle all the business that is offered it and will be for some time, but it is a matter of looking to the future where a big proposition is involved and it must be apparent that there cannot be delay until the day of actual overcrowding comes before making plans for new developments. That is the purpose of the idea for having surveys made at this time.

Will congress please start an investigation to find out how long winter is going to linger in the lap of spring?

Uncle Sam has not only bought the Cape Cod canal but has got and recorded the deeds to it. Thus ends a long but successful fight.

It is enough to discourage congress when it thinks of the business ahead of it, the limit of time and the disposition of so many to waste it.

From various points in Maine are coming tales of the Hinchliffe plane having been seen. They resemble those from Canada concerning the Nungesser plane which was never heard from.

THE MAN WHO TALKS.

One of the great facts of life that the modern psychologist set forth is that every man and woman in the world has some mission to perform. The word "mission" is derived from the Latin meaning "to send." A mission is something sent. It is usually a message carried by an individual or a party. Naturally those conveying a message are called missionaries. We usually apply the word to those who carry a religious message only, but it applies equally to those who convey a political message. Dwight W. Morrow, our present ambassador to Mexico is a missionary according to the meaning of the term just as truly as those sent out by the American board to Turkey, China, and Japan to teach the precepts of the Christian religion. Three things are involved in a mission; something sent, a sender, and the one who conveys the message. Thus the responsibility of a mission rests upon two parties, and it also adds to the strength of its authority.

May not this idea be so enlarged as to include all of us? No human being is here through any action of his own. Power wholly external to himself has sent him here, and evidently for some purpose. Admitting this we are logically forced to believe that our Creator has sent us into the world on some mission, and if this is true it is reasonable to believe that in some way we shall learn just what this mission is. Early in life children begin to develop aptitudes for special things. One little fellow soon begins to show a desire for a hammer, saw, plane and other tools. He loves to make boxes, chests and other like things. Is not this God's way of telling the little fellow that he has been chosen to be a carpenter? Other boys show aptitudes for some of the learned professions, so-called, and in like manner does God put commissions into their hands.

Our attention has recently been called to one of the great spirits of human history to whom the Almighty gave a mission no less than the moral and spiritual uplift of an entire people. One week ago today large section of the world observed his birthday. The very fact that Saint Patrick has lived so long and is revered by so many is indubitable evidence that he once functioned on this earth just as must as St. Bernard or Calvin or Welsey did. One line of evidence in support of his historical existence is the fact that a great many myths have gathered around his name. You never knew any myths to gather around the names of little men; it is only around those whose character and deeds are stamped with immortality. A man who was big enough with divine guidance to lift an entire people out of savagry into the light of Christianity is worthy of the highest honor and will be honored as long as time shall last.

Having better living conditions now than ever before, how dissatisfied we should be with the return of the old regime! Take only one illustration, that of good roads. There was a time and that within the memory of middle-aged men, now living, when outside of the paved streets of cities and large towns, travelling in the spring of the year was almost impossible. Some of the roads in swampy sections were clearly impassable. How tiresome it was to drive a poor old horse through six inches of mud! But we did it and took it as a matter of fact. But if we were compelled to return to those old traveling conditions, prior to the beginning of the present century it would result in open rebellion, and with very good reason. Having tasted the sweets of civilization we do not propose to submit to the limitations of frontier life !!!

Now that reminds me of what we submitted to along another line. It brings clearly to mind the era in which kerosene was most prominent in the field of illumination. For awhile it was about the only substance used for lighting purposes. And yet we thought it was wonderful when compared with its honored predecessor, the tallow candle. But as we look back we now wonder why we were so satisfied with it. Take it on one of those cold, dark nights in winter at midnight when one of the twins fell out of bed and opened his mouth and wept "like the sound of many waters." In your excitement you could not find any matches, and when you did it wouldn't strike fire. At last when one did you carelessly knocked the chimney on to the floor and was no longer of any use. Then you began to grope around in the darkness and you couldn't find the twin, because he had rolled over into a corner and had forgotten just what had happened. With electricity one can find a lost twin a great deal easier.

With the amazing improvement of living conditions has there come a corresponding increase of happiness? We must all admit that there never was a time when so many things contributed to the pleasure of life as now. We have much to thank science and the spirit of progress for. On one occasion having seen some children at a fashionable seaside resort playing with elegant and expensive toys, I asked the friend with whom I was riding, a well known judge here in Connecticut, the above question, and he immediately replied "emphatically no." Continuing he said, "the more we have the more we want until we think we must have everything that is going. We were just as satisfied with the crude toys of our boyhood as these children with their expensive ones. Mere abundance can never satisfy anybody!"

We are not so much impressed with big things today as we were some years ago, partly because we are getting accustomed to them. The trend today is to emphasize the practicability of a thing rather than its size. This thought is brought to mind by the last annual report of the American Telephone and Telegraph company. The figures used there are simply enormous. We do not leap from our chairs in astonishment when we compute that if all the wires used by the subsidiary companies were strung along in one continuous mileage it would reach around the earth two thousand times. I say that this does not touch the emotions. Of course 50,000,000, is a big number. But it is the service that these wires in their various combination render humanity that counts. Fifty thousand translated into dollars would represent a sum bigger than the combined salaries of all the Congregational ministers in New London county. You cannot rate the value of a man by what he gets any more than you can wire by its length.

Do we fully realize that there are the best of reasons why we ought to feed the birds at that part of the year when food is most scarce. It is not only humanitarian but has a financial value. In a short time now the birds will be fully able to take care of themselves along the food line. And what they will feed upon will be virtually an act of thanksgiving for what they have received from the hand of man. Out of kindness we have fed them and soon they will begin to feed on insects and other vermin that are detrimental to man. I do not mean that the latter are detrimental to us because we eat them, but that they are detrimental to the things we eat. These insects and vermin are choice tidbits to the birds, but not to the vegetables we raise. The birds seem to know that by eating these insects they are keeping the kind people who fed them from the poorhouse.

THE OLD RESIDENTS OF WOODCHUCK HILL

E. C. Peck of Willimantic writes to The Bulletin as follows:

Reminiscences of Fort Ned have been very creditably written and submitted to printer's ink, very much to the enlightenment of those who have asked for pen pictures of the once prosperous village. We now have before us a query by Coma in the Social Corner, Who knew Woodchuck Hill residents? From 50 to 75 years ago I knew personally nearly every resident in the school district. It affords me great pleasure to give Soma, and other readers of the Social Corner such knowledge as I have of those who lived in the district 50 and 75 years ago. If you will clothe your minds in a garb of intense imagination and come with me, we will make a canvass of the district and call on those good people who lived the life of activity and happiness. A mid-September morning finds us on the way. First we start at the northwest part of the district. First comes Charles Palmer and his good wife, Mandy, and rosy cheeked Estell, daughter in school. Now down the hill west, we come to the Walter Peck, my uncle's place, near the Nipmuck trail. This was once the home of Captain John Peck, Walter's uncle; also his father-in-law. John was a brother of my grandfather, Jesse Peck, whose home was half a mile east on the hill above Fort Ned.

Walter had six boys and two girls; not one of them are living today. Five of the boys were school teachers. We now cross the brook and on the hill, is the Hubbard Adams farm. We find two or three children there. Mary was the wife of Col. Ethan Allen. Later Dillis Morse bought the farm. Five children made up his number of school attendants; a family greatly esteemed. We now pass along about half a mile and come to the home of Elmer Smith, the owner and operator of a saw, grist, shingle, carding and cider mill. No grass grew under his feet; neither did money depart from his fingers until it gave a good account of itself. We now turn to the left up the hill one-third of a mile, and here find Asahel Smith, a lone bachelor. We can't stop now Asahel. I will call for my boots later, if they are half soled. We will leave you to your single blessedness. We pass on a few rods, turn to the right and soon meet Deacon Alexander Allen. Near the barn we see the big six-foot high wagon wheels; with their attachments were a load in themselves. A few rods further on and we find the home of Philip Mowe[illegible] jolly Irishman with a prosperous [illegible].

We retrace our steps to the main road, go a few rods, turn to the left up a driveway one-fourth of a mile, and here is the home of Deacon John Witter, one of God's noblemen, and his family of six children. No, says Mrs. Witter, the Deacon isn't at home; he has gone with his soldering tools to repair a broken water pipe for a neighbor. William, Nathan, David and Joel are in the field harvesting. Ruth has started her fall term of teaching, and Celestia is busy with the dairy work. All, but one, bore Bible names, and that was Doctor William. We now come back to the road, and on the left is the ruin of a house once occupied by Hezekiah Baker. A few rods further we come to the Woodchuck Hill schoolhouse, inferior in size, but from its doors passed out into the world, girls and boys, not stuffed with Greek or Latin, but with a substantial learning that qualified them to fill positions of usefulness, trust and honor. We will continue on east, one-fourth of a mile and say How do you do, Horace Allen? His good wife greets us at the door with How are all the folks? In the yard are the three children, Evelyn, Ella and Hovey, and in an easy chair by the door sits my great-uncle, Waterman Carver, brother of Aunt Allen, and my Grandmother Peck. We give the usual salute and pass along to a road leading off to the right. We go a short distance, and here we see the ruins of a house where once lived James Sweet, with a numerous family. Three quarters of a mile further we see James Doyl and his buxom wife, Mary. The daughter, Julia, a picture of health and goodness, greeted us. We are now near the border of Lisbon. We turn back to the main road; in a few minutes we arrive at the home of Nath[illegible] Bennett. It once was the home of some members of the Williams family. Mr. Bennett erected a fine two-story house, roomy and convenient, cleared up the farm and made it one of the most productive in the neighborhood. Nathan says, come in, and there we meet Mrs. Bennett with her happy word and smile. Yes, and good Grandma Manning is there too. Bless her, I sat at her table for the greater part of three years. James and I improved the farm and enjoyed life as never before or since. Harrison is in the west. Sarah, Alfred and James are here to join in the greeting. Who are the three little boys playing mumble peg under the shade of the spreading maples? They are three orphans, Fred, Darius and Leonard, children of Mr. Bennett's brother. Good children and are under the guardianship of Grandma Manning. She has to scold sometimes, but better that than to leave cruel marks on their young flesh with birch or rattan. We hear quite a clatter of something in a far-off room. What is it? It is Grandma Manning weaving a rag rug on her old hand loom. We step to the door and there she is with feet on the treadles springing the harnesses, tossing the shuttle from hand to hand, and swinging the lathe to beat up the woof firm and smooth into the warp. As we are leaving, she says, Eugene, when you go to housekeeping I will weave you a handsome rug.

All but Sarah, or Sadie as she was often called, Leonard and Darius have passed into spirit land. As I passed the place a few months ago, I saw that fire had done its work of destruction; but one small building is standing, where once was the happy home of the Bennett family.

Twenty-five rods further along we come to the four corners. On the left hand corner lives William Lyon and his busy wife, Aunt Ann. All the old people in those days were called aunt and uncle. At two different times they vacated the farm to their son Spencer, and kept the town's poor, on Canterbury Plains.

No one of the poor and unfortunate could say they went away from her table hungry or suffered from cold or neglect. No better epitaph could be written for her than this. She was kind, and considerate of those poor and unfortunate inmates. Spencer married Elizabeth Smith, whose home in her school days was with her guardian, Captain Walter Smith at Gay Head. She was a sweet, pretty girl. All girls were pretty in those days, and so are many of the young ones and older ones today, and we see more of them.

Let us turn to the right. In a few minutes we come to Aleck Lyons' home. He is a prosperous farmer and a kind neighbor. I know his three children, Elizabeth, Nelson and James. Nelson has recently vacated the old home. Seventy-five years ago the farm was occupied by Aleck's brother, Washington, who kept something of a hotel and store and had dances where the young people of the vicinity passed many a happy evening. He sold the common beverage in those days, New England rum. As there was no license any one could have it in quantity and sell it, if they wished. Very little drunkenness. No girls, and but few young men were ever seen under the influence. No speakeasies or blind tigers, no one poisoned by its use; but those were days long before the Volstead act. Yes, we will keep on down the hill and soon come to the home of the two bachelor brothers, Daniel and Hiram Perry, neat and prosperous farmers. A maiden sister kept their house. Other brothers were James, the blacksmith at Hanover, and Augustus, who was often seen in the springtime with whitewash brush and trimming shears, going to some one's house to whiten the walls and hang paper. Mrs. Charles Palmer was a sister.

We are now at the extreme limit of the school district and within a few rods of the Lisbon town line, so we come back to the Lyon four corners. No, I never knew there was a school house here. Yes, we will turn to the right and go down the hill a little over a mile, passing Bates' pond on the left and soon come to Uncle Jerry Smith's. He had a number of children. Two boys were blacksmiths, Orin and Washington. The daughter, I forget her name, could make the best pork cake that ever any one ate. Uncle Jerry was a thrifty farmer. No, Uncle Jerry, we don't care for any cider brandy. We use it only in case of a cold with molasses. "Faith," with a long sniff, "you are welcome, if you want some."

The old green painted thoroughbrace wagon, shaped like a boat, high fore and aft, stands under the shed, and in one corner an old wooden mould board plow, more than a hundred years old; the first and only one I ever saw. Bid you good day, Mr. Smith. He and family were regular attendants to the Methodist church at Hanover. The church then is part of the schoolhouse now. Uncle Jerry's Sunday-go-to-meeting shirt was usually made of dark blue polka-dot calico, with high out standing collar, and when starched stiff came up to his ears. As he came into church one Sunday, taking his accustomed pew, well up in front of Captain Daniel Lovett's [illegible] which was just in front of where my father and mother with family set, John Lovett, one of the Captain's boys, was heard to remark to a seat-mate, "Uncle Jerry has got his shirt on bottom side up." Handkerchiefs were soon brought into use to suppress the laughter. Comfort Day Fillmore was the preacher and had he heard the remark, I think he would have said, "Let us pray."

Leaving Mr. Smith we go on a few rods to the Whitford four corners. On the left is the home of Darius Whitford and his son, Cyril on the extreme eastern line of the district. To the right, a few rods, is the home of Festus Aply and son Leander, and to the left, 20 rods, is the home of Charles Fowler, the slovenly farmer, who took a bath once in his life time, whether he needed it or not. Back to the Lyon four corners again, we will turn to the right, down a descent across the brook and a short way up the hill, we come to the Elias Williams home, a big gambrel roofed house on the left. Mr. Williams owned a large area of land, mostly fertile, but very rough. Every field was an apple orchard in a way, for no young seedling was allowed to be cut, so they were promiscuously scattered about the fields. Fruit they bore was of little use except for cider. Yes, they are making it now. Pearl is driving the old horse around to turn the grinder, and Julius is filling the hopper with apples, large, small, sweet and sour, while their father is filling barrels with the amber colored nectar. Have a drink of the cider? Yes, we will. You will find the gourd dipper hanging on the peg, help yourselves. Thank you. As we pass the door we see Emblem sitting outside taking a sunbath in the dreamy September atmosphere. Are you better of your illness? Yes, I am. How is your mother? Fine, Good-bye.

I have a far-off recollection of there being a tannery on or near the brook, but couldn't place it now. I have seen the stones in the grave yard, but never was near enough to see in whose memory they were erected. No doubt the carving was fearfully, and wonderfully made.

Daniel Brown was occupying the farm in 1864-69. His son, Charles, was for many years station agent, express agent and freight agent at the Versailles station. We are now nearing the northeast part of the school district and our survey will end at the south line of the Gay Head district.

We travel north for half a mile and on the way we pass the ruins of two houses, and out buildings, first of which was on the Williams farm; the next beyond, many years ago was owned by a Mr. S. Here by the cellar way, we see a mass of lilac buhes and near the old stone door step a white rose bush struggling for an existence, with several sweet roses on it. We pick two or three and walk back and seat ourselves on a log underneath a chestnut tree opposite the ruin. While we rest, I will tell of a laughable incident that occurred years before my time.

Mr. S. had fatted a bull to be killed for his family use. Near Christmas was the time for such slaughter, and as customary in those days the neighbors were asked to assist in the slaughter. When the day came the neighbors were on hand to assist. New rum and cider was the principal drink and plenty of it. If the cider wasn't too hard to bite off it was taken as a chaser, but if you had to blow the pickles back in it, another barrel was tapped. After a few rounds of drink they go to the barn to do the butchering, which was soon done, but not without a few more drinks. The beef was quartered and hung up to drain and cool. The haslet or liver was washed, and hung up on the ladder to cool and drain. Then away they go to the house to warm the inner and outer man, for it was a very cold day. While in the house, Dave Sweet, who lived some miles away happened along; seeing the barn door open he steps in and at once saw the bull's haslet hanging on the ladder. He looks this way and that and sees no one. He takes the haslet and hides it under the end of a stone bridge that crosses the road. Then he walks back the way from which he came quite a distance. After butchering it was customary for the butchers to stay to dinner and have some of the liver cooked. The time came to make preparation for the meal. The housewife asked where the liver was. One of the number was dispatched to the barn to bring it to the house. Entering the barn he commenced to look around. Soon Sweet entered, looking as innocent as one could imagine, and asked what he was looking for. Why for the bull's haslet. For a bull's haslet, says Sweet, you must be a d—d fool. Don't you know there isn't one bull in ten that has a haslet, and he was one. After a wondering look he, with Sweet, went to the house.

Sweet was at once asked to take a drink, the others joining. Then came the question, Where's the haslet? and Sweet tells them the same story he did the one at the barn.

There was some doubt pictured on their faces, but they weren't in condition to dispute Sweet, so they made out a dinner of fresh pork from a previous slaughter. After a few more drinks they parted for their various homes.

During the night a heavy snow storm came and covered up the end of the bridge where reposed the bull's haslet. In the morning Mr. S. goes to the barn to do the chores, his little dog following him. The dog's olfactory organ led him to the bridge. Scratching away the snow, he drags forth the haslet.

Whether Sweet did it for a joke, or forgot to come back at night and get it, and appropriate it to his own use, no one ever knew.

We are well rested and the afternoon is well-nigh spent. We will retrace our steps over a portion of the route we came as we went to go over a portion of the Nipmuck trail, of which you may hear more later.

Sunday Morning Talk

ENDURE

Endure hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ. 2 Tim. 2-3. Paul says suffer hardship with me as a good soldier of Jesus Christ.

To succeed against an enemy one should not underrate his forces. If the Christian is not impressed by the wickedness of the world he will not see the necessity of putting himself out to overcome the evil. He will not be willing to endure hardship in a cause that he has not at heart. The world is to be conquered but it will be through the efforts of Christ's soldiers.

He that taketh up the cross must follow in His footsteps, they may receive many wounds, travel many a mean mile, meet with opposition before they win the victory. Crosses line the road which the world has traveled on its way toward Christlikeness. And chief of these crosses was the one our Master bore when He took our sin upon Him and died to set us free. The soldier must not fear but follow the captain of his salvation whatever or whenever he is called to feeling the Lord is his helper and strengthener. As Paul said he could do all things through Christ. We must daily and hourly look to Him for the help we need. The recompense is great. "The well done, the crown of righteousness which the Lord will give."

DAILY LENTEN DEVOTION

"The Triumphant Spirit"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "And David said, Is the child dead? And they said, He is dead. Then David arose from the earth and washed and anointed himself and changed his apparel" (II Samuel 12:19-20).

Read: II Samuel 12:15-23.

MEDITATION: A form of hypocrisy not to be condemned is the covering up of a sad heart with a cheerful countenance. Blessed are the folk who assume a good cheer which they do not feel. They refuse to let their grief and anxiety cloud and burden the lives of others. "A show of courage tends to grow into courage." "A cheerful heart," says Proverbs, "is a good medicine,"—and we may add, even when it is assumed. We are surrounded by people who need good cheer. Recall the words of the young man who left the presence of Phillips Brooks without asking him the question he had come to propound.—"I did not care. I had found out that what I wanted was not the solution of a special problem but the contagion of a triumphant spirit."

PRAYER: "Lord, give me courage to look my best even when I feel the worst. Help me to show an untroubled face among my fellows. Give me the grit to look the world in the face with steady eyes."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Cui Bono?

Mr. Editor: Many of your fellow-citizens will read with delight the letter appearing today in your paper from the pen of Mr. Murphy, who takes up just a few points in the attempts of a nonresident to itimize the disadvantages of the city of Norwich.

A great deal of humbug is being talked and printed about "Revitalizing and Advertising and Creating Civic Pride in Our City."

As if Norwich was a great idle machine, or automaton that had worked itself out, and now only needed a quack to squirt into it some new imported vigor, to reinstate it to its former vivacity.

People who have lived here all their days know that Norwich was not a dead born infant, but has grown to manhood by virtue of its native resources and energies.

Its history and the men it has produced and its achievements need no side-show yelling nor trumpeting. These are an open book. Municipal prosperity is not created by inspections, the forming of committees and passing resolutions. We have more than enough of that kind of tinkering going on day and night, more than enough of banqueting, jazz and cockalorum. We need to drop some waste in luxuries, get down to regular business and pay our honest debts. Give ourselves a rest from all this worry and surpassing other communities, and inviting new and strange industries to help us to beat them.

Even big city industries are seeking quieter locations, according to the expert's own testimony. Haven't we got a slogan that says, The World Uses What Norwich Produces! Do we need more than the earth? Must we bite off more than we can chew in order to be "It"? Let us give diligence a chance. The need of the hour is to do what we are doing well and results will follow naturally. If we could grow as fast and as big as Chicago we would likely be as bad as Chicago.

It is a matter of deeper concern what we are growing up to be. Let us lay this unction to our hearts when we study growth, and it will be well with our industries and our future.

YOUR HEALTH

BONE TUMORS.

By Joseph Colt Bloodgood, M. D., Baltimore, Member of Gasgas Memorial.

To cure a benign bone tumor, with complete restoration of function, and to give the patient with a malignant bone tumor the best opportunity for a permanent cure grows more difficult as our knowledge accumulates. The element of time between the first warning and the first examination must be reduced to a minimum. Delay in recognition and treatment of the benign lesion adds to the risk of loss of function. Delay with the malignant lesion means death from secondary growth to the lung.

The public must have correct information. It is not difficult to reach a small number with this valuable medical advice, but it is very difficult to reach the masses. In the first place, as there is little or no difference between the warning symptoms of three types of bone disease, the public must be educated to act toward them in an identical manner. It is a good plan, after all contusions or bruises of bone or joints, to have an x-ray made and the plate preserved. If the finding is negative, we have something for comparison should persistent symptoms indicate a second x-ray picture. If bone changes are found directly after the injury, one may be convinced that at least they existed previously and belong to the benign type. When the x-ray is taken days or weeks after the first injury, there is no positive evidence whether or not the bone changes were present before. For this reason many latent injuries, whose existence is revealed only by the x-ray some time afterwards, are incorrectly diagnosed as malignant. This immediate x-ray is also of importance in compensation and accident insurance. It may seem to some far-fetched advice to suggest an x-ray after a simple bruise or contusion. But accumulated experience forces me to make this statement.

The first essential feature for the recognition and relief of a bone lesion is an x-ray. The x-ray is the searchlight which reveals all diseases of bone. The next most important is the application of this diagnostic instrument of precision the moment any symptoms appear.

The medical profession is just beginning to realize its new responsibility for giving the public correct information and its larger opportunity for prevention and cure of disease by so gaining the confidence of the people that they will seek advice either in periodic examinations or the moment any symptoms are observed. The increasing number of cures of sarcoma of bone since 1913, and specially since 1920, can be explained only by the education of the people and their enlightment.

A volume of smoke will bring tears to the eyes of the reader.

Y. M C. A. LENTEN SERVICE AROUSING MUCH INTEREST

It was certainly an inspiration to note the deep interest manifested in the fifth of the Y. M. C. A. series of Friday noon lenten services Friday, when the parlors were filled with business and professional men who had assembled to listen to what proved to be a profound, and yet simple heart to heart talk by Dr. Benjamin T Marshall of Connecticut college on the theme, "Taking Jesus Christ Seriously." Frank L. Arnold, a member of the Y. M C. A. board presided, and Rev. G F. Bailey offered a fervent prayer. The men participated heartily in the singing of the inspiring hymn, "Jesus Lover of My Soul," and Archibald Mitchell 4th, Charles Eaton O. W. Carpenter and Hugh Kinder, with but a few minutes notice rendered impressively as a quartet, the touching hymn, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross."

Dr. Marshall read from Matthew 13th, 45 and 46 verses; the parable of the goodly pearl, and he spoke in part as follows: "I want to speak to you today on taking Jesus Christ seriously in his evaluation of life. We know what it costs to educate in dollars and cents and we can figure the results in a way, but no parent can estimate in money the real cost to the father and mother in sacrifice, in hardship at times and in earnest prayer. Love cannot be counted in dollars and cents. We rate people by their earning power; the laborer for 50c an hour and the skilled artisan at $1.25 per hour. You estimate the man's value, but you cannot estimate the will with which the carpenter does his work; you can purchase skill but you cannot purchase spiritual power. The business man handles, not merely goods, but ideas and ideals. Jesus had very high regard for all life, and he certainly valued the life of the common person as much if not more than the skilled. He gave all attention to the poor woman whom he befriended and to the ordinary fisherman. He was no respector of persons; the poor was as valuable to him as the rich. He had fine respect for the human spirit; he saw the scarred, the stained, etc., but he looked beneath the skin and saw the possibilities there. He respected all human life seriously, and we must learn the sacredness of human beings. All the backgrounds of the ages have come down to you; all things past belong to you. Jesus did not value a man for the position he occupied, but for what he really was, poor or rich. St. Paul came to evaluate life as it should be, and he left all to follow his new master. Luther, Calvin, Wesley, Whitfield and D. L. Moody and others placed the proper value on life, and we should value life as they did. Life should be worth as much to you as to those who in other days gave up their lives for their Christ. We can say that because God valued life so highly, he made the great investment, giving his son Jesus Christ for it. How much is life worth to you? Is it worth as much to you as it was to Abraham Lincoln. There have been many unknown and unsung also, who have valued life very highly. Have you thought of those faithful hard working men in Connecticut, who in the years that are past, built these thousands of miles of stone walls; they wrought faithfully. We should respect life; all life, and we must not differentiate with the aliens, for among them are many noble souls; Jesus Christ knew no race or color; he valued them all. Who leads the classes in our schools? There are comparatively few who might be justly called full Americans. The Hebrews get scholarship and they also get money, and while some of them keep their money, others of them have learned to give freely. We must see men as Jesus saw them and serve them as he served them. Jesus, the great brother of us all; how he loved, and we should love as he did. Every man should have a chance, and so Jesus urged the golden rule on all men. Let us all highly evaluate human life, for it has a pricely value. Let us push out into service to all men."

$7,500 AUTO ACCIDENT SUIT IS PARTLY TRIED

Trial in the $7,500 auto negligence action brought by Louis H. Burdick of Franklin against Patrick Sullivan of Bozrah was begun before Judge Christopher L. Avery and a jury in the superior court in New London late Thursday afternoon. The plaintiff rested its case just before court adjourned, the testimony of the witnesses being brief. Trial will be resumed next Tuesday morning.

Burdick claims that on Oct. 8, 1927 while he was driving an automobile owned by Louis Wilbur of Bozrah on the highway leading from Willimantic to Norwich at a point known as Sodom hill, a huge truck owned by the defendant, Sullivan, and operated by George Miller, his employe, because of the manner in which its brakes were applied, skidded sideways down the hill, crashing into and totally demolishing the small coupe.

The defendant makes a general denial of the allegations.

The plaintiff told his version of the crash and of his injuries. Elmer E Pitcher, civil engineer of this city, showed a plan of the vicinity of the accident. Frank Liker and Joseph Gayesky, who live nearby the scene, testified to seeing the wreck and of the marks in the highway made by the skidding truck.

William J. Andrews, auto dealer said that the coupe which the plaintiff was driving was a total wreck. Wilbur, owner of the car, testified to towing the smashed car to his home, and Walter H Burdick, nephew of the plaintiff, gave evidence of seeing the position of the cars after the crash.

Dr. Albert C Freeman of this city testified about the plaintiff injuries and of the manner in which he treated him. He said his bill would be about $75. At this point the plaintiff rested.

The first defense witness was Dr John W. Callahan of this city. He told of examining the plaintiff at the request of the defendant's counsel. He said he saw no outward signs of the injuries but that the plaintiff complained of trouble with his back. He admitted that an ailment which Burdick had before the crash might cause him some discomfiture. The physician said that the treatment for it, as explained by the plaintiff, would not be considered by surgeons as a cure and therefore he believed that he still had it just before the crash. The plaintiff told the physician that through a series of electrical treatments in New York he had been cured and that it was the accident that brought it back, according to the physician's testimony.

Attorney V P A. Quinn represented the plaintiff and Attorney D. L. Pelgrift the defendant.

The jury hearing the case consists of the following:

New London, Alton T Miner. Charles C Appley; Groton Adrian C Hewitt, Ernest W Brown, Ernest Allen; Stonington, Everett D Chapman Walter C. Merrill; Montville, Frank Schoffield; Ledyard, Gilbert Hagen; East Lyme, Elvin A. Stanton; Montville, Walter Beckwith.

SHOP MEETING SPEAKER AT RADIATOR PLANT

At the weekly shop meeting at the Radiator plant Monday under Y. M C. A. auspices, Rev. C. H. Ricketts gave a very interesting talk on the topic, "The Spirit of Grace," and he spoke in part as follows: "The word grace is not easy to define; we do not grasp its meaning readily. There are some words that explain themselves so to speak; for instance the word joy is easy to understand, and so with the word love and also with faith; we can grasp their meaning quite easily, but the word grace covers so large a field, that we do not easily catch on to its meaning. It is used often in connection with an act of mercy; grace gives one a gracious disposition and makes him kindly to others. We are all obligated to cultivate a gracious personality. Years ago a family of means moved into the town in which I lived; they had a thirteen year old daughter whose face was badly disfigured; the fact behind the disfigured; the face was anything but attractive, but the Creator had a pleasing personality and a gracious disposition; she determined not to let her disfigured face interfere with her graciousness. In school, she led in her studies, and very kindly helped the more backward scholars; the whole school loved and respected her, and one boy whom she had helped said, "Ge, isn't that girl great"; her personality won everybody, and she finally became dean of a large girls' college. President Elliott of Harvard had a bad birth mark on his face, but he was so able and gracious that no one noticed the disfigurement; President Elliott was a great educator and a most gracious gentleman. We are called upon to cultivate the best we can all the good qualities within us. The opposite of graciousness is a grouch, and we have all seen them; finding fault with everybody and everything; one of that kind of them whom, when we see him cmoing we want to cross over to the other side.

"Everyone has some foundation for graciousness and they are duty bound to cultivate it. It is said that at a Methodist camp meeting on one occasion, a hornet broke up the meeting; he went around stinging everybody, and there are some men who sting everybody they come in contact with. There are some things, the more we use, more we have, and it is certainly so with the gracious spirit. By using what powers you have you are given more power. "There is a withholding that tends to poverty, and that is a scattering that increaseth." Have a gracious personality and let it shine. The sun does little else but shines. If we do not shine, it is our fault. The man who drinks or the man who is immoral casts a shadow instead of shining. We must use a thing to keep it fit; you men know that if your tools were not used they would rust, and so it is with the good within us, unless we use it, it will soon become useless. While the most pathetic thing is to see a man come to old age, grouchy and complaining, the opposite is absolutely true, that to be gracious, even in old age is a blessing to the one who maintains his graciousness and a benediction to those about him. Let us all cultivate a gracious spirit."

SEEKS CONSTRUCTION OF STONINGTON WOMAN'S WILL

Mary Josephine McGinty of Pawtucket, R. I., executrix and trustee under the will of the late Anna J. Donahue, late of Stonington, who died May 16, 1927, has brought suit in the superior court to get a construction of the will and to determine the identity of certain legatees named under it whose names in the will are spelled differently or are given with different initials than they ordinarily used.

The plaintiff represents that there is enough remaining in the estate, after paying expenses, to pay the various legacies, but she cannot make payment safely without having a court interpretation and order on the will.

Among the bequests made in the will are the following: $2,000 to Mary Josephine McGinty, niece, of Pawtucket; $1,000 to Robert Paul Burns, nephew, of Omaha, Nebraska; $50 each to Cornelius J. or P. Donahue of Mystic, a brother; wearing apparel to be divided equally between Patrick E. Donahue and Mary Josephine McGinty; $200 to St. Patrick's church, Mystic, in honor of the testator's mother, Mary H. O'Sullivan Donahue, with masses to be said in "her honor and my honor"; $600 to St. Jerome's church, Holyoke, masses to be said for the testator and for her father and her mother; $500 to Patrick J. Donahue, a nephew, of Montville.

In a codicil to the will she gives $500 each to her two brothers, Cornelius J. and Patrick E. Donahue, and $500 to the children of a deceased brother, Jeremiah Donahue.

VIC DARR'S QUICK KNOCKOUT IS FEATURE OF PASTIME AMATEURS

Ten bouts of boxing, giving the fans a little of every kind of action, ending in a one-minute-knockout in the final bout appeased the appetites of the boxing fans at the Pastime A. C. show at Olympic Hill last night until the two coming shows next week. The show on a whole was not quite up to the standard of the past shows. Some of the bouts lacked action, while a couple of them were poor matches. The final bout started off and ended in hurricane fashion with Vic Darr assuming the role of the hurricane. Since Vic has got that new stance he seems to be knocking them over in great style, something that he was a little weak on heretofore. The other pride of the town, Mush Moriarty, wasn't up to form and his bout was rather uninteresting.

Young Brongo of Westerly and Young Foster of Norwich opened the show with the latter getting the well earned decision although he couldn't get over the finisher on his tough little opponent. Foster has a good left when he remembers to use it and would have put his man away had he thought to use it more. They both weighed 110 pounds.

Young Marra fighting the second fight of his career and looking a great deal better than he did last week won over Young Burdick of Norwich in the next go. The referee stopped the fight in the first and called it no contest when Burdick was on the floor after taking a pasting from Marra. The latter displaying a good left hand had Burdick pretty well worn down. Both boys weighed 150 pounds.

In the third bout King Cole the little dusky lad from Willimantic couldn't stand the gaff from Young Comfort of Westerly and went down to a glorious defeat after taking quite a beating in the first two rounds. As long as he could stand the Westerly strong boy off with a left jab he was alright, but Comfort kept boring in unmindfull of Cole's blows and swinging lefts and rights finally had him on the verge of a K. O. when the towel came sailing in the second round to save the colored boy from further punishment after being down twice in the first. Both weighed 121.

The fourth bout found Young Matty of the sub base taking everything that Young Carpentier of Willimantic had to hand out, and come back smiling for more. In the first round the Willimantic boy swarmed over Matty hitting him with everything but the water pails which didn't seem to bother Matty in the least and made the former somewhat tired. All the way he took plenty to try and get in one of his. In the last two minutes of the final round he did succeed in getting in a few which had Carpentier somewhat slowed up. But it didn't seem that his last flurry should earn him a draw which was announced. Matty weighed 130, Carpentier 128.

The fifth bout was about the best of the evening between Young Hagen another local boy, who is improving in every fight and Young Sposato of Westerly. Both lads are southpaws and they stood toe to toe in the first and slugged away at each other, until they tired somewhat. In the second minute of the second round Hagen caught the Westerly lad coming in with a hard left hook to the stomach and Sposato was counted out. Hagen weighed in at 121 and the Westerly lad 120.

Joe Barra of the Coast Guard outclassed Young McLean of Willimantic, winning handily all the way and having the Willimantic lad on the verge of a knockout at the end. He weighed 125 while McLean was 126.

Wild swinging Young Foxx another Willimantic boy, went down to defeat at the hands of Young Lovella of the sub base in the next bout. Fox was slashing away aimlessly with both hands but few of the blows landed while Lovella stepped in close and it was only a matter of time when he would have finished the game Willimantic boy. The referee stepped between them and raised Lavallee's hand in the second. He weighed 117 and Fox 118.

The next go was the Mush Moriaty-Young Erring bout which was rather uninteresting. Both lads did lots of clinching and not much fighting. The New London boy had a fair left hand while Mush depended on his right.

Rida Wins in Kayo

Trapeze and a few acrobatic stunts featured the ninth bout between the most wonderful fighter in the world, Young Rida of Waterly, and Kid Duton, the ruffian from Rushville, Conn., both 123. Rida's seconds had their hands full making their rangy fighter fight instead of clown. In the second Rida doubled up his first and landed a left to Duton's solar plexus and Duton was through.

The final bout ended in the first minute when Vic Darr knocked out Kid Tigue in impressive fashion after sending home hard lefts and rights to the Willimantic boys face and body before the latter could get started. He was quite a cut up young man for the few seconds that he was in there. Darr weighed 133 and Tigue 132.

The crowd continues to support the shows and are very well pleased.

Doctor Sussler and Alec Pasnik did the judging while Jack Carney tapped the bell and Bobby Mays, who needs no introduction, did the third man-act in the ring in fine fashion.

FROM A RINGSIDE SEAT.

The house was comfortably filled and the show although ragged in spots was not so bad nor yet was it up to the standard of the Pastime shows.

Frankie McHugh's solos were well received before the opening of the fighting, Frankie singing two of Eddie Caron's songs.

The Willowy Wop from Westerly, Young Rida, clowned his way to a knockout over Kid Duton of Wauregan. The Rossi boys in Young Rida's corner had their hands full in making Rida behave.

This Rida-Duton bout was really a comedy affair that rivaled the famous Talbot-Steve bout of several weeks ago.

Fighting Vic Darr is coming to the front as a real fighter and is showing plenty of class. Vic tore and slashed his way to another knockout, his second within a week. Vic has developed a mighty stiff sock that is sending them down with regularity.

Kid Burdick, a protege of Al Koziol, came, fought and went out like a light in his bout with Young Mara. It was Burdick's first and last ring appearance. Young Mara jabbed Burdick dizzy in the first two minutes of the bout.

Bobby Mays in stopping one of the bouts took a nasty clip on the ear that made his head ring for some minutes. Bobby said that kid hit harded than Kid Kaplan.

The next show will be on next Friday night as there will be no show during Holy Week.

The law was well represented at the show last night. There was Capt. McLean of the Willimantic police, County Detective William E. Jackson, a member of the state police and Officer Bruckner of the local police.

AMATEUR BOXING GETS GOOD START AT DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 23—Amateur boxing got away to a good start at the state armory here tonight. About 400 people came out and many of them let the world know they were enjoying themselves by turning loose with their enthusiasm. All of the bouts were worthwhile. There was not a soprano out of the prospective world's champions—for these amateurs sure are willing and sock away on a give and take basis.

The opening bout Joe Bishop of Danielson won a decision over Ray Doyle of Wauregan in a nice little battle.

Young Selinsky of Jewett City got what many of the fans thought was a mighty close decision ovre Frankie Socquet of Danielson. It might have been called a draw without hurting anyones feelings.

Arthur Nebornne of Danielson won a decision over George Davis of Worcester in a bit of filling that was filled with man killing socks, the majority of which missed, but it was good entertainment.

Young Parker of Brooklyn took a beating from a boy announced as Mickey Troy of Worcester, the referee stopping this one, and Mike Callaro of Worcester got a decision over Ernest Gauvin of Jewett City in a bout the fans called very good.

The referee stopped another bout when he decided that Ralph Bargnesi of Norwich had taken about enough punishment in his bout with Tony Burger of Moosup and the same thing happened in the bout between Ben Dempski of Jewett City and Hector Perry of Worcester, Dempski getting this decision.

Bill Conway was referee and the announcements were made by Frank Murphy of Hartford, a former member of the state boxing commission. John Slattery of Hartford representing the A. A. U. was an attendant checking up the bouts. Some of the scheduled bouts were cancelled because of the physical unfitness of proposed contestants and others because there was such a difference in weight as to make it advisable not to let the boys go on.

ANDRE ROUTIS WINS ON FOUL OVER SAMMY DORFMANN

NEW YORK, March 23—(AP)—Andre Routis, colorful little French featherweight, won from Sammy Dorfmann, of New York, on a foul in the fifth round of the feature ten round match at Madison Square Garden tonight. Dorfmann was disqualified with only 12 seconds of the round to go when a left hook disabled the invader.

A card of little fellows, fighting four ten rounders, furnished more excitement, thrills and partisanship than Tex Rickard's heavyweight tournament produced all winter.

Routis, making his first start after several months of a vacation in France, battered the clever Dorfmann with a furious attack from the opening gong. The New York youth was weakening fast when a smash to Routis' body dropped low. The Frenchman, apparently badly hurt, had to be carried from the ring after receiving medical attention. Dorfmann weighed 125 1-2; Routis 126.

Ignatio Fernandez, right hand slugger from the Philippines, marched from post to post through ten rounds swapping crashes to the head with Dominick Petrone, New York featherweight, while the crowd of 10,000 stood at attention, cheering madly. Both were on the verge of a knockout so often that the officials could call the bout nothing but a draw. Petrone at 125, had two pounds on Fernandez.

GARDEN TO BE MAJOR SCENE OF HOCKEY LEAGUE PLAYOFFS

NEW YORK, March 23—(AP)—Playoff plans for the American division of the National Hockey league, so far as they have been settled, call for most of the matches to take place at Madison Square garden.

If Pittsburgh finishes in third place the Pirates will play all their elimination games at the garden but Boston and Detroit, which yet has a chance to beat out Pittsburgh, will play their home games on home ice.

Under this arrangement the group semi-final will start next Tuesday, March 27, with the New York Rangers playing either Pittsburgh here or Detroit at Detroit. The second game will be played in New York March 29.

The two-game final series will start at Boston March 31. The second game will be contested in New York April 1, unless Detroit is the contender, in which event it will be played at Detroit, probably April 2.

The Stanley cup final, bringing together the champions of the American and Canadian groups, starts at Ottawa or Montreal April 5, depending on the outcome of the playoffs in the Canadian division.

SEVEN MORE CHALLENGE GENE TUNNEY

NEW YORK, March 23—(AP)—While the New York state athletic commission today delayed whatever drastic action it may have in mind on Gene Tunney's failure definitely to accept one of the challengers on the commission's list, the acorn of aspirants for a shot at the heavyweight crown grew to a sturdy oak.

The list was increased from three to seven at today's meeting with the prospect that additional delay in handling Tunney's case may give the rest of the heavyweight clan time to rally round.

The fistic fathers received and added to the list the challenges of George Godfrey, Paulino Uzcudun, Jack Delaney, and Phil Scott, British champion. The "first division" already is composed of Jack Sharkey, Tom Heeney and Johnny Risko.

Presumably to allow more time for consideration or possible communication with Tunney the commission tabled until next Tuesday any action on the champion's status. Tunney, ignoring a request to specify his selection of the leading three challengers, had advised the solons of his contract with Tex Rickard to fight any opponent the promoter selects. The six months' period of grace allowed a champion after defending his crown expired yesterday for Tunney.

The commission also is understood to desire to avoid any recurrence of the tangles that resulted in shifting the first Dempsey-Tunney title bout to Philadelphia and the second to Chicago. There has been no championship fight in New York since Dempsey knocked out Luis Firpo, in 1923.

Tunney is not expected to listen to any request of the commission to be more specific about his next fight, especially as the belief is now growing that Rickard's postponement of the title fight to July is merely the forerunner of a second postponement until September, when Dempsey may be persuaded to take his third crack at the scholar of Greenwich Village.

In accepting four new contenders, the commission refused to take forfeit checks and placed their names on the list without attempt at ranking. A match between Scott and Paulino as an aid to the elimination process was suggested. Both agreed to the match during Scott's first invasion of America but the bout fell through. Paulino since has refused to fight the Englishman.

TEN TEAMS FROM AS MANY TOWNS IN E. CONN. READY FOR Y TOURNEY TODAY

The local Y. M. C. A. will stage its first annual Intermediate basketball championship tournament today on the local floor. Ten quintets from as many communities in eastern Connecticut are listed to appear. Play starts at 9:30 a. m. and is expected to continue until early evening when there will remain but the final game. This will be played at 8 p. m.

The object of the meet is to definitely establish a champion in this division, so long contested in these parts. Plans were started many weeks ago and now things have gradually worked up until Friday night everything was reported in tip-top shape for the battles.

Local Emps Appear Favorites

Practically all of the teams have had successful seasons. The Woodstock Hi Y is practically the Woodstock academy team; Baltic Independents have had a great season at home; Noank All-Stars have defeated most of the teams in the southern part of the state although the Stonington All Stars always give them stirring battles. The All-Stars have a few Stonington high players. The Willimantic Emps are well known hereabouts and in their roster are two of the Windham high squad. Lebanon 4-H club, although newcomers at the game, still have done well, having most of the Lyman high team. Mystic All-Stars also have a few Stonington high players. Fitchville's Rovers have cut a wide swath among the amateurs in eastern Connecticut so far this season, their first at the sport and they come to the tournament with probably more confidence than any other team. Old Lyme's Comrades are not so well known hereabouts but, entering the tourney as the darkhorse they have a strong chance of springing a surprise. Last, but not least, comes the snappy little local team, Norwich's hope in the tourney, the Y Emps. This team has had wonderful success to date and is being installed by some as a favorite to cop the honors.

Rosters and Schedule

The following are the rosters of the teams and their lineups for the preliminary round: 9:30 a. m., Lebanon 4-H club—Abell, R. Cummings, D. Cummings, Manning, King, Perkins. Foster and Clark, vs. Norwich Y Emps—Swartzburg, Stevens, Murphy, Diachyshyn, Henschel, Berghinzo, Fagan, Tigar, Economous, Hamil, Ogulnick, Lynch, Vulgares, Sherry and Angeloupolos.

10:30 a. m., Woodstock Hi Y—Tourtellotte, Johnson, R. Child, Young, W. Child, Wetherell, Kempf and French, vs. Mystic All Stars—Trant, Walsh, H. Brown, C. Goyette, E. Goyette, C. Brown, Gray, Hanley, Ferguson and Brannigan.

11:30 a. m., Fitchville Rovers—Kozerskey, Tolson, Homar, Butch, Rogers, Laskowitz, Harold, Gribbons, Berkman and Pearson, vs. Old Lyme Comrades—Sheffield, Roach Greene, Noyes, J. Kierman, G. Kierman, Tooker and Mather.

1 p. m., Willimantic Y Emps—McSweeney, Green, Mandell, Haggerty, Wilcox, Macomber and Coutu vs. Noank Intermediates—Clark A. Sweet, Chesbro, Robertson, Buddington, Marks, Butson and B. Sweet.

2 p. m., Stonington All Stars—Nixie, Stefanski, Enos, LeClair, Roever, Wusk and Ganor, vs. Baltic Independents — Wilcox, Ridgeway, Andrews, Blanchette, Depot, Deschamps, Foisy and Charron.

The first semi-final will start at 3 o'clock with the second an hour later. One team is slated to draw a bye so that everything but the final tilt should be over by 5 p. m.

Randy Whaples, Ray Yerrington and Aubrey Brown will alternate in the positions of referee and umpire throughout the day.

Large crowds are expected throughout the day with feature games at 10:30 a. m., 1 p. m. and 2 p. m. while both semi-finals should produce some fine basketball.

The final game, played at 8, will be followed by the Academy-C. F. C. game at 9 o'clock.

REDS HAVE LAST TRAINING SESSION

ORLANDO, Fla., March 23—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds went through their last training camp practice today before starting their homeward trek to Redland field.

It was something of an athletic carnival as well as a diamond workout, and "Pid" Purdy captured a $5 purse posted by President C. J. McDiarmid for the winner of a 75 yard dash.

Indianapolis comes here tomorrow for an exhibition game. Sunday the Reds entrain for Plant City for a return engagement with Inidianapolis, as the first stop on the homeward journey.

EASTERN LEAGUE SCHEDULE ADOPTED AT WATERBURY

WATERBURY, March 23.—(AP)—Eastern league directors adopted the 1928 schedule as submitted at the last meeting at Springfield with few changes after a four hour discussion here today. President Herman J. Weisman planned to announce the umpiring staff, but withheld the list for another week pending the appointment of another arbiter.

CHARLIE PADDOCK SMASHES 140 YD. MARK

AUTIN, Tex., March 23—(AP)—Flashing the old-time dazzling speed that carried him to the topmost heights of track fame, Charlie Paddock, the California flash, today defeated Fred Aldermann, Illinois A. C. sprint ace, in a special 140-yard race at the Texas relay carnival in the record time of 13.4 seconds.

TROY AND PITTSFIELD TEAMS IN FINALS

'BOUT SPORTS

State Athletic Commissioner Thomas E. Donohue made a wise move on Friday when he announced that there will be no more draw decisions in professional boxing bouts in the state. Instructions to that effect are to be mailed to all of the referees on the state staff. This move is thought to be occasioned by the three unsatisfactory draws at New Haven recently, Currie-Day, Kaplan-Mays and Day-McGrath.

The Academy C. F. C. again. A fairly large majority of fandom seems to be on the side of the Baptists for this second game, many probably desiring to see that third game. Last week's clash was full of enough action for anyone and tonight's game promises just as much.

CRUICKSHANK AND HORAN LEAD FIELD IN FLA. OPEN

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 23—(AP)—Bobby Cruickshank of New York and Roy Horan of Orlando, Fla., led 81 golfers in the opening day's play of the Florida open tournament here today with cards of 139 each.

Horan, a comparatively unknown professional, startled the field by turning in a card of 67 on the back round over the difficult Timuquana course, to go with the 72 he had registered in the morning. Cruickshank turned in a 69-70.

George Christ, of Davenport, Fla., also surprised a brilliant field, besting them with a 67 for his morning round. His afternoon round was par, however, for a total of 140. Frank Walsh of Appleton, Wis., was tied with Christ for second place.

The celebrities were outdone by the splendid game of the Davenport and Orlando players, Tommy Armour of Washington, National open and Canadian champion, coming in with a 144 along with Henry Cinci of New York.

The present titleholder, Billy Burke, of New Jersey, who thrashed a large and brilliant field last year to take the open title of Florida, was further down the list with a 146.

Timuquana's tough layout proved a stumbling block for everyone of the more than four score who ventured into the first round of the open today, only four players turning in scores of par or better. In a boiling hot sun with but little breeze annoyed the players.

"WHY GIRLS LEAVE HOME"

Dear Social Corner Editor: Girlhood has problems all its own that are often times difficult of solution. The young head is confronted by questions of conduct, or ethics, which would puzzle older and wiser brains, and how often the wrong answer is given. The trouble with many girls is that they do not, or cannot, go to their mothers with their puzzles. If every girl would make a habit of confiding in her mother on all occasions, she would find living a much easier affair.

Perhaps the mothers are themselves to blame to some extent. When the children are young the pressure of household affairs preoccupies the mother and in attending to the physical wants of her little brood she forgets their need of companionship, but daughters need not refrain from making companions of their mothers. Begin now, girls, to tell your mothers your little affairs. See how the dear face will light up with love, when the pretty secrets are discussed with her. Who can give you better counsel and advice than your mother, for who has your welfare so close at heart? You can help to keep your mother young, too, by sharing your life with her, for she has had her own sweet experiences in her younger days, and hearing it all over again from your lips she renews her youth with yuors.

I was listening to the broadcasting the other day over the radio on "Why Girls Leave Home" and the thought occurred to me: One of the vexed questions of the day with those who have charge of young girls is how to make home so attractive that they won't want to seek pleasure elsewhere. Young girls today are not so contented with home pleasures as they were in the days of our grandmothers. True, conditions are changed nowadays. Between the ages of 16 and 20 many girls are now earning a living working in offices and stores and engaged in occupations which take them out of the home. When evening comes they are not contented to stay in the home. The attractions of the theatre, bridge parties, dances, have a strong and a natural pull, and the temptation to go somewhere every night soon cultivates that restless spirit which is bane of our American life.

This is all wrong. Home should be first and dearest, and the amusement a secondary consideration—an interlude—and not the whole play.

We are all of us, girls as well as grownups, a bit amusement mad in these days, and the simple home pleasures no longer satisfy. The time when the family gathered together in the evenings and one reads aloud while the others sewed, is perhaps gone forever. Also those evenings are rare when boys and girls and parents join in the games that used to amuse—chess, checkers, backgammon for the elders, logomachy, authors, dominoes and many others for the younger members. Perhaps we shall never go back to those earlier and simpler times, but is it not worth while to make the effort to retain the sweet, wholesome spirit of them? That is one thing which can be done by your girls. Instead of allowing yourselves to become absorbed in your own selfish pleasures, resolve to give some of your time and your own sweet selves to the family circle. Remember father and mother, too, are wearied by the day's round and need cheering and brightening as well as you. They can't find companionship on the outside as easily as you can, and are necessarily more restricted in their opportunities for relaxation and pleasure; it will be sweeter and dearer to them than any other. And, believe me, you will yourself be nobler and better women if you resolve to live more wholesome and unselfish lives for those who should be the best friends you have on God's good earth.

Not long ago a lady calling on me said she received a great shock while taking a dinner in a home where other guests were present. It was administered by a bright young girl who had just been graduated from high school and who herself had been recipient of much praise. An older sister had come from her distant home to join in congratulating the young graduate, and was present to dinner. She was known to be a church member and worker.

The young gentleman who was conversing with the graduate, in referring to the sister, said:

"Is she not beautiful?"

The girl answered "Yes."

"Is she good as well as beautiful?"

The girl looked embarrassed, hesitated, then said: "I don't know her well enough."

The young man appeared much surprised and did not pursue the subject any further, but he could hardly entertain a good opinion of that one of whom her sister could say no better than "I do not know her."

She had not been taught that if one member of the family is lowered in any way, the family name suffers and all who bear it are cheapened. A sufficient amount of family pride is a good thing and should be judiciously taught to children. It creates loyalty, kindness and other good ties to bind the family together.

HISTORIC CITY OF BOSTON

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: The calendar of potted plants, which came to me during the holidays pleased me very much, and I wish to thank the sender very much for the kindness. She was especially kind to send me one, for I did not deserve the gift as much as the others, because I was careless, and did not write and acknowledge the calendar I received last year. They were very kind acts, the sending of both, and return many thanks at this mite.

Of all the parts of our country, I very much question if any is more interesting, for both national and literature history, than that of Boston, and its surrounding towns. At the beginning of the Revolutionary war, this city stood out more prominently, perhaps, than any other ever has done in history. First there was the "Boston Tea Party," which drew the attention of the whole world at the time to the fact, that England could not have all her own way, even if America was a young country. The men, among whom was my great grandfather, at this event, threw the boxes of tea into the harbor, while their wives cheered them from the shore. When my uncle was nearly 90 years old, I heard him tell of his grandmother, setting him on a stool before the burning logs in the open fire-place, and telling him about the night she went with her husband to the "Boston Tea Party." When history comes down from lip to lip, it is more interesting, than when it is read from the cold pages of a book.

After war had been declared, the British heard there were stores of ammunition at Concord, and their soldiers started out to get them, hoping the Americans would not hear of their trip. But Paul Revere was too bright for them and by his going through the night; so beautifully told by Longfellow, he awoke the minute men, and the country around, so the British were given their just welcome at Lexington. It that town on "the Green," which was the battle field, there is a large boulder, which has on it those old historic words, "stand your ground, don't fire unless fired upon, but if they mean to have war, let it begin here!" Not far from it is a most beautiful watering-trough with a statue of a minute man with a gun.—he stands as in attention, very alert, as if ready to fire should the enemy appear. This statue, with its watering-trough, is a most wonderful piece of art, which would be a treasure to any town; and I often wish the historic town of South Coventry, had just such a watering-trough with a statue of Nathan Hale; to take the place of the old worn out one which was removed. Perhaps, anyway I hope, some day a person with a big heart, and a pocketful of money will present just such a gift to South Coventry. Of course, they have a beautiful statue of the young patriot at the "Nathan Hale House," but that is out from the village, and is privately owned, so it does not seem as patriotic as having one owned by the town and if the town does have one, I believe it would be best as a part of a watering-trough, placed where it can be seen by the most people.

At the time of the "Nathan Hale celebration" in 1925, I could not help noticing the difference between the people of South Coventry, and those of Lexington, in the way they celebrated. When I was in Lexington, years ago, the people went out at 6 o'clock, and had a very pretty procession, and everything most patriotic; then when these things were over, they went home to breakfast, and stayed in for the day. Crowds of people came from away, but they had the place to themselves; not a man, woman or child was seen on the streets who lived in Lexington. People, who came to the celebration from out of town, went to it first, and then if they had any friends there they made calls before going home. To call on the Lexington people, and expect them to go to the patriotic exercises on the 19th of April would not be a thing for an outsider to do at all.

In South Coventry at the time of their celebration, the people of the town waited for the outside world to arrive, before they had any of their exercises, and all had a good time together. Strangers having friends in the town, called at their homes, and they went together, and the day was one of general merry-making; with family reunions, and all those kind of gatherings. I feel the people of South Coventry have chosen the better way to celebrate their holiday; for after having had their good time alone by themselves, had they held themselves aloof from out-siders, the latter would have brought such sports and other things into their town which would have been hurtful to it, and the standard of the celebration would have been lowered.

After Lexington the two armies marched to Concord, and there was a battle at Concord bridge, where the English were given decided the worst of it, which sent them back to Boston singing "The World is Upside Down." Then began "The Siege of Boston," and the days of sacrifice which resulted in the bringing forth of a new nation, were really begun. There is not space here to repeat the following events of the war, but all are glad to look back upon those days, and when we do so, our hearts swell with a greater feeling of patriotism.

HAS MADE MANY RUGS

Dear Social Corner Members: When I saw in last week's Corner page Canterbury Bell's and Crimson Rambler's letters, I thought I sure would try and write a letter to the Corner page.

Crimson Rambler: I wish I could tell how many rugs I have made, but just cannot. This year I have crocheted three so far and have two braided ones in the works. I have two tops or comfortables in top patchwork and two more that I am working on. That is only a side job. I do lots of other things. The first Corner meeting I went to I don't think there were forty there. I well remember Aunt Mary and Olga and her mother. They were there. I went to Aunt Mary's home to a picnic. I shall always remember her.

Calla Lily: Do you remember the cake Aunt Mary made for my birthday? It came one year on the Social Corner day.

WILD FLOWER (March 4).

CLUB NO. 4 MEETS APRIL 5

Social Corner Editor, Sisters and Brothers: Members of Club No. 4 are planning for a meeting in G. A. R. hall in Danielson on April 5, and will be very much pleased to have all the clubs represented by a goodly number.

Please bring your own dishes and some food for the tables. I would like to make a suggestion that in the future whoever brings food, which requires a spoon for serving, that they bring one and not leave it up to the committee to furnish it. We do not always find one in the kitchens where we work.

That old adage about "a patient waiter is no loser" has again been proven to me, for, while looking over the Corner page a couple of weeks ago this is what I saw at the finish of one letter. May B. Well, I very much enjoyed that letter and hope to read more. Hope to see you in June when our D. A. R. chapter makes a pilgrimage to Groton. Glad to know you still have the cactus and that it blooms freely for you. We gave one to Azile and she could not get a bloom on it until she let a neighbor have it, and then it was faded. It would bud and then they would drop. Something wrong Azile. I have my old one and it blossomed freely at Christmas time, and now has one blossom and two buds on it. Three years ago Bee True (why don't you write?) gave me some poinsettia cuttings that her sister brought from Florida. I was fortunate enough to root some of them, and they bloomed a year ago and again this winter. Some of the blossoms came before Christmas, one of which was ten and a half inches acros and about half of it is now on the plant. It was a beauty. We now have two plants and three blosoms. While on the subject of plants will tell you of our little orange bush. It is about a foot high and now has four oranges on it, two of which are turning yellow. Then there are clusters of buds, blossoms and tiny oranges. It is just grand.

Last Rose of Summer: Do not get any setbacks for we want to see you at our April 5 meeting. Do not know that we have any of the poems you ask for.

Artificial Flowers: Your letter very interesting to me and I will have something to say about Hulettown later on, but I must not make this letter too long. I have the poetry you spoke of. Here's hoping April 5, will be a nice spring day and everyone forgets house cleaning at that time.

CLUB NO. 6'S ANNIVERSARY

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: Tuesday, March 20th, club No. 6 celebrated their 2nd anniversary in Mechanics hall, Westerly. The day was bright and clear, and by 10 o'clock the women of the Social Corner clubs and their guests began to arrive to help in the celebration. If one could judge by appearance every one had a glorious time from start to finish. The morning was spent in friendly talk, renewing old acquaintances, and exchange of ideas. At the noon hour a delicious dinner was served consisting of meat loaf, baked beans, escalloped potatoes, salads, rolls, coffee, cake, pie and cheese and various relishes. Skipper had made some of her cheese carrots, which were a delight to the eye, as well as the palate. Some job I'll say to make so many. The table decorations were made by E. L. W. and were very pretty, indeed. Interested Reader made some lovely souveniers for the charter members, which was a lot of work I'm sure. I want to thank everyone who helped in any way to make the day such a happy one to those that brought such quantities of delicious food, and especially, Skipper, E. L. M., Pansy, Tattler, Miss Farmer, American Girl, Ruthinine, Estel, Mooney and Sumac, who helped serve. We missed several of our members kept at home by illness. To them we extend sympathy and hope they will soon be up and around again. E. L. M. had charge of the program which was snappy and entertaining, and much enjoyed by everyone, the characters taking their parts in a very fine manner. I want also to thank the many Social Corner sisters who sent me birthday cards. There were so many I could not send in all the names of the senders, but appreciate your thought of me, and it gave me great pleasure that so many of my friends thought of me at this time. The cards were beautiful. Would also thank E. L. M. and O. D. for gifts sent. My washing awaits me so will bring this letter to a close.

"JUST AWAY"

Dear Social Corner Friends: "He is not dead; he is just away."

We who have the complete life grow exclusive, bu. I hope not too selfish, in the almost perfect happiness with home, husband loving care and the children.

When separation comes we feel as if every root of happiness has been torn from us. But with so much gone, very, very much still remains.

The busy one and the children were never really very much with us, after all; it just seemed as if they were, but their regular work, duties and pleasures absorbed the most of their time. What we really did was to think and plan for them; think what the busy one would like us to do about this and that, and plan something for the children's advancement, which probably took them away from us more than before.

Thinking and planning, home and memories is the most we get from life at the best. If we have had all these, nothing can ever take them from us. The remembrance of those years of loving care and happy memories to be constantly re-lived in our thoughts, and the 'nildre'.

Few have as much, no one could have more.

Now we have to make ourselves interested in something, there is sure to be some way for us to keep busy, and oftentimes there is something that the busy one was interested in that we who remain a little longer can take up and carry on and make more complete. I like to think how pleased he will be to know that we do this for him.

If our child meets loss, we are grieved if she lets it spoil her life. We want her to be happy in spite of that, and to enjoy what remains and still be a joy and comfort to us.

So we know he would think it best for us to keep busy and cheerful and contented, too.

"He is not dead. He is just away." So I will try to be thankful for each new day and to put into it and to get out of it all the good I can. To give now, expecting nothing in return. To help bear the burdens of others without burdening them with mine. To understand those who are different. To know enough of sorrow to be able to sympathize; to know enough of sin to direct others into right paths. To be satisfied with what I have. To do the best I can with the present and to let the past and future take care of themselves.

Make a rule never, if possible, to lie down at night without being able to say: "I have made one human being, at least, a little wiser, a little happier or a little better this day."

MARJORY.

BREETINGS FROM MRS. DAN

Dear Cornerites and Editor: I have not written in nearly a year, so I guess it is about time I woke up.

Alwild: Am glad you are better and send my love, too.

1492: I've gotten one butterfly done and the other one nearly so. Best wishes.

Lilac Lady: Haven't seen much of you lately. Mrs. S. gave me your message. Best wishes to you and little daughter.

Azile: Hope you are not suffering from rheumatism this year. I wish you health and happiness.

Tildy: I wonder if you know who I am?

Harry E.: Greetings to you and baby and Nelly Gray.

Laila: Hope you are better now. I got the things and left the money with Alwilda for her to let J. have so he could pay you.

Hon: How are you these days?

Aunty No. 1: Thank you ever so much for writing up the Corner history. I guess a number of others beside myself must be glad to know how we started. To those who wrote about Nipmuck trail I'll say write some more, it is very interesting.

Caro and Just Pete: Greetings and best wishes. I'd like to see you both.

With best wishes to all and my sympathy for those sick or shut in,

MRS. DAN.

RECIPE FOR SPONGE CAKE

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Just have time for a few lines this lovely morning.

Lone Feather: I am sorry you did not have good luck with my sugar cookies. I have made them a number of times and they always came out dandy. However, try this sponge cake recipe and see if you don't have better luck than you did with the cookies.

Sponge Cake: Four eggs, 1 cup flour, 1 cup sugar, flavoring; beat whites stiffy and add 1-2 of sugar; beat yolks and add the other 1-2 cup sugar and beat 5 minutes. Combine hot, fold in flour and add flavoring. Do not beat. Follow directions carefully and if you don't have good luck I will make you one. I made one yesterday and it came out fine.

I am sending in a poem. I hope the editor will print it when he finds time and room.

HAS PLEASANT BIRTHDAY SURPRISE

Dear Social Corner Editor and Friends: Think it about time I answered the roll call. Been some time since I sent a line to the page. Always read the letters and enjoy them and how I would like to meet with you all once again. I have nothing of interest to say as I don't get out to hear any news. What a month of weather for March. Some rather cold days and not much snow here this winter. Still, we may get a good snow storm before it ends up. Today is Sister Barbar's birthday and I know of several others in this month to come, as well as myself had a very nice pleasant one. All a big surprise. About 8 p. m. four autos sailed up into the yard and my son ushered in 17 guests, besides himself. So, with my hubby, there were 20 in the party. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Eldridge and little son, Mrs. L. Hommedieu, Mrs. Frank Wilcox, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Roberts and son, Mr. and Mrs. Morrell Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mosley, Mr. and Mrs. Ture T. Olson and Miss Ruth Lyon. I was presented several very nice gifts; also a nice birthday cake with pink and white frosting with candles on it. They were yellow, real Social Corner color. It was my first birthday cake I ever had and it was pretty full of candles. I did enjoy the evening very much and they had a little dancing. Then served cake and coffee. I did not feel so old till I saw so many candles and was requested to blow them out. It took three blows to do it.

Barbar: I am piecing a quilt for each of Grace's little girls of their little dresses she (their mother) had made for them, but don't seem to make very much headway at it.

Johnny Cake: Well you did put in a nice letter and set a number to thinking.

Cretia: I know nearly all of the road you mentioned; also I lived seven years on Wilcott Cary's place. My husband worked for John Congdon; also lived up the other side of that school house nine years, on what was Asa Witter's farm. I forget who wrote about the hanging of the man Watkins, but my father saw him hung and I have been by the old side hill many, many times. It was not as common a thing as it is nowadays. Now, hoping all sick ones are improving and sympathy to those in loss of their dear ones and best wishes to all. Now must send my thanks to the one for my lovely flower pot calendar. Have it hung where I can see it any time I look up. I appreciate it very much not only for itself, but the kind thought of the one that sent it to me.

Mrs. M. (Breeze): I believe this is your pen name. You have our sympathy in your sudden loss. It has been several years since we met. Now, guess I won't take any more space. As ever,

AUNT JERUSHA.

SUPERSTITION ABOUT SHOES

Dear Corner Friends: Here is a little article in regard to superstitions about shoes. The German mother says that should she lose the heel of her shoe, one of her children will die before the year is out. The Scotch lassie believes that should she by accident drop her new shoes before they have been worn they will surely lead her into trouble. It is said that old maids believe that when their shoes become untied, and keep coming untied, it is true their sweethearts are talking and thinking about them. The sweetheart when on his way to see his lady love, should he stub his right toe, he will surely be welcome; but if he stubs his left toe, he may know immediately that he is not wanted. It is said that if old shoes are burned, snakes will squirm away from the place, while to keep old shoes that are past wearing about the place will surely bring good luck. Should you meet a person whose shoes are "worn on the toes" you may put it down as a certainty that "he spends as he goes," and on the same authority it is said that the girl that has her shoes "worn on the side" is surely fated to be a "rich man's bride."

Winter Robin: I was glad to see you out in all your finery, but am afraid you have been pursued by bad weather. Generally when the robin appears we look for the finest weather following.

Soma: Was glad to see you at our last meeting. What beautiful articles in the millinery line were shown at the last meeting, and no two alike.

Hiram's night shirt: Why put so much fancy stitchery on such an article? Don't you think it a waste of time and energy?

Scottie: Was glad to see you are able to be out again and hope you may soon dispense with your ear trumpet. Some job to carry that around much, but was pleased to know it helped you to hear so distinctly.

Ready: I hope when the "big" time comes you will give us a piece of the cake; also an introduction to the deacon.

E. L. M. I am looking for an answer.

Catnip Thank you for doing that favor for me so quickly. I did not mean to hurry you. It is beautiful. I shall always think of you when I look at it and remember you did it with your dear hands.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

SCHOOLDAYS ON WOODCHUCK HILL

Dear Social Corner Editor: I don't think I know who Forget-me-not is. I guess it must be 46 years since I went to school at Woodchuck hill. I knew Frank Smith, also his sisters, at that time. Miss Addie Peck was teacher at one time and Nelson McClimon was teacher at one time. Miss Lizzie Fitzgerald, I think, was the first teacher to my remembrance. She boarded with my uncle, Martin Bushnell. My father lived on the Deacon Alexander Allen place. I guess it must have been 100 years old, but we children then loved it.

Orange Delight: Slice thin three large oranges (seedless), one large lemon. Put over 11 tumblers of cold water, stand 24 hours, boil slowly one hour, add 4 pounds sugar and stand one side for 24 hours, then boil one hour and 25 minutes. This is delicious. Just made some.

FORMER HAMPTON HILL PEOPLE

Dear Social Corner Friends: Just going from Lucius Gaensslit's up on to Hampton hill you find by gradually ascending we come to William Bennett's place. Mr. and Mrs. Bennett and two sons, Edward and George, lived there. The former was a Yale graduate and taught one term of fall school on the hill. The pupils coming from the surrounding districts filled the town hall. Edward went to Hartford, was postmaster there and married, but had no children. He lived to be 80 years old. George was a very fine speaker and we all gave our undivided attention when he was up on the floor. He married Helen Robinson of Hampton. Two daughters and a son were born to bless the union. Mr. Bennett has passed away, but the rest of the family are living.

On the opposite side of the street in a very small house lived Cesar and Julia Hall, whose children were Nancy, William, Susan and Mary (colored). They attended our school. Few of us girls attended Harvey Hazen's dancing school held in the hotel. During recess, out in the entry, Nancy furnished the music for us to practice some of our steps by putting a piece of paper over a coarse comb and then singing the words through the comb.

Mr. and Mrs. Hall lost a small child and I was anxious to see it. Securing permission from my mother, I walked to the house. Did you ever in your younger days write bed and make the e very black and hand it to a mate. Upon being asked the meaning, you replied "dark e in bed." The little one I saw there was in a black trunk, tiny in size, dressed in white, the first and only colored person I ever saw dead. I do not know whether the small trunk answered as a casket or not, as I did not attend the funeral.

The next house was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Alvah Burnham. Their children were Henry and Helen. The son married Mary Button and in later years was known as Judge Burnham. Helen married Hiram Rollock. Many cords of wood we burned up that came from this prosperous farm.

The next place on the same side of the street was a smaller house in which lived Joel Searles, a shoemaker, his wife and daughter. In a certain school, the teacher was a man. When in his chair at his desk he used to sit on cushion and when going to assist his pupils in writing in their seats he often asked one of the smaller children to get the cushion and bring it to him. Some thoughtful one put a piece of shoemaker's wax thereon unobserved by the teacher, and when he arose from his chair the cushion was right there with him and the pupils had a rest for a brief time. In those days the children could keep secrets. It was a great mystery how the wax came there. Being in Mr. Searles' house, I, like children nowdays, always wanting to drink, was given some water and the cover replaced over the pail containing it. The first and only place I ever saw it done. Good idea.

BRIEF HISTORY OF POMFRET

Dear Social Corner Friends and Editor: I will try and write a brief history about my old home town, having lived there the greater part of my life. The township was bought for £30 at several purchases of the Mohegan chiefs. The first and largest purchase contained 15,100 acres and was called the "Mashmoquet purchase," from the Indian name of the principal stream of water that ran through it. The second purchase lay east of the "Mashmoquet purchase" and extended to the Quinebaug river. The third purchase was made and contained the eastern and larger part of Mortlake, the present town of Brooklyn. The fourth purchase contained two square miles and the east part of Hampton and the south part of Abington. The fifth purchase claimed by possession was a strip of land 60 rods in width and two miles in length, lying between the "Mashmoquet purchase" and the Stoddard land. All these lands constituted the original town of Pomfret. The parish of Abington was chiefly settled by the first inhabitants in the old society. That much of tradition informs us that John Sharpe was the first child born in the north half of Abington in the year 1727. He was the person who at the age of 17 came up to the mouth of the wolf's hiding place with General Putnam and others. The general had a rope tied to his legs and with a torch in his hand crawled into the den to find the wolf's lair. Having crept in far enough to see her eyes flashing fire, he gave the signal and was drawn out by the men holding hold of the rope. Deliberately he loaded his pistol and with the torch in one hand and his pistol in the other, he crept in and shot the wolf that had destroyed the flocks, and was drawn out the second time. Again he crawled in and seized the animal and was drawn out with his prey, to the great joy of his comrades.

This cavern is an object of great curiosity, especially with people from abroad, and scarcely a stranger visits the town but makes it his business to visit the wolf den before he leaves. It is well worth visiting on account of its wild, romantic scenery. This place has been immortalized in Abington on account of the wonderful exploit performer by General Israel Putnam. It still opens its dismal mouth, which is about two feet squfre, on the east side of a very high ledge of rocks.

Not much change has taken place either in the scenery or in the cavern itself from the days of Putnam until now. The rocks all retain their ancient position. The very trees (many of them) which witnessed the gathering on the memorable night with dogs, guns, straw, fire and sulphur and saw the anxiety and the success of the perilous undertaking remain there still.

BEEN CORNER MEMBER 17 YEARS

Dear Social Corner: It is a long time since I have written for the Social Corner, and every week when I read all the interesting letters I feel more proud for belonging to it. I have been a member nearly 17 years and don't know as I should ever thought of joining if it had not been for Aunty No. 1. She can tell quite a story about it. She gave herself away all right and gave me a surprise at the same time. It was certainly fun in those days to find out "who was who."

Now if it's not too late I want to thank the Social Corner Member for the pretty calendar. It does not look as though I appreciated at very much in being so long in acknowledging it, but I do, and should have been sorry to have been left out. It has a station of honor on my desk where I can see it every time I sit down to it.

Silver Locks: Am sorry to hear you are not well. Was much interested in your letter as I, too, was born in that historical old town, and can remember many of those families of which you wrote. We go there once in a while to call on old friends and visit the cemetery where our dear ones are laid to rest.

Scottie: Judge by the letters to the Corner that you have been ill. Have not heard a word from you since we called that Sunday. Am sorry it rained last Wednesday, as I'm sure it kept many away from our meeting, you among them.

Mayfare: Was sorry not to see you, as I brought your friend, Mrs. L., as my guest, so she could visit with you. She was disappointed, too. You missed a lot, for Theoda did herself proud. Such a wonderful dinner and a delightful program in charge of California Girl.

Greetings to all on our 18th anniversary and best wishes for many, many more years of good times together.

ELIZA JANE.

TAKES ANOTHER'S PENNAME.

Dear Social Corner Editor—I have attended two of the Social Corner meetings, and have had such a nice time I would like to become a member. Perhaps some of the sisters would like to try this cake.

Eggless, Milkless, Butterless Cake—1 cup of molasses, 2 cups of flour, 1-2 teaspoon of cloves, 2 teaspoons of cinnamon, 2 cups of raisins, 1 teaspoon of soda, dissolved in 1 cup of boiling water and last of all 1 tablespoon of melted shortening. Mix in order given and bake 25 minutes in a medium oven.

I will take for my penname

(You have complied fully with the requirements for membership by including in you letter something besides your application but you have taken another's pen name. Please make some other selection and it will be recorded.—Social Corner Editor.)

ENJOYS LETTERS ON HOUSE PLANTS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: It has been such a long time since I wrote a letter for this page that I have ceased to be a member, but now I am renewing my membership. There has been such a host of interesting letters all winter that I couldn't resist the stimulus and just had to get my pen to going once more.

As the anniversary returned again and I compare the time I have been reading the letters it was practically from the very beginning of the page. I began by cutting out the candy recipes and making them into a book and from that to the cakes and on to how to make anything good to eat. My book was illustrated with pictures of anything pertaining to food and I prized it very much. It, with others I valued highly, went up in smoke. I am collecting material for another, but it will be very different from those.

I have been intensely interested in the letters about house plants, for that is a hobby of mine,too . I never had such good luck with plants in my life as this winter. The weather has been more favorable than it was some winters. Have kept a fire for them only during the cold, windy periods. Have a number of begonias, coleus and ferns that I enjoy very much. My amaryllis has sent out two stalks of flowers from one bulb; that I have never heard to happen before. Bulbs are very peculiar in some ways, as growth takes place within the bulb where it cannot be observed. In that way it gathers up force to send out new leaves and flower stalks.

There are so many interesting things to be learned from plants. The different ways of propagating new plants and the natural effort of the plant to renew itself, even when left entirely alone. I broke down two or three stalks of a scented geranium to get it out of the way. Left the broken tips hanging down beside the other stalks and they never even wilted. Went right on growing as though nothing had happened. I grow that plant as a memorial to a grandmother who was very fond of its scented foliage. There are several plants that are frequent reminders of my friends, who were particularly fond of them.

Another subject that has interested me very much also were the local history stories of Canterbury and the neighboring towns. Even though I am not very familiar with many of the places mentioned, yet a few I recognized from my limited acquaintance. One suggestion I would like to offer is if more dates could be recalled and given. They would be very valuable, indeed. I was particularly enthused over the man riding to the carding mill with a grist of corn to be ground and the sacks of wool to be carded tied about him as he rode along on horseback. That must date back something like 75 and even 100 years. Within my memory, my grandfather used to make annual trips to that same mill with wool for his stockings. He used to make the long trip in a day from where he lived in Rhode Island and carried a load in his wagon. Now the man who went on horseback would date back a great deal farther than that, of course.

The Nipmuck trail is another very interesting topic and I am wondering if that doesn't extend into Rhode Island a ways. I hope these fine writers treat us again, for those who can remember so many incidents have a wealth of interesting material to draw from that shouldn't be lost to the future generations.

I had hoped to call on Mr. and Mrs. Historian long ago for a little reminiscence, but there is an old saying about the "Best laid plans of mice and men," etc., is my explanation. I can almost hear Mr. Historian's paper and pencil rustling as he reads these fine history sketches.

As I read this page for a long time without knowing the real name of a single writer and not daring to write a line myself, the only name I could decide upon when I did write, was the SILENT STRANGER.

CLUB NO. 1'S ANNIVERSARY MEETING

Dear Social Corner Editor: A splendid time and a pleasant afternoon was enjoyed by the large attendance, considering the rainy morning, at the 18th anniversary of Social Corner club No. 1. It was observed very fittingly with Theoda, hostess, assisted by White Clover, Just Jill, Honey Suckle, California Girl, May, Ready Helper, Phylis, Wiltwick, Marigold and Mr. Caleb Albro serving the ice cream. Mary France had charge of articles consisting of cereals, jell, canned and packages, valued at about $6, donated by the ladies to be used by the local "welfare bureau" in assisting worthy families. As in former years, to cheer her, it was sent to Sister Diana, who is a shut-in.

There was the usual large variety of nice salads, cakes, rolls, coffee, relishes, baked beans, pies, crullers, with numerous other foods, besides the large fancy decorated birthday cake, enough for everyone to sample.

California Girl was in charge of the following entertainment. It was extra nice: Piano duet by Mrs. Clara Williams and Mrs. Cora Rice, followed by another as encore; vocal duet, Moonlight Night, by Mrs. Ruth Shedd and Mrs. Cora Rice, and as an encore Underneath the Trees. Mrs. Clara Beebe was accompanist on the piano. The following readings, appreciated by all present, were by Auntie No. 1, Chocolate, Effie, and Mrs. Clara Beebe in her usual pleasing manner gave Lizzie Announces Her Engagement for an encore. The Frenchman's version of Adam and Eve followed, with a piano solo by Mrs. Carl Rice. In closing the Old Fashioned Wedding was produced by pastor, Ready Helper; bride, Altheta; bridegroom, Lonesome Pine; bride's mother, Olga; bridesmaids were Alfara, Too Late and Paleface; Just Jill was an attendant. Betsy Bobbit was to assume duties as a policeman and as she was unable, a very good substitute was on duty until the wedding service closed.

DRUSILLA, Club No. 1.

ENJOYS CLUB No. 2's ANNIVERSARY.

Dear Corner Readers: As I haven't seen any write ups about the wonderful time that club No. 2 had at the 18th anniversary, I will send in a few lines. On entering the Buckingham memorial the first thing to greet the eye were different sized yellow butterflies hanging from cords over the doorways fastened on the wall. The ceiling lights looked like big yellow lamp shades. There were yellow and white napkins and white glass candle sticks with yellow candles, which were lit at dinner time. The favors at the table were daffodil cups with candy and peanuts. True Blue and Nellie Bly each made birthday cakes. True Blue's had 18 yellow holders and candles and I believe it went to our editor. There was an abundance of food to feed the 188 people who attended this dinner; this not only being the 18th anniversary of the Social Corner page, club No. 2 had with them that day "Henpeck Holler Sewing Circle." The cast included: Mayfare, as Matilda Brown, president of the sewing club at whose house they met; True Blue as May Potter secretary of the circle; Aunt May Jane as Belinda Snodgrass, chief gossip among the membership; Scottie as Angelina Beanblossom, the deaf sister who carries an ear trumpet; Red Rose as Calamity Blueberry, a member who looks after Angelina; Sister Ready as Violet; Lobelia Aster, the old maid who starts a march on the sewing society; Nellie Bly as Phoebe E. Green, who is easily flustrated; Necia as Polly Sidenbender, the suspicious member; Country Sister as Sophronia Dolittle who is great on style; Balinda, daughter, Susie Snodgrass, brings news of the society to her mother.

The hats, dresses, wraps and fans all were of the eighteenth centry.

It made quite a hit with those present as the way the room was filled with people. I doubt if many left until the entertainment was over. Old time songs were sung. I believe all seem to enjoy those songs by the the way their voices rung out and their whole heart is in it.

It is a hard day for the hostess and helpers, but it marks another milestone in the good times that club No. 2 always have.

Visitors were present from all the clubs as well as new members coming in; trusting that each and all had as enjoyable a time as the writer. I'll say I hope I can attend more as nice and am glad I am a Social Corner member.

A SOCIAL CORNER INDEED

Dear Social Cornerites: It has been some time since my letter has appeared on our page—yet all the letters from the different sisters have afforded me much pleasure and benefit in the past two years since I first joined the club. I especially enjoy our department of this good paper where the sisters write of their different methods of work and helpful suggestions and ideas and the discussions of home topics — the little short cuts through the routine of household cares that you have learned or originated—and so have let what helps you help others. Yes, I think this department is a Social Corner indeed, where I hope the best of feeling shall always prevail. As this is my first letter for 1928 hope it is not too late to extend "anks for the pretty potted plant calendar sent me at the new year by some member of the club. I have several fine calendars, but this one surpasses them all in beauty and novelty. On the 14th a party of six from club No. 4 motored to Willimantic to visit club No. 1. The day was fine and we had a jolly good meeting—the large number being present was evidence of the esteem with which the genial hostess and her assistants are regarded by their friends and acquaintances. They did everything in their power to contribute to the comfort and entertainment of all. At the noon hour we were invited to the dining room where a bountiful repast awaited us everything known to be good to eat and drink was there to appease the appetite. In the afternoon we were treated to a program of recitations—music and singing—also a fine little playlet which merited high applause. The occasion was a most enjoyable one and when the good-bys had been said we started on our homeward way much pleased with the day's pleasure and hoping we may have many returns of such a pleasant gathering.

THANKS SISTERS FOR GIFT

Dear Corner Editor and Corner Sisters: I intended writing a few lines for the Corner's birthday, but am a week behind. Although many of the Corner family have passed on, the Corner, for which they wrote, still survives and flourishes; also the influence and the memory of those letters which have helped to cheer and encourage the members have also helped those outside our circle.

I trust the sick are recovering and those, who do not wholly recover, to be as comfortable as possible. Cheerfulness and patience are great helps. My sympathy is extended to all those who are sorrowing and lonely, because some dear one has been taken. "God will heal the wound He has given. Lean hard on Him and He will comfort you and give you the required grace and strength you so sorely need."

I wish to thank the sisters for their donation, gift valentine or whatever you may call it. Theoda sent it, so it would reach me on Saturday and it did and I am very thankul to you all. It is good to feel that although you are out of things there are those who are interested in and think of you.

I have been in poor health, but am looking forward to the spring, which is near at hand, for I hope to feel better.

My sister, who has been sick, is better.

We are having a stormy Sunday, first it snows then it rains and visa verss.

I wish that peace, happiness and prosperity will come to each sister and brother of the Social Corner this coming year. I wish to thank you again for my gift. Best wishes,

DANA

THE STORY OF PRUDENCE CRANDALL

Dear Sisters of The Social Corner:—Seeing that some of the sisters are writing about old times and old places, I doubt if any of the sisters can recall the story of Prudence Crandall.

In the autumn of 1831 Miss Prudence Crandall opened a young ladies' boarding school in that part of Canterbury known as "Canterbury Green." A goodly number were enrolled as pupils argely the best families in the town.

In the family of Miss Crandall was a colored girl who was accustomed to receive calls from Miss Sarah Harris a respectable colored young women and member of the Canterbury church who, during one of these visits, expressed a desire to enter the school, as a pupil boarding at home.

Miss Crandall accepted her as one of her scholars; giving, thereby, to her patrons the gravest offense; and who, in response to their protestations, soon found their daughters dismissed from thhe school, instead of the colored c a school for "nigger girls" in the aristocratic section of that noticable town. That became a packed and excited town meeting, with series of protesting resolution; then a formidable array of town officers to present the resolution, and beseech compliance with the unanimous wish of the people of the appalled town; then came from Miss Crandall her dignified declination to abandon her project; and then, on the appointed day, twelve harmless, quiet, shy little colored misses from some of the best colored families in the northern cities, found their way to Canterbury, and the school began.

Up to this time the excitement as compared with what followed, had been temperate; now the heat began to rise. Town meeting followed town meetin, at some of which it was nosily averred that "the school was intended to promulgate the disgusting doctrines of amalgamation; to scatter firefrands, arrows and death far and wide." The old paupers and vagrant law was pressed into service, and a warrant served upon one of the scholars, ordering her out of town, unless her maintenance was guaranteed, or "to be whipped on the naked body not exceeding 10 blows in default of satisfaction or departure.

The general assembly was petitioned, and while waiting its action, nonintercourse was tried.

The stage driver refused to carry her pupils, merchants to sell her provisions, neighbors refused a pail of water, after their own sons had filled Miss Crandall's well with manure. Stones and rotten eggs were the proud contributions of the young men, to the discomfort of the school-room and scholars. Miss Crandall herself, as well as her father, suffered almost every dignity, all of which she bore with the meekest nonresistant, Quaker-Christian spirit.

At length the legislature of the great commonwealth of Connecticut came to the rescue with a law, imposing a fine of $500 on any person who should instruct or board any pupils of color without the consent of the civil authority of any town; and thereupon they rang the church bell and fired cannon, and indulged in seemingly and unseemingly demonstrations of riotous delight.

Miss Crandall went calmly on. Soon she was arrested, tried, convicted, and taken to Brooklyn jail, in default of procuring bonds for appearance in a higher court, where she was immured in a murderer's cell—the room but recently occupied by Watkins, while waiting his execution.

She was afterward released on bail; continued the school in the face of most relentless and cruel opposition until September 1834, when her house was set on fire (although not consumed) and subsequently the windows and doors were dashed in by a mob of lawless men, and the family made so continuously terror-stricken that Miss Crandall concluded to announce to her frightened pupils that her school would close; and soon she left Windham county forever.

During these frightful and fruitful years Thomas Lathrop, a colored man, was living in the same town, though in the adjoining parish of Westminister, with his wife, who was born in Savannah, Ga., a slave, and who came to New York at the age of 11, taken away by a free-born colored woman.

These persons were married Nov. 28, 1830, and both united with the church Jan. 6, 1833, in the midst of this great excitement and sharing in the contumely and ill-treatment put more or less largely upon every colored persons in town.

Now pass over 50 years. Mr. Lathrop and his wife had always, with a trifling exception—lived in the same town, faithful and greatly respected members of the church. One of the daughters, some time a teacher in Virginia, has, when at home, always sung with her white sisters in the choir and in recent years Mr. Lathrop had been frequently solicited to become an officer of the Westminister church.

On the recurrence of the 50th anniversary of their marriage—their golden wedding day—the people resolved to do them proper honor, and when the day came, the old church was well filled with people, from nearly all the town of Canterbury, with representatives from Norwich, Scotland, Plainfield, Thompson, Brooklyn, Lisbon, Sprague and for aught I know, other sections.

Then came a regular Thanksgiving dinner, with the honored couple at the head of the table, and friends of early and later days sitting with them at the heaped board.

Then came speeches and poems, and prayers from men known in public life, and with all $90, mainly all in gold, besides numerous other things for the deserving pair and when the gray-haired man rose in his place and thanked the people for their kindness there were few but what were moved to tears. The spirit of the gathering was the spirit of Christ and God, "who has made us of one blood and nation to dwell upon the earth," was there with His consciously felt benediction.

In that gathering was one man who was solicited to be one of the number who should burn the house of Miss Crandall, but who refused and possibly there might have been those whose ancestors were among the persons who in the town 50 years before, wrought the evil I briefly described.

What a change the half century had brought to our town, and what a change to our nation and the wide world.

STARLIGHT

WHY PEN NAME WAS SELECTED.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I will now answer the roll call for 1928. First, I want to thank a Social Corner member for the beautiful potted plant calendar. I, too, noticed the yellow plant for the month of the anniversaries, I having it in the most conspicuous place I could find in my living room. I should be pleased if the donor would let me know who is who, so I might return the favor. Through the kindness of E. L. N. with her new Buick I had the pleasure to attend the anniversary meeting of Club No. 2. I have planned many times to go, but always something would happen that I could not go. I did not dare to think that I was really going until we had reached Norwich and was safely seated in the hall. I met quite a number I knew, and many I didn't know, but all the same I enjoyed myself very much as I always plan to have a good time wherever I go.

Calla Lily: Was pleased to meet you. You certainly had to do some shouting. It reminded me of "when the bees are swarming." Perhaps if you had pounded two tin pans together you might have caused silence. Who knows?

Crimson Rambler: Glad to see you. Why don't you write up a chapter on rug making? As I know you are a master hand at it, but the number I saw when I was there last summer. Oh, that dinner and the last course. That was delicious.

Olga: Where did you go, too? Didn't see you after that embrace. Ha! ha!

Calla Lily and Anastasia: You are not the only ones that look for the Eastern Voluntown news in the Bulletin. When sweet summer comes again and the roads are good I am going to call on the correspondent, also Moses.

Next Tuesday, March 26, is the second anniversary of Club No. 6, which meets in Mechanics hall, over the Mohican store, opposite the library on Broad street, Westerly. A very easy place to find and of course, the hostess will have the yellow bow on the right door. Come and don't forget to bring plate, cup, knife, fork and spoon, as there are no dishes in the hall; also bring something nice to eat. Hoping to have a pleasant day and a good attendance.

I have read that quite a number have asked writers to tell why they selected their pen name, so I will tell why I selected mine. I had read the Bulletin for quite a while, but never paid much attention to the Social Corner page; just glancing it over, when one day my eyes fell on these words, "Old Church at Beach Pond." I became interested right off. I thought I knew every building around Beach Pond, as I was born and brought up in that locality and had been there many times to picnics with my father and mother, so I watched eagerly for the reply. The old church turned out to be the Campbell school house, which to my surprise when I was by there last summer had tumbled down and the bush was so thick that I could hardly see where it stood. After that I read everything on the Social Corner page and that is why I am

INTERESTED READER.

FAVORS IMMENSE CORNER GATHERING

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: I was very much pleased to attend the anniversary meeting at Willimantic on March 14th. The weather indications in the morning were not favorable for a nice day as it was rainy, but after noon it ceased, though the sun failed to appear. The chamber of commerce rooms were a busy place as sisters arrived in groups from all directions. Quite a delegation came by special bus from Westerly from Club No. 6. There were over 100 that were seated to the dinner table. Our hostess, Theoda and her assistants were decorated with very pretty gold crep paper headgear. The long tables were also displayed with trimmings of the Social Corner color. After we had all taken our places at the table and while standing we joined in singing Doxology, then being seated we were served to a fine dinner. On the guest table was placed a large birthday cake with 18 little yellow candles, which were lit and burning while we enjoyed the hot meat pie, salads, beans, pies, cake, rolls, relishes, macoroni and cheese and last, but not least, delicious hot coffee, (that went to the right spot). The birthday cake was to be presented to the editor and we leave it to him to sound the praises of its quality. However, some one of our good sisters, whose identity I regret not to learn, presented an extra large birthday cake and I believe every one present had a sample of it, which was very nice. Ice cream was also served.

The entertainment program was much enjoyed, which consisted of music and readings. I am unable to give the names of these ladies who supplied these numbers, except Sister Chocolate and Sister Effie M., who gave readings. The conclusion of the program was a mock wedding and I doubt if any one kept on a straight face, when the bridal party, following the parson, entered the room. The costumes were quite antique, some of the millinery display, probably beyond the remembrance of our oldest sisters in the period when those hats were up-to-date. The marriage ceremony was conditional on promises from both parties, which were agreed to, but somewhat in variance from any I ever witnessed before. To say the least, we had lots of fun and everybody had a good laugh. As this was the annual donation day there was quite a generous response of gifts of various kinds. Aunty No. 1's letter has given us a very good history of the Social Corner since its beginning 18 years ago. I trust the interest may continue and the cause for helpfulness increase. We have all enjoyed many pleasant social gatherings, we have made new friends and we have learned many ideas in the household line, little items that seem simple, yet very helpful when needed. As one of the sisters has suggested and I, for one agree with her, it would be a good idea if we could have one big gathering; a picnic this summer, and have all that could possibly come, join together for a big crowd. Let us hope that each and every member will try to do her bit in this 19th year to improse the welfare of the Social Corner.

JENNIE (Club 1).

THINKS RURAL AUNTY'S IDEA IS FINE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: I have just finished reading the Social Corner page, and enjoy reading the letters very much.

I wish I could write such nice interesting letters as some of the members do.

Aunty No. 1: Your letter of last week was very interesting. A wonderful history of the Social Corner.

Wurdy Belle: Your letter was fine. What a lovely anniversary meeting you did have. Wish I could have been there.

I enjoy going to the meetings so much. We had such a fine time March 1. The club surely is growing. As Rural Delivery says—a good thing will live and grow.

Rural Aunty: I think your idea of having a picnic this summer and a basket lunch, is fine. Would be something a little different. Hope there will be more about it from other members regarding it.

Ann Tenna asked the members to tell how their pen names originated, so I will tell you how I took mine. A few years ago there was a card game we used to play called Fan Tan, a Chinese game. So, I named my cat, Fan Tan. When I joined the Corner, I couldn't think of a name to take. I heard a lady there at the club meeting say she took her cat's name, so right away I thought my cat's name would be alright, too. So that's how I got my name.

Dece: Yours was a fine idea.

Hope more of the members will tell us about their pen names.

Greetings and best wishes to all.

FAN TAN (Club No. 4).

CALIFORNIA'S WONDERS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I am wondering if you would care for another letter from California. I don't want to weary you, but I am so interested in everything I see that I think of you often.

Since last writing to you, I have been out to the San Gabriel mission and been through the same.

This mission was formed in 1771. There are wonderful things that have been preserved including a chair over 300 years old brought from Spain. The lovely altar that has stood for 150 years was beautiful with fresh flowers. All the woodwork and images were brought from Spain.

An earthquake had caused the roof to fall, but it had been repaired and services are still held in the mission.

An outside staircase, worn deep by the feet of Padres, Mexicans and Indians, was very impressive. Four bells of the six original ones still hang in the Campanile. I went out on the roof and touched the bells.

Fray Junipero Serra, the wonderful man who built these missions and did such wonderful good for the Indians, I will have to tell you about when I come back, also try to tell you about

HEAVY WEEK-END PROFIT-TAKING CHECKED ADVANCE IN SOME ISSUES

NEW YORK, March 24—(AP)—General Motors, soaring 3 1-4 points to another new high record at 187 1-4, led another violent upturn in prices in today's stock market. Heavy week-end profit-taking and sporadic bear selling checked the advance in some issues, and sent a few below last night's final quotations. For the 11th consecutive full session, total sales crossed the 3,000,000 share mark, but they were well below yesterday's record-breaking total.

The unexpectedly small increase in brokers' loans undoubtedly stimulated speculative operations for the advance, and forced hasty short covering by bear traders who had sold stocks freely in anticipation of a huge increase in brokers' borrowings. The rise in General Motors was explained, in part at least, by the optimistic statement of John J. Raskob, chairman of the finance committee, who stated that first quarter sales and earnings were running 26 per cent ahead of a year ago, and would establish a new high record.

Business news generally was mixed in character. The weekly mercantile reviews characterized business as fair. Dun's stated that "the scope of the spring business expansion, although gradually widening, is not yet far-reaching" and Bradstreet's reported that "spring trade goes forward steadily, if in most areas rather slowly, being still under the handicap of seasonal storms, generally poor roads and the influence of both the above features upon out-of-door operations." Gimbel Bros. made public a disappointing earnings report for 1927.

Fluctuations in the general list were somewhat more erratic than they have been heretofore, but the industrial average showed a moderate gain on the day. Radio, for instance, closed unchanged at 131 after fluctuating between 149 1-4 and 157 3-8, having opened at 153. U. S. Steel common moved up two points to 150 1-2 in the early trading and then slipped back to 147 1-8, despite reports that one of its subsidiaries had lighted 350 additional coke ovens.

Atlas Powder soared 16 points to 191 and closed two points below the top. DuPont retained 9 1-4 points of its 13-point gain and Adams Express run up 13 points on a few sales. Mexican Petroleum, a star performer of by-gone days and now seldom traded in, jumped 45 points on two odd lot transactions.

New high prices in the industrial list were recorded by such widely diversified issues as American Snuff, American Smelting, Coca Cola, Corn Products Refining, Engineers Public Service, General Electric, International Harvester, Otis Steel, Savage Arms, Southern Dairies, and Victor Talking Machine.

In the railroad group, new peak prices were created by St. Louis-San Francisco common, Rock Island, Reading, Texas & Pacific, Hudson & Manhattan and Iowa Central. Jersey Central jumped nine points to a new high at 323. The railroad average showed a small net loss on the day.

Call money held steady at 4 1-2 per cent all day, despite the calling of stock worth $10,000,000 in loans. There was no change in time money and commercial paper.

Foreign exchanges were slightly firmer. Sterling cables ruled unchanged around $4.88 1-4 but small advances were recorded by several of the continental currencies.

Commodity markets were reactionary. Wheat, corn and oats declined a cent or so a bushel with selling influenced by reports of milder weather. Cotton declined 70 cents to nearly a dollar a bale and coffee and sugar markets showed an easier undertone.

SOCIAL CORNER

the Mission Play, the most wonderful, touching thing I have ever seen.

We took lunch in the house where Ramona was born, and in a yard back of the house is a grapevine, the largest one in the world. 12 feet around the stem, three large branches spreading over trossel work to cover one half acre. In summer it must be lovely covered with green leaves and grapes.

There is a cafe under it; last year 12 tons of grapes were taken from it.

If I ever come to California again, and I never expect to, I am coming in summer when everything is in its glory.

We had a delightful trip to Los Angeles harbor, San Pedro. Here ships from all parts of the world can be seen. There is a lovely park with many stoves where we can cook our dinner. We carried fried rabbit, lettuce sandwiches, buttered beets, celery, apple pie, cheese and coffee. Then we rode up, up, up to Palos Verdes and oh! what a view over the Pacific ocean and Catalina Island, and what looked like inland seas, proved to be acres and acres of blue wild lupine.

In April we are going to the desert to see the wild flowers in bloom. It will take two days. The California poppy is commencing to bloom and I am told they are yellow seas.

We had a ride to Orange county park about 45 miles from Los Angeles. Here we found dozens of stoves and hundreds of people. One party was broiling six slices of sirloin steak and all the tables made me think of our Social Corner dinners.

We went to hear Aimee Semple McPherson, but could not get into the temple. Hundreds of people were turned away. We are going again soon and going early. I have recently been to see Mrs. Slocum. She is well and seeing all the sights.

Today the news has just come of the terrible break of a dam above the city 45 miles away and the ruinsis beyond description, is so tremendous it cannot be sensed. These are the same towns and roads that early in the winter I rode over and wrote about in a former letter. Such a beautiful country you cannot imagine and now it is a total loss; the mud is 30 feet deep in some places. The water rushed 30 miles to the sea.

Every sign of spring is here, peaches and figs forming on the trees, flowers in bloom. I am going to Santa Monica today to the Pacific ocean. It is well named. It seldom has more than a ripple.

I appreciate my many cards and letters from the Sisters.

BLANDINA.

ACKNOWLEDGES EXPRESSIONS OF SYMPATHY

Dear Social Corner Friends: It's a long time since I have written to the Corner page, but I assure you it was not from lack of interest. Those of you who know of my great loss—will know the reason of my long absence from the Social Corner page. I gratefully acknowledge the expressions of sympathy from Aries, Crimson Rambler and Buffalo and others. Those of you who knew my mother, (Jack's Wife), will remember she had been a semi-invalid for the last six years, and was confined to her bed three months in her last illness.

Whirlwind: Mother was much pleased with your card at Christmas time, and she said "we must send a card to Whirlwind at New Year's." I intended to get one, and send it to you, but at the time mother was so much worse, I did not think of it, so you see, it was not mother's fault, but mine, that you didn't receive a card in return.

L. T. H.: My mother would have been interested in your letter in last week's Bulletin, March 10. She lived in Scotland, when she was a child on the farm, which was afterward owned by Alden and Mary Fuller. There was a blacksmith shop on the place, and I think Mr. F. and his son, John, ran the shop.

Mrs. Fuller was a cousin of my mother. At the time we lived in Yantic

John Fuller drove down from Scotland and carried our family back with him to spend Sunday. I remember we children were delighted to be staying in a house where our mother had lived when she was a little girl, and she enjoyed it as much as we did. John and his mother were there about then, as his father had died years before. Now he and his mother and my father and mother have all gone to their heavenly home.

Buffalo: I remember you very well when we both went to school to Mrs. Peckham's. You probably do not remember me, as I was nearer your sister Amy's age than yours. Do you remember the name of the song books we used at that time in school? Was it "Blue Robin"? Those were the happy days but we didn't realize it then, did we?

Betty Zane: You are living in the house where I spent many happy hours (in Yantic). I lived in the house the other side of the church. Your friend, Mrs. A. R., of F—, is wondering why you have not answered her letter. How is Mr. Betty Zane? Does he write letters often? When A. R. writes to you again she will tell you my real name.

Best wishes to all in the Social Corner.

ORMONDINE.

ORIGIN OF SOME PLANTS.

Dear Social Corner Members: It's been nearly a year since I sent a letter to the Corner, and as I do not wish to have my name taken off the list I will send a few lines. This is a beautiful day and surely spring is nearly here. Yesterday I saw a flock of robins, also pussy willows.

First I wish to extend my sympathy to our dear bereaved sister, Rebecca. She will be lonesome now. We must make it cheery and pleasant as we can for her. Send her cards and those who can, drop in and call. We have missed her greatly at our gatherings, but hope now to see her with us.

I am also sorry for those who are sick and unable to go out these pleasant days, but sincerely hope every one will improve as the days get warmer.

I am sending an article on the Origin of Plants and should the following record interest the readers of our Corner page as it does me, it will fully repay the space it occupies in our columns.

At different times, here and there, I have saved them and will now send the list, which follows:

Madder, a plant used for dyeing red, came from the east. Celery originated in Germany. The chestnut came from Italy. The onion originated in Egypt. Tobacco is a native of Virginia. The nettle is a native plant of Europe. The citron is from Greece. The pine is a native of America. The poppy originated in the east. Oats originated in North America. Rye came originally from Siberia. Parsley was first known in Sardinia. The pear and apple are from Europe. Spinach was first cultivated in Arabia. The sunflower was brought from Peru. The mulberry tree originated in Persia. The gourd is an eastern plant. The walnut and peach also came from Persia. The horse chestnut comes from Thibet. The cucumber comes from the East Indies.

The quince comes from the island of Crete. The radish is a native plant of China and Japan. Peas are supposed to be of Egyptian origin. Beans from the East Indies, cress from Egypt. Horse radish came from the southern part of Europe. The Zealand flax shows its origin by its name. The coriander, a fragrant, spicy plant, grows wild near the Mediterranean. The Jerusalem artichoke is a Brazilian product. Hemp is a native of Persia and the East Indies. The cranberry is a native of Europe and America. The parsnip is supposed to have been first cultivated in Arabia. The potato is a well known plant of Peru and Mexico.

The currant and gooseberry came from southern Europe.

Rape seed and cabbage grow wild in Sicily and Naples.

Buckwheat came originally from Siberia.

Barley was found in the mountains of Himalaya.

Millet was first known in India and Abyssinia.

Must fly away now, leaving my best wishes for the Social Corner.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Peter Finds Bobby Fishing

When spring arrives it sets me wishing
That I might spend my time in fishing.

—Bobby Coon.

Bobby Coon is very fond of fishing. He likes the fish and I suspect he likes the fun of catching them. He loves to wander up and down the Laughing Brook and he spends a lot of time doing it. So, when Peter Rabbit started out to look for Bobby Coon, he knew just where to go. He headed straight for the Laughing Brook and he ran as fast as his legs could take him, lipperty-lipperty-lip. When he reached the Laughing Brook he didn't know whether to go up or down. He sat down for a moment to think it over. As he sat there he heard the voice of Sammy Jay. Sammy was crying "Thief! Thief! Thief!" and he was not very far down the Laughing Brook.

Peter listened for a moment. "He doesn't see Reddy Fox; he doesn't see Old Man Coyote; he doesn't see anybody for me to be afraid of," thought Peter. "I can tell by the sound of his voice. He is just trying to tease somebody. I wonder if it can be Bobby Coon."

Peter kicked up his heels and off he started down the bank of the Laughing Brook, lipperty-lipperty-lip. As he drew near the place from which the voice of Sammy Jay was coming he went more slowly. Pretty soon he would take only a hop or two before stopping to look and listen. At last he reached a place where he could see a certain little pool in the Laughing Brook. Sammy Jay was in a tree just above this. A little movement on the opposite shore caught Peter's attention. There sat Bobby Coon on the very edge of the water.

Peter kept still. He had two reasons for keeping still. One was that he wanted to see Bobby Coon catch a fish. The other was that he didn't want to be seen himself by Sammy Jay. He knew that if Sammy should see him Sammy would at once begin teasing him. He didn't want to be teased. He didn't want Sammy to know what he was over there in the Green Forest for.

Bobby Coon was sitting at the very edge of that little pool and his eyes were fixed on the water. He was looking down into it and he was paying no heed whatever to Sammy Jay or to anything else. Some minnows were swimming about in that little pool. It was on these minnows that Bobby had his eyes fixed. He watched their every movement. All the time Sammy Jay was making a great racket, but Bobby paid no attention to him at all. He didn't even look up. And this made Sammy Jay try all the harder.

"It's a good thing those minnows can't hear Sammy Jay's voice," thought Peter. "If they could Bobby wouldn't have a chance in the world. I wonder if he really can catch one of them. I haven't anything to do, so I'll just sit here and watch a while. Anyway, it would be useless to ask Bobby questions while he is fishing or to try to tell him anything."

Presently Sammy Jay gave up in disgust and flew away. Then, save for the gurgling laughter of the Laughing Brook, it was very still there in the Green Forest. It was so still that Peter began to grow sleepy. Once or twice he actually doed. Each time his eyes flew open and he gave a little start as he anxiously looked toward Bobby Coon. He was afraid that Bobby might have left while he was dozing. Then he began to wonder if Bobby was asleep. He hadn't moved since Peter had arrived. It didn't seem as if any one could sit still for so long.

"He must be asleep," said Peter to himself at last. "Yes, sir, he must be asleep."

And just then something happened on the opposite shore of that little pool. A little black hand shot down into the water like a flash. A silvery minnow dopped out on the bank and, before it could flop back into the water again, two little black hands pinned it down. Bobby Coon had caught a fish.

TROY LAUNDRY
282 FRANKLIN ST.
F. RUSSELL SMITH, PRES.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week Lyman W. Randall, a well known resident at East Great Plain, was buried at Yantic cemetery. Mr. Randall died the previous Saturday after a long illness. The same week the fire department was called out for a couple of small fires. A runaway horse on Main street enlivened the business district of the city for a few minutes. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Bulletin of March, 1878, are as follows:

Monday, Mar. 18, 1878—The wearing of white clover, yesterday, was the only demonstration in honor of St. Patrick's day. The significance of this symbol, according to popular belief, is, that when St. Patrick was preaching the doctrine of the Trinity, he used this plant, which has three leaves on one stem, as a symbolic illustration of the great mystery.

The Thames Loan and Trust Co. are placing in their new room in the Wauregan block, a first class safe, made by William H. Butler, formerly of Valentine and Butler.

Quite a number of knights of Columbian Commandery, K. T., visit New London this evening to witness the exemplification of work of Palestine Commandery at that place.

After a long and painful illness, Mr. Lyman W. Randall, died at his residence about one mile west of this city on Saturday at 11 o'clock. He leaves a wife and two daughters to mourn his death and a large circle of friends will miss his genial and hearty salutations. He is to be buried in Yantic cemetery.

Tuesday, Mar. 19, 1878—Somerby's combination entertainment occupied Breed hall last evening. DeFlorence exhibited his powers as a ventriloquist and juggler and Miss Jennie Vaughn rendered several popular songs. In the presentation feature the three leading prizes were awarded as follows: Crystal sugar bowl, to Orlando Heddon of Preston; heavy silver caster to George May of Franklin street; set of chamber furniture to Mrs. J. Haldroyd of High street.

The last of the series of up town entertainments takes place this evening. The programme is a choice one. These occasional entertainments of our up town friends have been a source of enjoyment during the winter. That another winter may see another series is our desire. We bespeak a full house for them this evening.

By request the Rev. W. E. Bates will deliver this evening in the Methodist church, Greeneville, the temperance lecture given by him in September last, at the Congregational lecture room.

The sloop Lucy E. Wilcox lies at Osgood's wharf, direct from Block Island, with fresh cod and haddock.

Wednesday, Mar. 20, 1878—The funeral services of Lyman W. Randall at East Great Plain, yesterday, were very largely attended. They were conducted by the Rev. John Davies of the Central Baptist church and Messrs. F. L. Gardner, Judge Kellogg, H. H. Gallup and Joab Rogers acted as bearers.

The opening of the superior court at New London took nearly all the lawyers out of town. Of course a large share of interest centers now in the Goddard homicide case which is still in the hands of the grand jury.

An alarm of fire was sounded about half past two o'clock yesterday afternoon and the several companies responded promptly, although their services were not necessary as the flames were under control before their arrival. The fire was in Rowland Chapman's tenant house on School street and originated about the chimney. Little damage was done.

Thursday, March 21, 1878—The grand jury in the case of John Goddard, charged with taking the life of Michael Mackey, concluded their investigation yesterday, and indicted the prisoner for manslaughter. It is not probable that Goddard will have his final trial till the June term of the superior court, which meets in this city, Judge Hitchcock, presiding.

A preliminary survey of the river in the region of the chosen course for the Yale-Harvard regatta has already been made by Engineer Arms and mapped out for future reference. The setting of stakes and determining the boundaries of the course will be undertaken in a few days.

The remains of the late T. W. Swan reached Old Lyme on Saturday last, in the care of Col. Thomas S. Swan, his father. The funeral ceremonies took place yesterday at the Congregational church in Old Lyme and were largely attended.

The burning of a window curtain in a residence on the Union street side of the Little Plain, last evening, evoked an alarm of fire, but the affair was so trifling that the bells did not call out the department.

Friday, March 22, 1878—By the request of a number of gentlemen interested, Dr. Wilson gives a free lecture at Temperance hall, this evening at 7 1-2 o'clock, one the use and abuse of tobacco.

The Rev. Father Shahan, the new pastor of St. Mary's Catholic parish, has assumed his charge. Father Thomas W. Broderick of Meriden takes Father Shahan's place at Stafford.

A despatch received from Montreal, last night, stated that John J. Cauley, a young medical student from Norwich died very suddenly at that place, yesterday.

Saturday, March 23, 1878—A man who has been selling birds in town let, one, Brewster, have 13 canaries to take home with him. Wednesday evening, so that he might have abundant opportunity to choose from the lot the best singers with the understanding that he was to purchase one or more. Brewster took the birds to Taftville the same night and there purchased a ticket for Boston. Nothing has been seen of the man or the birds since.

Preston is excited over the sudden departure for parts unknown last Saturday evening of Lot K. Brown living in the eastern part of the township. His sudden leave is coupled with the disappearance a few days before of a woman living in that neighborhood.

One of McChesney's single teams, while left standing in front of the Wauregan house a little before noon, yesterday, started upon a runaway through Main street and succeeded in raising the dust. The top of the carriage was left in one place, the running gear in another, but the horse continued for some distance up Washington street. No one was injured, although several collisions of teams occurred.

Silence is a true friend who never betrays.

NEW LONDON STILL HUMS OVER MARSHALL RESIGNATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 23—Horace S. Peckham, 211 Howard street, was arrested tonight charged with violation of the liquor law and will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning. Peckham was arrested this evening by Detective Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith, Acting Sergeant William Graham and Patrolman Dennis Murphy. Several complaints had been received at police headquarters, alleging that Peckham's residence was the headquarters for liquor distribution and tonight the officers decided to raid his house. They went there about 7:30 and found two five gallon stills and a quantity of mash; the latter was seized as evidence against Peckham. Peckham was arrested Jan. 9, 1926 and the following day he answered in the police court to two counts of violation of the liquor law—keeping with intent to sell and actual sale. He was fined $200 and costs on each count. Peckham, who is being held in bail of $1,000, is alleged to have been the distiller of a great amount of liquor that has been sold from speakeasies throughout the city ever since prohibition went into effect.

Thomas Dombrowski, 8, of 30 Potter street, who sustained a fractured skull two weeks ago when struck on Main street by an automobile driven by Leslie Lewitt, of 79 Phillips street, and who since the accident has been in an unconscious state at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, displayed a slight improvement this afternoon. The lad showed a tendency to regain consciousness. Although the boy's condition is somewhat improved, he is still on the dangerous list. Hewitt is being held for trial next Monday on a charge of reckless driving, but it is probable when the trial date arrives that the case will be further continued, unless the boy should die, in which event Hewitt will be charged with manslaughter.

NEW LONDON, March 23—The resignation of President Benjamin T. Marshall of Connecticut college, which was accepted by the board of trustees yesterday, is effective July 1. In lieu of his long service he is to receive his present salary in regular monthly installments for a period of one year, the amount not to exceed $10,000.

Considerable mystery surrounds the decision of the board in accepting Mr Marshall's resignation. It was tendered by his brother, Andrew Marshall of Boston, on February 10, with the request that no attack be made on the president's honesty, integrity, or management of college affairs. When questioned today, members of the board living in this city were averse to making any comments whatever on the affair. The only explanation made was the written statement given the press last night to the effect that acceptance of the resignation was for the best interest of all concerned.

Students at the college were amazed to learn of the action of the trustees as Mr. Marshall's act in resigning was considered by them as a sort of gesture in the Wells controversy. They were not of the opinion that the resignation would be accepted.

Professor John Edward Wells, whose resignation is requested, was the second party to the argument which precipitated all the trouble. He and the president were continually rubbing each other the wrong way. Each had sharp differences over the manner in which English should be taught at the school.

During the years that Mr. Marshall has served as president of the college he has made numerous loyal friends who deeply regret the news of his concluding his relationships here.

The administrative work of the college, until a successor to President Marshall is named, will be carried on by a committee, made up probably, from members of the board of trustees and the faculty. It is the wish of the board and others who are connected closely with the college to secure a president from some other school. It is thought that should some member of the present faculty be named there would be an aftermath of the present trouble, as present members are bound to be more or less biased in their opinion regarding the Marshall-Wells controversy. This, it is thought in New London, is the real reason why the board accepted the resignation, as one member has stated that the school could not hope to grow in a progressive, modern manner while bickering was going on among those who are its guiding spirit.

WM. M. CORCORAN TO LEAVE CONNECTICUT FOR NEW YORK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 23—Announcement was made today that William M. Corcoran, a native of New London, actuary of the Connecticut insurance department, had tendered his resignation, to become effective on May 1. After that date he will be associated with the firm of S. H. and Lee J. Wolfe, consulting actuaries of New York.

Mr. Corcoran has served with two insurance commissioners of Connecticut, Burton Mansfield and Howard P. Dunham. Before working with the Connecticut department, he was assistant actuar yof the Massachusetts insurance department. During the World war Mr. Corcoran was a second lieutenant in the U. S. field artillery. He is a graduate of Bulkeley school and Yale university. Being one of the youngest actuaries in the United States, Mr. Corcoran is well known throughout the insurance fraternity and is connected with many associations akin to the industry. He was the sponsor for legislation that permitted the American Men Table of Mortality to be used in Connecticut, the first state to take such action. Eighteen other states have since taken the same action. He is an associate of the Actuarial Society of America, a member of the Council of the Casuality Actuarial Society and a fellow of the same organization. He belongs to the following clubs and fraternities: Phi Beta Kappa society, Book and Bond fraternity, Hartford University club, Hartford Yale club and the Actuaries Club of Hartford.

JOHN C. GEARY'S ESTATE SAID TO TOTAL $1,500,000

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 23—The late John C. Geary, according to former close business associates, left an estate that approximates $1,500,000. Contrary to expectations it has been ascertained that he died intestate and his widow, according to Connecticut law, will receive the entire estate. There were no children born to Mr. and Mrs. Geary. Attorney Marion R. Davis, law partner of Mr. Geary has been appointed administrator of the estate by Judge Arthur B. Calkins. The greater portion of the estate, it is said, is represented by holdings in stocks and bonds of public service corporations and railroads. He was also a large owner of the Thames Dyeing and Bleaching company, Niantic and possessed considerable real estate in this city and in Waterford.

Kenneth LaFlamme, 14 year old Montville boy, who was blinded in an auto accident on Mohegan hill the night of December 10, will receive fifty dollars from the employes of the Southern New England Telephone company. The employes of this company have been raising the sum for the past few weeks and the amount was placed to his credit in a local savings bank this afternoon.

At a meeting of the athletic association of Connecticut college yesterday, Miss E. Elizabeth Speirs, '29, was elected to the office of president. She succeeds Miss Karla L. Heurich, of Washington, D. C. Miss Speirs is a New London girl and is extremely popular.

Over $75 was raised at a birthday supper and sale, held last night by members of Union circle of the Methodist church. Over 100 persons attended the event and each one had to pay an admission of one penny for every year of his or her age.

A benefit held last night under the auspices of the Bilnman street synagogue, cleared $175. The affair was a card party and many attractive prizes were given those making the highest scores.

The annual banquet of the junior class of Connecticut college will be held tomorrow evening at the Hotel Mohican at 7:30 o'clock. Miss Helen Smith, of Cleveland, will have charge of arrangements. One hundred and fiv emembers will attend and in addition six former members of the club are returning for the event. Others who will be present are President and Mrs. Benjamin T. Marshall, Dr. and Mrs. J. Lawrence Erb, Dean Mary K. Benedict and Miss Agnes B. Leahy of Norwich.

The New York Yacht club will again cruise to this port on August 9, according to a statement issued last night by the secretary of the association. In the race for the navy challenge cups, the first squadron will be made from New London harbor to Newport.

In an effort to improve lighting conditions on Bank street, the Connecticut Power company is making an experimental test of a new type street lighting bulb. Six 150-candlepower lamps have been taken down and replaced by three 1000 candlepower bulbs on alternate poles. City Manager Holt this afternoon stated that he thought the new arrangement would make a big improvement. The portion of Bank street getting the new lights is between Pearl and Golden streets.

Notice has been given the state police to institute a search for Antone Sibelli, Station 5, Waterford and 16-year old Mary Piccinette, of 803 Bank street, who disappeared from their respective homes Wednesday afternoon. Parents of the young people are inclined to believe that they have run away to be married. Sergeant Henry Albright of Groton state police has been assigned to trace the pair. He learned yesterday that Sibelli stated in a joking manner just before leaving home Wednesday that he was to be married that night. Search of the records at the municipal building, however, failed to disclose knowledge of any application to be married. Relatives strongly believe that the couple went from here to New York and are now married.

A dangerous highway and sidewalk in front of the building 146 Green street was reported last night by Sergeant Samuel Hick. The street and walk there were recently excavated for the purpose of making repairs to a broken water main and in filling it up workmen failed to take proper precautions, with the result that a dangerous hole remained. As soon as the report was made a red danger light was placed on the street.

While no appointment has been made, it is understood that P. Leroy Harwood of the Mariners Savings bank, will be made chairman of the republican town committee to succeed Theodore Bodenwein, who resigned recently.

Junk purchased from a minor brings only trouble, says Louis Gasman, who was in police court this morning on a chagre of buying from a youth. He was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detective Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith. Gasman got away without being penalized, as a suspension of judgment was given.

Benjamin Denehey was in court this morning charged with begging. His case was continued to April 23 and he was placed in the custody of the probation officer.

The funeral of Mrs. Dora Pitsch, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at her residence, 22 Benham road Groton, the services being conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of the Groton Heights Baptist church. Burial was in Groton cemetery.

Miss Harriet Emmerich, of Connecticut avenue, has resumed her duties in the probate court after having recovered from an operation for tonsilitis.

Moving Pictures Y. M. C. A. Sunday

Moving pictures that will interest and inspire will be shown at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. gymnasium on the coming Sunday at 4 o'clock.

In keeping with the Lenten season, the pictures shown will include "The Little Town of Bethlehem". The audience will see the Church of the Nativity which marks the traditional spot of the manger where Jesus was born and where the shepherds and wise men came to pay homage. Exterior and interior scenes of the church are shown. A trip around the village is taken, the market place on the edge of the village is visited, and on a lovely moonlight night a view of the fields where "The shepherds watched their flocks" are shown, as on the night which ushered in the Christian Era. In addition 3 reels of real interest titled "Flashes of the Past" will be shown. This is a Pathe picture record of the march of history over a fifteen year period, and it is of great educational value. Many of the personalities of these eventful years are portrayed. A Pathe Review of one reel shows Dr. William W. Mann, curator of the Washington zoo, and Charles Charlton the Pathe cameraman, leaving the United States and arriving at Tangan-yika territory in the wildest part of Africa. There they settle down with their wild animal neighbors.

A brief talk will be given during the service.

The public, except those under fourteen are invited.

Strand Theatre

Clear the tracks for "Casey Jones" the greatest of all railroad melodramas. With Casey Jones, a brave engineer at the throttle, "No. 39" tears through the inky blackness of night little knowing the great danger that lies just ahead. Suddenly the glaring headlight pences the murky darkness and Casey beholds the weakened railway bridge about to collapse. It is too late to stop—he opens the throttle wide and "Old 39" with Casey Jones at the throttle dashes ahead to what seems certain death! There have been railroad plays before—but never such a one as this. With its humor, its thrills—its tears—its deeds of death defying daring, its perilous plot, it will stand for all time as a tribute to "The Man at the Throttle". In the all star cast are Ralph Lewis, Kate Price, Al St. John and Brooks Benedict.

"Trail of a Ranger," is an interesting and colorful Tiffany production that you will enjoy.

"Her Big Adventure" is a smashing society melodrama starring Herbert Rawlinson and Grace Darmond. There are some wonderful scenes and some beautiful gowns worn by the fair sex in society gatherings. There is a fast moving plot that holds your interest, and which does not unfold itself until the last few feet of film. It then ends in a delightful romance. A splendid all star cast of players lend support to the stars, and make this a picture worth seeing.

This splendid program is being shown at the Strand on Sunday and Monday night. See our advertisement for tonight's program.

Palace Theatre

"The Showdown" which starts a three days run at the Palace theatre tomorrow night lifts the golden curtain which surrounds modern culture and shows us—savagery!

Based upon the search for oil which leads men into untrodden places, "The Showdown" shows what happens when city bred people, accustomed to the polite lives and dainty manners of metropolitan life, are brought face to face with the raw tests of the frontier.

In "The Showdown" which is George Bancroft's first starring picture for Paramount, a girl goes into a steaming jungle with her young husband refusing to be separated from him during the period in which he hopes to build up a fortune. She laughs at the jungle threat, scorns the menace of its silent decay and declares merrily she will dress every night for dinner.

Then as the slow months creep by and the heat and loneliness begin to affect her nerves, she forgets to follow the rules of daintiness which have governed her life. There comes a night when, crouching in terror, she sees four men in a corrugated iron cabin looking at her with desire in their eyes.

The working out of the dramatic tangle in "The Showdown," which Victor Schertzinger directed, forms one of the most powerful stories ever brought to the screen.

Heading the cast which supports Bancroft are Evelyn Brent, Neil Hamilton, Fred Kohler, Arnold Kent and Leslie Fenton.

Connecticut College Concert

Jascha Heifetz is heading toward disaster through the perfection of his playing, Bernard Shaw believes. The famous British dramatist, after recently hearing the brilliant young violinist play, took him gently aside and cautioned him that the exquisite beauty of his music might prove his undoing.

"You know," he said to him, "nothing may be perfect in this world, or God becomes jealous and destroys it. So would you mind playing something badly in your rooms before you go to bed at night?"

Heifetz is coming to New London next Wednesday for the last concert of the year's college series.

Breed Theatre

Olive Borden made her first visit to New York to play the title role in "The Joy Girl," which Allan Dawn produced for Fox Films from the Saturday Evening Post story by Mary Edginton. But once there, she adapted herself to New York's manner with schooled ease, to judge from her acting in the picture which opens a three day run at the Breed theatre tomorrow night.

Miss Borden won the part because of her brilliant work this season in the leading roles of "Three Bad Men," "Fig Leaves," and "The Monkey Talks."

The Dawn company went to Palm beach, Florida, to make exterior scenes for the picture. Interiors were made at the Fox New York studios and are no less realistic.

Director Dawn assembled a cast of well-known players to support Miss Borden. Neil Hamilton, who played the juvenile lead in "The Music Master," had the part of John Jeffrey Steele, the leading male role character. Miss Borden, Mary Alden, featured in "The Potters," portrayed the role of Miss Borden's mother.

An advance agent in Florida chose an array of 100 Palm beach girls who entered a beauty competition sponsored by the Palm Beach Times, with parts in "The Joy Girl," as the prizes. The contest produced a wealth of southern palchritude and the results is the proof.

"The Joy Girl" is the story of a romantic girl who sets out in search of adventure and a wealthy husband. Her quest takes her through the seashore resorts, night clubs, fashionable homes, and other playgrounds of the rich. The production has sumptuous cosmopolitan settings and nothing of the real luxury is omitted.

Pictures World War

Norwich and vicinity send many of its sons to the very center of the action in the World war, and many of these sons never returned. While others who came back witnessed all of the horrors of the great conflict and many of its glories. We have heard the stories told and retold again of the trials and triumphs that had been their lot. But no longer need we form our own mental picture of the part that Norwich and vicinity sons played in the war. The real outstanding features will be brought right before our eyes.

Norwich and vicinity may recognize their own fathers, brothers, sons and friends in hand to hand conflict with the Germans. They will see them fighting and will see them at rest behind the lines, they will see them fading in action and being decorated with the highest of military honors for heroism in action. There are scenes of fighting in a deep woods between the Americans and Germans with grim strained faces lying behind logs and pumping bullets from their rifles. There is a close up of an American who while placing another clip of cartridges in his rifle suddenly falls back gasping with a bullet in his lungs. Another creeping to a water-hole to fill his canteen and those of his buddies is hit by a German bullet and falls dead in the water, a German soldier hardly more than a lad peers from behind a clump of pine, starts to aim his rifle, then falls dead at an American doughboy having beat him to the shot. These are but a few of the scenes that are to be shown that will hold you spellbound and amazed at the part played in bringing the war to close by the youth of America in making the world safe for democracy. Everybody in Norwich and vicinity should see this astonishing picture. The Hourigan post is to be highly commended for its presentation in the Breed theatre, March 28 and 29. See adv.

SHOE STYLE SHOW BY SELF SERVICE STORE

The Self Service Shoe store in the Thayer building on Franklin square conducted an entertaining novelty Friday afternoon and evening in its spring shoe style show with living models in the window demonstrating the latest and most favored types of shoes. Honey beige, the latest tans, green blues and reds, with a novelty style in tapestry cloth were among the most attractive displayed.

Big crowds gathered in front of the store for the demonstration by the three beautiful models, Miss Mildred Wilson, a prize winner in the Boston shoe style show, Mrs. George Cordone, a well known professional model, and the daughter of Mr. Jacobson. The coats and dresses worn were from the White Star company. The shoe style opening will be continued this (Saturday) afternoon.

DR. J. H. EVANS BURIED WITH MILITARY HONORS

With military ceremony, the body of Dr. John H. Evans was laid to rest in the National cemetery at Arlington, Virginia, following the arrival of the funeral party.

A letter received in Norwich from his mother, Mrs. Genie Evans, upon her return to Bridgeport, gives the details of the funeral, as follows: Arriving in Washington at 7 a. m., we were met at the station and escorted to Arlington. As soon as we reached the gate, the United States took full charge of the obsequies and it was a scene one could never forget, the honors shown our dear boy.

The procession moved through the cemetery led by a band of 25 pieces and in the following order: Firing line of 16 men, honor guards of 60 men, the sergeant on a most beautiful dapple grey horse; then the gun carriage with the draped casket drawn by six dapple grey horses, with a rider on each of the three right horses. In the center of the cortege were eight bearers, followed by the car conveying the family, and another car with representatives of the Near East Relief. C. H. Vickery, head official of the N. E. R., went to Washington expressly to attend the funeral, as he held Dr. Evans in the highest esteem.

It is against military rules for any civilian to take part in any service at Arlington cemetery; but Mr. Vickery conferred with the secretary and explained to him the great and wonderful work that Dr. Evans had accomplished in the care of the suffering refugees in Erivan; so permission was granted him to deliver an address in the honored soldier's behalf. In so doing, Mr. Vickery did justice to the doctor's work of faithful and never-failing energy, for which he received decorations from notables, such as had never before been bestowed on any other American.

The letter stated that Dr. Evans' obituary, accompanied by his picture, was published in Washington papers.

BANK OF FRANCE STOCKING UP GOLD COINS AND INGOTS

Aim of the Government is to Transform Into Gold a Considerable Part of Credits Abroad—Ultimate Purpose is to Stabilize the Franc on a Gold Basis—The Government Must Assure the Peasant That He Can Get His Money in Gold.

PARIS, March 25.—(AP)—The administration of Premier Poincare and officials of the Bank of France are determined to increase greatly the bank's gold stock far beyond the consignments recently arrived from New York, and it is believed that the present movement of gold to France has just begun.

The aim of the government is to transform into gold a considerable part of its thousand million dollars abroad in credits and exchange and to have the coin and ingots actually in the vaults of the banks of France. The ultimate purpose of all this, of course, is stabilization of the franc on a gold basis, but whether stabilization will be undertaken sooner or later than early summer is not known at present. French credit, in and outside of the country, will be effectively strengthened by the actual presence in the Bank of France cellars of the mass of gold rather than bookkeeping entries in five or six foreign money centers. The Bank of France, operating for the treasury, has upward of a thousand million dollars in exchange for credits abroad. Of this amount $700,000,000 is in New York; 60,000,000 pounds in London, and lesser amounts in Amsterdam and Zurich.

The French note circulation of 58 billion francs could be 76 per cent. covered by the three billion six hundred million francs gold now in the Bank of France and the five or six billion francs gold or equivalent abroad. The purpose of the government, is is explained authoritatively, is not to bring back the total amounts now abroad but to increase its gold stock in Paris enough to approximate 50 per cent. of the note cancellation. Unlike ordinary citizens of other countries, one of the characteristics of the French peasant is that he wants gold for part of his money just to know he can get it and keep it if he wants to. Government experts have concluded that the peasant would not be content when the franc is finally stabilized to receive other pieces of paper which he was told represented gold but must know that he can get the gold also.

Before launching the program to bring huge stocks of gold home the Bank of France sounded out the Bank of England and was told that the English gold stocks were not sufficiently large to spare much of any for French account and it would be far better for international finance for France to leave her balances in England alone and draw from New York. Pursuing this suggestion it is understood here that the New York bankers gave sympathetic reception to the proposition to withdraw any amount of gold the Bank of France desires but the belief prevails that the New York bankers have grave doubts as to whether or not France should allow the gold coin to actually go into circulation once the franc is stabilized, the danger being, it is pointed out, that when the gold once has been released from the bank into private hands it is likely to be hoarded and become of no use either as a circulating medium or as giving stability to gold certificates. The gold ought, according to bankers, be retained in the bank more as a symbol than anything else.

CRUDE BOMB FOUND IN A HOUSE IN BROOKLYN

NEW YORK, March 25—(AP)—A crudely fashioned bomb was found in a Brooklyn apartment house today as police were investigating the bombing of a vacant barber shop on the level of an East Side subway station yesterday, and the finding of two bombs in widely separated sections of the city Friday.

Stella, 23-year old daughter of Charles Savilla, stumbled over a package in the vestibule of her home today. Police said it contained a tin canister filled with bolts and nuts and in the center was a fiber tube containing a one-pound box of gunpowder. Savilla told police he had received a threatening letter a week ago which demanded money, but did not give the amount or directions for delivery.

Police guards stationed at subway and elevated stations and power houses after the explosion in the barber shop at the Lexington avenue subway at 51st street last night were withdrawn today. Police said they were without clues in the case, but expressed the belief that the explosion was the work of personal enemies of John Reisler ("John the Barber") lessee of the shop.

FIND TRACES OF DE SOTO'S EXPEDITION IN GEORGIA

CARTERS, Ga., March 25—(AP)—Traces of Hernando de Soto's expedition through north Georgia were believed discovered near here yesterday, when a hilt guard and part of a blade of an iron sword was unearthed in an Indian mound by Dr. Warren J. Moorehead, head of the department of archaeology of Phillips academy, of Andover, Mass.

The part of the sword was found amid a score of skeletons and ceremonial relics which are believed to be of a pre-Columbian age.

The sword was found beside the skeleton of a warrior, stuck straight up in the ground, where it was placed after the brave had been buried. This relic of the white man's invasion of north Georgia measured about 6 inches and was made from iron. A strong indication that it came from de Soto's band.

PORTIONS OF RENO IS BURIED IN MUDDY WATER

RENO, Nev., March 25—(AP)—With the waters of the Truckee river raging bank full and a portion of the city of Reno buried under five feet of muddy water, fear was felt tonight that the big Boca ice pond dam at Boca, Calif., 22 miles west of here, might go out before morning.

The Boca dam is 30 feet high and 150 feet across and if it should collapse would pour more than a thousand acre feet of water into the already swollen Truckee river.

The concrete dam is anchored in earthen abutments. It was feared the water would seep around these abutments and cause the concrete to give way.

The water was pouring over the top of the dam tonight and backed up for more than a mile from the dam. Tributaries to the Truckee above the dam are swollen as the result of 24 hours heavy rain in the mountains.

"If you think we are on the wrong road," the premier said, "then disavow us next month because we intend to pursue the same policy in the future."

The audience gave Monsier Poincare a rousing ovation at the conclusion of his address.

Fascist Oath Taken By 80,000 Youths

Rome Was [illegible]ally Decorated [illegible] Ninth Anniver[illegible] Fascism.

Ro[illegible] March 25.—(AP)—Rain that varie[illegible]om mere drizzles to soaking downpours, and was prevalent throughout Italy, today failed to dampen the ardor of 80,000 youths who graduated from the "Avanguardisti" to the party badge and militiaman's musket of the fascist. The badge and musket were solemnly bestowed at colorful ceremonies in all the principal centers of population.

Here in Rome the ceremony occurred in the famous Piazza Del Popolo, from which through the nearby city gate Rome's conquering legions wended their way northward nearly two thousand years ago. More than 25,000 Avanguardisti youths and chubby youngsters of from eight years of age onward belonging to the "Balilli" literally choked the square.

They tore their lungs in the fascist yell when Mussolini appeared before them. Contrary to expectations, the duce made no speech to them but he listened as they took the fascist oath and then reviewed their phalanxes as they passed before him while the bands played "Giovinezza," the fascist hymn of youth.

Oath was given to the new members of the party who had reached their 18th year. The boys said:

"I swear to execute the orders of the duce without discussion and serve with all my force, if need be with my blood, the cause of the fascist revolution."

From the square the newly-enrolled legionnaires paraded down the Corso Umberto with the wind and rain lashing their faces all the way to the Victor Emanuell II monument under which the unknown soldier sleeps. After giving the fascist salute at that national shrine the youths and boys, drenched to the skin, dispersed to their habitations.

Twenty-four hundred young skiers from the Alpine provinces, who were brought to the capital for the occasion, were particularly applauded in the parade.

The city was bountifully decorated with national flags and the fascist emblem of lictors rods bound round an axe. Tonight all public buildings were illuminated in honor of this ninth anniversary celebration of the foundation of fascism.

Politics Will Sizzle In the Senate Today

Hoover and Smith Have Been Set Up as Targets For Promised Speeches.

WASHINGTON, March 25—(AP)—Congress will be in a position this week to tackle its big legislative problems—flood control and farm relief—but politics, at least so far as the senate is concerned, seems destined to receive first consideration.

Two presidential candidates—Herbert Hoover, a republican, and Governor Al Smith, a democrat, have been set up as targets for promised speeches in the senate tomorrow. Senator Neely, a West Virginia democrat, has given notice he will speak on Hoover's answer to Borah's prohibition questionnaire, and Senator Robinson, an Indiana republican, has announced he will have something further to say about Smith's retention of Harry F. Sinclair on the New York racing commission during the Teapot Dome investigation.

Meanwhile, the Jones compromise flood control bill, which has been whipped into shape after weeks of conferences so as to meet practically all conflicting views on this legislation, is ready to take its place on the senate floor. Unless Senator Norbeck, republican, South Dakota, is able to get an early vote on his bill to establish migratory bird reservations, leaders expect to displace it with the flood measure which apparently faces a clear road to passage as a result of its compromise complexion.

At the other end of the capitol, the house also expects to receive a revised flood bill. Chairman Reid of the house flood control committee, who also has been holding conferences, announced that a modified measure has been perfected and will be reported formally sometime during the week.

HOW CLEVELAND POLICE COPED WITH HECKLERS

CLEVELAND, O., March 25—(AP)—The greatest demonstration of Cleveland's police strength in years was caused today by persistent heckling from a crowd of 10,000 persons which gathered around a platform at University Circle to honor the delegation of visiting Hungarian officials.

Mounted police walked their horses three times through the crowd to the statute of Louis Kossuth, Hungarian patriot, in front of which the hecklers had taken a stand.

Banners and posters denounced the present Horthy regime. An airplane scattered pamphlets over the crowd which in turn sent up red ballons. Defenders of the present system in Hungary tore down the posters and banners while 400 policemen attempted to restore order. Six persons were detained at a suburban precinct station until the meeting was over.

The delegation leaves tomorrow night for Buffalo, the last city to be visited on their American tour.

MEXICAN ROBBERS WERE POLITE TO THEIR VICTIMS

"General" Returned Some Money to Victims Who Complained That They Were Broke After Making Their "Contributions"—Ambassador Morrow Passed the Scene of a Wholesale Robbery Less Than Three Hours After the Occurrence.

MEXICO CITY, March 25—(AP)—Dwight F. Morrow, U. S. ambassador to Mexico, received felicitations today on the fact that he missed a serious situation yesterday by a fairly close margin when the automobile in which he was traveling from Puebla passed the scene of a wholesale highway robbery less than three hours after the occurrence.

The fact that the ambassador's party was behind its schedule led to the theory being entertained in some quarters that the hold-ups were staged with the idea of intercepting Mr. Morrow, Genaro Estrada, acting foreign minister, and other members of the party and thus cause embarrassment abroad to the administration of President Calles. Eye witnesses of the robberies asserted that members of the band shouted "Viva Christo Rey," the slogan of the "Catholic revolution." This circumstance was taken as support of the theory that the affair was really planned as a blow at the prestige of the administration.

Others, however, maintained that robbery was the principal motive of the gang.

Automobile and motor bus traffic, which was suspended after news of the hold-ups reached Mexico City, was resumed today with as many travelers as usual. Strong guards of soldiers were stationed in the vicinity of the double curve where the highwaymen laid their trap and at other points on the road that were considered dangerous. In the past, guards have been maintained on the highway all the time, but the custom had been abandoned because it was thought that the route was safe.

Detachments of federal troops scouted the foothills of Popocatepetl and the mountain regions of the surrounding country, seeking traces of the highwaymen. The authorities believe that the band of 50 had split up into small groups so as to hide the more effectively.

The United States consulate at Puebla was unable to learn the identity of a man who, with his wife and baby, occupied the first private automobile that was stopped by the robbers. Eye witnesses said the family apparently was American and that after the robbery they proceeded toward Puebla. Consul Jenkins told the Associated Press that he had searched the hotels at Puebla and inquired of all American residents in that city without finding any trace of any citizen of the United States who was a victim of the hold-up. He also said that press dispatches to Mexico City newspapers reporting that the American vice-consul at Puebla had lost money and valuables in the affair, were unfounded.

Silvio Castilleros, Puebla correspondent for El Universal, a Mexico City newspaper, gave a graphic eye-witness account of the robbery. He said:

"I believe the band was made up of insurgents because they shouted 'Viva Christo Rey.' Also they asked first for arms and ammunition and they called for money only as 'contributions to the cause.'

"The robbers were very polite. They used no oaths and their commander, who was called 'General' by his men, returned some money to victims who complained that they were broke after making their 'contributions.' The chief also gave money to some poor women when search revealed that they possessed none.

"The highwaymen all carried brand new rifles. The varnish on the wooden parts was still fresh and the weapons looked as if they had just come from a factory. Every man wore three or four belts filled with cartridges.

"I was in the first bus that was stopped. The bandits surrounded the machine and ordered the men out first. They told the women to have no fear that they would be treated with consideration. In the bus was a federal private soldier in uniform. The chief of the band told this man to stand aside, saying they would deal with him later. We interpreted this to mean that they intended to kill the soldier. But while the robbers were searching us he begged a suit of overalls from the chauffeur, doffed his uniform and appeared in the guise of a workman by the time the searchers reached him.

"Machine after machine was stopped until there were 200 of us lined up on the highway. Then a government pay car arrived and a fight ensued between the highwaymen and the guards on that machine. A few of the robbers guarded us while others fought the pay car guards. Meanwhile, still other members of the band cut the telephone wires. Then the whole outfit suddenly retreated and we had a chance to lower our weary arms."

IDENTIFIED AS ROBBER SHORTLY AFTER MARRIAGE

NEWPORT, Tenn., March 25—(AP)—Within a few hours after being married in a hospital here today, a man who physicians said was "gravely ill," was identified as a member of a trio which robbed a North Carolina bank and an escaped convict from the North Carolina penitentiary.

Wash Turner, alias B. V. Kline, of Marion, N. C., and Miss Essie McDonald, also of North Carolina, and undergoing treatment for bullet wounds, were married and a short time later, Sheriff J. S. Braswel of Norman, N. C., identified the man a sone of three who robbed the bank of Norman on February 21.

Turner and his bride and W. E. Davis, alias W. E. Price, and his wife were wounded here Wednesday night during a pistol battle with Chief of Police W. I. Bell, who was also wounded as was Alex Buda, a bystander. Davis also was identified by the sheriff as implicated in the Norman robbery.

Turner, physicians said today, was gravely ill with pneumonica as a result of exposure following the battle.

Sheriff Braswell said Turner was an escaped convict from the North Carolina penitentiary at Raleigh, where he was serving a term for bank robbery.

Turner's bride probably will be blind in her left eye as a result of her wound.

Both Davis and his wife, physicians said, will recover.

MIAMI POLICE CHIEF TO BE GIVEN HEARING TODAY

MIAMI, Fla., March 25—(AP)—Chief of Police H. Leslie Quigg tonight stood behind jail bars, ready for his preliminary fight tomorrow through habeas corpus, to extricate himself from murder indictments returned by a grand jury that investigated "police tyranny" in Miami.

While none of the five subordinates in the city police department, who are sharing jail accommodations with their chief, will be directly affected by proceedings tomorrow if Quigg's contention that the grand jury was selected without due process of law is upheld, they would automatically be entitled to accruing benefits.

LIFEBOAT SCHUTTEVAER SIGHTED AT DEAL, ENG.

DEAL, England, March 25.—(AP)—The lifeboat Schuttevaer, which sailed from London last Tuesday, its crew of four men declaring they were going to make New York in 35 days, was observed passing here this morning. The crew was on deck enjoying breakfast and waved acknowledgement of the greetings from the pier.

One old salt remarked that if it took them five days to get from London to Deal, it was likely to take them 35 weeks instead of 35 days to reach New York.

WARMEST WEATHER FOR MARCH IN MANY YEARS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 25—With the town still protected with heavy "undies," spring paid an unexpected visit Saturday and became the reigning influence for about 36 hours, with the mercury reaching 66 degrees at mid-afternoon Saturday. The sudden advent of balmy weather proved a great impetus to spring shopping and the 100 or more merchants who had participated at considerable expense in the springtime opening that began Thursday night, were pleased to note immediate returns for their efforts. The temptation to secure that new spring outfit was almost irresistible as the mercury climbed steadily, with the result that a new mark for week-end business was made among retail concerns, for this time of the year.

OVER 300 CHILDREN IN NEED OF DENTAL CARE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, March 25—There are 317 children in the Windham schools who require dental attention, according to a statement made by Miss Elizabeth Stone, school nurse, in a talk given Friday before the W. C. T. U. Miss Stone said that 130 sets of teeth needed cleaning, 1,026 cavities needed filling and 387 children inspected. Her investigation disclosed a large number of children whose tonsils should be removed but the parents were unable to bear the expense of this operation. It was shown that the furnishing of milk by the W. C. T. U. had proven its benefit in the mental and physical development of the children. This work has been almost entirely confined to the Windham street school, where its need is more apparent. At the close of the meeting, the organization voted to enlist with the state board of education to assist in the care of the children's teeth. The meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs. Ida Pegrum.

Three bids, two of them from local concerns and one from a Boston firm, for the furnishing of 2,500 feet of six-inch cast iron pipe were opened by the water committee of the common council Saturday afternoon. Chairman William E. Webber announced that the successful bidder was the Boston concern and that the contract would be filled within two weeks. The pipe is to be laid on Tingley street, a newly accepted thoroughfare, running from Main to Prospect streets. The plan to do this work as early in the spring as possible was to offer relief to the unemployment situation.

A Burmese fashion promenade proved a most entertaining feature at a missionary rally of the Willimantic Christian Endeavor union, held in the Windham Center Congregational church, Friday night. The church was filled to capacity with members representing some 20 churches of this vicinity. Mrs. Merton Andrews of The Ridges had charge of the program. The models in the Burmese fashion show were Alice Copeland, of this city, Althea Andrews of The Ridges, and Haig S. K. Iskiyan, of Hampton. The models illustrated the talk, On the Road to Mandalay, given by Rev. Vere W. Abbey, of Hartford, who displayed many curios of the Burmese country. Vocal selections were by the Calvary Baptist church Negro quartet and a duet by Lawrence Dyer and Howard Nelson. The prayer service and benediction were respectively in charge of Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones, of Mansfield, and Rev. W. L. Muttart, of Hampton.

It is of interest that Reuben H. Bowden, graduate of Windham high school, class of 1910, and a son of Mrs. Jennie S. Bowden, of 161 High street, played a part of considerable importance in the erection of the proposed 75-story building as a memorial to Benjamin Franklin in New York city. The statement by the International Benjamin Franklin society of New York is to the effect that the memorial building was designed by Lieut. Comdr. Franklin Bache Huntington, a great-great-grandson of Franklin, and his associates, Stuart McC. Turner and Reuben H. Bowden. The structure will cost between $15,000,000 and $18,000,000, will occupy a 200 square foot plot and will rise 800 feet above the street level. After graduating from the local high school, Mr. Bowden studied at Columbia university.

Clarke imposed a 30-day jail sentence which was suspended and the accused placed on probation for three months.

Births in the town of Windham averaged one per day with the exception of the extra leap year day in February. There were 28 births recorded in the vital statistics for that month on file at the office of Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton, 17 females and 11 male children. The marriage average was low, there being but six recorded. Of the 15 deaths that occurred during the month, 12 of the deceased were over 69 years of age.

JEWETT CITY

CROSSING ELIMINATION MEANS SWEEPING CHANGES

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, March 25—Next week, April 5th, First Selectman Daniel F. Finn with the property owners who are affected by the proposed road changes which are to be made in the borough of Jewett City and its residential section of Sylvandale, will be in Hartford fo ra hearing before the public utilities commission. Never before in the history of this section has such a sweeping and wholesale taking over of private property been considered. A checkup on affected property Saturday will serve to set forth the drastic conditions contemplated. As one property owner on South Main street said, "We are between the devil and the deep sea." If the proposed survey, with costs and estimates is not approved, then it may mean a long trestle or even a granite-faced viaduct, all the way through South Main street, from the top of the hill near the state's library to the Quinebaug, as it is certainly settled that the Main street railroad crossing is to be eliminated.

According to plans submitted by Highway Commissioner John H. Macdonald. The homes of William M. McNicol and Frank Johnson in Sylvandale and John Sharkey and Supt. W. A. Richardson in Jewett City, will be razed or removed. In Lisbon a slice is taken off the Wallace Olsen and Bugbee properties. The survey then, after passing through the McNicol and Johnson residences, goes along in the rear of the properties of Mrs. J. H. Kennedy, the Baptist parsonage and E. F. Burleson.

From the new bridge overthe Quinebaug, a long viaduct will carry the road above the Pachaug river and the tracks of the N. Y., N. H. and H. railroad, to the Main street level in Jewett City, at the corner of Slater avenue. On south Main street, the new road, will be in the rear of every residence on the south side of that street, with the exception of John Sharkey's house, which will have to be taken away to accommodate the turn necessary to reach South Main street. The crossing will thus be eliminated and it was reported today that the trains would pass through a tunnel which would be equipped with outside stairs for such foot travel as may desire to enter South Main street. All vehicular traffic to the Jewett City cemeteries, the Aspinook Co., and the freight yard must pass over the new viaduct to the point now occupied by John Sharkey's house, then down the short cut-off and return up South Main to Anthony street. The present Sylvandale street in Lisbon, and the present South Main street in Jewett City will carry no trunk line traffic.

In Jewett City, the only three properties affected on the north side of Main street, are the Jewett City Savings bank, B. R. Gardner and Charles Arabek. From these properties a small part of the frontage is utilized, not affecting the buildings. The same will be the case on the south side of the street, relative to the properties of R. W. Dearnley and Dr. J. H. McLaughlin. At the corner of Slater avenue and Main street, the highway is brought about fifteen feet nearer to Dearnley's store. Dwellers on South Main street on the north side of the street are not affected residentially, except that it will be a bit longer to approach their residences with a vehicle.

Regarding the two garages on South Main, their business in their present sites, will receive a severe blow, as they will be off the main state road entirely. Many today do not consider dangerous, the railroad crossing, which Mr. Macdonald asks for permission to eliminate.

Practically no accidents happen there, except that now and then some rambunctuous driver smashes the gate Yet it is said the crossing is slated to go, and in this case, the federal government pays half, the state one-quarter and the railroad one-quarter.

The meeting of next week in Hartford before the public utilities commission has no bearing on the damage assessment. After permission is accorded Commissioner Macdonald by the public utilities commission, then comes the damage adjustment. A fair appraisal is generally reached and settlements made of an agreeable nature by common consent.

In case any property owners are not satisfied, and no agreement can be reached, the state deposits its proposed figure with the superior court. After an appeal is taken, a state referee, who will be a retired judge, hears the argument of both sides and renders final judgment. It was said here today, that in previous like cases, no property owner has benefitted by kicking against the fair financial proposition of the state of Connecticut.

PENDLETON HILL

The Sewing society met Wednesday. The dinner menu consisted of escalloped potato, maccaroni au gratin, mashed turnip, bread, butter and canned pears, pineapple pie, chocolate cake and coffee. The attendance was unusually small, perhaps on account of the walking. Nearly half enough blocks for a quilt were completed.

Rehearsals for the grange competitive entertainment have been the order of the day for a week or more. Mr. and Mrs. Clifford B. Thomson, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Andeman and Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Gray, respectively, have entertained the committee and those who are to take part in the competition. Cake and coffee have been served at each rehearsal. This competition is between the Pendleton Hill brothers and sisters as to who will present the better program.

The Wheeler school prize speaking contest was a matter of much interest to many here. The program was excellent and the award of prizes first, to Miss Vivi Bergins and second to Miss Sally Stewart seems to have been very satisfactory. Miss Sally Stewart is the great-great-granddaughter of Luther Palmer and bears her great-great-grandmother's name, Sally.

Much interest is also manifested in the prize debate, the third in a series of three contests which is to occur soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Axel Wanglin of New York and Chicago, who often visit Mrs. Annie Cook at Rose cottage, and are well known here, are cruising around the world and when last heard from were in Cairo, Egypt, from which place Miss Charlotte Cook has just received an interesting box of curios.

DANIELSON

E. M. HOPKINS DEAD; SKULL FRACTURED LAST OCTOBER

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 25—Elwood M. Hopkins, 51, of Dolly Cole Hill, a few miles east of here, died today at the Rhode Island hospital in Providence, the direct cause a fractured skull. One day last October Mr. Hopkins was found unconscious in an entry at his home. When he was revived he was unable to account for his condition, his mind apparently being blank as to just what happened and the assumption is that he fell and struck his head against a box that was near where he was lying.

In due time he made what was regarded as a fairly good recovery and was about as usual until a week ago, when he became so ill he was taken to the hospital, and the x-ray revealed the skull fracture. He was operated upon, but failed to rally as had been hoped he might.

Mr. Hopkins was a son of Lemuel and Susan Hopkins Hopkins and was born in the neighboring town of Foster. He had lived all of his life in that section, his home being just over the Foster line in Scituate. He leaves his wife, a son, Milton, a brother, Arthur and a sister, Mrs. Ella Round, all resident in that section. Mr. Hopkins was a past worshipful master of Hamilton lodge, A. F. and A. M., of Chepachet, and a past high priest of Scituate chapter, R. A. M.

TEN COTTAGES RANSACKED AT ALEXANDER LAKE COLONY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, March 25—Breaks at 10 of the cottages at Alexander's lake were discovered Saturday morning to state officers at the Danielson barracks. What the exact losses are likely cannot be determined until owners of these summer places have checked over the contents. The cottages have been closed throughout the winter season. Two of them are owned by Attorney Arthur G. Bill, prosecutor of the town court, and the others are owned by the estate of Herbert C. Keech, Noel Dupre, Putnam, John Leader of Attawaugan, Bertha Frost of Worcester, County Commissioner Arthur Keith of Putnam, John Lynch of Putnam, Eugene Brosseau of Putnam and Newton C. Johnson of Greenwich.

There is evidence to establish that whoever is responsible for the breaks also is responsible for the recent break at the Boulais store in Goodyear, for wrappings of articles taken fro mthat store were found in one of the lake cottages that had been entered. There is the possibility that whoever made the breaks at the lake lived for a time, secretly, in one of the cottages.

JUDGE YEOMANS DENIES MRS. O'CLAIR'S DIVORCE PETITION

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 25—There is very considerable local interest in the fact that Judge Yeomans, who heard the case in the superior court in Putnam the past week has denied the petition of Rose O'Clair of the West Side from Louis O'Clair, resident on Main street here.

In the memorandum of his decision Judge Yeomans says: In this case the evidence indicates that while the defendant has had frequent spells of drinking, he has never made any disturbance. For about 18 years the parties have lived together without any apparent complaint on the part of the wife. The boarders in the family testified it is a good place to board. The only evil results that appear to have come from drinking is occasional spells of unemployment. The evidence indicates that for the last year the parties lived together worked at least part of every week, with three exceptions. The wages all went for the support of the family. The two older children are living by their own choice with the defendant rather than with the plantiff. The defendant has been strictly sober since December 1, and expresses the intention of continuing to remain sober.

Under the circumstances I do not think it would be well to dissolve the marriage relation. After the length of time it has continued it may well be that will be resumed.

The petition is denied.

Saturday morning the funeral of Edmond Touchette was held from the home in Goodyear, with services at St. Joseph's church in Dayville at 9 o'clock, Rev. Ignatius Kost being celebrant of the requiem high mass. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery. Fr. Kost conducting the committal service. The bearers were Odias Fortin, Oliver Fortin, Edmond Fortin, Joseph Fortin, Joseph Touchette and Louis L'Homme. Martin T. Burns was the funeral director.

A closed car driven by Joseph Trosey, Springfield, its owned, turned over on Stearns hill Saturday evening. Mr. Trosey, who was the sole occupant of the machine, escaped without any injur yof consequence. He told state officers who checked up the accident that the wheels of the car locked when he applied the brakes, causing the machine to skid and turn over. The car was estimated to be damaged to the extent of about $50.

Today a story gained some circulation here and in nearby territory to the effect that a rabid dog had been in the vicinity of Central Village. Inquiry down there this afternoon developed no information to support the story, though it was said that a dog that dragged its hind legs had been about, and the assumption is that the animal had been injured through being hit with an automobile.

High temperatures today and yesterday served to hurry the removal of frost remaining in the ground along the routes of country highways. For the time being these roads are a mess in places, while fairly well dried out in others. In some place or another these roads now present conditions that make them almost impassable for motor cars.

Palm Sunday will be observed with ancient and impressive ceremonials at the high mass at St. James' church next Sunday. At the high mass there will be the usual blessing and distribution of palms, these being preserved throughout the year in the homes of families of the parish. The old Chickering House hotel after going through another fire has become more than ever an "eyesore" (as one spectator termed it at the recent blaze,) to the city. The remains of the hotel, once one of the best known in Connecticut, now give a very poor impression of the city to the people passing through on the trains.

The Union street part of the building is now covered with boards and other coverings and is used as a storeroom for one of the tenants. The exterior portions are charred and blackened from its recent fires. The fire last Thursday afternoon did little damage to the outside portion, but did considerable to the Talbot news room.

Plans as to what part of the island the bridge will cross and a survey of the outlay is being made now. With the excellent weather conditions that have been prevailing during the past week the work should be well neigh completed by the first of May. The span to be erected will be a foot bridge and will not be open to autoists. Parking space will be provided near the island.

One of Putnam's fast brooks that has been heavily stocked by the state board of fisheries and game showed a few of the specimens of trout it contained Saturday. Only a few trout of any size worth mention were caught in this section.
